1. In Mount Sharon Cemetery Company, 16 Del. 182 (1922); 3 D. & C. 179 (1922), the court held that in applications for charters for corporations of the first class there should be filed, to remain upon the record, a signed copy of the petition and articles of incorporation and of the decree, so that the records of the court will be complete in themselves. In Perry Council v. Robinson, 1 D. & C. 242 (1921), it was held that the Act of 1874 does not make the charter a part of the record of the court, and therefore, it should be returned to the corporation after it has been approved by the court and recorded by the recorder of deeds.

This draft requires the incorporators to prepare the articles in duplicate originals in order to provide one set of articles for the court record and the other set for the corporation.

2. The Pennsylvania act provides, inter alia: "the said order and charter shall be recorded in the office for the recording of deeds in and for the county aforesaid and from thenceforth the persons named therein and subscribing the same, and their associates and successors, shall be a corporation by the name therein given." It will be noticed that the act does not designate the person who is to have the articles recorded. In some counties it is the practice for the incorporators to do so, while in others the prothonotary transmits the endorsed articles to the recorder of deeds for recording, and the incorporators then lift the recorded articles from the office of the recorder of deeds. This draft adopts the latter practice. It is submitted that if the incorporators are required to record the articles on their own initiative, in many instances they may neglect to do so for some time. The result of such neglect may give rise to situations involving the de facto problem. See Schmitt v. Potter Title and Trust Company, 61 Pa. Super. 301 (1915). The purpose of this draft is to eliminate the de facto problem by the remaining provisions of this section and Section 209. The practice embodied in this draft appears to be the most desirable.

3. Under the Corporation Act of 1874 the recording of the charter is a condition precedent to corporate existence. Guckert v. Hacke, et al., 159 Pa. 303 (1893).

4. In Perry Council v. Robinson, 1 D. & C. 242 (1921), it was held that the Corporation Act of 1874 does not make the charter a part of the record of the court and, therefore, it should be returned to the corporation after it has been approved by the court and recorded by the recorder of deeds.

5. This provision is taken from Section 8 of the Uniform Business Corporation Act. See Note No. 6, infra.

6. This penalty was also taken from Section 8 of the Uniform Business Corporation Act. In Guckert v. Hacke, et al., 159 Pa. 303 (1893) it was held that failure to record the articles will render the incorporators personally liable to persons who deal with them without knowledge of the incorporation. Under the proposed act there will be a corporation, but the right of the creditor against the directors who are responsible for a violation of the section is not conditioned upon the creditor's ability to prove his deception.

Section 209. Validity and Effectiveness of the Articles.—The articles, endorsed by a judge and recorded by the recorder of deeds, shall be conclusive evidence of the fact that the corporation has been incorporated, but proceedings may be instituted by the Commonwealth to dissolve, wind up and terminate a corporation which should not have been formed under this act, or which has been formed without a substantial compliance with the conditions prescribed in this act as precedent to incorporation.

Uniform Business Corporation Act, Section 9.

Comments:

The object of this section is to solve the de facto problem. According to a note contained under this section in the Uniform Business Corporation Act, it is believed that the section, as worded, does not alter the present case law as to the right of the State, according to present law, the State may intervene: (a) when the corporation is one that should not have been incorporated under the act; and (b) when there has been a failure substantially to comply with such conditions precedent to incorporation as are considered mandatory. If, however, the conditions not complied with are found to be directory rather than mandatory, the default on the part of the incorporators is held to be unassailable even by the State. If, also, there has been substantial compliance with mandatory provisions, the State is not permitted to object that there has not been literal compliance. The proposed section treats all conditions prescribed by the act as precedent to incorporation as mandatory provisions, but declares substantial compliance to be sufficient. The line of distinction between mandatory and directory provisions is not defined with exactness, but it is believed that in most cases the distinction between mandatory and directory is in large part one between conditions precedent to incorporation and conditions precedent to the right to do business. It must be admitted, however, that the present section goes further than the case law in denying collateral attack upon the legality of incorporation. To deny collateral attack, the cases hold that (a) there must have been a real attempt to incorporate, and (b) the corporation must have been one that was formable under the statute. The present section would make the certificate of incorporation conclusive in all cases.

Section 210. Prothonotary to Make Monthly Report to Department of State.—The prothonotary of each court of common pleas shall, on or before the tenth day of each month, report to the Department of State the name and address of the registered office of each nonprofit corporation incorporated by the court during the preceding month, and for so doing shall receive a fee of One Dollar ($1.00) from each corporation, which shall be taxed as part of the prothonotary's filing fee.[1] The Department of State shall note after the registered name of each corporation the date of its incorporation. If any incorporators shall have registered a name with the department, and the corporation is not formed within six months from the date of such registration, the department shall cancel the registration of such name.[2]

Act of May 16, 1923, P. L. 246, Section 1, 15 PS Sec. 441.

Comments:

1. The Act of 1911 requires the prothonotary of the court of common pleas to report, monthly, to the Auditor General, the names of the corporations incorporated by the court, together with the names and addresses of the directors, and directs that the prothonotary shall receive $1.00 from each corporation for this service. It is submitted that no useful purpose is now served by requiring the prothonotary to make such a report to the Auditor General. On the other hand, the Secretary of the Commonwealth should have such a report, in that he is required to register the names of proposed corporations prior to their formation; therefore, he is entitled to know what corporations were or were not incorporated by the court.

The Act of 1923, P. L. 246, provides that every corporation of the first class shall notify the Secretary of the Commonwealth within thirty days after the charter was granted. It is submitted that better results will be obtained by requiring the prothonotary, instead of the respective corporations, to make the proposed report to the department.

2. The Act of 1923 provides that if the corporation fails to so notify the Secretary of the Commonwealth of the granting of the charter within a period of one year from the date of the application for the charter, the registration of the corporate name shall be cancelled by the secretary.

This draft reduces this period from "one year" to "six months," in order to prevent the incorporators from reserving the use of a corporate name for a period longer than that reasonably required for incorporation.

Query: Whether this period should be further reduced.

Section 211. Special Procedure for Incorporation of Educational Institutions Desiring to Confer Degrees.—A. In the case of the incorporation of a college, university, or theological seminary as a nonprofit corporation, with power to confer degrees in art, pure and applied science, philosophy, literature, law, medicine and theology, or any of them, the articles shall, in addition to the information heretofore required by this article,[1] and in conformity with the requirements and limitations contained in the following article,[2] set forth:

(1) The amount of assets in the possession of the incorporators which are to be devoted to the purpose of establishing and conducting the college, university, or theological seminary.

(2) The minimum number of persons whom it is intended to employ regularly as members of the faculty of the corporation.

(3) A brief statement of the requirements for admission to, and of the course or courses of study to be pursued in, the institution.

(4) The information hereinafter required by this article in the case of corporations formed to carry out the directions or purposes of a trust instrument, if the corporation is being formed under such circumstances.

B. When the articles and other papers are presented to the court for approval, the court shall examine them. If they are found to be in proper form and in conformity with the provisions of this act and shall appear lawful and not injurious to the community, the court shall so certify thereon. The court shall then direct the prothonotary or clerk of the court to transmit to the Superintendent of Public Instruction one copy of the articles. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall, within sixty days after the receipt of the articles, cause the State Council of Education to be convened, at such time and place as he may designate. Thereupon, the council shall consider the articles and shall make such investigations and hold such hearings as it may deem necessary in the premises. If the courses of instruction, the standards of admission to the institution, and the composition of the faculty shall appear to be sufficient and to conform to the requirements hereinafter prescribed in this act for such institutions, and if the educational needs of the particular locality in which the institution is to be situated and of the Commonwealth at large are likely to be furthered by the granting of the charter, the council shall endorse upon the articles its findings and its approval of the same, together with a recommendation to the court before which the articles were originally presented that the application for a charter be granted. If in the judgment of the council the application for a charter should not be granted, the council shall endorse upon the articles its findings and its disapproval, together with a recommendation to the court that the application be refused. Thereupon, the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall return the articles to the court, which, in passing finally upon the application, shall be guided in its decree by the findings of the council. If the court, after giving consideration to the approval of the council, shall be satisfied with the propriety of the application for a charter, in view of all the facts, it shall approve the application, but if the council has disapproved the application, the court shall refuse to approve the application. The court in no case shall have power to grant a charter to a college, university, or theological seminary, with power to confer degrees, until the application has been approved by the State Council of Education.[3]

Comments:

1. See Section 203 of this draft.
2. See Section 312 of this draft.
3. Under the present law, which is exemplified by the proposed section, it is necessary for the judge to consider a petition for the incorporation of a college or university before it is transmitted to the Superintendent of Public Instruction for presentation to the State Council of Education. Discussion is invited on the question whether or not the articles of incorporation of a college or university should be transmitted by the prothonotary in the first instance to the Superintendent of Public Instruction for presentation to the State Council of Education, before a hearing is held in the premises by the judge. Under this procedure the court would not have to consider the petition twice. Such procedure is now followed in the case of charitable institutions applying for a charter, in that the Department of Welfare makes the investigation and then reports its findings to the court. The proposed language is also intended to embrace any college with power to confer degrees, formed pursuant to a trust set up for the benefit of any incorporated city under the Act of May 26, 1911, P. L. 82.

The Act of 1911 provides for the reference of applications for such charters to the State Council of Education in precisely the same manner as applications for the charters of universities are required to be submitted under the Act of 1895 and the proposed section. The Act of 1911, however, does not specifically require such colleges to have the requirements specified by Section 6 of the Act of 1895, as amended, which is set forth in Section 312 of this draft. It is submitted that the same requirements should apply to every college, university or theological seminary desiring to have the power to confer degrees, irrespective of the fact that such institution is formed under a trust instrument or otherwise. See A (4), supra.

Discussion is invited whether or not a similar procedure should apply in cases where it may be desired to incorporate preparatory schools, etc., not having the power to confer degrees.

This section should be read with Section 312, which prescribes certain minimum standards for corporations desiring to have the power to confer degrees.

Section 212. Special Procedure for Incorporation of Charitable and Eleemosynary Institutions.—Whenever articles for the incorporation of a hospital or other charitable or eleemosynary institution or society, in which indigent persons are treated or are to be treated or maintained, are filed with the prothonotary, he shall forthwith transmit one copy of the articles to the Department of Welfare of the Commonwealth. Thereupon, the department shall make a thorough investigation as to the need for such a corporation in the community wherein the work of the corporation is to be carried on, and, within sixty days, shall certify upon the articles whether or not the needs of the community wherein the work of the corporation is to be carried on require the incorporation of such hospital, institution or society, and the reasons for its conclusion. The court shall not approve such application unless and until the articles are returned by the department, and unless the department shall certify that the incorporation of such hospital, charitable or eleemosynary institution or society is required by the needs of the community in which its work is to be carried on. The certificate of the department as to such necessity shall be conclusive upon the court.

Reference:

Act of July 19, 1917, P. L. 1120, 15 PS Sec. 1133.

Comments:

Under the Act of 1917, supra, the Department of Welfare merely has the power to make recommendations to the court, which are not conclusive upon the court. The duty of determining whether the needs of the community require the hospital or institution is imposed upon the court. The Department of Welfare advises that in many instances the courts grant charters to such hospitals or institutions on the same day that the certified copy of the application for the charter is received by the Department of Welfare, and, therefore, before that department has made an investigation and advised the court, as required by the act. This draft makes the recommendation of the Department of Welfare conclusive upon the court, just as the recommendation of the State Council of Education is conclusive upon the court in the case of an application for the incorporation of an educational institution,

The draft prohibits the court from granting an application for a charter until it receives a certificate from the Department of Welfare as to the necessity of a hospital in the community, and requires that the Department of Welfare shall make an investigation to determine this fact within sixty days. The Department of Welfare is of the opinion that a period of sixty days will afford it ample opportunity to perform the duties required by this section.

It is submitted that the Department of Welfare is in a better position than the court to ascertain the need for a charitable corporation in a particular community. The laws of many other states require the Department of Welfare of the state government to approve or disapprove the granting of charters to charitable corporations. See in particular Chapter 180, Section 6, of the Masachusetts Code, and Article 2, Section 11, of the Membership Corporations Law of New York.

Section 213. Corporations for the Execution of Trust Instruments.—Whenever the terms of a trust instrument shall direct designated trustees to form a nonprofit corporation for the purpose of carying out the intents and purposes of the trust instrument, or whenever the trustees of a trust instrument shall deem it advisable to incorporate to carry out the intents and purposes of the trust instrument, the articles filed for this purpose shall, in addition to the information heretofore required by this article, set forth:

(1) The general terms and provisions of the trust instrument as the purpose or purposes of the corporation.

(2) The nature and value of the trust property.

(3) The number of persons who shall constitute the permanent board of directors, the qualifications of the directors, the length of time for which the directors are authorized to act after election and appointment the mode in which their successors shall be elected or appointed, and the manner in which vacancies shall be filled, as prescribed by the trust instrument.

(4) Such other provisions of an organic nature as may be necessary to carry out the intent of the donor or testator.[1]

When the articles are presented to the court, they shall have attached thereto a verified copy of each trust instrument relating to the trust for the carrying out of which the nonprofit corporation is being formed.[2]

Michigan General Corporation Act, Sections 148 and 150.

Comments:

1. Under our present law a corporation of the first class may be formed to carry out the terms of any will or trust deed, provided the purpose for which the corporation is formed is enumerated in the Act of 1874. The proposed section, together with Section 201, will permit a nonprofit corporation to be formed for the purpose of carying out the intents and purposes of any lawful deed or gift, grant, agreement, or any last will and testament, by which the donor, grantor or testator shall give, grant, devise or bequeath any property, real, personal or mixed, or the income therefrom, in trust for the benefit of any religious, charitable, benevolent, or educational institution or public benefaction, of whatever name or nature.

The special revision committee appointed by the Pennsylvania Bar Association pointed out that in recent years many so-called foundations of great charitable import have been created, with charters from other states or Congress, or by will, none of which could be incorporated under any of our acts. The proposed section, together with Section 201, was drafted to remedy this defect in our law.

2. In Vaux's Appeal, 109 Pa. 497 (1885), it was suggested that a copy of the will should be attached to every application for the formation of a corporation pursuant to the terms of a will, but in re Garrett-Williamson Lodge, 239 Pa. 474 (1913), the Supreme Court stated that: "as a matter of convenience it might be well to have a copy of the will attached to the charter as was suggested in Vaux's Appeal, supra, but the act of assembly contains no such requirement, and failure to do so, does not affect the validity of the charter." This draft requires a copy of the trust instrument to be presented to the court.

Section 214. Religious Corporations.—In the case of the incorporation of any church or religious congregation, the articles may, in addition to the information heretofore required by this article, contain all or any one of the following:

(1) A provision that the church or congregation acknowledges itself to be a member of and to belong to a specific church or religious denomination, and that, as such, it accedes to, recognizes and adopts the constitution, canons or ecclesiastical laws, doctrine, discipline and worship of such specified church or religious denomination in the United States, and the constitution and canons or ecclesiastical laws of the diocese or district of such church or religious denomination embracing the whole or a part of the Commonwealth with which the particular church or congregation is or expects to be connected.[1]

(2) A provision that the rector or minister chosen by such corporation to take charge of the religious services by it maintained shall, during his continuance in the office of rector or minister, be exofficio president of the board of directors.[2]

(3) A provision that the church or religious denomination is chartered for the further collateral purpose of conducting a public burial ground or cemetery not for profit, other than is necessary for the proper maintenance of the burial ground or cemetery.[3]

References:

Act of May 5, 1911, P. L. 172, Section 1, 15 PS Sec. 23—charter may declare denomination.

Act of June 1, 1915, P. L. 703, Section 1, 15 PS Sec. 1132,—rector to be exofficio president.

Act of May 5, 1921, P. L. 395, Section 1, 15 PS Sec. 1111,—burial grounds.

Comments:

1. The Act of 1911 supplemented the Act of 1874. Section 2 of the act validated similar provisions of existing charters. The act, in its present form contains the following proviso: "Provided, however, That the said constitution, canons, or ecclesiastical laws, doctrines, discipline, and worship, be not inconsistent with the constitution or laws of the United States, or with the constitution or laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and that they do not conflict with the control of the property of said corporation by the lay members of said corporation." In the application for charter of St. Bartholomew's Protestant Episcopal Church, 260 Pa. 284 (1918), it was held that the proviso need not appear in the certificate of incorporation. The proviso is merely a statement of existing law, and in any case it would be the duty of the tribunal hearing the application to determine the legality of ecclesiastical laws to be adhered to. For this reason the proviso is committed from this draft.

2. This provision should be read with Section 502 and Note No. 2 under that section. The Act of 1915, P. L. 703, provides that the charter of a religious corporation may provide that the rector or minister may be exofficio president "of the vestry, board of trustees, board of directors, or governing body, by whatever name designated of such corporation." This draft merely uses "board of directors," for by the definition of "directors" contained in Section 2 of the draft the term "directors" includes vestrymen, trustees, etc.

3. The Act of 1921 also authorizes a church to be incorporated for the collateral purpose of conducting a public burial ground or cemetery not for profit. The act provides for the management and control of such cemetery, the sale of lots, etc. These provisions will be found in Section 315, post.

Section 215. Young Men's Christian Associations.—In the case of the incorporation of a Young Men's Christian Association, the articles shall, in addition to the information heretofore required by this article,[1] set forth:

(1) The names and addresses of at least six trustees (in addition to the names of the directors) who, together with the president of the association, shall form a board of trustees having the powers and duties hereinafter expressly prescribed by this act.[2]

(2) A statement that the proposed corporation is for the improvement of the spiritual, mental, social and physical condition of young men, by the support and maintenance of lecture rooms, libraries, reading rooms, religious and social meetings, gymnasiums, and such other means and services as may conduce to the accomplishment of that object, according to the general rules and regulations of the State Young Men's Christian Association of Pennsylvania.

Act of May 9, 1889, P. L. 163, Sections 1 and 2, 15 PS Secs. 2841-2842.

Comments:

1. See Section 203 of this draft.

2. Under the provisions of the Act of 1889, every Young Men's Christian Association that is incorporated is required to have, in addition to the board of directors, a board of at least six trustees. Section 4 of the Act of 1889 prescribes the qualifications of the trustees, and Section 5 of the act prescribes the duties of the trustees. The provisions of Sections 4 and 5 of the Act of 1889 will be found in Section 504 of this draft.

Query: Whether the board of trustees is necessary. This type of corporation appears to be the only one in which there is a board of trustees and a board of directors.

In General: Under the provisions of the Act of 1889, ten or more persons are necessary to incorporate a Young Men's Christian Association. For the sake of uniformity, this draft does not contain this requirement, but under Section 201 of this draft five or more persons may form such a corporation.

Attention is called to the fact that there appears to be no statutory law expressly providing for the incorporation of Young Women's Christian Associations, Young Men's Hebrew Associations and Young Women's Hebrew Associations. The general provisions of this draft will permit the incorporation of such associations.

Section 216. Cemetery and Burial Companies.—In the case of the incorporation of a cemetery or burial company as a nonprofit corporation, the articles shall, in addition to the information heretofore required by this article, contain a provision that a sum equal to at least one-tenth of the gross amount of the funds arising from the sale of lots in the burial ground or cemetery of the company shall be set apart for the perpetual care and preservation of the grounds and the repair and renewal of the building and property of such company; and that such sum shall be invested by the board of directors in investments similar to those constituted as legal investments for trustees, under the laws of this Commonwealth; and that the income arising therefrom shall be applied by the board of directors to the above purposes.

Reference:

Act of March 18, 1909, P. L. 41, 15 PS Sec. 1091.

Comments:

The Act of 1909 provides that no charter shall be granted to a burial or cemetery company, either of the first or second class of corporations, unless its charter sets forth the above provision.

This act also provides that the directors or managers of such companies shall file annually with the clerk of the court of the county in which the company is situate a bond with sufficient sureties, to be approved by the court of quarter sessions, for the faithful performance of the trust.

Query: Whether this requirement is necessary. This draft does not contain this requirement.

Section 217. Unincorporated Associations.—In the case of the incorporation of an unincorporated association, society, league or club as a nonprofit corporation, the articles, when presented to the court, shall, in addition to the other papers heretofore required by this article, have attached thereto a copy of the constitution and by-laws of the association, and an affidavit of at least three of the incorporators, stating:

(1) That the purpose or purposes set forth in the articles are the same as those of the unincorporated associations.

(2) That the incorporators constitute a majority of the members of a committee authorized to incorporate such association, society, league or club by the requisite vote required by the organic law of the association, society, league or club for the amendment of such organic law.

Comments:

The Pennsylvania statutory law does not seem to cover this type of case. Discussion is invited on the question whether or not such a provision is necessary. It is submitted that the court should be in a position to know whether or not the majority of an unincorporated association has acted according to the mandates of the constitution of the association.

Some of our courts require that the constitution of an association applying for a charter shall be made part of the application, or at least that it be submitted for the approval of the court. ARTICLE III

CORPORATE POWERS, DUTIES AND SAFEGUARDS

Section 301. Corporate Capacity and Authority.—A nonprofit corporation shall have the capacity to act possessed by natural persons, but shall have authority to perform only such acts as are necessary or proper to accomplish its purpose or purposes, and which are not repugnant to law.

Comments:

This section is supplementary to Section 11 of this draft. Section 11 abolishes the doctrine of constructive notice of the contents of the charter of a corporation.

This section abolishes another prop of the ultra vires structures, namely, the doctrine that a corporation has a limited capacity measured by its statutory powers. This section, in effect, restores the common law rule that a corporation has the capacity of natural persons; that is, the capacity to do an unauthorized or even an illegal act.

A note to Section 11 of the Uniform Business Corporation Act points out:

"The fundamental conflict in the authorities may be represented by the statement of Justice Gray in Central Transportation Co. v. Pullman Car Co., 139 U. S. 24, 59, that "The objection to the contract, is, not merely that the corporation ought not to have made it, but that it could not make it. The contract cannot be ratified by either party, because it could not have been authorized by either. No performance on either side can give the unlawful contract any validity, or be the foundation of any right of action upon it,' as opposed to the statement of Comstock J., in Bissell v. R. R., 22 N. Y. 258, 284, that 'To say that a corporation has no right to do unauthorized acts, is only to put forth a very plain truism; but to say that such bodies have no power or capacity to err, is to impute to them an excellence which does not belong to any created existence with which we are acquainted. The distinction between power and right is no more to be lost sight of in respect to artificial than in respect to natural persons. * * * When we speak of the powers of a corporation, the terms only expresses the privileges and franchises which are bestowed in the charter; and when we say it cannot exercise other powers, the just meaning of the language is, that as the attempt to do so is without authority of law, the performance of unauthorized acts is a usurpation which may be a wrong to the state, or, perhaps, to the shareholders. But the usurpation is possible. In the same sense natural persons are under restraint of law, but they may transgress the law, and when they do they are responsible for their acts." The first view may be said to prevail in the federal courts and a minority of the state courts, while the second view probably obtains in the courts of all but eight of the states.

"The first view is based upon the conception of limited corporate capacity; the conception that a corporation cannot do what it has not been given authority to do. * * * This doctrine of limited capacity, like the doctrine of constructive notice, is the result of a judicial interpretation of legislative intention * * * At common law, a corporation had the capacity of natural persons, i. e., the capacity to do an unauthorized or even an illegal act. * * *

"Sections 10 and 11 of this draft, by abolishing the doctrine of constructive notice and the doctrine of limited capacity, would remove two of the sources of greatest confusion in the ultra vires cases, the chief obstacles to uniformity in decisions As suggested, these obstacles, springing from an interpretation of legislative intention, can be removed only by legislation. Further legislation than this in connection with the ultra vires problem seems to be unnecessary. * * *"

Section 302. General Powers.—Subject to the limitations and restrictions contained in this act or in its articles, every nonprofit corporation shall have authority:

(1) To continue as a corporation for the time limited in its articles, or, if a time limit is not specified therein, then perpetually, subject to the power of the General Assembly, under the Constitution of this Commonwealth.[1]

(2) To sue and be sued, complain and defend in its corporate name.[2]

(3) To have a corporate seal which may be altered at pleasure, and to use the same by causing it or a facsimile thereof to be impressed or affixed, or in any manner reproduced.[3]

(4) To purchase, take, receive, lease as lessee, take by gift, devise or bequest, or otherwise acquire, and to own, hold, use and otherwise deal with any real or personal property, or any interest therein, situated in or out of this Commonwealth, which may be appropriate to enable it to accomplish fully and properly its corporate purpose or purposes.[4]

(5) To sell and convey, lease as lessor, and otherwise dispose of all or any part of its property and assets.[5]

(6) Whenever its general interest so require, to borrow money and issue its promissory note, bond, or other form of certificate of indebtedness, for the repayment thereof, with interest at a rate not exceeding six per centum; and, in like case, to mortgage its property as security for its debts or other lawful engagements.[6]

(7) To elect or appoint and remove officers and agents of the corporation, and to define their duties and fix their compensation.[7]

(8) To make, alter, amend and repeal by-laws, not inconsistent with its articles or with law, for the administration and regulation of its affairs.[8]

(9) To enter into any obligation necessary for the transaction of its ordinary affairs.[9]

(10) To have and exercise all of the powers and means necessary or essential to effect the purpose or purposes for which the corporation is formed.[10]

(11) To dissolve and wind up.[11]

The powers herein enumerated shall not be construed as limiting or enlarging the grant of authority hereinbefore made by this article, or as a limitation on the purpose or purposes for which a corporation may be organized, as set forth in its articles. It shall not be necessary to set forth any of such enumerated powers in the articles of the corporation.

Comments:

1. This is practically a restatement of existing law. The similar provision in the Act of 1874 is as follows: "To have succession by its corporate name for the period limited by its charter, and when no period is limited thereby, or by this act, perpetually, subject to the power of the general assembly, under the constitution of this Commonwealth." This draft does not sepcifically limit the corporate existence of any corporation; therefore, the underlined provision was not included in this draft.

In twenty-eight American jurisdictions corporate existence may be perpetual; in twenty-four it must not exceed a certain maximum period, which varies from twenty to one hundred years. Of these twenty-four states, however, seventeen permit an extension of corporate existence by amendment or renewal. Section 12 of the Michigan General Corporation Act of 1931 provides that: "Corporations organized without capital stock for religious, benevolent, social or fraternal purposes, may incorporate without fixing any definite term in their articles, and the terms of such corporations shall be deemed to be perpetual, subject to the right of the legislature to alter, repeal or amend this section in accordance with the constitution."

2. The Act of 1874 provides that every corporation shall have the power: "To maintain and defend judicial proceedings." This draft restates the Pennsylvania provision.

3. The Pennsylvania provision is as follows: "To make and use a common seal and alter the same at pleasure."

4. This paragraph, together with Section 306, effects quite a change in the mortmain policy of the Commonwealth in regard to corporations not for profit.

Article XVI, Section 6, of the Pennsylvania Constitution provides, inter alia, that: "No corporation shall * * * take or hold any real estate except such as may be necessary and proper for its legitimate business." The Pennsylvania Corporation Act of 1874 provides that a corporation has the power: "To hold, purchase and transfer such real and personal property as the purposes of the corporation require, not exceeding the amount limited by its charter or by law."

In the Report of the Judges, 3 Binn. 595, 625 (1808), it was decided that the English statutes of mortmain were in effect in Pennsylvania to the extent that no corporation can hold land in Pennsylvania except under special authority from the Legislature. In Pennsylvania the operation of the statutes of mortmain is not to restrain a corporation from acquiring lands in pursuance of its common law power, but to prevent it from retaining lands which it has acquired without a license and to vest the right thereto in the Commonwealth. Leazure v. Hillegas, 7 S. & R. 313, 320 (1821); Runyan v. Coster, 14 Pet. (U. S.) 122, 10 L. Ed. 382 (1840).

As a result, many acts were passed which authorized corporations of the first class to hold real estate within certain limits.

Under our present statutes a corporation of the first class formed under the Corporation Act of 1874 may hold real estate having an annual income value of $50,000. Likewise, corporations not for profit formed under special acts are authorized to hold real estate having a similar income value. Literary, religious, charitable or beneficial societies, congregations, associations, or corporations having capacity to take real and personal estate within this Commonwealth may acquire and hold the same to the extent, in the aggregate, of the clear yearly value of $350,000 and to no greater extent, unless they secure a decree of court authorizing them to hold such property to a greater extent.

This draft supersedes all existing legislation relating to the amount of property which corporations of the first class may hold.

For a complete discussion of the Pennsylvania mortmain policy and the changes made in this policy by this draft, see the notes under Section 306.

5. This provision, which is not similar to any provision in the Corporation Act of 1874, was taken from The Business Corporation Act of Illinois. Section 308 of this draft prescribes what procedure shall be followed before the corporation may sell or otherwise dispose of its property and assets.

6. This provision was taken from Section 127 of the Michigan General Corporation Act.

Existing statutory law pertaining to the borrowing of money and the mortgaging of property by corporations of the first class is meager. The Act of May 21, 1889, P. L. 257, authorizes all corporations to borrow money and to secure the same by a mortgage on their real estate. This act provides that corporations may secure a loan by mortgage "upon their real estate and machinery, or on their real estate alone, to an amount not exceeding one-half of the capital stock of the corporation paid in, and at a rate of interest not exceeding six per centum." This act, by the use of the words "capital stock," might well be said not to apply to corporations of the first class.

The Act of February 9, 1901, P. L. 3, as amended by the Act of April 22, 1905, P. L. 280, must be read in connection with the Act of 1889. The Act of 1901 permits corporations to increase their indebtedness, regardless of any limitations prescribed in any general or special law, to an amount necessary to accomplish and carry on and administer the business and purposes of the corporation. This act provides for the approval of "stockholders," and, therefore, may readily be said not to apply to corporations of the first class.

As a general rule, a corporation has the implied power to borrow money and, as an incidental power thereto, to issue its certificate of indebtedness and to secure the same by a mortgage on its property. Savidge on Pa. Corps., Volume 1, Section 496, Page 399, and Volume 2, Section 1002, Page 792; First Baptist Church of Erie v. Caughey, et al., 85 Pa. 271 (1878). It is submitted, however, that in the case of nonprofit corporations the power to borrow money and mortgage real estate should be set forth specifically, as such power is not as readily implied to such corporations as it is to business corporations. See Section 308 of this draft, which prescribes what procedure must be followed before a nonprofit corporation may borrow money or mortgage its property.

7. The Corporation Act of 1874 contains a similar provision, as follows: "To appoint and remove such subordinate officers and agents as the business of the corporation requires, and to allow them a suitable compensation." Article IV of this draft provides that this power shall be exercised in the form of by-laws.

8. The Pennsylvania provision is as follows: "To make by-laws not inconsistent with law, for the management of its property, the regulation of its affairs, and the transfer of its stock." The proposed provision is practically a restatement of the Pennsylvania provision, except that it: (1) specifically permits a corporation to alter, amend and repeal its by-laws, and (2) eliminates any reference to the transfer of stock, as the latter provision pertains to corporations for profit.

9. This provision is taken directly from the Pennsylvania Corporation Act of 1874.

10. This provision is not contained in the Pennsylvania Corporation Act of 1874, but appears to be desirable. It is a statement of the implied power theory. This provision was taken from the Illinois act.

11. This provision, which does not appear in the Corporation Act of 1874, was taken from the Uniform and the Illinois acts.

Section 303. Defense of Ultra Vires.—(A) No limitation upon the business, purpose or purposes, or powers of a nonprofit corporation, expressed or implied in its articles or implied by law, shall be asserted in order to defend any action at law or in equity between the corporation and a third person, or between a member and a third person, involving any contract to which the corporation is a party or any right of person, except the said peace officers, when necessary for the such limitation may be asserted:

(1) In an action by a member against the corporation to enjoin the doing of unauthorized acts or the transaction or continuation of unauthorized business. If the unauthorized acts or the business sought to be enjoined are being transacted pursuant to any contract to which the corporation is a party, the court may, if all of the parties to the contract are parties to the suit, and if it deems the same to be equitable, set aside and enjoin the performance of such contract, and in so doing shall allow to the corporation, or the other parties, as the case may be, compensation for the loss or damage sustained by either of them, which may result from the action of the court in setting aside and enjoining the performance of such contract but anticipated profits to be derived from the performance of the contract shall not be awarded by the court as a loss of damage sustained.

(2) In an action at law or in equity by the corporation, whether acting through a receiver, trustee, or other legal representative, or through members in a representative suit, against the officers or directors of the corporation for exceeding their authority.

(3) In a proceeding by the Commonwealth, as authorized by law, to dissolve the corporation, or in a proceeding by the Commonwealth to enjoin the corporation from the transaction of unauthorized or unlawful business.

(B) No conveyance or transfer by or to a corporation of property, real or personal, of any kind or description, shall be invalid or fail because in making such conveyance or transfer, or in acquiring the property, real or personal, the board of directors or any of the officers of the corporation, acting within the scope of the actual or apparent authority given to them by the board of directors, have in so doing exceeded any of its objects, purposes, or powers.

(C) The provisions of this section shall extend to contracts and conveyances made by foreign corporations in this Commonwealth and to all conveyances by foreign corporations of real property situated in this Commonwealth.

Comments:

Volume 7, Fletcher Cyclopedia Corporations, Permanent Edition (1931), at page 589, states:

"Until a few years ago, there were no statutes in this country relating to ultra vires as a defense. However, the conflict and confusion in the decisions as to the effect of ultra vires, and the desire of many to abolish the doctrine as between the parties to the ultra vires act, have resulted in the past few years in numerous proposed codifications and restatements of the ultra vires doctrine and also in the enactment of statutes in several states either limiting or abolishing the doctrine of ultra vires as between the parties to the alleged ultra vires transaction. These statutes may be classified as (1) those adopting wholly or in substance the Uniform Business Corporation Act, and (2) statutes in states not adopting that act. This first class of statutes does not go so far, and is not as comprehensive, as the latter class of statutes."

The Uniform Business Corporation Act merely attempts to make uniform the decisions relating to the defense of ultra vires by abolishing two doctrines which give rise to most of the confusion in such decisions; namely: (1) the doctrine of constructive notice of the contents of the charter, and (2) the doctrine of limited corporate capacity. If these two doctrines are abolished, the effect will be to bring the few states in this country which follow the Federal rule in line with the majority of the states, which do not follow the Federal rule in the field of ultra vires. This draft, in Sections 11 and 301, follows the suggestion of the Uniform Business Corporation Act.

It is submitted, however, that the elimination of the doctrines of constructive notice and limited corporate capacity will make little change in the present Pennsylvania law. In Pennsylvania an unexecuted corporate act or agreement which is ultra vires can ordinarily be repudiated by the corporation—Pittsburgh and Steubenville Railroad Company v. Allegheny County, 79 Pa. 210 (1875); Twelfth Street Market Company v. Jackson, 102 Pa. 269 (1883)—but a corporation may not avail itself of ultra vires as a defense where a contract has been entered into and executed in good faith by the other party and the corporation has received the benefit of the performance. This rule is founded upon the doctrine of estoppel rather than ratification, and relates to all contracts except those absolutely void on the ground of public policy—Boyd v. The American Carbon Black Company, 182 Pa. 206 (1897); Presbyterian Board v. Gilbee, 212 Pa. 310 (1905); Lemmon v. The East Palestine Rubber Company, 260 Pa. 28 (1918); Doylestown and Danborough Turnpike Railroad Company v. Philadelphia and Easton Electric Railway Company, 49 Pa. Super. 381 (1912). If an ultra vires contract is partly executory, a corporation may, if the contract is easily divisible, avoid the executory portions, because of their ultra vires nature—Thomas, et al., v. West Jersey Railroad Company, 101 U. S. 71 (1880); Gloninger v. Pittsburgh & C. R. Company, 139 Pa. 13 (1891); Bosshardt v. Crescent Oil Company, Ltd., 171 Pa. 109 (1895)—otherwise the doctrine of equitable estoppel is applicable to the partly executory contract—Leslie and Company, Ltd., v. Baird Manufacturing Company, 66 Pitts. 753 (1918). Also, in Pennsylvania this doctrine may be set up by stockholders, the State, or by creditors, but not by a stranger to the transaction—Hazelwood Brewing Company v. Siebert, 256 Pa. 9 (1917). Generally speaking, the defense of ultra vires is not looked upon favorably by the courts of this Commonwealth. As is stated in Wright, et al., v. The Pipe Line Company, 101 Pa. 204 (1882), "The law never sustains a defence of this nature out of regard for a defendant; it does so only where an imperative rule of public policy requires it."

On the other hand, in very recent years, Vermont, Ohio, California, Illinois, and Michigan have abolished the defense of ultra vires between the corporation and a third party or a stockholder and a third party. Ohio, however, expressly retains the ultra vires doctrine as against a person having actual knowledge of the want of authority of the corporation. These states, however, permit such defense to be set up between the corporation and the stockholders. None of the statutes enacted by these states changes the law as to the power of the State to forfeit or oust because of ultra vires, or the power of the corporation or its stockholders to prevent ultra vires transactions, or obtain redress therefor as against corporate officers.

This draft, likewise, goes further than the Uniform Business Corporation Act and abolishes the doctrine of ultra vires between the corporation and third parties or members of the corporation and third parties. The provisions of this section are taken from the Illinois and California acts, which were adopted in 1931.

Query: Whether Pennsylvania should follow the Ohio act and permit the corporate body to use the defense of ultra vires against a third party which dealt with the corporate agents knowing that the transaction was ultra vires and that the agents had no authority from the corporation to engage in this transaction.

Section 304. Membership Certificates and Capital Stock.—A nonprofit corporation may be organized upon either a non-stock basis or upon a stock share basis, as set forth in its articles. A nonprofit corporation organized upon a non-stock basis shall not issue shares of stock, but membership in such corporation may be evidenced by certificates of membership. Upon the face of each such certificate there shall be printed in clear type a statement that the corporation is a nonprofit corporation.[1] The shares of nonprofit corporations organized upon a stock share plan shall be of such denominations, not exceeding One Hundred Dollars ($100.00), as the articles shall provide. Upon the face of each certificate of stock there shall be printed in clear type a statement that the corporation is a nonprofit corporation. Each share of stock shall entitle the holder thereof to one vote. No dividends shall be directly paid on any such shares, nor shall the shareholders be entitled to any portion of the earnings of such corporation derived through increment of value upon its property, or otherwise incidentally made, but upon dissolution of any such corporation the shareholders shall be entitled to a pro rata distribution of the assets thereof, after the payment of all debts and the liquidation of all liabilities, based upon their several holdings therein, as represented by the shares of stock standing in the names of such shareholders at the time of dissolution, except that no property held subject to any trust shall be diverted from the purpose or object of the trust.[2] Such shares of stock shall not be transferable by assignment or sale, nor be transferred through legal heirs or devisees upon the death of the owner thereof, unless the by-laws of such corporation make express provision therefor. Such nonprofit corporation shall have power to exclude from further membership any shareholder who fails to comply with the reasonable and lawful requirements of the laws, rules and regulations duly made by such corporation for the government of its members, and may cancel the stock of any such offending member without liability for an accounting, excepting as may be provided for in the articles or by-laws. The provisions of the Uniform Stock Transfer Act of this Commonwealth, approved the fifth day of May, one thousand nine hundred eleven (Pamphlet Laws, one hundred twenty-six), shall not be held to apply to the shares of stock of nonprofit corporations in any manner or to be to any extent inconsistent with the provisions of this act.

Comments:

1. This provision was taken from the California Nonprofit Corporation Act, and the subsequent provisions relating to capital stock are taken from the Michigan General Corporation Act.

In Pennsylvania, a corporation of the first class, which is already organized, may, with the consent of a majority of its members, issue capital stock. A corporation of the first class, however, may not, at the time of its formation, be authorized to issue capital stock. Mount Sharon Cemetery Company, 3 D. & C. 179 (1922). The Act of June 25, 1895, P. L. 310, 15 PS Sec. 135, provides:

> "All corporations organized not for profit, under the provisions of 'An act to provide for the incorporation and regulation of certain corporations,' approved April twenty-ninth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, and the several supplements thereto, shall have authority, if a majority of its members shall so ordain, to issue capital stock to an amount not exceeding two hundred and fifty thousand dollars in shares of the par value of fifty dollars. Said power to vest upon the recording of the minute authorizing said issue in the county in which the corporation was created, and filing an exemplification thereof with the secretary of the commonwealth. Thereafter such corporations shall be subject to the same taxation as corporations for profit." (Subsequent acts have exempted corporations for profit from the capital stock tax.)

Some types of corporations of the first class, such as country clubs, issue stock, while other classes of such corporations, such as churches, do not issue stock. This draft, like the Michigan act, will cover either case.

In this connection, the California act provides, in Section 604, that "A nonprofit corporation shall not issue shares of stock, but membership in such corporation may be evidenced by certificates. Upon the face of such certificates there must be printed in clear type a statement that the corporation is not one for profit." The Michigan act, on the other hand, permits a nonprofit corporation to be organized either upon a stock share basis or upon a nonstock basis. The Michigan provisions relating to the issuance of capital stock have been incorporated in this draft.

New York apparently permits a membership corporation to issue capital stock, for in defining a stock corporation in the General Corporation Law it is stated: "A corporation which is not authorized by law to distribute dividends is not a stock corporation because of having issued certificates called certificates of stock, but which are in fact merely certificates of membership." (Article 1, Section 3.)

Incidentally, under the provisions of the Act of May 17, 1917, P. L. 216, 15 PS Sec. 2821, volunteer fire companies and relief associations that change their purpose and name are authorized to issue shares of stock. The act provides as follows:

> " * * * Any such company or association may also issue shares of stock, not exceeding in amount the value of their property and effects, and distribute the same to and amongst the members thereof entitled thereto; said shares to be assignable and transferable in the usual manner; the holder or holders of any share or shares to be entitled to one vote for each and every share held by him, her * * * ."

The proposed section would change the law set forth in the Act of 1917 in that the shares of stock would not be assignable and transferable in the usual manner.

2. In Centennial and Memorial Association of Valley Forge, 235 Pa. 206 (1912), it was held that upon the dissolution of a charitable association, the property of the association does not revert to the donors, nor may it be divided among the members of the association, but it must be appropriated to the purposes most nearly akin to the intent of the donors under the direction of the court. The fact that the association had issued shares of stock was held immaterial in such case where it appeared that such shares lacked the essential features of shares of stock giving to their owners no rights to dividends and contemplating no right to share in the property.

Section 305. Members of Nonprofit Corporations Grouped in Local Units.—A nonprofit corporation may, by by-law proposed by the board of directors of such corporation, enact that the members of the corporation and those who thereafter become members, shall be grouped in local units formed upon the basis of territorial area, or such other basis as may be determined in such by-law proposed by the board of directors, as hereinafter provided, for the purpose of election of delegates or representatives to represent the members of such local units at any annual or special meeting of such corporation. The board of directors shall have the power in such by-law to provide the territorial limits or other basis from or upon which each local unit is drawn or formed, to do all things necessary to insure the representation of the local unit at meetings of the corporation, and to provide the basis of representation and number of delegates to which the local unit is entitled, but each local unit shall be entitled to at least one delegate, and a delegate or delegates representing a small unit shall not have a greater number of votes than the total membership of the local unit. The local units designated by the by-laws of any such corporation may be incorporated under the laws of this Commonwealth by the members thereof, and shall have power to do all things necessary to give effect to this section and the rules and by-laws adopted hereunder.

Michigan General Corporation Act, Section 128.

Comments:

This provision is inserted purely for the purpose of inviting discussion on this point, and on the question whether a nonprofit corporation should be permitted to grant charters to local societies or organizations having similar provisions.

The Act of June 15, 1915, P. L. 985, 15 PS Sec. 1261, authorizes the formation of corporations for improving the breeding of poultry, etc., and provides that such corporations shall have the power: "To grant charters to local societies or organizations having similar purposes, which sub-organizations shall be under the general control of the company granting the charter. The charters granted, as aforesaid, by a company incorporated under this act, shall provide for the election of delegates by the sub-organizations to a general convention or council of the company, which convention or council shall elect directors who shall supervise and control the activities and manage the business of the company."

In this connection it is to be remembered that beneficial societies or fraternal benefit societies, which under existing law are authorized to have subordinate lodges, etc., are not included in this draft.

Section 306. Authority to Take and Hold Trust Property; Investments.—Subject to any limitations or restrictions contained in its articles, every nonprofit corporation formed for religious, educational, scientific, or charitable purposes, may, without limitations as to value, take, receive and hold such real and personal property, including the principal or interest of any money or other fund, as may be given, granted, conveyed, bequeathed, devised to, or otherwise vested in, such corporation in trust for the purpose or purposes set forth in its articles. Such real and personal property shall be faithfully and specifically used for or applied to the purpose or purposes for which it was given in trust to the corporation. The directors of the corporation shall, as trustees of such property, be held to the same degree of responsibility and accountability as if not incorporated, unless a less degree or a particular degree of responsibility and accountability is prescribed in the trust instrument, or unless the directors remain under the control of the members of the corporation who retain the right to direct, and do direct, the actions of the directors as to the use of the trust property from time to time. If the trust instrument by which the donor, grantor, or testator gave such property to the corporation in trust shall direct that only the income of the property shall be used for the accomplishment of the particular religious, educational, scientific, or charitable purpose, the directors of the corporation may, unless otherwise specifically directed in the trust instrument, invest the property in investments which are designated as legal investments for trust funds under the laws of this Commonwealth, and such investments are hereby declared to be legal investments of such trust funds by the directors. The directors of the corporation shall keep accurate accounts of all trust funds, separate and apart from the other funds of the corporation, and shall, unless the terms of the particular trust instrument provide otherwise, make an annual report, signed by the treasurer, to the members of the corporation concerning the trust funds held under this section and the use made of such funds and of the income thereof.

Present Law of Pennsylvania

This section, together with Paragraph 4 of Section 302 of this draft, effects quite a change in the mortmain policy of the Commonwealth in regard to corporations not for profit.

At common law a corporation had power to acquire such land as was necessary or reasonably incidental to carrying out the purposes of its creation. 1 Bl. Comm. 473; 2 Kent's Comm. 281. The common law right of corporations to acquire land was greatly circumscribed by the enactment of the various English statutes of mortmain, which, while directed chiefly at ecclesiastical bodies, applied in terms to all corporations and prohibited their acquisition of land without license from the crown, and during certain periods from the mesne lord also. 2 Bl. Comm. 268; 2 Kent's Comm. 282. The prime object of the statutes of mortmain was to repress the alarming influence of ecclesiastical corporations which had, even as early as the Norman Conquest, monopolized much of the land in England. 14a C. J. 508, Section 2391. The English statutes of mortmain were altogether local in their policy, and were enacted to remedy a mischief in England. Lathrop v. Commercial Bank, 8 Dana (Ky.) 114, 124, 33 Ann. D. 481. They are not regarded as in force as part of the common law in the United States, except in Pennsylvania, where no corporation can hold land except under special authority from the Legislature. In Pennsylvania the operation of the statutes of mortmain is not to restrain a corporation from acquiring lands in pursuance of its common law power, but to prevent it from retaining lands which it has acquired without a legislative license, and to vest the right thereto in the Commonwealth. That is, a corporation which holds real estate above the amount it is authorized to hold by law has a title thereto which is defeasible to the Commonwealth. Leazure v. Hillegas, 7 S. & R. 313, 320 (1821); Runyan v. Coster, 14 Pet. (U. S.) 122, 10 L. Ed. 382 (1840). Report of the Judges, 3 Binn. 595, 625 (1808).

As a result, many acts were passed which authorized corporations of the first class to hold real estate within certain limits.

Section 2 of the Corporation Act of 1874, as amended by the Act of March 9, 1927, P. L. 21, provides that corporations of the first class formed under that act may hold real estate to an amount the clear yearly value of income whereof shall not exceed $50,000.

The Act of May 15, 1913, P. L. 214, provides that all corporations not for profit formed under any general or special law shall have the right to own, hold, use and enjoy real estate within this Commonwealth of the clear yearly rental value or income of $50,000.

The Act of February 20, 1854, P. L. 90, requires the court to limit the yearly income to be received by the above corporations from sources other than real estate to such sum as in the opinion of the court will not be injurious or prejudicial to the community.

The Act of April 22, 1889, P. L. 42, as amended by the Act of March 13, 1929, P. L. 21, provides that any literary, religious, charitable, or beneficial society, congregation, association or corporation, having capacity to take and hold real and personal estate within the Commonwealth, may acquire and hold the same, regardless of when acquired, to the extent in the aggregate of the clear yearly value of $350,000, and to no greater extent, without a decree of court, in accordance with law.

The Act of June 1, 1915, P. L. 701, as amended by the Act of April 18, 1929, P. L. 539 (which superseded and supplied the Act of June 6, 1893, P. L. 324), authorizes the court of common pleas to increase the amount of property which a religious, educational, literary, scientific or charitable corporation is authorized by law to hold, if such corporation demonstrates to the court that the amount of property it is permitted to hold by law is insufficient for the accomplishment of its purpose.

The Act of May 8, 1876, P. L. 143, authorizes all hospitals, schools and charitable institutions to purchase, receive, take and hold ground rents for investments, irrespective of any limitation upon their power to hold real estate.

The Act of June 8, 1891, P. L. 211, authorizes any domestic or foreign corporation to take, use and hold real estate given or devised to it for any religious or charitable purpose. Such real estate, however, was formerly required to be sold in five years from the time the right of possession accrued to the corporation. The Act of March 30, 1931, P. L. 12 (No. 10), however, amended the above act by eliminating the provision that such real estate should be sold within five years from the time it was acquired by the corporation.

From the foregoing it appears that in Pennsylvania any literary, scientific, educational, religious, charitable, benevolent or beneficial corporation has the right to hold real and personal estate having an aggregate income of $350,000 a year, and may obtain permission from the court of common pleas to hold real and personal estate having a clear annual income in excess of $350,000. All other corporations not for profit are authorized to hold real estate having a clear yearly income value of $50,000, and the income that such corporations may receive from sources other than real estate is fixed by the court. Apparently, these corporations have no way of receiving permission from the court to hold real property having a clear yearly income value greater than $50,000. The method of computing the clear annual value in all cases is prescribed in Section 8 of the Act of April 26, 1855, P. L. 328.

Under the present status of the Pennsylvania law, a corporation which holds real estate above the amount authorized by law has a title thereto which is defeasible to the Commonwealth. Such a corporation may, however, convey an indefeasible title to such real estate to a bona fide purchaser by following the procedure authorized in the Revised Price Act of 1917. Also, by the Act of April 30, 1844, P. L. 532, a purchaser at a sheriff's sale for the payment of bona fide debts and purchasers from assignees or trustees for the benefit of the creditors of any corporation receive an indefeasible title to the land of the corporation to which the corporation had only a defeasible title. The policy of the Commonwealth, therefore, is to make such title defeasible only while they are in the hands of the corporation. Also, numerous acts, the latest of which is the Act of March 9, 1927, P. L. 23 (No. 12), have confirmed such titles in the hands of bona fide purchasers.

Method Used by Other States in Computing Amount of Real Estate

In Pennsylvania the yardstick for measuring the amount of property which a corporation not for profit may hold is the income derived from the property. The income is computed according to the method prescribed in Section 8 of the Act of April 26, 1855, P. L. 328. Other states that place limitations upon the amount of property which corporations not for profit may hold generally measure the property by its value instead of by the income received from the property; thus:

Article 2, Section 15 of the General Corporation Law of New York provides that a corporation other than a stock corporation: "may take and hold property of the value of twenty million dollars or less, or the yearly income derived from which shall be two million dollars or less * * *. In computing the value of such property, no increase in value arising otherwise than from improvements made thereon shall be taken into account."

The Massachusetts Code, Chapter 180, Section 9, provides that such corporations: "may hold real and personal estate to an amount not exceeding five million dollars, which estate or its income shall be devoted to the purposes set forth in its charter * * *, and it may receive and hold, in trust or otherwise, funds received by gift or bequest to be devoted by it to such purposes."

The Vermont General Corporation Law of 1915 (G. C. Chapter 210, Section 4922), provides that an educational, literary, scientific, charitable or religious corporation shall have authority: "to acquire or hold property of the value of not more than ten million dollars."

Modern Tendency Favors Elimination of Mortmain Restrictions

The committee which, in 1931, drafted The Business Corporation Act of Illinois, made an intensive study of the mortmain policies of the different states. The committee reported that the results of this study revealed that statutory restrictions in the various states are more especially applicable to corporations organized for religious, charitable and educational purposes, and that the distinct tendency is toward liberality. As was stated to this committee by Mr. Paul v. McNutt, Dean of the Indiana University School of Law: "The suspicion with which many states heretofore regarded the power of corporations to own property, especially real estate, is beginning to disappear, and the provisions limiting the holdings to those necessary to carry on the business for which the corporation was formed are giving way to liberal provisions imposing no limitation upon the ownership of property." The committee also stated that in the opinion of practically all the state officials from whom letters were received, the unlimited power to hold, own and dispose of real estate has not tended to land monopolies and has not been the subject of abuse. The committee, therefore, decided that any reason which might have been thought to have existed at one time in support of the Illinois mortmain policy does not exist today, and that the present restrictions should be removed in their entirety.

This draft follows to some extent the modern tendency and eliminates the present arbitrary restrictions upon the power of corporations not for profit to hold real estate. In so doing we have followed to some extent the language of the New Jersey act relating to charitable corporations (L. 1905, page 384). It appears to be impossible, however, to eliminate entirely the limitation upon the corporate ownership of property, for Article XVI, Section 6 of the Pennsylvania Constitution provides: "No corporation shall * * * take or hold any real estate except such as may be necessary and proper for its legitimate business." The use of the word "business" in this section of the Constitution may raise a question of interpretation as to the corporations to which the section applies. As it has not been judicially determined that this section applies only to business corporations, this draft assumes that the broad language of this section applies to corporations not for profit as well as to corporations for profit. The draft, therefre, extends to nonprofit corporations an unrestricted power to own real estate within the constitutional limitation. In addition to the foregoing power, this draft permits religious, educational, scientific and charitable corporations to hold real property, without limitation, which is donated or devised to the corporation in trust for any religious, educational, scientific, or charitable purpose set forth in the charter of the corporation. It is submitted that this is possible, in that the constitutional provision leaves with the Legislature the duty of defining the amount of property necessary and proper for the legitimate business of corporations. Therefore, the Legislature may say that a religious, educational, scientific or charitable corporation requires all real estate which may be granted or devised to it in order to accomplish its corporate purpose or purposes.

It is to be noted that in the past the policy of the Commonwealth has been to place the same limitation with regard to the holding of property upon religious, educational, scientific, or charitable unincorporated associations as it places upon corporations formed for such purposes. If the provisions of this draft are adopted, it may be necessary to revise the laws relating to such unincorporated associations accordingly.

Restriction Against Accumulations

The prohibition against accumulations contained in Section 9 of the Act of April 18, 1853, P. L. 503,does not apply to a donation, bequest or devise for any literary, scientific, charitable or religious purpose. However, Section 12 of the Act of April 26, 1855, P. L. 328, 10 PS Sec. 32, expressly prohibits religious, charitable, literary or scientific societies, associations or corporations from capitalizing income to exceed the amount of property they are authorized to hold by law. Again, it is to be noted that the prohibition against accumulation of income applies to unincorporated associations as well as to corporations. Since this draft eliminates the limitation upon the amount of property which may be held by religious, educational, scientific, and charitable corporations, the question arises whether any restraint should be imposed upon the accumulation of income derived from property held in trust by such corporations.

In General

The Act of May 20, 1921, P. L. 991, as amended by the Act of May 24, 1923, P. L. 356, 20 PS Secs. 245-347, restricts the appointment of corporate trustees by testators or by any court or register of wills to corporations fully subject to he supervision and examination of the Department of Banking. Section 3 of the Act of 1921 as amended by the aforementioned Act of 1923, however, provides: "This act shall not apply to charitable, religious, educational, social, or other corporations of a similar character; nor shall the act be construed to prevent any court or testator from appointing any corporation as a trustee to execute a trust for its own use within the purposes of such corporation."

Section 307. Authority to Acquire Property at a Judicial Sale.—A nonprofit corporation may, at any judicial sale of any property upon which the corporation holds a mortgage or has a lien of any nature whatsoever, bid in such property if necessary for the protection of its interests. The corporation shall acquire a good and indefeasible title to any and all property so purchased, irrespective of any limitation as to the acquisition of property that may exist in its articles or in this act. All property so purchased may be held by the corporation until such time as it shall believe it advisable to dispose of the same, except that such property shall be sold within twenty years from the time it was purchased at the judicial sale. It shall be lawful to sell the property for cash or for part cash and a mortgage to run from the purchaser to the corporation. The corporation may sell such property, and convey a marketable title thereto, without the authorization or confirmation of any court.

Act of May 13, 1879, P. L. 60, 10 PS Sec. 61.

Comments:

This section is a restatement of the Act of 1879, except that it (1) permits the corporation to hold property purchased at a judicial sale for a period of twenty years instead of ten years, and (2) makes it clear that the corporation may sell such property without recourse to the court under the provisions of the Revised Act of 1917.

In the past corporations at times have been unable to sell such real estate advantageously within the ten-year period prescribed by the Act of 1879. The same situation confronted other corporations authorized by their charters or other special acts to acquire for a limited time real estate under execution or in satisfaction of debts. As a result, the Legislature has from time to time authorized such corporations to hold such property for a further period of five years, by the Acts of May 22, 1878, P. L. 96; May 22, 1883, P. L. 41; May 26, 1887, P. L. 274; May 18, 1893, P. L. 88; April 20, 1897, P. L. 28; and April 15, 1903, P. L. 200. In order to eliminate the necessity for the passage of such acts, this draft extends the time within which such corporations may hold such property from a period of ten years to a period of twenty years. In this connection, it should be noted that the Act of June 8, 1891, P. L. 211, which authorized certain corporations to acquire real estate for any charitable purpose, contained a proviso that such real estate should be sold within five years from the time the right of possession accrued to the corporation. The Act of March 30, 1931, P. L. 12 (No. 10), removed the proviso from the Act of 1891. It is submitted that a period of twenty years should be ample time within which the corporation could sell such property advantageously.

This draft also makes it clear that the corporation may sell such property without invoking the proceedings prescribed by the Revised Price Act of 1917. In view of the liberal mortmain policy suggested in this draft, it may well be argued that no confusion on this point exists. However, this draft makes it perfectly clear that a marketable title may be conveyed without the authorization or confirmation of the court.

Section 308. Procedure to Borrow Money and to Acquire or Dispose of Real Estate.—Unless its articles or by-laws provide for the approval of another body, a nonprofit corporation shall not borrow money, or purchase, sell, lease away, or otherwise dispose of any real estate unless and until a resolution authorizing the same shall have been approved by a majority of the members of the corporation at a regular or special meeting duly convened upon proper notice of this purpose. A resolution of the members authorizing the borrowing of money need not specify the particular sums, rates of interest, or times of maturity of the loans, but such items may be agreed upon and authorized by the directors of the corporations. Every nonprofit corporation may mortgage, sell, lease away, or otherwise dispose of any of its real estate without application to, and the authorization or confirmation of, any court, except in those cases where the Revised Price Act of 1917, approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred seventeen (Pamphlet Laws, three hundred eighty-eight), and its amendments and supplements, confers jurisdiction upon the orphans' court or the court of common pleas of a particular county to authorize or confirm the selling, leasing, conveying upon ground rent, or mortgaging of real estate by a corporation. All proceeds derived by a nonprofit corporation from any loan, sale, lease, ground rent, or mortgage, shall be faithfully and specifically used for or applied to the lawful activities of the corporation, and in case such proceeds are derived from any real estate subject to a trust, the trust shall be impinged upon such proceeds.

Comments:

This section should be read in connection with Paragraphs 5 and 6 of Section 302 of this draft, and the notes to these paragraphs.

This section vests in the members of a nonprofit corporation the power to determine whether or not a loan, sale or lease shall be made or a mortgage shall be placed upon the corporate real estate. This provision is a restatement of existing practice among corporations of the first class. In view of the diverse types and needs of nonprofit corporations, the proposed section permits the articles or by-laws of the corporation to designate a body other than the members to approve such transactions.

Article XVI, Section 7, of the Pennsylvania Constitution provides, inter alia: "The stock and indebtedness of corporations shall not be increased except in pursuance of general law, nor without the consent of the persons holding the larger amount in value of the stock, first obtained at a meeting to be held after sixty days notice given in pursuance of law."

The constitutional requirement of sixty days' notice may readily be said to refer only to business corporations, due to the words "persons holding the larger amount in value of the stock." Accordingly, the constitutional requirement of sixty days' notice has not been embodied in this draft.

In the past it has not been quite clear whether some corporations not for profit must secure the authorization or confirmation of a court before they may legally mortgage or sell their real estate. Briefly speaking, the Revised Price Act of 1917 confers jurisdiction upon the orphans' court or the court of common pleas, as the case may be, to authorize or confirm the sale, mortgaging, conveying on ground rent, and the leasing of real estate, where the legal title is held:

(1) By corporations of any kind having no capacity to convey or by unincorporated associations;

(2) By any religious, beneficial, or charitable society or association incorporated or unincorporated, and the title is subject to forfeiture if real estate is held in excess of the amount prescribed by its charter or now or hereafter prescribed by law; and

(3) By a corporation of any kind or individual or individuals and is subject to a trust of any description whatsoever.

On this subject, Roland R. Foulke, in "A Treatise on The Price Act Relating to Real Estate in Pennsylvania," at page 81, states:

> "Where the title to land is vested in a religious, charitable, or beneficial corporation, it seems clear that the corporation can convey, mortgage or deal with the title as a corporation without the aid of the court as well as any other corporation. An unfortunate notion seems to have obtained, however, that such a corporation cannot dispose of its title by virtue of its corporate capacity but must obtain the authority of the court by proceedings under the Price Act. Traces of this notion are to be found in the books and cases have arisen in practice where the parties have, under its influence, invoked the jurisdiction of the court to confirm a mortgage or sale, etc., by such a corporation, although proceedings under the act seem to be unnecessary as such a corporation has a right to sell unless restrained by statute or charter, or there is a prohibition of a sale by the donor."

In Pennsylvania, the visitorial and supervisory powers of the Commonwealth over charities are exercised through the orphans' court or the court of common pleas, under the provisions of the Revised Price Act of 1917. These courts have jurisdiction of the control and direction of managers and trustees in the use and disposition of property belonging to incorporated charities. Application of The John C. Mercer Home (Fisher's Appeal), 162, Pa. 232 (1894).

A corporation holding real estate in excess of the amount permitted by law has a title to the real estate which is defeasible to the Commonwealth. Leazure v. Hillegas, 7 S. & R. 313 (1821). Before the pasage of the original Price Act, such a corporation could convey only a defeasible title to such real estate. Leazure v. Hillegas, supra. The Revised Price Act of 1917, however, provides a procedure whereby such corporations may convey an indefeasible title to a purchaser.

In Pennsylvania it is well settled that a religious, scientific, educational, or charitable corporation must petition the court for permission to sell, lease or mortgage its real property. Burton's Appeal, 57 Pa. 213 (1868); Application of The John C. Mercer Home (Fisher's Appeal), supra; Nauman v. Weidman, 182 Pa. 263 (897); Self v. Krebs, 239 Pa. 423 (1913); Phillips v. Westminster Church, 225 Pa. 62 (1909); St. Mary's Immaculate Conception Greek Catholic Church's Petition, 296 Pa. 307 (1929); Revised Price Act of 1917, Section 1 and 2, as amended.

In Cushman v. Church of the Good Ssepherd, 188 Pa. 438 (1898), which involved the sale of real estate owned by a church, it was stated: "as the statute of 1853, known as the Price Act, was then in full force, the lawful right of the corporation to sell its property whenever its best interest required it, free and released from all trust, must be read into the charter * * * as completely as if it was set forth in haec verba."

In Self v. Krebs, 239 Pa. 423 (1913), the opinion of the lower court, which was affrmed per curiam, stated: "It is an undoubted rule of the law of trusts that a trustee has no power to sell trust property unless such power is conferred upon him by the instrument creating the trust, either by express words or by necessary implication * * * As stated in Lewis on Perpetuities, cited in Yard's Appeal, 64 Pa. 95, and again cited in Nauman v. Weidman, 182 Pa. 263, 'land dedicated to the service of charity and religion is practically inalienable,' and it is there stated that the power to sell land and apply the proceeds to the same uses is exercised in this State under the Act of April 18, 1853, P. L. 503." (Price Act)

In view of the foregoing, this draft specifically provides that recourse to the court for the sale, leasing, or mortgaging of corporate real estate is not necessary except in those cases sspecifically covered by the Price Act, viz.: (1) Where the corporation has no capacity to convey, which situation is now rare and will not arise under the proposed code; (2) Where the corporation holds property in excess of the amount permitted by its charter or by law, which situation will seldom arise under the proposed code; and (3) Where the corporation holds property in trust, which situation will arise more than ever under the proposed code.

Section 309. Transaction of Business.—Any nonprofit corporation, the lawful activities of which require the receipt and payment of money, including among other things the charging of admission fees, tuition or other school fees, and fees for the handiwork of members of the corporation, shall have the right and power to receive and collect such moneys, to the extent necessary for the accomplishment of its purpose or purposes, and in so doing may make an incidental profit. All moneys so received or collected by any nonprofit corporation shall be applied to the maintenance and operation or the furtherance of the lawful activities of the corporation, and in no case shall such moneys be divided or distributed in any manner whatsoever among the members of the corporation.

Michigan General Corporation Act, Sections 125 and 165.

Comments:

The purpose of this section is to permit a nonprofit corporation, such as a museum, college, university, or theological seminary, a corporation conducting a public hall, etc., to charge admission fees, tuition fees, and other similar charges. It should be particularly noted that this draft requires these fees to be used for maintenance purposes or in furtherance of the activities of the corporation, and flatly prohibits the distribution of such fees among the members of the corporation.

Under the Corporation Act of 1874, there is no requirement, other than a catch-line heading, that corporations of the first class may not make a profit. In construing that act some courts have ruled that it is immaterial that a corporation of the first class makes an incidenal profit and distributes the profit among its members. In re Players' National League Base Ball Club of Philadelphia, 25 W. N. C. 187 (1889); Philadelphia Motor Speedway Association v. Sale, 25 D. R. 1101 (1916); Savidge on Pa. Corps., Volume 1, Sections 74 and 519, Pages 97, 98 and 415. It has been held also that a corporation of the first class may carry on an incidental business at a profit and distribute the profit among its members. The Arts and Crafts Guild of Philadelphia, 20 D. R. 584 (1911). Under the terms of the above section, a nonprofit corporation may carry on a businesss incidental to its corporate purpose, but any proceeds derived therefrom must be used for the maintenance or furtherance of the corporation activities.

Section 310. Appointment and Powers of Policemen.—Any nonprofit corporation maintaining any buildings or grounds open to the public or organized for the prevention of cruelty to children and aged persons, may apply to any judge of the court of common pleas of the county within which the property of such corporation is situated for the appointment of such persons as the corporation may designate to act as policemen for the corporation. The court, upon such application, may order and decree such persons, or as many of them as it may deem proper and necessary, to be such policemen. Every policemen so appointed shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, take and subscribe the oath required by the seventh article of the Constitution, before the recorder of deeds of the county in which it is intended that such policeman shall act. Such oath, together with the decree and order of the court, shall be recorded by the recorder of deeds of such county. Such policemen, so appointed, shall severally possess and exercise all the powers of constables in this Commonwealth, in and upon, and in the immediate and adjacent vicinity of, the property of the corporation. Policemen so appointed for a corporation organized for the prevention of cruelty to aged persons and children, shall severally possess and exercise all the powers of constables in any county in which they may be directed by the corporation to act, and are hereby authorized to arrest persons for the commission of any offense of cruelty to children or aged persons. The keepers of jails, lockups, station houses, or houses of detention in any county of this Commonwealth shall receive all persons arrested by such policemen for purposes of detention until they are dealt with according to law. Every policeman, when on duty, shall wear a metallic shield with the words "special officer" and the name of the corporation for which appointed inscribed thereon. The compensation of such policemen shall be paid by the corporation for which the policemen are respectively appointed, as may be agreed upon between the corporation and such policemen. When any corporation shall no longer require the services of any policeman, it shall file a notice to that effect, under its corporation seal, in the office of the recorder of deeds where the court decree and order of appointment of such policeman is recorded. The recorder of deeds shall note this information upon the margin of the record where the court decree and order is recorded, and thereupon the power of such policeman shall cease and be determined. It shall be the duty of the recorder of deeds to notify the clerk of the court by which such policeman was appointed of the termination of such appointment.

Comments:

At the present time certain corporations of the first class, as set out above, have power to have policemen commissioned for the protection of corporation property, who are vested with the power of making arrests. These acts prescribed three methods for the appointment of such policemen:
(1) Appointment by the Governor of persons designated by the corporation;
(2) Appointment by a court, mayor, or justice of the peace of persons suggested by the corporation;
(3) Appointment by a board of managers.
The proposed section permits any corporation to have policemen for the protection of its property, and provides for the appointment of such policemen by a court. If this section is adopted, it is intended to repeal all the acts relating to the appointment of policemen, and thereafter all such policemen will be appointed by the court.
The Membership Corporations Law of New York, Article 3, Section 23, provides for the appointment of special policemen, as follows:

"A membership corporation created by general or special law to provide parks or playgrounds, or buildings and grounds for camp or grove meetings, Sunday school assemblies, temperance, missionary, educational, scientific, musical and other meetings, subject to the ordinances and police regulations of the county, city, town, or village in which such parks, playgrounds, buildings and grounds are situated, may appoint from time to time one or more special policemen, with power to remove the same at pleasure. Such special policemen shall have the same powers as town constables to preserve order in and about such parks, playgrounds, buildings and grounds, and the approaches thereto, and to protect the same from injury, and to arrest and prosecute any person making a loud or unusual noise, or committing any breach of the peace, or committing any misdemeanor, or wilfuly violating the established rules and regulations of the corporation."

Section 311. Adoption and Enforcement of Rules and Regulations by Certain Corporations.—Any nonprofit corporation maintaining buildings or grounds open to the public shall have the power to adopt, promulgate and enforce such lawful rules and regulations as shall be needful to maintain peace and order on or in such grounds and buildings, and to secure the safety and protection of the property of the corporation. Any person violating any of the rules or regulations so adopted or promulgated shall, upon conviction thereof in a summary proceeding before a justice of the peace, alderman, or magistrate, be sentenced to pay a fine of not more than Ten Dollars ($10.00), together with the costs of prosecution, and, in default of the payment of the fine and costs, to undergo imprisonment for not more than ten days.

Comments:

The Act of 1876, relating to camp meetings associations, and the Act of 1878, relating to picnic associations, authorize such associations to promulgate rules and regulations and to have such rules and regulations enforced by special policemen appointed by such associations.
This proposed section extends this power to all nonprofit corporations having buildings and grounds open to the public and should be read with Section 310 of this draft, which authorizes such corporations to appoint special policemen.
The Acts of 1876 and 1878 provides that the special policemen of such corporation may: "detain offenders for a period of time not exceeding twelve hours, exclusive of Sunday, until they can be carried before the nearest justice of the peace, alderman or judge, having jurisdiction thereof, there to be fined, bailed or committed, as the magistrate hearing the case may determine."
It will be noted that these acts take for granted the guilt of persons arrested by the special policemen, and they make no provision for the discharge of the persons so arrested in the other contingency. The person is to be fined, bailed, or committed. (See editor's note under Section 3245 of 15 PS). Also, these acts do not prescribe the penalty to be inflicted by the magistrate upon offenders. This drafts changes the above acts in that it provides for a summary trial and prescribes the sentence to be imposed upon anyone summarily convicted for violation of such rules or regulations.

Section 312. Requirements of Educational Institutions Desiring to Confer Degrees.—A. No college, university, or theological seminary shall be incorporated under this act, with power to confer degrees in art, pure and applied science, philosophy, literature, law, medicine, and theology, or any of them, unless it has:

(1) A minimum protective endowment of at least Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($500,000), beyond all indebtedness and assets invested in buildings and appartus for the exclusive purpose of promoting instruction, except that in the case of tax-supported institutions, or those maintained by religious or other organizations, financial support or contributed services equivalent in value to the endowment herein specified may be substituted for such endowment.

(2) A faculty consisting of at least eight regular professors who devote all their time to the instruction of its college or university classes, unless the college is devoted to a specific subject in art, archaeology, literature, or science (medical and law schools excepted), in which case the faculty shall consist of at least three regular professors who devote all their time to the instruction in the special branch for which the college is established, and two or more instructors or fellows in the particular branch, who shall be provided to assist in the instruction to be given the students for the promotion of original investigation and in the development and growth of the special branch of science to which such college may be devoted.

B. A college, university, or theological seminary incorporated under this act, with the power to confer degrees,, shall have power to confer baccalaureate degrees in art, science philosophy, or literature only upon students who have completed a college or university course covering four years. The standard of admission to these four-year courses, or to advanced classes in these courses, shall be not less than four years of academies or high school preparation, or its equivalent and shall be subject to the approval of the State Council of Education.

C. Any educational corporation formed under this act with the power to confer degrees, as aforesaid, shall be subject to visitation and inspection by representatives of the State Council of Education. If any such corporation shall fail to keep up the standards required by this act, the court shall, upon the recommendation of the State Council of Education, revoke the power to confer degrees.

Comments:

The above provisions contained in this draft are taken from the Act of 1895, P. L. 327. The Act of 1895 relates to educational institutions having the power to confer degrees. The Act of April 26, 1911, P. L. 82, 15 PS Secs. 2571-8, relates to educational institutions with the power to confer degrees, formed under the provisions of any trust for the benefit of any incorporated city. The Act of 1911 states that the court may revoke the power of such institutions to confer degrees upon the recommendation of the State Council of Education, whereas in the case of educational institutions not formed under the provisions of a trust the Act of 1895 provides that the court shall, upon the recommendation of the council, revoke the power of such institutions to confer degrees. For purposes of uniformity, the mandatory provision of the Act of 1895 has been adopted for all cases.
Section 6 of the Act of 1911, as amended, also provides that the standards prescribed in the Act of 1895 shall not apply to educational corporations formed under trusts for the benefit of cities, but that such matters shall be within the discretion of the court and the State Council of Education. It is submitted that all educational institutions having the power to confer degrees should have the same standards, and that it should not be possible to obtain a result by setting up a trust which may not otherwise be obtained. Therefore, the provisions of the Act of 1895 are extended to all institutions desiring to have the power to confer degrees.
The courts have held that they have no power to incorporate an educational institution with power to confer degrees unless the Legislature has specifically authorized them to confer such power on such institutions. Therefore, it is necessary specifically to authorize the courts to incorporate institutions with such powers. Duquesne College, 2 D. R. 555 (1891).

Section 313. Vesting of Corporate Property in Trustees to Escape Liability for Debts.—Any corporation for charitable uses owning any property dedicated to religious or charitable purposes, such as churches, school houses, parsonages, hospitals, almshouses, and the like, may, for the purpose of protecting such property from liability to debt thereafter contracted on the part of the corporation, vest its property in trustees upon trust for the use of the congregation or members of the corporation, for the time being, as places of worship, or for use as school houses or residences for ministers or pastors, or for the maintenance of any charity. When the trustees shall be so vested by deeds duly recorded, the property so conveyed, as long as it is used for the purposes above mentioned and is not used for any secular purpose or for a purpose from which profits are derived, shall not be liable to any debts, contracts or engagements of the corporation thereafter made or entered into, but shall be deemed and taken to be freed therefrom in the same manner and with like effect as if the same had been conveyed or devised to the trustees by a stranger in trust for the uses of the corporation, but so that the same shall not be liable for their debts, contracts, or engagements or to their control for any purposes other than for the uses of the same as places of worship, or as free schools or schools from which no pecuniary profits are derived, or as residences for ministers or pastors, or for the maintenance of the charitable purpose for which it was dedicated or intended by the donors or contributors. All trustees and officers of corporations having the management of property for chairtable uses which is held in trust as aforesaid contracting debts or causing them to be contracted in the improvement of the property by building thereon, shall be personally liable for the debts thus contracted, unless they shall have notified the persons with whom the contract is made that the property is not liable for the debts, contracted in building thereon, but there shall be no liability to any one other than persons with whom such contracts are made by the corporation.

Comments:

This section is taken from the Act of 1893, except that the Act of 1893 also applies to trustees. The question naturally arises whether the Act of 1893, in so far as it applies to corporations, should be included in this draft. This section is included solely for the purpose of inviting discussion on this point.

Section 314. Exhibition Corporations Granted Power of Eminent Domain[1].—A nonprofit corporation formed for the purpose of educating the general public[2] by exhbiting artistic, mechanical, agricultural and horticultural products, and providing public instruction in the arts and sciences, shall, in addition to the general powers conferred on nonprofit corporations by this act, have the right to enter upon, take and occupy such public lands, property and easements[3] as may be required from time to time for its corporate purpose. The taking of such public lands for the erection and maintenance thereon of buildings or other structures for the public exposition of manufactured articles, agricultural products, minerals, and all articles pertaining to the arts and sciences, and providing public instruction in the arts and sciences, by the exercise of eminent domain, is hereby declared to be a taking of land for public use. Such corporations shall not exercise the right of eminent domain as to any burying ground, passenger railroad station-house, nor as to any street, alley, highway, wharf landing, or other property of any incorporated city, town, or borough, without the consent of its councils first had to such appropriation, by ordinance duly passed and approved; nor shall such right in any event be exercised as to any tidewater warf, nor as to any part of any other public wharf or river landing which has been heretofore graded and paved by the municipality, and if not so graded and paved, such wharf or river landing may be appropriated as herein provided, any limitation of use thereof by the municipality by donation, dedication, appropriation, statue, or otherwise, to the contrary notwithstanding. In the exercise of the power of eminent domain the corporation shall follow the procedure prescribed in Section —— of the Business Corporation Law, approved the ..... day of ....., ...

Sections 1 and 4 of the Act of June 14, 1887, P. L. 383, 15 PS Secs. 1221 and 1224.

Comments:

1. The Act of June 14, 1887, P. L. 383, provides generally for the incorporation of exhibition companies, provides that such companies shall not be organized for profit, and confers the power of eminent domain on such companies. Under this act such companies, although not for profit, are required to secured letters patent from the Governor, as in the case of a corporation of the second class. For the sake of uniformity, this draft requires such corporations in the future to secure their charters from the Court. These companies are the only corporations not for profit that have the power of eminent domain.

2. The Act of 1887 provides that no exhibition company shall be formed: "for the exclusive use or benefit of any part or class of the public." Therefore, this draft specifically provides that only such corporations as are formed for the benefit of the "general public" may have the power of eminent domain.

3. The Act of 1887 provides that exhibition companies shall have the right to "enter upon, take and occupy such public lands, casements and other property, as may be required * * * for the purposes of its corporation." In Maderia's Land Condemnation, 296 Pa. 65 (1929), the italicized portion was construed not to give exhibition companies the right to condemn private property, but only to condemn things of a public or quasi public nature. The court suggested that the underlined portion of the Act of 1887 was poorly phrased and that it would be clearer if it read "public lands, property and easements." This draft has followed the suggestion of the court in this particular.

Section 315. Burial and Cemetery Companies; Churches with Burial Grounds. A. Every nonprofit corporation formed for the purpose of conducting or maintaining a public or private cemetery, and every religious corporation authorized by its articles to maintain a burial ground, shall set aside annually a sum equal to at least one-tenth of the gross amount of the funds arising from the sale of lots in such burial ground or cemetery for the perpetual care and preservation of the grounds and the repair and renewal of the buildings and property connected with and forming a part of the burial ground or cemetery[1].

B. Every such corporation may take, receive, hold and administer any grant, donation or bequest of property in trust for the embellishment of the burial ground or cemetery, or for the erection, repair, preservation or renewal of any tomb, monument, gravestone, fence, railing or other like structure, or for the planting and cultivation of trees, shrubs, flowers, or plants in or around any cemetery lot or for improving such premises in any manner or form consistent with the design and purpose of the corporation, according to the terms of such grant, donation or bequest[2].

C. The directors of any such corporation are hereby made trustees of any such funds so received or set aside, and neither such funds nor the income derived therefrom shall be used by such trustees for any purpose other than the purpose for which the same were set aside, donated, bequeathed, or otherwise acquired. It shall be the duty of the directors of such corporation to invest such funds in investments which are designated as legal investments for trustees under the laws of this Commonwealth, and to use the income derived from such investments for the purpose of caring for, preserving and maintaining such burial ground or cemetery, or any other purpose which may be specified by the grantor or donor. The directors of any such corporation shall cause accurate accounts to be kept of such trust funds separate and apart from the other funds of the corporation, and shall make an annual report, signed by the treasurer, to the members of the corporation and other interested parties, concerning the investment of the trust funds and the use made of the income derived from such investments. The amount of such funds shown by such report to be in the hands of the directors shall be final and conclusive in favor of and against all parties in interest, unless appropriate action is brought in the proper courts of this Commonwealth against the trustees within fifteen days after the regular meeting of the corporation at which such report is submitted. The directors of any such corporation shall file annually in the court of quarter sessions of the county where the charter of the corporation was granted a bond with surety or sureties to be approved by such court, in the full amount of any funds set aside or held in trust by such directors under authority of Sub-sections A and B of this section, but the first bond filed by the directors covering funds set aside under Subsection A of this section shall be filed one year after the date when the corporation came into existence. The court of quarter sessions of such county shall, upon petition of any person related by blood or marriage to any person who has donated or bequeathed funds to any such corporation for the care, preservation, or maintenance of the burial ground or cemetery, or to one who has purchased a lot therein for the burial of the dead or of the donors or purchasers themselves, shall have the right to compel the directors of the corporation to file any bond herein provided for, in the event of the failure of the directors to file the same on or before the first Monday of July of any year[3].

D. Any such corporation may permit the burial of the dead within a burial ground or cemetery free of charge, or may sell lots in such burial ground or cemetery for the purpose of the burial of the dead, at such prices as shall not produce a profit other than is necessary for the proper maintenance of such burial ground or cemetery, and convey the same to the purchasers by conveyances duly executed under the seal of the corporation. Every nonprofit corporation organized for the purpose of conducting a cemetery or burial ground may transfer the title to lots in such cemetery or burial ground upon the books of the corporation, and such transfer shall be as good and valid in law as if a deed was duly acknowledged and recorded in the office for recording deeds in the proper county[4].

Comments:

1. This subsection combines the provisions of the Act of March 18, 1909, P. L. 41, and the provisions of the Act of May 5, 1921, P. L. 395, which require a corporation formed for the purpose of conducting a burial ground or cemetery or a church authorized to maintain a burial ground to set aside one-tenth of the gross amount of funds arising from the sale of lots in its burial ground or cemetery, for the embellishment of the cemetery.

2. This subsection combines the provisions of the Act of May 14, 1874, P. L. 165, and May 16, 1891, P. L. 88, relating to burial and cemetery companies, and the provisoins of the Act of May 5, 1921, P. L. 395, relating to churches with buiral grounds, which authorize such corporations to receive grants, donations or bequests for the embellishment of the burial ground or cemetery, or for the care and preservation of any particular burial lot or erection thereon.

3. The Act of March 18, 1909, P. L. 41, requires burial and cemetery companies to invest the one-tenth of their gross receipts set aside for the embellishment of the cemetry, and requires the directors to file annually in the court of quarter sessions a bond for the faithful performance of the above statutory requirement. The Acts of May 14, 1874, P. L. 165, and May 16, 1891, P. L. 88, authorized burial and cemetery companies to receive grants, donations or bequests for the embellishment of the cemetery or for the care and preservation of any burial lot or any rection thereon. The Act of 1874 authorizes the directors to invest such funds, but neither of these acts requires the directors to file a bond in the court of quarter sessions for the faithful performance of such trust. The Act of May 5, 1921, P. L. 395, permits churches with burial grounds to receive grants, donations and bequests for the embellishment of the burial grounds or any burial lot therein. That act also requires the directors of such corporations to file annually in the court of quarter sessions a bond in the full amount of such trust funds, conditioned for the faithful performance of such trust. This draft extends the requirement of a bond to burial and cemetery companies and therefore, provides a uniform practice for every corporation conducting a burial ground or cemetery.

4. The Act of May 5, 1921, P. L. 395, permits churches with burial grounds to sell lots in the burial grounds at such prices as shall not produce a profit other than is necessary for the proper maintenance of the burial ground or cemetery. This draft extends this provision to all burial grounds and cemeteries conducted not for profit. Also, the Act of June 19, 1901, P. L. 574, permits lots in cemeteries owned by corporations of the first class to be transferred upon the books of the corporation with the same force and effect as if deeds were duly acknowledged and recorded in the office for recording deeds. The provisions of the Act of 1901 are here incorporated in this draft.

Section 316. Rgistered Office; Records.—A. Every nonprofit corporation shall maintain an office in this Commonwealth, to be known as its registered office. The location and post office address of the registered office shall be stated in the articles, as heretofore provided in this act. After incorporation, the location of the registered office may be changed:

(1) From one location to another in the same county by resolution adopted by a majority of all the members, including members not entitled by the articles or by-laws to vote. On or before the day that such change is made, notice of such change and of the post office address of the new registered office shall be filed with and recorded by the recorded of deeds of the county[1].

(2) From one county to another county by amendment of the articles of the corporation in the manner hereinafter prescribed in this act.

B. Every nonprofit corporation shall keep at its registered office, records of the proceedings of the members and of the directors, a membership register, giving the names of the members in alphabetical order, and appropriate and complete records of its finances. Every member shall have the right to examine, in person or by agent or attorney, at any reasonable time or times for any reasonable purpose, the books of account, the membership register, and the records of the proceedings of the members and directors[2].

Comments:

1. This provision is taken from the California law, and should be read in connection with Section 701 A (3) of this draft, which requires a corporation to amend its article before it may change its registered office from one county to another. There does not appear to be any reason why a corporation should apply to the court to change its location within the county over which the court has jurisdiction. Adequate protection is given to the public by requiring notice of the same to be filed with the recorder of deeds.

The General Corporation Law of California, in Section 362 (3), provides that a corporation may amend its articles: "To change the location of its principal office or place of business to any other county or city and county within the state; provided, that no amendment need be made to change the principal office from one location to another in the same county or city and county."

There seems to be no statutory authority in Pennsylvania authorizing the change of the location of the principal office of a corporation of the first class. The Act of June 8, 1893, P. L. 355, 15 PS Sec. 55, authorizes any corporation of the second class to change the location of its principal office by resolution of its board of directors adopted by a two-thirds vote thereof, approved at any annual or special meeting of the stockholders duly called, by a two-thirds vote thereof.

2. In Pennsylvania, a member of a nonprofit corporation has the right, for proper purposes, to inspect the corporate records, books and papers. McClintock v. Young Republicans of Philadelphia, 210 Pa. 115 (1904).

This provision of the draft was taken from the Uniform Business Corporation Act. A note to this section in the Uniform Business Corporation Act provides that:

"The stockholders of a corporation had, at common law, a right to examine at any reasonable time and for any reasonable purpose, any one or all of the books and records of the corporation. An unreasonable refusal of the right entitled the stockholder to recover his damages in an action against the directors, or entitled him to enforce his right by mandamus. (Guthrie v. Harkness, 199 U. S. 148; Matter of Steinway, 159 N. Y. 250; 2 Cook, 8th Ed., sec. 511-13.)"

ARTICLE IV.

BY-LAWS

Section 401. Power to Make By-Laws.—The members of a nonprofit corporation may make, alter, and repeal by-laws not inconsistent with law or the articles. The authority to make such by-laws may be expressly vested by the articles in the board of directors, subject to the power of the members to change or repeal the by-laws. The board of directors, however, shall not make, alter or repeal any by-laws fixing their qualifications, classification, term of office or compensation. By-laws shall not be adopted, altered or repealed by less than a majority vote of the board of directors or the members of the corporation, as the case may be, unless the articles or by-laws provide otherwise.

Comments:

The Pennsylvania act provides, in part, that: "The by-laws of every corporation created under the provisions of this statute, or accepting the same, shall be deemed and taken to be its law, subordinate to this statute, the charter of the same, the Constitution and laws of this Commonwealth and the Constitution of the United States. They shall be made by the stockholders or members of the corporation at a general meeting called for that purpose, unless the charter prescribes another body or a different mode."

Section 402. Persons Bound by By-Laws.—The by-laws of every nonprofit corporation shall operate merely as regulations among the members of the corporation, and shall not affect contracts or other dealing with other persons, unless such persons have actual knowledge of such by-laws. Any note, mortgage, evidence of indebtedness, contract, or other instrument of writing, or any assignment or endorsement thereof, executed or entered into between any corporation and any other person, copartnership, association or corporation, when signed by the president or vice president and secretary or treasurer of such corporation, shall be held to have been properly executed for and in behalf of such corporation, irrespective of any other form of execution provided in the by-laws.

Act of May 12, 1925, P. L. 615, 15 PS Sec. 42.

Comments:

The Act of 1925 overruled the cases (1) which held that a person dealing with a corporation is charged with notice of the by-laws, and (2) which held that parties acting under agreements with a corporation are bound by the form of execution provided for in the by-laws or resolutions authorizing the specific contracts.

Section 403. Contents of By-Laws.—Subject to the provisions of this act, the by-laws may contain any provisions for the regulation and management of the affairs of the corporation, and may provide penalties for the breach thereof, not exceeding Twenty Dollars ($20.00).

Comments:

The Corporation Act of 1874, as amended, supra, provides that the by-laws: "shall prescribe the time and place of meeting of the corporation, the powers and duties of its officials, and such other matters as may be pertinent and necessary for the business to be transacted, and may contain penalties for the breach thereof, not exceeding twenty dollars."

ARTICLE V.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS.

Section 501. Directors.—The business of every corporation shall be managed by a board of at least three directors[3]. A director shall hold office for the term for which he was named or elected, and until his successor is elected and qualified. The names and terms of office of the first directors shall be stated in the articles. Except as hereinafter provided in the case of vacancies, directors other than those constituting the first board shall be elected by the members. Subject to the provisions of this act, the number, qualifications, terms of office, manner of election, the compensation, and the powers and duties of the directors, the time, place and manner of calling, giving notice of, and conducting directors' meetings, and the number of directors which shall constitute a quorum may be prescribed by the articles or by-laws[2]. If the by-laws so provide, meetings of directors may be held outside of the Commonwealth[3]. Except as otherwise provided in the articles or by-laws:

(a) A director shall be elected for a term of one year

(b) Vacancies in the board of directors shall be filled by the remaining members of the board, and each person so elected shall be a director until his successor is elected by the members, who may make such election at the next annual meeting of the members, or at any special meeting duly called for that purpose and held prior thereto[4].

(c) The meetings of the board of directors may be held at such place as a majority of the directors may from time to time appoint.

(d) A majority of the board of directors shall be necessary to constitute a quorum for the transaction of business[5].

Pennsylvania Corporation Act of 1874, P. L. 73, Section 5, Paragraph 2, as amended by the Acts of May 14, 1891, P. L. 61, and May 6, 1927, P. L. 828, 15 PS Sec. 43.

Comments:

1. Section 5, Paragraph 2, of the Corporation Act of 1874, as amended, 15 PS Sec. 43, provides that the board of directors or trustees shall not be less than three. The Act of April 19, 1901, P. L. 80, 15 PS Sec. 45, also provides that the board of directors shall not be less than three. The latter act, however, seems to pertain only to corporations for profit.

The Act of May 9, 1889, P. L. 163, 15 PS Secs. 2841-2851, relating to the incorporation of Young Men's Christian Associations, provides that in addition to the board of directors, such corporations shall also have a board of at least six trustees, who, together with the president of the association, shall form a board of trustees to hold in trust the property of the corporation. In Section 215, provision is made that the articles of a Young Men's Christian Association shall make provision for such board of trustees. Therefore, this provision is not contained in this part of the draft.

2. This provision affords the corporation great leeway in respect to directors. Since corporations not for profit are so diverse in their activities and needs, it is deemed wise to permit this latitude.

The Act of May 23, 1887, P. L. 165, 15 PS Sec. 49, provides that: "It shall be lawful to insert in any charter or amendment of a charter for a corporation of the first class * * * a provision or provisions that the directors, managers, trustees, vestrymen or other governing body, as the case may be, of such corporation, may be elected so that a half, or a third, or fourth, of the whole number only, shall be elected each year, the distribution to be made in such manner as the charter may direct." The general language of the proposed provision will permit the classification of directors by terms of office, as now provided by the above Act of 1887.

Where a nonprofit corporation is directed to be formed by the terms of a trust instrument, Section 213 requires any qualifications, etc., pertaining to directors, contained in the instrument, to be set forth in the articles.

This provision also supplies the Act of May 17, 1917, P. L. 228, 15 PS Sec. 54, which permits directors to be compensated for their services.

3. Our present law does not permit directors' or members' meetings of all corporations to be held outside of the Commonwealth, but the corporation laws of most of the states,—and particularly of such states as Delaware and New Jersey,—expressly grant this privilege. There is no advantage in compelling meetings to be held within this State.

4. Section 9 of the Corporation Act of 1874 provides: "In case of the death, removal or resignation of the president or any of the directors, treasurer, or other officer of any such company, the remaining directors may supply the vacancy thus created until the next election."

The proposed provision is a reenactment of existing law, in so far as directors are concerned. A similar provision pertaining to the filling of vacancies among the officers will be found under Section 502, infra.

The proposed provision will also supply the Act of June 25, 1885, P. L. 177, 15 PS Sec. 52, which permits a corporation formed pursuant to a will to include in its articles a provision that in the case of a vacancy in the board of directors the remaining directors, by a majority vote, may fill such vacancy.

5. Section 5, Paragraph 2, of the Corporation Act of 1874, P. L. 73, as amended, 15 PS Sec. 43, provides that: "a majority of * * * directors or trustees shall be necessary to constitute a quorum, except that any first class corporation now or hereafter created may, by the provisions of its by-laws duly adopted, provide that a legal quorum of the board of trustees or managers may consist of less than a majority thereof: Provided, That at no time shall a quorum be less than five members of the board unless the total number of members of the board is less than nine." It will be noted that the proposed provision supplies Section 5 of the Act of 1874, except that the proposed provision does not provide that five members shall constitute a quorum unless the total number of directors is less than nine.

Section 502. Officers and Agents.—Every nonprofit corporation shall have a president, a secretary and a treasurer, and may have such other officers and agents as the needs of the corporation may require[1]. The articles or by-laws may prescribe special qualifications for such officers[2]. The officers and agents shall be elected or appointed and their compensation fixed by either the board of directors or the members, as prescribed in the by-laws. The president shall be a director, and the other officers may be directors. A director may at the same time serve and receive compensation for his services as an officer[3]. The offices of secretary and treasurer may be combined in one person. All officers and agents shall respectively have such authority and perform such duties in the management of the property and affairs of the corporation, subject to the control of the board of directors, as may be prescribed by the by-laws; or, in the absence of controlling provisions in the by-laws, as may be determined by the board of directors. Any officer or agent may be removed by the board of directors whenever in its judgment the best interests of the corporation will be served thereby, but such removal shall be without prejudice to the contract rights of any person so removed. In the case of death, removal or resignation of any officer, the directors shall supply the vacancy thus created until the next election unless the by-laws prescribe some other manner[4].

Comments:

1. The Corporation Act of 1874, Section 5, as amended, 15 PS Sec. 43, provides: "The business of every corporation created hereunder, or accepting the same, shall be managed and conducted by a president, * * * a secretary or clerk, a treasurer, and such other officers, agents and factors as the corporation authorizes for that purpose."

2. The Act of June 1, 1915, P. L. 703, 15 PS Sec. 1132, provides that: "It shall be lawful to insert in the charter of any corporation for the support of public worship * * * a provision that the rector or minister chosen by such corporation to take charge of the religious services * * * shall, during his continuance in said office of rector or minister, be ex officio president of the vestry, board of trustees, board of directors * * * of such corporation." The proposed provision is inserted for the purpose of meeting the above condition and any other similar conditions which may arise in particular types of nonprofit corporations.

3. The Act of 1874, Section 5, as amended, 15 PS Sec. 43, provides, inter alia: "nothing in any way contained shall prevent or be construed to prohibit the vice president, treasurer, solicitor, or other officer of any corporation * * * from being a director of such company and receiving at the same time such compensation for his services as such officer as the board of directors of such company may direct * * * the manner of * * * the choice or appointment of all * * * agents and officers of the company, shall be prescribed by the by-laws. The number of directors or trustees shall not be less than three; one of them shall be chosen president by the directors, or by the members of the corporation, as the by-laws shall direct." From the foregoing it is obvious that the proposed provisions is more or less a restatement of existing law.

4. Section 9 of the Corporation Act of 1874, P. L. 73, 15 PS Sec. 51, provides that: "In case of the death, removal or resignation of the president * * * treasurer, or other officer of any such company, the remaining directors may supply the vacancy thus created until the next election." This draft restates this provision, except that the word "shall" is substituted for the word "may" found in the Act of 1874.

Section 503. Relation of Directors and Officers to Corporation.—Officers and directors shall be deemed to stand in a fiduciary relation to the corporation, and shall discharge the duties of their respective positions in good faith and with that diligence, care and skill which ordinary prudent men would exercise under similar circumstances in like positions.

Uniform Business Corporation Act, Section 33.

Comments:

According to a note contained under this section in the Uniform Business Corporation Act, the section is necessary in view of the unsettled state of the case law upon the question of the relation of directors to the corporation. Some cases liken the relation of directors to the corporation to that of a trustee to a cestui que trust (Bent v. Priest, 86 Mo. 475); other cases liken directors to mandataries (Spering's Appeal, 71 Pa. 11 (1872); The Citizens Building, Loan and Savings Association of Plainfield v. Coriell, et al., 34 N. J. Eq. 383 (1881); still other cases hold that directors are agents of the corporation (Ten Eyck v. R. R., 74 Mich. 227; Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132 (1891); Hun v. Carey, 82 N. Y. 65 (1880). There is a conflict also in the decisions as to whether directors should use that degree of care that the ordinarily prudent man would use in his own business (Hun v. Carey, supra; Hanna v. Lyon, 179 N. Y. 107 (1904)); Kavanaugh v. Commonwealth Trust Company, 223 N. Y. 103), or that amount of care that an ordinarily prudent director would use (Briggs v. Spaulding, supra; Allen v. Roydhouse, 232 Fed. 1010 (1916); Stone v. Rottman, 183 Mo. 552 and Spering's Appeal, supra). The draftsman of the Uniform Business Corporation Act states that the weight of authority supports the rule is the most fair and the most practicable.

The proposed section will effect a change in Pennsylvania law. Back in 1872, Judge Sharswood, in Spering's Appeal, supra, said: "It is by no means a well-settled point what is the precise relation which directors sustain to stockholders. They are undoubtedly said in many authorities to be trustees, but that as I apprehend is only in a general sense, as we term an agent or any bailee intrusted with the care and management of the property of another. It is certain that they are not technical trustees. They can only be regarded as mandataries—persons who have gratuitously undertaken to perform certain duties, and who are therefore bound to apply ordinary skill and diligence, but no more."

Since directors receiving no compensation are treated as gratuitous mandataries, it is held in Pennsylvania that they are required to exercise only ordinary skill and diligence, and are personally liable only for fraud or for such gross negligence as amounts to fraud, and for acts clearly ultra vires. Spering's Appeal, supra.

In Commonwealth v. Anchor Building and Loan Association, 20 Pa. Super. 101 (1902), it was stated: "This rule of law is based upon the fact that directors are gratuitous manadatories, * * * the insignificant payments to directors when attending meetings of the board, were not compensation and did not change the measure of duty and liability of the directors."

In Swentzel v. Penn Bank, 147 Pa. 140 (1892), Judge Paxson, in reiterating the rule of ordinary care laid down in Spering's Appeal, stated: "The ordinary care of a business man in his own affairs means one thing; the ordinary care of a gratuitous mandatory [is quite another matter. The one implies on oversight] and knowledge of every detail of his business; the other suggests such care only as a man can give in a short space of time to the business of other persons, from whom he receives no compensation * * * care must be taken that we do not hold mere gratuitous mandatories to such a severe rule as to drive all honest men out of such positions."

From the foregoing, it is obvious that in Pennsylvania today a director is held to but the ordinary skill and diligence of a director in the business of the corporation and not to the ordinary skill and diligence which a man takes of his own business.

Section 504. Boards of Trustees of Young Men's Christian Associations.—Every Young Men's Christian Association incorporated under this act shall have, in addition to a board of directors, six or more trustees who, together with the president of the association, shall form a board of trustees. Each member of the board of trustees shall be a member of one of the protestant evangelical denominations, but a majority of such members, exclusive of the president of the association, shall not be members of any one denomination. The number, terms of office, manner of election, time and place of meeting, and the powers and duties of the trustees, may subject to the provisions of this act, be prescribed by the articles or the by-laws. Vacancies in the board of trustees shall be filled by a majority vote of the remaining trustees from nominations to be made by the board of directors. All real property which shall be given to or acquired by a Young Men's Christian Association, and all gifts and bequests of money to be held in trust, shall be held by the board of trustees, but the real property of the association shall be managed by the board of directors and real property belonging to such association shall not be conveyed, disposed of, or mortgaged by the board of trustees, except with the consent of the board of directors. The property of the association and all income received therefrom by the board of trustees shall be devoted to the purposes of the corporation and to no other purpose. The income received from such property shall be paid over by the board of trustees to the treasurer of the board of directors, so long as the directors expend the income for the purpose or purposes of the association.

Comments:

The above section is a restatement of existing law.

QUERY: Whether the board of trustees required by existing law is necesasry under present day conditions.

There appears to be no reason why a Young Men's Christian Association requires a board of trustees to checkmate a board of directors, any more so than any other religious or charitable corporation. For the sake of uniformity, the organization of a Young Men's Christian Association should be the same as that of any other religious or charitable corporation.

The Act of 1889 requires the charter to set forth the terms of office for which the trustees shall serve. This draft, however, permits either the articles or the by-laws to prescribe the terms for which the trustees shall serve.

ARTICLE VI.

MEMBERS AND MEMBERS' MEETINGS

Section 601. Classes and Qualifications of Membership.—Membership in all nonprofit corporations shall be of classes, and shall be governed by such rules of admission, retension, suspension and expulsion, as the articles or by-laws shall prescribe, except that all such rules shall be reasonable, germane to the purpose or purposes of the corporation, and equally enforced as to all members of the same class. Unless otherwise provided by the articles or by-laws, there shall be one class of members whose voting and other rights and interests shall be equal. Where neither the articles nor by-laws provide for members, as such, or where a nonprofit corporation has, in fact, no members other than the persons constituting its board of directors, the persons for the time being constituting the board shall, for all intents and purposes, be taken to be the members of the corporation and exercise all the rights and powers of members.

Comments:

While membership cannot be restricted in business corporations, it may be restricted, limited and restrained in nonprofit corporations. Article VI of this draft attempts to cover the problem of membership in nonprofit corporations. Since nonprofit corporations are of many different types, each having its own requirements as to members, etc., we have left matters of admission, retension, suspension and expulsion of members to the incorporators, by permitting these requirements to be covered either by the articles or the by-laws. In some instances, however, certain provisions are made mandatory, unless the articles or by-laws prescribe otherwise.

Section 602. Membership Fees; Assessments.—Nonprofit corporations may levy dues or assessments, or both, upon their members, if authority to do so is conferred either by the articles or the by-laws, and subject to any limitations therein contained. Such dues or assessments, or both, may be imposed upon all classes of members alike, or in different amounts of proportions, or upon a different basis, upon different classes of members. Members of one or more classes may be made exempt from either dues or assessments, or both, in the manner or to the extent provided either in the articles or by-laws. The amount of the levy and method of collection of such dues or assesments, or both, may be fixed in the articles or by-laws, or the articles or by-laws may authorize the board of directors to fix the amount thereof from time to time, and make them payable at such time and by such methods of collection as the directors may prescribe. Such corporations may make by-laws necessary to enforce the collection of such dues or assessments, including provisions for the cancellation of membership, for nonpayment of such dues or assessments, and for reinstatement in such corporation upon reasonable notice.[1]

Comments:

Realizing the diversity of the needs of nonprofit corporations in regard to membership fees and assessments, the proposed leaves this matter in the discretion of the incorporators, as expressed by the articles or by-laws.

1. In the recent case of Powanda, et al., v. Pido, et al., 304 Pa. 42 (1931), a by-law prescribing automatic and summary dismissal, without notice from membership in an incorporated organization, for nonpayment of arrearages, was declared to be illegal, and unenforceable. The court held that notice was essential and that where the charter permitted expulsion there must be some act of the corporation declaring expulsion, and this cannot be done without a vote of expulsion after notice to the member supposed to be in default.

Section 603. Members' Meetings.—The time, place and manner of calling, giving notice of, and conducting members' meetings, and the number of members which shall constitute a quorum, may be prescribed in the by-laws. If the by-laws so provide, meetings of the members may be held outside of the Commonwealth.[1] A quorum of members may be greater or less than a majority of the members entitled to vote. Special meetings of the members may be called by such officers, directors or persons as the by-laws may authorize, except that a special meeting may be called at any time by the board of directors.[2] If any meeting designated for the election of directors is not called and held within six months after the designated time, any member may call such meeting to be held at the registered office of the corporation.[3] Notice of any members' meeting may be actual or constructive, as provided by the by-laws.[4] An adjournment or adjournments of any regular or special meeting may be taken without additional notice given, but any meeting at which directors are to be elected shall be adjourned only from day to day until such directors have been elected.[5] Unless the by-laws provide otherwise:

(1) A meeting of the members shall be held in each calendar year, for the election of directors.[6]

(2) Persons authorized to call members' meetings shall cause written notice of the time, place and purpose of every such meeting to be given to all members entitled to vote at such meeting at least five days prior to the day named for the meeting. If such written notice is placed in the United States mail, postage prepaid, and addressed to a member at his last known post office address, notice shall be deemed to have been given him. Notice of any members' meeting may be waived in writing by any member at any time.[7]

(3) The presence, in person or by proxy, if the by-laws permit voting by proxy, of a majority of the members entitled to vote shall constitute a quorum. The members present at a duly organized meeting can continue to do business until adjournment, notwithstanding the withdrawal of enough members to leave less than a quorum.[8] If a meeting cannot be organized because a quorum has not attended, those present may adjourn the meeting to such time and place as they may determine, but in the case of any meeting called for the election of directors, those who attend the second of such adjourned meetings, although less than a quorum as fixed in this section or in the by-laws, shall nevertheless constitute a quorum for the purpose of electing directors.[9]

(4) Members' meetings, regular or special, shall be held at the registered office of the corporation.[10]

Comments:

1. See Note No. 3 under Section 501.

2. In view of the diverse needs of nonprofit corporations, this draft permits members' meetings ta be governed by the by-laws. In the past the time of an annual meeting was often included in the articles. To change the date of the meeting it was necessary to amend the charter by petition to the court, until the passage of the Act of March 30, 1921, P. L. 54, 15 PS Sec. 57. This act permitted any corporation required by its charter to hold its annual meeting on a certain day to fix a different day by resolution of the board or a by-law. It is submitted that provisions pertaining to members' meetings should be governed by the by-laws. The articles should contain only organic features and should be changed only by application to the court.

3. This provision is inserted to prevent an intrenched board of directors from remaining intrenched by refusing to call the meeting designated in the by-laws for the election of directors. In Streuber v. St. Mary's Pipe Company, et al., 33 Pa. C. C. 46 (1906), it was held that where an annual meeting regularly called for the election of directors is allowed to go by default, and no by-laws gives the president or secretary authority to call such meeting, those oficers cannot be compelled by mandamus to comply with a notice signed by a majority in number and amount of the stockholders to call a meeting of stockholders to elect directors. The Uniform Business Corporation Act permits any stockholder to call such meeting after eighteen months have been allowed to elapse. This draft permits a member to call such a meeting after six months have elapsed. Discussion is invited on this point.

4. As a general rule every member of a corporation is entitled to actual notice of a meeting, unless the meeting is held at a time fixed by the act of incorporation, by-laws, or other competent authority. Gordon v. Preston, 1 Watts 385 (1833). If the meeting be a special one, however, the general rule is that notice is necessary and must be served, if practical, upon every member entitled to be present, so that everyone may be afforded an opportunity to participate in the vote. Kersey Oil Company and H. A. Guernsey v. The Oil Creek and Allegheny Railroad, 12 Phila. 374 (1877). Constructive notice may be given in any manner provided either in the charter or by-laws, but in the absence of such special provision personal notice to each member is required. Haslam v. American Auto Club, 4 D. & C. 353 (1923). This draft permits the by-laws to specify the type of notice necessary. In some cases it may be advisable to give personal notice to every member, whereas in other cases it may be advisable to give constructive notice.

5. Where an original meeting was duly called and convened, the members are not entitled to any other notice of the adjourned meeting than that which is implied in the adjournment. Savidge on Pa. Corps., Volume 1, Section 729, Page 596. This provision is also intended to insure the election of directors by preventing indefinite adjournments.

6. This provision conforms with Section 501. Under Section 501 a director is elected for a term of one year, unless the articles or by-laws provide otherwise. It is submitted that it may be inadvisable or undesirable for some nonprofit corporations to elect directors each year. For instance, a corporation formed to carry out the terms of a trust instrument may require permanent directors.

7. This provision will apply in the absence of a contrary provision in the by-laws. It will be noted that notice is required to be given five days prior to the day named for the meeting. If the charter or by-laws are silent on the subject, notice must be given a reasonable time before the day of meeting. The Mercantile Library Hall Company v. The Pittsburgh Library Association et al., 173 Pa. 30 (1896). Discussion is invited whether the time specified in this draft is sufficient or reasonable notice.

8. A meeting properly constituted cannot be deprived of the right to transact the business for which it was called by the refusal of certain members present to participate therein or by their capricious withdrawal. Commonwonlth v. Vandegrift, 232 Pa. 53 (1911). Lutz v. Webster, 249 Pa. 226 (1915); 2 Thompson on Corporations, Section 910, Page 267.

9. In Craig et al. v. First Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, 88 Pa. 42 (1879), it was held that there is a distinction between a corporate act to be done by a definite number of persons and one to be performed by an indefinite number,—in the first case no act can be done unless a majority of the whole body is present; in the second a majority of those who appear may act.

This draft provides that a quorum shall consist of a majority of all members entitled to vote, unless the by-laws specify otherwise. If the corporation desires a lesser quorum, this provision will require the corporation to so specify in its by-laws. The provision relating to the election of directors at an adjourned meeting is intended to insure the election of directors either by preventing indefinite adjournments, or by preventing a majority from defeating a quorum by failing to attend the meeting. This provision was taken from the Uniform Business Corporation Act.

10. As a general rule, member's meetings should be held at the registered office. However, cases may arise where it may be desirable to hold them elsewhere. The proposed provision is drafted to meet this condition.

Section 604. Members' Voting Rights.—Unless otherwise provided in the articles or by-laws, every member of a nonprofit corporation shall be entitled to one vote. Voting by members shall be only in person, unless the by-laws specifically provide for voting by proxy.[1] The manner of voting may be by ballot, mail, or any reasonable means provided in the articles or by-laws.[2] In all elections for directors or other officers, each member having a right to vote may cast the whole number of his votes for one candidate, or distribute them upon two or more candidates, as he may prefer.[3] No member shall sell his vote or issue a proxy for money or anything of value. Upon request of a member the books or records of membership shall be produced at any general or special meeting of the corporation.[4] If at any meeting the right of a person to vote is challenged, the presiding officer shall require such books or records to be produced as evidence of the right of the person challenged to vote, and all persons who appear by such books or records to be members may vote.

Comments:

1. The Act of 1876, supra, as amended, provides that: "In the case of first class corporations, voting by members shall be ~~com~~ in person unless the by-laws * * * shall specifically provide for voting by proxy.

2. The Act of 1876 also provides: "all elections for directors or trustees shall be by ballot". Due to the diverse types of nonprofit corporations, it appears to be advisable to permit latitude in the manner of voting.

3. In Pennsylvania the right of cumulative voting is given by Article XVI, Section 4 of the Constitution, which provides: "In all elections for directors or managers of a corporation each member or shareholder may cast the whole number of his votes for one candidate, or distribute them upon two or more candidates, as he may prefer." The Enabling Act of 1876, supra, reiterates the language of the Constitution and then goes on to explain in detail the method of cumulative voting. This draft does not explain cumulative voting, as this manner of voting is well understood today.

4. The provision relating to inspection of membership books was taken from the Membership Corporations Law of New York. In Pennsylvania a member of a nonprofit corporation has the right, for proper purposes, to inspect the corporate records, books and papers. McClintock v. Young Rtpublicans of Philadelphia, 210 Pa. 115 (1904).

The Act of May 7, 1889, P. L. 102, as acended by the Act of May 26, 1893, P. L. 141, 15 PS Sec. 104, provides that the transfer books of any corporation shall be prima facie evidence of the right of the person named therein to vote. This act, however, applies only to corporations of the second class. There appears to be no statutory provision on this point in Pennsylvania relative to corporations not for profit.

Section 605. Reduction of Membership Below Stated Number.—Whenever the membership of a nonprofit corporation having a stated number of members shall be reduced below such number by death, withdrawal, or otherwise, the corporation shall not, on that account, be dissolved, but it shall be lawful for the surviving or continuing members to continue the corporate existence, unless it is otherwise provided in the articles or by-laws.

Comments:

In the case of a charitable corporation, no loss of members dstroys the corporation so long as a sufficient number remains to continue the succession and fill up the vacancies. 14a C. J. 1113. The death or removal of the members of a church does not constitute a dissolution of the corporation, nor does the fact that there are fewer members than the charter requires invalidate corporate acts. Methodist Episcopal Church v. McFarland, 54 Pitts. L. J. 240 (1906). Discussion is invited whether this provision should be included in the proposed code.

Section 606. Termination and Transfer of Membership.—Membership in a nonprofit corporation shall be terminated in the manner provided in the articles or by-laws. If the membership in any such corporation is limited to persons who are members in good standing in another corporation or in any lodge, church, club or society, the articles ssall in each case define such limitations, and may provide that failure on the part of any such member to keep himself in good standing in such other corporation or association shall be sufficient cause for expelling the member from the corporation requiring such eligibility. No member shall be expelled from any nonprofit corporation without notice, trial and conviction, the form of which shall be prescribed by the articles or by-laws[1] unless the articles or by-laws provide otherwise:

(1) The right of a member of a nonprofit corporation to vote, and his right, title and interest in or to the corporation or its property, shall cease on the termination of his membership.

(2) No member may transfer his membership or any right arising therefrom.

Comments:

1. Generally speaking, a nonprofit corporation has the incidental power to expel its members for three causes: First, offenses of an infamous character indictable at common law of which the member was convicted; second, offenses against the corporator's duty to the corporation as a member of it; and third, offenses compounded of the two. 8he Commonwealth v. The Guardians of the Poor of the City of Philadelphia, 6 S. & R. 469 (1821); The Commonwealth v. St. Patrick Benevolent Society, 2 Binn. 441 (1810); Leech v. Harris, et al., 2 Brewst. 571; Commonwealth v. Union League of Philadelphia, 135 Pa. 301 (1890). In Powanda, et al., v. Pido et al., 304 Pa. 42 (1931), Chief Justice Frazer stated:

> " * * * A by-law prescribing automatic and summary dismissal from membership in an incorporated organization for nonpayment of arrearages is illegal and unenforceable: Dilligent Fire Co. v. Com. 75 Pa. 291, 296, * * * 'Even when allowed by the charter, there must be some act by the corporation declaring expulsion, and this cannot be done without a vote of expulsion after notice to the member supposed to be in default'; Macavicza v. Workingman's Club, 246 Pa. 136, 140-41. The reason for notice has been stated by this court thus: 'It may be, that he [the defaulting member] may either prove that he is not in arrears, or give such reason for his default as the society may think sufficient': Com. v. Penna. Beneficial Inst., 2 S. & R. *141, 142. 'The right of membership is valuable and not to be taken away without an authority fairly derived, either from the charter or the nature of corporate bodies. Every man who becomes a member looks to the charter; in that he puts his faith, and not in the uncertain will of a majority of the members': Com. v. St. Patrick Benevolent Society, 2 Binn. 441, 449. * * * "

In view of the foregoing, this draft provides that no member may be expelled from a nonprofit corporation without proper notice, trial and conviction, the form of which shall be prescribed by the articles or by-laws.

Section 607. Membership Book.—Every nonprofit corporation shall keep at its registered office a membership book containing the name and address of each member, and in any case where membership has been terminated such fact shall be recorded in the book, together with the date on which the membrship ceased.

ARTICLE VII

ORGANIC CHANGES

Section 701. Amendment of Articles.—A. A nonprofit corporation, upon application to the court in the manner herein provided, may amend its articles for any or all of the following purposes:

(1) To adopt a new name subject to the restrictions heretofore provided in this act.[1]

(2) To modify any provision thereof limiting its term of existence,[2] by increasing such term, or to remove such provision and provide for perpetual existence.[3]

(3) To change the location of its registered office to any other county within the Commonwealth.[4]

(4) To extend, limit, add to, omit or surrender any of its powers or means of accomplishing its purpose or purposes, except that any additional or extended powers or means shall be cognate and incidental to the accomplishment of the controlling purpose or purposes for which the corporation was formed.[5]

(5) To add to, remove, or otherwise change any other provisions contained in the articles.[6]

B. Before the application is made to the court, a resolution authorizing the proposed amendments shall be adopted by a majority vote of the members or such other vote as may be required by the articles, at a regular or special meeting duly convened after notice to all the members of this purpose.[7] If a proposed amendment would make any change in the rights of the members of any class, then the members of such class shall be entitled to vote as a class upon such amendment, whether by the terms of the articles such class is or is not entitled to vote, and in addition to the vote herein required, the vote of a majority, or such other vote as the articles may require, of the members of each class so affected by the amendment shall be necessary for the adoption thereof.[8] Any amendment which might be adopted at a meeting of the members may be adopted without a meeting, if written consent to the amendment has been given by all members entitled to vote thereon.[9] The resolution shall establish the language of the proposed amendment to the articles by providing that the articles shall be amended so as to read as therein set forth in full, or that the matter stated in the resolution be added to or stricken from the articles.[10]

C. Application to the court shall be made by a petition of the corporation,[11] signed and verified by at least two duly authorized officers thereof.[12] The petition shall be under the seal of the corporation and shall set forth:

(1) The name and location of the registered office of the corporation.

(2) The Act of Assembly under which the corporation was formed, the date when the court entered the decree of incorporation, and the date when and place where the original articles were recorded.

(3) The time and place of the meeting of the members of the corporation, the kind and period of notice of the meeting given to the members, and the total vote by which the resolution authorizing the application to the court was adopted.

(4) Every proposed amendment or alteration of or addition to the existing articles. Amendments, alterations or additions shall be set forth in full.

(5) All other facts necessary to enable the court to act understandingly.[13]

The petition shall, in all cases, be accompanied by a certified copy of the charter of the corporation and of the resolution authorizing the proposed amendments, and in the case of a proposed change of the corporate name shall be accompanied also by a certificate of registration from the Department of State, which shall be applied for and issued in the same manner and subject to the same limitations as heretofore provided in this act in the case of the formation of a corporation.[14] If the court shall be of the opinion that the amendments are lawful, will be beneficial and not injurious to the community, and do not conflict with the requirements of this act or of the Constitution, it shall enter a preliminary decree appointing a day for the hearing of the application and

directing that notice thereof be given by publication in a manner similar to that prescribed in this act in the case of the formation of a corporation.[15] However, the court shall not issue such preliminary decree in the case of an educational or charitable corporation, unless and until it shall receive the approval or recommendation of the State Council of Education or the Department of Welfare, as the case may be, in a manner similar to that prescribed by this act in the case of the formation of such corporations.[16] Upon the day specified in the advertisement, proof of the publication of notice of the application shall be presented to the court, whereupon the court shall proceed to consider the petition. If, in view of all the facts, the court shall be satisfied with the propriety of the petition, it shall endorse thereon its order and decree that the petition is approved and that upon the recording of the petition and the order and decree the amendments specified in the petition shall be a part of the charter. Upon the recording of the petition and the order and decree in a manner similar to that provided in this act in the case of the formation of a corporation, the amendments specified in the petition shall become part of the charter of the corporation with the same force and effect as if they had been originally included in the charter.[17]

D. The prothonotary, in making the report to the Department of State heretofore required by this act, shall include in such report the old and new name and the address of the registered office of every corporation which during the preceding month had its name changed by proceedings under this section. For this service the prothonotary shall receive a fee of One Dollar ($1.00) from each corporation. The Department of State shall cancel the registration of the discarded corporate names, and shall note after each newly acquired name the date it was acquired by proceedings under this section. If any corporation shall have registered a new name with the department and the corporation does not adopt such name by proceedings under this section within six months from the date of such registration, the department shall cancel the registration of such name.[18]

Uniform Business Corporation Act, Sections 38 and 39.

The Membership Corporation Law of New York, Article 4, Section 30.

The General Corporation Law of California, Section 362.

Comments:

1. See Section 202 of this draft. This provision is a restatement of existing law. Section 2 of the Act of May 2, 1899, P. L. 160, provides that a corporation of the first class may change its name, style and title in the same manner as it may alter or amend its charter. Under this act a change of name is treated as an amendment of the charter. Petition of Liberty Bell Lodge, 231 Pa. 112 (1911). However, this draft adds that a corporation may not adopt a name similar, or deceptively similar, to a name registered with the Department of State.

2. Section 40 of the Corporation Act of 1874 provides: "Corporations * * * embraced within either of the classes named in section two of this act, the charters whereof are about to expire by lapse of time from their own limitation, may be rechartered, or the charters thereof renewed." This draft treats the renewal of a charter as an amendment of an existing charter, similar to the California and New York acts. Practically speaking, the renewal of a charter about to expire is identical with an amendment extending the time of corporate existence. In fact, it may be questioned whether the word "renew," used in Section 40 of the Act of 1874, is proper, in that to renew a charter is to give a new existence to one which has been forfeited or which has lost its vitality by lapse of time. See Moers v. The City of Reading, 21 Pa. 188 (1853).

3. This provision is taken from the California and New York laws, and only remedy would be to renew the charter upon its expiration. This provision would be desirable for nonprofit corporations. The Michigan Act of 1931 provides that nonprofit corporations have perpetual existence unless the articles provide a shorter term.

4. This provision is taken from the California and New York laws, and remedies a defect in our present law. A corporation of the first class may desire to locate its activities in another country and to change its principal office to such county. Our law does not cover this situation. In Thiel College's Appeal, 216 Pa. 630 (1907), it was stated: "But whether the court of Mercer county can authorize a change by which the college shall thereafter be situated and have its corporate domicile in Westmoreland is, to say the least, doubtful." Under our law the corporation apparently would have to be dissolved and re-chartered in the other county. This draft does not require the corporation to amend its charter if it desires to change the location of its principal office from one municipality within the same county. In such a case the corporation is permitted, by Section 316, to effect such change by registering this fact in the recorder of deeds' office.

5. This provision is more or less a restatement of existing law, except that under existing law the surrender of a power is accomplished by proceedings identical with those prescribed for the dissolution of a corporation. This draft treats the surrender of a power as an amendment of the charter, and does not permit a corporation to amend its charter so as to change the controlling purpose for which it was incorporated.

The General Corporation Law of California, Section 362, provides that a corporation may amend its articles "To change or add to its powers or purposes; or to set forth different or additional powers or purposes."

The Membership Corporation Laws of New York, Article 4, Section 30, permits a corporation to amend its articles "To extend, limit or otherwise change its purposes and powers or other provisions of its certificate or act of incorporation."

The Massachusetts Code, Chapter 180, Section 10, provides that: "Such corporation may, at a meeting duly called for the purpose, * * * add to or change the purpose for which it was incorporated."

However, in Petition of Liberty Bell Lodge, 231 Pa. 112 (1911), it was stated: "It is a general rule recognized by courts * * * having the power to alter and amend charters, not to exercise the power so as to change the original purpose for which the corporation was created. * * * This cannot be done." This draft follows the law laid down in this case. See Section 702.

6. Section 12 of the Act of 1876, supra, provides generally that corporations of the first class may improve, amend, or alter the articles and conditions of their charters. This provision, therefore, is more or less a restatement of Section 12 of the Act of 1876. In fact, a general statement such as this may properly be used to include all amendments to the charter of a corporation. However, the enumerations in this draft were made to point out the particular points enumerated, and, in regard to the change of location of the principal office of a corporation, to give the court specific power to authorize such a change.

7. While Section 12 of the Act of 1876, supra, permits corporations of the first class to amend their charters by applying to the court of common pleas, it is silent on the procedure or vote of the members prior to or necessary before the amendments may be presented to the court. The courts, however, have held that in order to render valid a substantial alteration of the charter, the assent to it must be given by the body which composes the corporation; the directors or trustees have no such power. Commonwealth v. Cullen, 13 Pa. 133 (1850); Brown et al. v. The Fairmount Gold and Silver Mining Company et al., 10 Phila. 32 (1873); In re Cressona Saving Fund and Building Association, 1 Leg. Rec. R. 177 (1880). Unless the charter provides otherwise, the vote of a majority of the corporate body has been held sufficient to sanction a proposed amendment of a charter—Petition of the German Evangelical Lutheran Church of St. Peter in West Philadelphia, 6 D. R. 412 (1897)—provided that all parties interested received due notice that an amendment to the charter would be proposed at the meeting at which the amendments were approved. Swedes' Church Case (MS) C. P. Phila., 18 Dec. (1847).

This draft, like the Uniform Business Corporation Act, the California and the New York acts, and in conformity with the case law, specifies the procedure to be followed before the amendments are presented to the court.

8. In St. Mary's Church, 7 S. & R. 517, 538 (1822), it was stated, in a proceeding for the amendment of a charter, "that in corporations where there is no distinction of classes, a majority of the whole corporation would be sufficient. But where there are different classes, the majority of each class should consent, before the charter can be altered." This draft specifically requires the consent of each class of members affected by the amendments.

9. This provision is taken from the Uniform Business Corporation Act. Such a provision may be desirable for nonprofit corporations, or at least for certain types of nonprofit corporations, and has been included in this draft for the purpose of inviting discussion.

10. This provision is taken from The General Corporation Law of California, and appears to be very desirable. Unless the proposed amendments are set forth in the manner required by this provision, the occasion might easily arise where the members assenting to amendments did not fully comprehend their provisions or where the court would not have sufficient information necessary to pass properly upon the amendments.

11. Some courts have held that the petition must be made by the corporation in its corporate capacity and not by the individual members of the corporation,—St. Mary's Church, 7 S. & R. 517 (1822); In re Liberty Bell Lodge No. 42, Order of Shepherds of Bethlehem, 231 Pa. 112 (1911),—while one court has held that the petition for the amendment of a charter is sufficient, though not in the name of the corporation, if signed by the president and secretary and sealed with its corporate seal. Postley's Appeal, 26 Pitts. 63 (1878). This portion of the draft specifically provides that the petition shall be that of the corporation as such.

12. Ordinarily a petition for the amendment of a charter is signed by the president and the secretary of the corporation. However, situations may arise where it would be impossible to obtain the signature of these officers. This draft, therefore, refrains from specifying the particular officers who shall sign the petition and merely requires that at least two officers duly authorized by the corporation shall sign the petition.

13. While the Act of 1876 does not specify the facts to be set forth in a petition for the amendment of a charter, it has been held that such a petition should contain all the facts necessary to enable the court to act understandingly, and that nothing should be left to inference. In re Women's Christian Association of Williamsport, 2 Chester 79 (1876); In re Grand Lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, 110 Pa. 613 (1885). See Savidge on Pa. Corps., Volume 1, Sections 175 and 176, Pages 174 and 175. The draft specifically requires certain facts to be set forth, but does not change existing practice, as such facts are generally set forth in a petition for the amendment of a charter.

14. See Section 203. The Act of May 16, 1923, P. L. 246, provides that a corporation of the first class may not adopt a new name the same as or deceptively similar to any corporate name registered with the Department of State. The Act of 1923, however, does not provide any procedure whereby a corporation which changes its name by an amendment to its charter shall register such name with the Department of State. The Act of 1876, authorizing the amendment of charters of corporations of the first class, also is silent on this point. This draft requires a corporation that desires to change its name by an amendment to its charter to register its proposed name with the Department of State in a manner similar to that required in the case of original incorporation.

15. See Section 208. Where a petition for the amendment of a charter is presented to the court, Section 42 of the Act of 1874, P. L. 73, as amended by the Act of April 17, 1876, P. L. 30, provides: "if said court shall be of opinion such alterations are or will be lawful and beneficial, and do not conflict with the requirements of the statute * * * or of the Constitution, it shall be the duty of said court to direct notice to be given, as provided in the third section of the act" of 1874. Under this act, the proposed amendments to an existing charter must be approved by the court before being advertised: In re Amendment to Charter of Asbury A. M. E. Church, Chester, 1 Del. 415 (1883). This draft restates the existing law, except that it also provides that the court shall decide whether or not such amendments are injurious to the community. In considering an application for a charter, the court is required to ascertain whether or not the provisions of the proposed charter are injurious to the community; therefore, the court should be required to ascertain whether or not any proposed amendments to a charter are injurious to the community.

16. Before a court may grant a charter to an educational institution with the power to confer degrees, it is required to secure first the approval of the State Council of Education. Also, before the court may grant a charter to a charitable corporation which is to treat or care for indigent patients, it must receive a recommendation from the Department of Welfare. Under existing law, there is no requirement that the court shall secure such approval or recommendation before it shall approve a petition for the amendment of the charter of such corporations. This draft requires the petition for the amendment of the charter of an educational institution or a charitable institution to be approved by the State Council of Education or the Department of Welfare, as the case may be, just as the original charter of such institutions must be approved.

17. This portion of the draft is a restatement of existing law.

18. This subsection should be read with Section 210 and the notes under that section. Its purpose is to prevent a corporation desiring a new corporate name from reserving it indefinitely without proceeding with its petition for amendment.

Section 702. Volunteer Fire Companies, Etc.; Change of Purpose.—Upon the establishment of a paid fire department by a municipality, any incorporated volunteer fire company of any type or designation whatsoever,[1] or any incorporated firemen's relief association having its domicil in such municipality and desiring to continue its corporate existence, may amend its charter in the manner provided in the preceding section to substitute for the purpose for which it was incorporated any literary, charitable, benevolent or social purpose which is lawful and not injurious to the community, and which does not involve pecuniary gain or profit, incidental or otherwise for its members.[2] At least one month's notice shall be given of the meeting called for the purpose of adopting the new purpose.[3] After the petition and decree of the court shall have been recorded, the new object or purpose shall supersede the original object or purpose of the corporation and shall be as valid and binding as if it had been the original object or purpose for which the corporation had been incorporated.[4]

Act of May 17, 1917, P. L. 216, Section 1, 15 PS Sec. 2821.

Comments:

1. The Act of 1917, supra, provides that: "Any incorporated fire-company (including therein engine, hose, or hook-and-ladder companies, by whatever name called)" may change the purpose for which it was formed by amending its charter. This draft substitutes for the quoted language of the Act of 1917 the provision that: "any incorporated volunteer fire company of any type or designation whatsoever." The proposed language embraces the same type of corporations contemplated by the language of the Act of 1917.

2. The Act of 1917 provides that the fire companies can change their purpose to any: "literary, charitable, benevolent purpose, whatever, or as a hall, association, or society for the mutual benefit of its members." This draft makes a slight change in the quoted language of the Act of 1917 by substituting for the words: "hall, association, or society for the mutual benefit of its members" the words "social purpose". This draft does not permit the incorporation of a corporation for the mutual benefit of its members' evidenced by funeral benefits or other class of insurance. Also, it does not permit a corporation to be formed for any purpose or purposes involving an incidental profit to its members. Under existing law, a corporation of the first class formed for the purpose of conducting a public hall is permitted to make an incidental profit. For these reasons, the proposed changes were made in the language of the Act of 1917.

3. This provision is taken from the Act of 1917, which requires a month's notice of the meeting at which the members of the fire company desire to continue their corporate existence for another purpose.

4. This provision is taken from the Act of 1917.

In General: In Petition of Liberty Bell Lodge, 231 Pa. 112 (1911), the Supreme Court ruled that the courts of common pleas could not amend a charter so as to change the original purpose for which the charter was granted. The Act of 1917, supra, appears to be the only instance in which the court of common pleas is authorized to change the purpose for which a charter was granted. Therefore, it was necessary to take care of this exception specifically.

Section 703. Merger and Consolidation.—A. Two or more nonprofit corporations formed for kindred purposes may, upon application to the court in the manner hereinafter provided, either be merged into one of such corporations or be consolidated into a new nonprofit corporation.[1] Before the application is made to the court, a joint agreement prescribing the terms and conditions of merger or consolidation and such other details and provisions as are deemed necessary shall be approved by a majority vote, or such other vote as may be required by the articles, of each class of members of each of such corporations, at a regular or special meeting of each corporation convened after notice to all the members of this purpose. The fact of such approval shall be certified on the agreement by the secretary of each corporation, and the agreement so adopted and certified shall be signed and acknowledged by two duly authorized officers of each corporation.[2] If the name of the surviving corporation, in the case of a merger, or of the new corporation, in the case of a consolidation, is to be different from the name of either of the constituent corporations, an application for the registration of the proposed name shall be made to, and a certificate shall be issued by, the Department of State, in a manner similar to that prescribed in this act in the case of the formation of a corporation.[3]

B. Application to the court shall be made by a joint petition of the corporations seeking to merge or consolidate, and shall be made to the court of common pleas of the county in which the registered office of the surviving or new corporation is to be located.[4] Such petition shall be under the seal of each corporation, shall be signed and verified by at least two duly authorized officers of each corporation, and shall, among other things, set forth:

(1) The name and the location of the registered office of the surviving or new corporation.

(2) The time and place of the meeting of the members of each corporation at which the joint agreement was adopted, the kind and period of notice given to the members, and the total vote by which the joint agreement was adopted.

(3) Any changes desired to be made in the articles of the surviving corporation, in the case of a merger, or in the case of a consolidation, all of the statements required by this act to be set forth in original articles in the case of the formation of a corporation.

(4) The names and addresses of the persons to be directors of the surviving or new corporation, until the first regular meeting of its members.

(5) The terms and conditions of the merger or consolidation.[5]

The petition shall in all cases be accompanied by a certified copy of the charter of each constituent corporation, and of the joint agreement authorizing the proposed merger or consolidation. In the case of the adoption of a new name for the surviving or new corporation, the petition shall be accompanied also by a certificate from the Department of State pertaining to the registration of such name. If the court shall be of the opinion that the proposed merger or consolidation is lawful, will be beneficial and not injurious to the community, and does not conflict with the requirements of this act or of the Constitution, it shall be the duty of the court to enter a preliminary decree appointing a day for the hearing of the petition and directing that notice thereof be given by publication in the same manner as that required by this act in the case of the formation of a corporation.[6] However, the court shall not issue such preliminary decree if the constituent corporations are educational or charitable corporations, unless and until it shall receive the approval or recommendation of the State Council of Education or the Department of Welfare, as the case may be, in a manner similar to that prescribed in the case of the formation of such corporations.[7] Upon the day specified in the advertisement, proof of the publication of notice of the application shall be presented to the court, and if the court shall be satisfied with the propriety of the petition, in view of all the facts, it shall endorse thereon its order and decree that the petition is approved and that upon the recording of the petition and the order the merger and consolidation shall take effect. If, in the case of a merger, the petition shall state any matters with respect to which the articles of the surviving corporation are to be amended, the articles shall be deemed to be amended accordingly, upon the recording of the petition and the order and decree. In the case of a consolidation, the statements in the petition similar to those required in original articles shall be deemed to be the articles of the corporation created by the consolidation.[8] The petition, together with the order and decree endorsed thereon, shall be recorded in a manner similar to that specified in the case of the formation of a corporation, and thereupon the merger or consolidation shall become effective.

C. Upon the merger or consolidation becoming effective, the several constituent corporations shall be one corporation which, in the case of merger, shall be that one of the constituent corporations into which it was agreed the other should be merged, and which shall survive the merger for that purpose; or, in the case of consolidation, the new corporation into which it was agreed the constituent corporations should be consolidated. The separate existence of the constituent corporations shall cease, except that of the surviving corporation in the case of a merger. Subject to the terms and conditions of the petition, the surviving or new corporation, as the case may be, shall possess all the rights, privileges and franchises possessed by each of the former corporations merged or consolidated, except that the surviving or new corporation shall not thereby acquire authority to engage in any business or exercise any right which a corporation may not be formed under this act to engage in or exercise. All the property, real, personal and mixed of each of the constituent corporations, and all debts due on whatever account to any of them, including subscriptions for membership, and other choses in action belonging to any of them, shall be trasnferred to and vested in such surviving or new corporation, as the case may be, without further act or deed. The surviving or new corporation shall be responsible for all the liabilities and obligations of each of the corporations merged or consolidated, in the same manner as if the surviving or new corporation had itself incurred such liabilities or obligations; but the privileges of such constituent corporations or of their members, directors, or officers shall not be affected, nor shall the rights of the creditors thereof or of any persons dealing with such corporations be impaired, by such merger or consolidation, and any claim existing or action or proceeding pending by or against any constituent corporation may be prosecuted to judgment as if such merger or consolidation had not taken place, or the surviving or new corporation may be proceeded against or substituted in place of the constituent corporation.[9] Any devise, bequest, gift or grant contained in any will or other instrument, in trust or otherwise, made before or after such merger or consolidation, to or for any of the constituent corporations shall inure to the surviving or new consolidated corporation, as the case may be.

D. The prothonotary of the court, in making the report to the Department of State heretofore required by this act, shall include in such report the names and registered offices of the constituent corporations involved in merger or consolidation proceedings, consummated during the preceding month, and the names of the surviving or new corporations resulting from such proceedings. For this service the prothonotary shall receive a fee of One Dollar ($1.00) from the petitioners. Where a constituent corporation is merged into a surviving corporation, or where the constituent corporations are consolidated into a new corporation, the Department of State shall cancel the registration of the names of the non-surviving corporations. If any name registered with the department under the provisions of this section is not adopted by proceedings under this section within six months from the date of such registration, the department shall cancel the registration of such name.[10]

Comments:

1. Section 42 of the Corporation Act of 1874, as amended by the Act of April 17, 1876, P. L. 30, provides that corporations of the first class may "consolidate and merge with other, or one or more within the other." As used in that act, the words "consolidate" and "merge" appear to be used synonymously, whereas such words, technically, have different meanings. In a merger, only one of the constituent corporations survives, whereas the others lose their identities; while in a consolidation all the constituent corporations lose their identities and a new corporation springs up in their place. This draft, like the Uniform Business Corporation Act, Section 43, and The General Corporation Law of California, Section 361, makes a clear distinction between a merger and a consolidation.

2. While Section 42 of the Corporation Act of 1874, as amended, permits corporations of the first class to consolidate or merge by applying to the court of common pleas, it is silent on the procedure or vote of the members prior to or necessary before the application is made to the court. The Act of 1874 provides that merger or consolidation proceedings shall be the same as proceedings for the amendment of a charter; therefore, this draft prescribes proceedings similar to those prescribed for the amendment of a charter. See Note No. 7 under Section 701. The Uniform Business Corporation Act and the acts of the several states specify the procedure to be followed before the merger or consolidation proceedings are presented to the court or to the Secretary of State.

3. While the Act of May 16, 1923, P. L. 246, provides that a corporation of the first class may not adopt a name the same as or deceptively similar to any name registered with the Department of State, it does not provide any procedure whereby a corporation which changes its name in a merger or consolidation proceeding shall register such name with the Department of State. The Act of 1876, authorizing the merger or consolidation of corporations of the first class, also is silent on this point. This draft requires the constituent corporations of a merger or consolidation proceeding to register the name of the surviving or new corporation with the Department of State, if such name is to be different from the name of either constituent corporation.

4. Section 42 of the Act of 1874, as amended by the Act of April 17, 1876, P. L. 30, provides that in the case of the merger or consolidation of a corporation of the first class, the application shall be made "to the court of common pleas of the county in which the corporation is situated, into which the one or more desire to merge or become consolidated with the same." The draft follows the Act of 1874 in this respect.

5. While the Act of 1874 does not specify the facts to be set forth in a petition for the merger or consolidation of corporations of the first class, this draft, as in the case of a petition for the amendment of a charter, specifically requires certain facts to be set forth, but does not change existing practice, as such facts are generally set forth in a petition for a merger or consolidation. It should be particularly noted that Subsection (3) requires any changes to be made in the charter of a surviving corporation, in the case of a merger, to be set forth, and in the case of a consolidation all the information required to be set forth in original articles of incorporation. Upon the approval of the petition, any changes desired in the charter of the surviving corporation, in the case of a merger, are to be treated as an amendment to the charter of the surviving corporation. On the other hand, the statements set forth in a petition for consolidation will constitute the charter of the new corporation.

6. This draft requires the court to give the same consideration to a petition for merger or consolidation as the court is required to give to a petition for the amendment of a charter. See Note No. 15 under Section 701.

7. Before a court may grant a charter to an educational institution with the power to confer degrees, it is required to secure the approval of the State Council of Education. Also, before the court may grant a charter to a charitable corporation which is to treat or care for indigent patients, it must first receive a recommendation from the Department of Welfare. Under existing law, however, there appears to be no requirement that the court shall secure such approval or recommendation before it shall approve a petition for the merger or consolidation of any two or more such corporations. This draft requires the petition for the merger or consolidation of two or more educational institutions, or two or more charitable institutions, to be approved by the State Council of Education or the Department of Welfare, as the case may be, just as the original articles of such institutions are required to be approved.

8. In a merger proceeding, the constituent corporations, except the surviving one, lose their identities, and the surviving corporation assumes the powers of the non-surviving corporations. Therefore, it is submitted that the charter of the surviving corporation should be amended to include whatever powers of the non-surviving corporations it does not already have. Also, in a consolidation all the constituent corporations lose their identities and a new corporation springs up with the powers of the non-surviving corporations. Therefore, the new corporation should have a charter setting forth the powers of the non-surviving corporations. This draft, therefore, provides that the charter of a surviving corporation in a merger proceeding shall be amended, or that in a consolidation proceeding the new corporation shall have its own charter instead of being governed by the charters of non-existing corporations.

9. The provisions of Subsection C of this draft are taken from Section 47 of the Uniform Business Corporation Act. Section 42 of the Corporation Act of 1874, as amended, after describing the procedure to be followed in merger or consolidation proceedings, provides that "upon decree being made by said court, and the same being recorded in said county, upon the terms specified in said application, the said corporations, with all their rights, privileges, franchises, powers and liabilities, shall merge and be consolidated into, by the name, style and title given to the same in such decree, and upon the terms, limitations and with the powers stated and conferred in said application and decree."

10. This subsection should be read with Section 210 and the notes under that section. The purpose of this subsection is to prevent the constituent corporations under a merger or consolidation proceeding from reserving a name for the surviving or new corporation indefinitely without instituting the merger or consolidation proceeding.

In General: Attention is also called to the Act of May 4, 1931, P. L. 82. This act permits corporations for public worship to merge or consolidate more or less in the same manner as corporations of the second class, that is, such corporations are not required to file a petition with the court. For purposes of uniformity, the procedure outlined by the Act of 1931 is not followed in this draft.

Section 704. Division of Charitable Corporations.—A. A nonprofit corporation organized for a charitable purpose and having more than one place where its business is carried on, may, upon application to the court in the manner hereinafter provided, secure a division of its corporate entity and property, so that thereafter the charity shall be administered by two or more separate nonprofit corporations.[1] Before the application is made to the court, a resolution providing for and setting forth the full details of the proposed division shall be adopted by a vote of a majority of each class of members of the corporation, or by such other vote as the articles may prescribe, at a regular or special meeting convened after notice to all members of this purpose. If the resolution is adopted, as aforesaid, this fact shall be certified on the resolution by the secretary of the corporation. The resolution so adopted and certified shall be signed and acknowledged by at least two duly authorized officers of the corporation.[2] Application for the registration of the proposed names of the new corporations shall be made to, and a certificate shall be issued by, the Department of State, in the same manner as that required by this act in the case of the formation of a corporation, except that the name of the petitioning corporation need not be re-registered unless it is desired to make a change in such name.[3]

B. Application to the court shall be made by a petition of the corporation signed and verified by at least two duly authorized officers, which petition shall be under the seal of the corporation and shall, among other things, set forth:[4]

(1) The names and the location of the registered offices of the proposed new corporations. The name of the petitioning corporation may be assigned to one of the new corporations.

(2) The time and place of the meeting of the members at which the resolution was adopted, the kind and period of notice given to the members, and the total vote by which the resolution was adopted.

(3) All of the statements required by this act to be set forth in original articles in the formation of a corporation, which statements may be similar to or different from those contained in the charter of the petitioning corporation.[5]

(4) The names and addresses of the persons to be directors of the new corporations until the first regular meeting of their respective members.

(5) A statement of all moneys, securities and endowments of the petitioning corporation, which shall be divided equitably among the new corporations, except that no gift or legacy shall be diverted from the purpose of the donor.[6]

(6) The terms and conditions of the proposed division.

The petition shall in all cases be accompanied by a certified copy of the charter of the petitioning corporation and of the resolution authorizing the division and a certificate from the Department of State pertaining to the registration of each new corporate name proposed to be adopted. If the court shall be of the opinion that the proposed division is lawful, will be beneficial and not injurious to the community, and does not conflict with the requirements of this act or of the Constitution, it shall be the duty of the court to enter a preliminary decree appointing a day for a hearing of the petition and directing that notice thereof shall be given by publication in the manner heretofore provided in this act in the case of the formation of a corporation.[7] However, the court shall not enter such preliminary decree unless and until it shall receive a recommendation from the Department of Welfare, in a manner similar to that prescribed in the case of the formation of a charitable corporation.[8]

C. Upon the day specified in the advertisement, proof of the publication of notice of the application shall be presented to the court and the court shall hear the petition. If the court shall be satisfied with the propriety of the petition, in view of all the facts, it shall endorse thereon its order and decree that the petition is approved and that upon the recording of the petition and the order the division prayed for in the petition shall become effective. It shall be lawful for the court to decree such conveyances, assignments and transfers of the property and effects of the petitioning corporation as it may deem proper to be made to each new corporation, and when such conveyances, assignments and transfers have been made, each new corporation shall hold the property so decreed and conveyed to it as its own property, as fully and completely as the petitioning corporation held such property. When the reception of any person or persons or class of the community, or other specific public duty, is enjoined upon the petitioning corporation by any Act or Acts of Assembly, it shall be lawful also for the court to decree which of the new corporations shall thereafter receive such person or persons or class of the community, or perform such other public duty. Thereafter, it shall be the duty of the new corporation, so charged, to perform such public duty, and the other new corporations shall be released and discharged from such duty.[9] The petition, together with the order and decree of the court, shall be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds in a manner similar to that heretofore provided by this act in the case of the formation of a corporation, and thereupon the division prayed for shall become effective and the corporate existence of the new corporations shall begin. The new corporations shall be governed by the charter provisions set forth in the petition, and such provisions shall to all intents and purposes be deemed to be the charter of each of such corporations.[10]

D. The prothonotary of the court, in making the report to the Department of State heretofore required by this act, shall include in such report the name and registered office of the petitioning corporation and of each new corporation resulting from division proceedings consummated during the preceding month. For such service the prothonotary shall receive a fee of One Dollar ($1.00) from the petitioning corporation. The Department of State shall note after the registered name of each new corporation the date of its incorporation. If a petitioning corporation shall have registered the names of new corporations to be formed as the result of division proceedings and such division proceedings do not take place within six months from the date of the registration of such names, the Department of State shall cancel the registration of such names.[11]

Act of May 1, 1907, P. L. 140, 15 PS Secs. 1151-1155.

Comments:

1. The Act of May 1, 1907, P. L. 140, provides for the division of charitable corporations. This procedure accomplishes a result just the reverse of that accomplished by a merger or consolidation proceeding. No state except Pennsylvania appears to have a statute authorizing the division of one corporation into two or more corporations, in the manner set forth by the above act.

Discussion is invited on the question whether the procedure outlined in the Act of 1907 is necessary. It may well be argued that the same result may be reached by the formation of a new charitable corporation and the transfer of part of the assets of an existing corporation to the new corporation.

2. The Act of 1907 is silent on the procedure or vote of the corporation necessary before the petition for division is presented to the court. This draft, however, specifies in this respect a procedure similar to that specified in the case of the amendment of a charter.

3. The Act of May 16, 1923, P. L. 246, provides that a corporation of the first class may not adopt a new name the same as or deceptively similar to any corporate name registered with the Department of State. Neither the Act of 1923 nor the Act of 1907 provides any procedure whereby the corporations arising out of a division proceeding shall register their names with the Department of State. This draft requires such registration.

4. The Act of 1907 does not provide what shall be set forth in the petition to the court, except indirectly, by providing that it shall be lawful for the court to decree certain things. This draft prescribes what the petition shall set forth.

5. The Act of 1907 provides: "The said new corporation shall be governed by the provisions of the charter of the petitioning corporation, unless the petitioning corporation shall pray for different provisions for the government of the new corporations, in which case it shall be lawful for the court to decree that such new charter provisions shall govern said new corporation." This draft, therefore, provides that the petition shall set forth either the provisions of the charter of the petitioning corporation or any different provisions which may be desired for the government of such corporations. Under the Act of 1907, the corporations arising out of a division proceeding apparently are to be governed by identical charter provisions. This draft follows the Act of 1907 in this particular.

6. This provision is taken from Section 3 of the Act of 1907. The Act of 1907 provides: "All moneys, securities, and endowments of the petitioning corporation shall be equitably divided amongst the new corporations: Provided always, That no gift or legacy shall be diverted from the purpose of the donor." It is submitted that the petition should set forth the equitable division of the moneys, securities and endowments of the petitioning corporation, and the draft so provides.

7. The Act of 1907 provides that the "court shall appoint a day for hearing said petition, of which hearing notice shall be given by advertisement once a week for three successive weeks, in two newspapers of general circulation printed in such county." At the time the Act of 1907 was passed, the Act of 1874 required notice of an application for a charter to be advertised for a period of three weeks. The advertising period in the case of an application for a charter has since then been considerably lessened, and this draft requires that advertisment of a petition for a division shall be for a period similar to that required in the case of an application for a charter.

8. Before a court may grant a charter to a charitable corporation which is to treat or care for indigent patients, the court must first receive a recommendation from the Department of Welfare. Under existing law, however, there appears to be no requirment that the court shall secure such recommendation before it shall approve a petition for the division of a charitable corporation. This draft requires the petition for the division of a charitable corporation to be approved by the Department of Welfare, just as the original charter of such corporation is required to be approved by such department.

9. This portion of the draft is a restatement of Sections 4 and 5 of the Act of May 1, 1907, P. L. 140. At this point, it will be noted that part of Section 2 of the Act of 1907 is omitted. The draft requires the omitted portions to be set forth in the petition.

10. The Act of 1907 provides in this respect that: "The said new corporation shall be governed by the provisions of the charter of the petitioning corporation, unless the petitioning corporation shall pray for different provisions for the government of the new corporations, in which case it shall be lawful for the court to decree that such new charter provisions shall govern said new corporation; provided, such provisions be lawful and not injurious to the community; and provided also, that no vested rights of contributors or other parties shall be impaired." The quoted provision of the Act of 1907 apparently requires each corporation resulting from a division proceeding to be governed by identical charter provisions, which provisions may be identical to, or different from, those of the petitioning corporations.

11. Subsection D should be read with Section 210. The purpose of this section is to prevent a corporation desiring a division of its corporate entity and property from reserving corporate names for the new corporations indefinitely without division proceedings taking place. The situation might arise where such names would be registered but the division would never take place. In such a case other corporations would be forever barred from adopting the names so registered.

ARTICLE VIII.

FOREIGN NONPROFIT CORPORATIONS.

Section 801. Admission of Foreign Nonprofit Corporations.—A foreign nonprofit corporation, before doing any business in this Commonwealth[1], shall procure a certificate of authority to do so from the Department of State[2], in the manner hereinafter provided in this article, unless the entitre business operations of the corporation within this Commonwealth are within the protection of the Commerce Clause of the Federal Constitution, in which event the corporation may engage in such business operations without procuring a certificate of authority[3]. A foreign nonprofit corporation shall not be denied a certificate of authority by reason of the fact that the laws of the state or country, governing its organization and internal affairs, differ from the laws of this Commonwealth, and nothing in this act contained shall be construed to authorize this Commonwealth to regulate the organization or the internal affairs of such corporation[4].

Comments:

1. Under the Act of 1911, every foreign corporation "before doing any business in this Commonwealth", is required to appoint the Secretary of the Commonwealth as its agent upon whom process in any proceeding against it may be served. While the phrase "doing business" is not defined in that act, certain well-established rules have been formulated by the courts to be followed in determining whether or not under a particular set of facts a foreign corporation is "doing business" within the Commonwealth.

Delaware and a few other states attempt to define the term "doing business" by statute, by stating certain rules for determining what does not constitute "doing business". The first tentative draft of the Uniform Foreign Corporation Act also contains a definition of business, which, according to the drafting committee "is to a great extent negative in character, that is, it, to a great extent, states rules for determining what does not constitute 'doing business' rather than what does constitute 'doing business'".

It is practically impossible to formulate a general and all-inclusive definition of "doing business," because the determination of it depends almost entitrely on the facts of each case. Therefore, this draft does not define the term, as no useful purpose would be served in doing so until the Uniform Foreign Corporation Act has been drafted in final form and recommended for adoption in the several states. The draft restates the same language used in the Act of 1911. Accordingly, the same rules established by the courts of this Commonwealth under the Act of 1911 will still apply under this draft.

2. Under the Act of 1911, the Secretary of the Commonwealth is not required to issue to a foreign corporation any evidence of the fact that the corporation has designated him as its agent for the service of process. The laws of many states, including New Jersey, New York, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan, require the Secretary of State to issue a certificate of authority or admission to a foreign corporation authorizing it to do business. The tentative draft of the Uniform Foreign Corporation Act also requires the Secretary of State to issue a license to the corporation.

It appears to be advisable for the Commonwealth to issue some evidence of its permission to a foreign corporation to do business within its borders. Accordingly, this draft requires the Department of State to issue to a foreign corporation desiring to do business in Pennsylvania a certificate of authority to do so.

See Section 804 of this draft.

3. It is well-settled that a state cannot require a foreign corporation engaged exclusively in interstate commerce to file a statement and secure a certificate thereof from the Secretary of State as a condition precedent to its right to do business, or bring suit within the state, as this type of corporation is not subject to regulation by the several states. Crutcher v. Kentucky, 141 U. S. 47, (1891); International Text-Book Company v. Pigg, 217 U. S. 91, (1910); Buck Stove Company v. Vickers, 226 U. S. 205. While our Act of 1911 is drafted in general and all-inclusive terms, it has been held not to apply to foreign corporations exclusively engaged in interstate commerce. Philadelphia and Gulf Steamship Company v. Pechin, 23 D. R. 518 (1 Corp. 228) (1914). Unlike the Act of 1911, this draft specifically exempts foreign corporations engaged exclusively in interstate or foreign commerce from its requirements. This would appear to be expedient, in view of what the United States Supreme Court said in International Text-Book Company v. Pigg, supra, in construing a statute of Kansas as applied to a Pennsylvania corporation, namely:

> " * * * It is true that the statute does not, in terms, require the corporation of another state engaged in interstate commerce to take out what is technically 'a license' to transact its business in Kansas. But it denies all authority to do business in Kansas unless the corporation makes, delivers, and files a 'statment' of the kind mentioned in Section 1283. The effect of such requirement is practically the same as if a formal license was required as a condition precedent to the right to do such business. In either case it imposes a condition upon a corporation of another state seeking to do business in Kansas, which, in the case of interstate business, is a regulation of interstate commerce and directly burdens such commerce. The state cannot thus burden interstate commerce. It follows that the particular clause of Section 1283 requiring that 'statement' is illegal and void. * * * although the Text-book Company may have a valid contract with a citizen of Kansas, one directly arising out of and connected with its interstate business, the statute denies its right to invoke the authority of a Kansas court to enforce its provisions unless it does what we hold it was not, under the Constitution, bound to do * * *:"

4. This provision is taken from the new Illinois act. It appears to be desirable that this Commonwealth should not deny a certificate of authority to be issued by reason of the fact that the laws of another state regulating the internal affairs of the corporation differ from those of this Commonwealth. If there is any question of policy as to the sale in this Commonwealth of the securities of such a corporation, that is a matter for the Pennsylvania Securities Commission, under the Blue Sky laws. It should not deprive such corporations of the right to procure a certificate of authority to transact business in this Commonwealth.

Section 802. Restrictions on Admission of Foreign Nonprofit Corporations.—The Department of State shall not issue a certificate of authority to any foreign nonprofit corporation:

(1) If the application for the certificate of authority hereinafter required by this article to be filed, sets forth any kind of business for which a domestic nonprofit corporation could not be formed under the laws of the Commonwealth.[1]

(2) If the name of the corporation is the same as or deceptively similar to the name of any domestic corporation or any other foreign corporation authorized to do business in this Commonwealth, or the name of any unincorporated body whatsoever registered with the Department of State, under any Act of Assembly unless such other domestic or foreign corporation or unincorporated body is about to change its name, or to cease to do business, or is being wound up, or such foreign corporation is about to withdraw from doing business in this Commonwealth, and the written consent of such other domestic or foreign corporation, or unincorporated body to the adoption of its name or a deceptively similar name has been given and is filed with the application for a certificate of authority hereinafter provided for in this article.[2]

(3) If the name of the corporation contains words not permitted by this act to be part of the name of a domestic nonprofit corporation.[2]

(4) If the corporation is a college, university, theological seminary or other nonprofit corporation, which, if formed under the provisions of this act, would require the approval of the State Council of Education, unless the approval of the State Council of Education shall be annexed thereto. Whenever the Department of State shall receive an application for a certificate of authority from this type of corporation, it shall be the duty of the department to submit the application, together with the certified copy of the articles or special law, as the case may be, to the Superintendent of Public Instruction and thereafter the procedure shall be the same as that heretofore prescribed by this act for the approval or disapproval by the State Council of Education of applications for the incorporation of similar domestic nonprofit corporations, except that the documents and the findings of the State Council of Education shall be returned to the Department of State. It shall be unlawful for the Department of State to issue a certificate of authority to such a corporation without the approval of the State Council of Education.[3]

(5) If the corporation is one which if formed under the provisions of this act would require the approval of the Department of Welfare, unless the approval of the Department of Welfare shall be annexed thereto. Whenever an application for a certificate of authority is filed with the Department of State by this type of corporation, it shall be the duty of the department to submit all the documents to the Department of Welfare, and thereafter the procedure shall be the same as that heretofore prescribed by this act for the approval or disapproval by the Department of Welfare of applications for the incorporation of similar domestic nonprofit corporations, except that the Department of Welfare shall return the documents, together with its recommendation, to the Department of State. It shall be unlawful for the Department of State to issue a certificate of authority to such a corporation without the favorable recommendation of the Department of Welfare.[4]

Comments:

1. Under the present Pennsylvania law, it is possible for a foreign corporation to engage in business in Pennsylvania for the doing of which a Pennsylvania corporation could not be formed. This provision of the draft attempts to eliminate this anomalous condition. Numerous states have a similar provision in their corporation laws.

Section 2 of Chapter 181 of The Massachusetts Code provides: "A foreign corporation, including an insurance company, shall not engage or continue in any kind of business in this commonwealth the transaction of which by domestic corporations is not permitted by the laws of this commonwealth."

Article 13, Section 211, of the General Corporation Law of New York provides that a certificate of authority shall not be issued by the Secretary of State: "if it sets forth any business for which a corporation or corporations could not be formed under a general law of this state, other than the banking law or the insurance law."

The Indiana General Corporation Law, Part III, Section 57, provides: "No foreign corporation shall be admitted (a) for the purpose of transacting any kind of business in this state the transaction of which by domestic corporations is not permitted by the laws of this state."

2. See Note No. 5 under Section 801.

3. Under existing law, and under the provisions of this draft, no college, university or theological seminary may be chartered without the approval of the State Council of Education. It is submitted that no foreign corporation of the above type should be admitted to do business in Pennsylvania until the State Council of Education shall give its approval, as in the case of the incorporation of a domestic college, university or theological seminary. This draft, therefore, forbids the Secretary of the Commonwealth from issuing a certificate of authority to a foreign corporation of this type until the State Council of Education passes favorably upon the educational merits of such institution.

In this connection, the General Corporation Law of New York, in Article 13, Section 211, provides that the Secretary of State shall not issue a certificate of authority to any foreign corporation: "If it sets forth any business for which a domestic corporation could be formed only with the consent or approval of a justice of the supreme court, a state officer, state department, or state or local board or body, the consent or approval of such justice, officer, department, board or body shall be endorsed thereon, or annexed thereto."

4. Under existing law, which is exemplified by Section 212 of this draft, a domestic charitable corporation having among its objects the care of the indigent may not be formed by the court until the Department of Welfare investigates the institution and files its recommendation with the court. While the recommendation of the Department of Welfare is not conclusive on the court, it often guides the court in its decision. On the other hand, a foreign nonprofit corporation desiring to operate a hospital in Pennsylvania (there are several institutions of this kind) is not required to secure the approval of the Department of Welfare, but may do busness upon filing a power of attorney with the Secretary of the Commonwealth. Again, we have the anomalous situation of a foreign corporation being subject to less restrictions than a domestic corporation of the same type. This draft eliminates this anomalous situation, and makes the recommendation of the Department of Welfare conclusive upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth. If the recommendation of the Department of Welfare is not favorable, the Secretary of the Commonwalth, under this draft, is prohibited from issuing a certificate of authority. This provision was inserted primarily for the purpose of inviting discussion on this point. It would seem that the Department of Welfare would be in a better position to exercise discretion in this matter than the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Section 803. Application for a Certificate of Authority.—A foreign nonprofit corporation, in order to procure a certificate of authority, shall file with the Department of State a copy of its articles and all amendments thereto, duly certified by the proper public officer of the state or country of its incorporation, or, if the corporation is created by a special law and has no articles, a duly certified copy of such law, a verified translation of any part of such articles, amendments, or law which is in a foreign language, and an application for a certificate of authority, executed under the seal of the corporation, and signed and verified by at least two duly authorized officers thereof, which shall set forth:

(1) The name of the corporation.

(2) The name of the state or country under the laws of which it is formed.

(3) The address, including street and number, if any, of its principal office in the state or country under the laws of which it is formed.

(4) The address, including street and number, if any, of its proposed registered office in this Commonwealth.

(5) A designation of the Secretary of the Commonwealth and his successor in office as the true and lawful attorney of the corporation upon whom all lawful process in any action or proceeding against it may be served, and that the service of process upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall be of the same legal force and validity as if served on the corporation, and that the authority for such service of process shall continue in force as long as any liability remains outstanding against the corporation in this Commonwealth.

(6) The character and nature of the business it proposes to do within this Commonwealth.

(7) Such further and additional information as the Department of State may from time to time require.

Comments:

The Act of 1911, supra, requires every foreign corporation, before doing any business in this Commonwealth, to file a power of attorney with the Secretary of the Commonwealth appointing him as its authorized agent upon whom all lawful process in any proceeding against it may be served. The power of attorney is required to "contain a statement showing the title and purpose of said corporation, the location of its principal place of business in the Commonwealth, and the post-office address within the Commonwealth to which the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall send by mail any process against it served on him."

This draft restates the Act of 1911 in this respect, except that it prescribes in more detail the information to be set forth in the application for a certificate of authority which now forms part of the written power of attorney.

The only prerequisite required by the Act of 1911 of a foreign corporation to obtain the right to do business within the Commonwealth is the filing of a written power of attorney. It is submitted that the Secretary of the Commonwealth should have a copy of the articles or charter of the foreign corporation in order to determine whether or not the corporation is one for profit or not for profit, and whether the corporation has the power to engage in the business it proposes to transact within the Commonwealth. Also, this draft provides that a foreign corporation may be authorized to do in Pennsylvania only such business which a domestic corporation may do. Therefore, it becames necessary for the Secretary of the Commonwealth to have a copy of the charter of the forign corporation to determine this fact.

Under this draft, a freign corporation desiring to secure a license to do business must file a certified copy of its articles and an application for a certificate of authority with the Department of State. Both of these requirements are almost uniformly required by the laws of other states, including those of New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and California. The proposed Uniform Foreign Corporation Act also contains a similar requirement.

Section 804. Issuance and Recording of Certificate of Authority.—If the Department of State finds that the provisions of this article have been complied with and that the applicant corporation is entitled to a certificate of authority to do business in this Commonwealth, it shall endorse its approval upon the application for a certificate of authority, and when all fees and charges have been paid, as required by law, shall file the application and the copy of the articles, and shall issue to the corporation a certificate of authority to do business in this Commonwealth. The certificate of authority shall set forth the name of the corporation, the address of its initial registered office in this Commonwealth, and the business which the corporation is authorized to transact in this Commonwealth. Upon the issuance of the certificate of authority by the Department of State, the corporation may do, in this Commonwealth, any of the business referred to in the certificate of authority and no other, subject, however, to the right of the Commonwealth to cancel or revoke such right to transact business in this Commonwealth as provided in this act. The certificate of authority shall be returned to the corporation, or its representative, and such certificate, and a verified copy of its articles, shall be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation in this Commonwealth is located. The certificate of authority, upon being recorded by the recorder of deeds, shall be returned to the corporation or its representative.

Comments:

This section of the draft makes a change in existing practice in Pennsylvania. Under the Act of 1911, the Secretary of the Commonwealth is not required to issue to a foreign corporation any evidence of its right to do business. On the other hand, the laws of many states, including New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan require the Secretary of State to issue some evidence of admission to a foreign corporation before it may do business. The tentative Uniform Foreign Corporation Act contains a similar requirement. It appears to be advisable to have the Commonwealth issue to the foreign corporation some evidence of its permission to the corporation to do business in the Commonwealth, and this draft so provides by requiring the issuance of a certificate of authority.

The states which require a certificate of authority or admission have different requirements as to the contents of the certificate of authority. In Illinois and New York the certificate of authority does not reiterate the information contained in the application for the certificate, but merely states the date of the filing of the requisite documents and the business that the corporation is authorized to do. In Indiana, the certificate of authority contains all the information set forth in the application. The proposed Uniform Foreign Corporation Act does not provide what the certificate shall set forth. This draft follows the New York law and does not require the certificate to contain all the information contained in the application.

Also, under existing law, a domestic corporation is required to file its charter in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which its principal office is located, but a foreign corporation need not do so. Illinois requires the certificate of authority and the duplicate original of the application to be filed in the office of the recorder of deeds. California requires a copy of the articles to be filed. Indiana requires the certificate of authority, (which sets forth in detail the information contained in the application) to be filed. New York and New Jersey do not require the certificate or any other documents to be filed with the recorder of deeds.

In accordance with the policy of this draft of equalizing foreign and domestic corporations, this section of the draft requires a foreign corporation to file the certificate of authority and a copy of its articles in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation is situated, as the certificate of authority, under this draft, will set forth the business which the corporation is authorized to transact in this Commonwealth. It does not appear to be necessary to require the application for the certificate of authority also to be filed.

Section 805. Amended Certificate of Authority.—After receiving a certificate of authority, a foreing nonprofit corporation may, subject to the provisions of this act, change its name, or the address of its registered office in the Commonwealth, or be authorized to do in this Commonwealth other or additional business than that authorized by its certificate of authority, by filing with the Department of State an application for an amended certificate of authority. Such application shall be executed under the seal of the corporation, signed and verified by two duly authorized officers thereof, and shall set forth the changes desired by the corporation. If the Department of State finds that the provisions of this article have been complied with and that the applicant corporation is entitled to an amended certificate of authority, it shall approve and file the application and, when all fees and charges have been paid as required by law, shall issue to the applicant corporation an amended certificate of authority setting forth the desired changes. The amended certificate of authority shall be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the original certificate of authority was recorded. If the address of the registered office of the applicant corporation was changed from one county to another county, then the corporation shall have recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which its new registered office is situated its original and amended certificates of authority, and a verified copy of its articles.

Comments:

This section of the draft provides a method for keeping the records of the Department of State up to date and, in accordance with the policy of this draft of equalizing domestic and foreign corporation permits foreign corporations to change their name, the address of their principal office, and the kind of business they may transact. In Pennsylvania, under the Act of 1911, a foreign corporation admitted to do business may change the address of its registered office from time to time by filing a certificate with the Department of State.

Section 806. General Powers of Foreign Nonprofit Corporations.—A foreign nonprofit corporation which shall have received a certificate of authority under this act, so long as such certificate of authority shall not be revoked or cancelled, shall enjoy the same, but no greater, rights and privileges, as a domestic nonprofit corporation and except as in this act otherwise provided, shall be subject to the same liabilities, restrictions, duties and penalties now in force or hereafter imposed upon domestic corporations of like character, to the same extent as if it had been organized under this act to transact the business set forth in is certificate of authority.

Comments:

This section of the draft is taken from the general corporation law adopted by Indiana in 1929. A similar provision is also contained in the tentative Uniform Foreign Corporation Act, and in the laws of Illinois, Michigan, New Jersey and New York. This provision carries out the policy of this draft of equalizing foreign and domestic corporations.

Under present law, a foreign corporation often has greater powers than a domestic corporation.

Section 807. Revocation of Certificate of Authority. Whenever the Department of State shall find that a foreign nonprofit corporation is doing in this Commonwealth a business which a domestic nonprofit corporation could not do, or is exceeding the authority, contained in its original or amended certificate of authority, or has changed its name or the location of its registered office without first securing an amended certificate of authority from the Department of State, or has failed to file a copy of its articles, or a copy of any amendments thereto, or its certificate of authority, or any amended certificate of authority, in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which its registered office is situated, or is violating any of the laws of this Commonwealth, the Department of State shall give notice by registered mail to such corporation that such default exists and that its certificate of authority including any amendments thereto, will be revoked and cancelled unless such default shall be cured within thirty days after the mailing of such notice. If such default shall not be cured within such period of thirty days, the Department of State shall revoke and cancel the certificate of authority, of such foreign corporation including any amendments thereto. Upon revoking and cancelling any such certificate of authority, the Department of State shall mail to such corporation, at its registered office in this Commonwealth, a certificate of revocation, and shall mail a copy of such certificate to the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the coporation is situated, who shall record the same without any fee therefor. Upon the issuance of such certificate of revocation, the authority of the corporation to transact business in this Commonwealth shall cease, and such corporation shall not thereafter transact any business in this Commonwealth unless it applies for and receives a new certificate of authority.

Comments:

This provision is new to Pennsylvania law and is highly desirable as it affords an effective means of compelling foreign corporations to comply with this act.

Section 808. Service of Process.—Service of process against a foreign nonprofit corporation upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall be made by the Sheriff of Dauphin County by leaving the fee the plaintiff is required by law to pay for this service,[1] and two copies of the process, at the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. The sheriff shall make due return of his service of the process to the court, magistrate, or justice of the peace issuing the same. Such process may be issued by any court, magistrate or justice of the peace having jurisdiction of the subject matter of the controversy in any county of the Commonwealth in which the corporation shall have its registered office, or in the county in which the right of action arose. When legal process against any such corporation has been served upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth, he shall immediately send by mail, postage prepaid, one copy of such process directed to the corporation at its registered address. The fee paid by the plaintiff[2] to the Secretary of the Commonwealth at the time of the service shall be taxed in the plaintiff's costs if he prevails in the suit necessitating the service of the process. The Secretary of the Commonwealth shall keep a record of the day and hour of the service of such process on him, and a certified copy of such record shall be sufficient evidence thereof. The service of process on the Secretary of the Commonwealth under this section shall be of the same legal force and validity as if the process had been served on the corporation, and the authority for such service of process shall continue in force as long as any liability remains outstanding against the corporation in this Commonwealth.[3] Nothing herein contained shall limit or affect the right to serve any process, notice, or demand required or permitted by law to be served upon a foreign corporation in any other manner now or hereafter permitted by law.

Comments:

1. Under the Act of June 8, 1923, P. L. 635, the Secretary of the Commonwealth is authorized to charge the plaintiff a fee of $2.00 for service of process upon the secretary. As the Act of 1923 is a general law prescribing the fees for the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, this draft does not specifically mention the above fee of $2.00.
2. See Note No. 1.
3. This section is a restatement of existing law.

Section 809. Penalty for Doing Business Without Certificate of Authority.—Any person, agent, officer or employe of a foreign nonprofit corporation, who shall transact any business within this Commonwealth for any such foreign nonprofit corporation without first obtaining a certificate of authority as provided in this article, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment not exceeding thirty days, and by a fine not exceeding One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00), or either, in the discretion of the court trying the same, but the failure of any such corporation to apply for and secure a certificate of authority from the Department of State shall not impair or affect the validity of any contract with such corporation, and actions or proceedings at law or in equity may be instituted and maintained on any such contract. No such action, however, shall be instituted or recovery had by any such corporation on any such contract, either expressed or, implied, in any of the courts of this Commonwealth, or before any justice of the peace or magistrate thereof, until such corporation shall obtain a certificate of authority, and shall pay to the Department of State a fine of Two Hundred Fifty Dollars ($250.00).

The proposed section is a modified restatement of existing law.

Section 810. Acquisition of Real Property.—Every foreign nonprofit corporation authorized to transact business within this Commonwealth may acquire, hold, mortgage, lease and transfer real property in this Commonwealth, in the same manner and subject to the same limitations as nonprofit corporations formed under the laws of this Commonwealth.[1] Every such corporation may purchase in its corporate name, at any sheriff's or other judicial sale, any real estate within this Commonwealth upon which such corporation may have or hold a judgment or lien, and may, at its pleasure, sell and convey such real estate, but any real estate so purchased shall be sold and conveyed within ten years from the date of such purchase. All the rights, privileges and duties now by law accorded to and imposed upon lien creditors purchasing at judicial sales are hereby extended to such corporations.[2]

Act of May 23, 1887, P. L. 176, 15 PS Sec. 3164.—purchase at judicial sale.

Comments:

1. Under the Act of May 24, 1923, P. L. 438, as amended, a foreign nonprofit corporation may acquire, hold and transfer such real estate as may be necessary and proper for its corporate purposes, whereas a domestic nonprofit corporation, under other statutes, may do so only within certain limits. This draft attempts to eliminate this anomalous situation. Also, it may be that the Act of 1923 could be construed to apply only to corpoartions of the second class, due to the use of the word "stockholders," but this draft eliminates any question on this point.
2. This portion of the draft is a restatement of existing law found in the Act of May 23, 1887, P. L. 176. Attention is drawn to the fact that in the case of domestic corporations numerous acts, from time to time, have extended the time of disposing of real estate acquired by them in satisfaction of debts. The last of these acts is the Act of April 15, 1903, P. L. 200, 15 PS Sec. 683.

Query: Whether under present day conditions it is necessary or advisable to prescribe a specific time within which such real estate must be sold.

Section 811. Surrender of Certificate of Authority.—A. Any foreign nonprofit corporation may withdraw from doing business in this Commonwealth and surrender its certificate of authority by filing with the Department of State an application for a certificate of withdrawal executed under the seal of the corporation, and signed and verified by two duly authorized officers thereof, which shall set forth:

(1) The name of the corporation.

(2) The state or country of its incorporation.

(3) The date on which it received a certificate of authority to do business in the Commonwealth.

(4) A statement that it revokes its designation of the Secretary of the Commonwealth as the person on whom process against it may be served in this Commonwealth.

(5) A statement that it surrenders its certificate of authority to do business in this Commonwealth.

(6) A statement that it consents that process against it in an action or proceeding upon any liability or obligation incurred within this Commonwealth before the issuance of the certificate of withdrawal may be served upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth after the filing of such certificate.

(7) A post office address to which the Secretary of the Commonwealth may mail a copy of any process against it that may be served upon him.

B. Upon the filing of such application, and the return for cancellation of the corporation's certificate of authority, or the filing of proof that it has been lost or destroyed, the Department of State, after all fees and charges have been paid, as required by law, shall cancel the certificate of authority, if any, and shall issue, in duplicate, a certificate of withdrawal. The Department of State shall return one of such certificates of withdrawal to the corporation, or its representative, and shall send the other to the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation in this Commonwealth is situated, who shall record the same without fee therefor. Upon the issuance of the certificate of withdrawal, the authority of the corporation to do business within this Commonwealth shall cease and determine, and no such corporation doing business in this Commonwealth after the issuance of such certificate shall maintain any action in this Commonwealth upon any contract made by it in this Commonwealth subsequent to the issuance of such certificate of withdrawal. The issuance of such certificate shall not, however, affect any action pending at the time thereof, or affect any right of action upon any contract made by such corporation in the Commonwealth before the issuance of the certificate. Process against the corporation in an action upon any liability or obligation incurred within this Commonwealth, before the issuance of such certificate may be served thereafter upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Comments:

The Act of June 8, 1923, P. L. 685, provides that the Secretary of the Commonwealth may charge a fee of $5.00 for: "Filing statement of revocation of agent by foreign corporations". As the Act of 1923 is a general law prescribing the fees chargeable by the Secretary of the Commonwealth, the amount of this fee is not specified in this draft.

The Pennsylvania law contains no provisions similar to those contained in this section of the draft. This section, however, appears to be essential, particularly if the Secretary of the Commonwealth is to issue a certificate of authority, and in this respect the draft follows Section 10 of the tentative Uniform Foreign Corporation Act, which, in turn is substantially similar to provisions in the laws of New York, Illinois and California.

ARTICLE IX.

DISSOLUTION AND WINDING UP

Section 901. Voluntary Dissolution.—A. Any nonprofit corporation may, upon application to the equity side[1] of the court of common pleas of the county in which its registered office is located, or in which its principal activities are conducted, be dissolved and wind up its affairs.[2] Before the application is made to the court, a resolution authorizing the institution of voluntary proceedings for the dissolution of the corporation shall be approved by a majority vote, or such other vote as the articles may require, of each class of members of the corporation, at a regular or special meeting convened after proper notice of this purpose to all the members.[3]

B. Application to the court shall be made by a petition of the corporation,[4] signed and verified by at least two duly authorized officers thereof.[5] The petition shall be under the seal of the corporation,[6] and shall, among other things, set forth:[7]

(1) The name and location of the registered office of the corporation.

(2) The Act of Assembly under which the corporation was formed, the date when the court entered the decree of incorporation, and the date when and the place where the original articles were recorded.

(3) The time and place of the meeting of the members of the corporation at which the resolution authorizing the dissolution proceeding was adopted, the kind and period of notice of the meeting given to the members, and the total vote by which the resolution was adopted.

(4) An inventory of all the real and personal property of the corporation, which shall show separately any real or personal property held in trust by the corporation.

(5) A statement of all liens and encumbrances upon the corporate property, and all outstanding claims of the corporation.

(6) The names and addresses of all the existing members of the corporation, to the extent this information is known, and their respective rights, if any, to share in the corporate assets in excess of the debts and obligations of the corporation.

The petition shall in all cases be accompanied by a certified copy of the charter of the corporation, the resolution authorizing the institution of the dissolution proceedings, and any trust instrument relating to any real or personal property of the corporation. Upon the presentation of the petition to the court, the proceedings for dissolution shall be deemed to commence, and thereafter the corporation shall cease to transact any business whatsoever, except in so far as may be necessary for the winding up of the affairs of the corporation.[8]

C. Upon the presentation of the petition, the court shall enter a preliminary decree appointing a day for the hearing of the petition and directing all persons interested in the corporation at that time to show cause, if any they have, why the corporation should not be dissolved. The petitioners shall advertise the contents of the decree once a week for two consecutive weeks in the county wherein the registered office of the corporation is located, and also in the county where the principal activities of the corporation are conducted, if the petition for dissolution is filed in such county. Advertisements shall appear in a newspaper of general circulation published within the county and in the legal newspaper, if any, designated by the rules of court for the publication of legal notices; otherwise, in two newspapers of general circulation published within the county. Where there is but one newspaper of general circulation published in any county, advertisements in such newspaper shall be sufficient.[9] On the day fixed in the decree, proof of the advertisements heretofore required shall be presented to the court, whereupon the court shall consider the petition. If the court shall be satisfied that the prayer of the petition may be granted without prejudice to the public welfare or the interests of the members of the corporation, the court shall decree that the petition is approved and that upon the recording of the petition and decree the corporation shall be dissolved. Before entering the final decree of dissolution, the court shall cause the assets of the corporation to be marshaled and the property rights to be adjudicated, either by proceedings before the court or before a master appointed by it, provided that property devoted to religious, literary, educational or chairtable uses shall not be diverted from the objects for which it was donated, granted, bequeathed or devised. In entering the final decree, the court shall order the distribution of the property and assets of the corporation among the members entitled thereto, shall direct what disposition shall be made of any real or personal property devoted to any religious, literary, educational or charitable use, and shall designate the directors of the corporation, or, having proper cause, a liquidating trustee, to wind up the affairs of the corporation according to the decree of the court. Upon the recording the petition and decree of the court in a manner similar to that heretofore specified in this act in the case of the formation of a corporation, the dissolution of the corporation shall become effective, and thereafter the corporation, or the liquidating trustee appointed by the court, shall wind up the affairs of the corporation in accordance with the decree.[10]

D. The prothonotary, in making the monthly report to the Department of State heretofore required by this act, shall include in such report the name and the location of the registered office of every corporation which during the preceding month was dissolved by proceedings under this section. For this service, the prothonotary shall receive a fee of One Dollar ($1.00) from each corporation. The Department of State shall cancel the registration of the name of the corporation and shall note after the name the date the corporation was dissolved.[11]

Comments:

1. The Act of April 9, 1856, P. L. 293, 15 PS Sec. 501, provides generally the procedure for the voluntary dissolution of corporations of the first class. Commonwealth v. Silfer, 53 Pa. 71 (1866). The courts have held that this act in providing for an application to the court of common pleas, must be understood as referring to the equity jurisdiction given to that court by the Act of June 16, 1836, P. L. 784, and the petition must be regarded as a bill and the proceedings must conform to practice in equity. Titusville Oil Exchange, et al. v. Witherop, et al., 2 Pa., Super. 508 (1896); Commonwealth v. Exchange Operators, Inc., 32 Dau. 59 (1928). This draft embodies the judicial construction.

2. This portion of the draft is a restatement of the Act of April 4, 1872, P. L. 40. Prior to the act, dissolution proceedings could be brought only in the county in which the corporation had its principal office. Commonwealth v. Silfer, 53 Pa. 71 (1866). Since then such proceedings may be instituted either in the county in which the principal operations are conducted or in the county where the principal office or place of business is located. Commonwealth v. Exchange Operators, Inc., 32 Dau. 59 (1928).

Query: Whether dissolution proceedings should be brought only in the county where the registered office of the corporation is situated.

3. The Act of April 9, 1856, P. L. 293, provides that a corporation may "by and with the consent of a majority of a meeting of the corporators, duly convened" present its petition for dissolution. This draft permits the articles to specify the vote of each class of members required to authorize the dissolution of a corporation. If the articles do not so specify, then the draft requires a majority vote. This latitude is deemed necessary because of the diverse types of nonprofit corporations. Also, the resolution for the dissolution of the corporation is permitted to be passed at a regular or special meeting, provided the members are notified that such resolution will be presented at the meeting. See Section 603 for "proper notice".

4. Under the Act of 1856, the petition for dissolution must be that of the corporation; the petition of the members belonging to the corporation is not sufficient. Marietta Building and Loan Association, 10 Lanc. Bar 37 (1878).

5. Ordinarily, a petition for the dissolution of a corporation is signed by the president and the secretary of the corporation. However, situations may arise where it would be impossible to obtain the signatures of such officers. This draft, therefore, refrains from specifying the particular officers who shall sign the petition and merely requires that at least two officers duly authorized by the corporation shall sign the petition.

6. The Act of 1856 specifically requires that the petition be under the seal of the corporation. See also the case of Marietta Building and Loan Association, supra.

7. While the Act of 1856 does not specify the facts to be set forth in a petition for the dissolution of a corporation, it is obvious that the petition should contain all the facts necessary to enable the court to act understandingly and that nothing should be left to inference. The draft specifically requires certain essential facts to be set forth, but in no way limits the information to be set forth, or changes existing practices in this respect.

8. This provision is new to Pennsylvania law and is taken from Section 57 of the Uniform Business Corporation Act, which provides that a proceeding for dissolution shall be deemed to commence: "at the time of the filing of the petition therefor, if the proceeding is subject to the supervision of the court." It is submitted that such a provision is essential, in that the corporation at the time of making its application to the court should be in a position to present an accurate picture of its financial structure.

9. The Act of April 4, 1872, P. L. 40, which supplemented the Act of 1856, supra, provides that notice of an application for dissolution "shall be given by publication in two papers in the county in which the principal operations are conducted and that in which the principal office is located." In Titusville Oil Exchange, et al. v. Witherop, et al., 2 Pa. Super. 508 (1896), it was held that while no more notice may be demanded than is fixed by this act, in the absence of a definite period of notice, the shortest notice of election for any purpose directed by later statutes reasonably indicates the necessary minimum period. Accordingly, it has been the practice to publish the notice once a week for three consecutive weeks in two newspapers published in the county in which the principal business operations of the company are conducted and in which the principal office is located. See Savidge on Pa. Corps., Volume 2, Section 1194, Page 953. This draft reduces the period of advertising from three weeks to two weeks. It is submitted that the shorter period will afford ample protection to all concerned and will facilitate the dissolution of corporations.

10. This entire subsection is a restatement of the Act of April 9, 1856, P. L. 293.

11. See Section 210 for the prothonotary's report to the Department of State. The Act of 1856, supra, provides that a decree of dissolution "shall not go into effect until a certified copy thereof be filed and recorded in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth," and the Act of April 30, 1925, P. L. 403, 15 PS Sec. 504, requires the Secretary of the Commonwealth "to transmit to the prothonotary of the proper county a certificate certifying to the receipt of such certified copy of the court's decree, together with the place of record thereof in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth." This draft changes this procedure, in that the decree of dissolution is required to be filed in the office of the recorder of deeds by the petitioners, and the prothonotary of the court is required to notify the Department of State of the decree of dissolution in his monthly report to that department. As the articles of nonprofit corporations are required to be filed with the recorder of deeds instead of with the Department of State, it is submitted that the decree of dissolution should also be filed with the recorder of deeds instead of with the Department of State. It is necessary, however, for the Department of State to know of the dissolution, in order to cancel the registered name of the corporation. Accordingly, this draft requires the prothonotary to notify the Department of State of the dissolution of the corporation.

Section 902. Dissolution of Certain Religious Corporations.—Whenever any nonprofit corporation organized for the support of public worship, by reason of the shifting of population, withdrawal of membership, or any other cause whatsoever, has ceased to support public worship within the intent and meaning of its articles, the diocesan convention, presbytery, synod, conferences, council, or other supervising and controlling organization of which the corporation is a member or with which it is in allegiance and to which it is subordinate, may petition the equity side of the court of common pleas of the county in which the registered office of the corporation is located, setting forth the facts of the case and praying for a decree of dissolution. The petition shall be under the seal of the organization, signed and verified by at least two duly authorized officers thereof, and shall set forth the information heretofore required to be set forth in a petition for the voluntary dissolution of a corporation to the extent that such information is applicable. The court shall, after notice and hearing, as heretofore provided in this article, enter a decree of dissolution, if satisfied that the prayer of the petition may be granted without prejudice to the public welfare or the interests of the members of the corporation. Upon the recording of the petition and decree of the court, as heretofore provided in this article, the dissolution of the corporation shall become effective.

Section 903. Disposal of Real Estate of Dissolved Religious Corporations.—In entering a final decree of dissolution of a corporation organized for the support of public worship, the court shall, by its decree, provide for the disposition of the real estate of the corporation either by:

(1) Vesting title thereto in such other corporation as may, by its articles, be organized for the purpose of holding title to the real estate held for public worship, according to the formularies of the church to which the dissolved corporation was in allegiance, or

(2) Authorizing the sale thereof by a master or trustee appointed for that purpose and the vesting of the proceeds, upon the confirmation of such sale, in such body as may be directed by the court, to be held in trust for carrying out the intent and purpose of public worship, or

(3) Vesting the title thereto in any incorporated or unincorporated body designated by the petitioners to the same uses and trusts as the same was theretofore held by the dissolved corporation.

Any sale of real estate decreed by the court under this section shall vest in the purchaser thereof a title in fee simple dischargd of any trust under which the property was theretofore held, and the trust shall be impinged upon the proceeds of the sale in the hands of the holder thereof.

Act of May 4, 1931, P. L. 80, 15 PS Secs. 1137-40.

Section 904. Continuation of Corporation After Dissolution.—All nonprofit corporations, whether they expire by their own limitation or are otherwise dissolved, shall nevertheless continue to exist for a period of two years after the date of dissolution for the purpose of winding up their affairs, prosecuting and defending actions by or against them, collecting and discharging obligations, disposing of and conveying their property, and collecting and dividing their assets, but not for the purpose of continuing business, except in so far as necessary for the winding up of the corporation. No action or proceeding to which a corporation is a party shall abate by the dissolution of the corporation.

Comments:

After dissolution a corporation has no existence and cannot sue or be sued; all suits brought by or against it are abated and judgment obtained against it after dissolution is void. Aside from statutory authority, members cannot, after the charter has expired, contract to sell real estate of the corporation. See Savidge on Pa. Corps., Volume 2, Sections 1204-1207 and 1210, Pages 962, 963 and 967, and the cases there cited. In Pennsylvania, mining, manufacturing, real estate and construction companies are authorized by the Act of May 21, 1881, supra, to wind up their affairs after expiration of their charters or dissolution. Also, the Act of June 25, 1885, supra, authorizes the court of common pleas to direct the sale of real estate of a dissolved corporation on the petition of any one or more of the stockholders, and to appoint a trustee to make the sale and to distribute the proceeds among the creditors or stockholders.

The proposed section confers upon nonprofit corporations all the powers necessary to wind up the affairs of the corporation, and is similar to provisions contained in the California, Delaware and New Jersey acts.

PROPOSED BUSINESS CORPORATION LAW

To the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania

By the 1931 General Appropriation Act the Legislature made an appropriation to this department for the payment of compensation and expenses incident to the preparation for presentation to the General Assembly at its 1933 session, a revision of the corporation laws.

There has been no such revision since the adoption of the Corporation Act of 1874 and there is no field of our statutory law which is more in need of revision than this subject.

The nature of the organization of corporations has, to a considerable degree, become a matter of competition between the states. We are losing many corporations which ought to be formed under the laws of this State. The primary reason is that our corporation laws are not up to date and contain many restrictions which have been elliminated by practically all other states.

In revising this subject we have prepared two acts. The one herewith submitted is entitled, "Business Corporation Law." If enacted it will supersede the existing statutes providing for the organization and regulation of what are known as corporations of the second class.

So that the members of the General Assembly may understand the effect of the revision herewith submitted, every section of the proposed act has been annotated; and out of the funds appropriated to the Department of Property and Supplies and allocated to this department, we have caused one thousand copies of the annotated edition of this bill to be printed for the use of the members of the General Assembly and other persons interested in the subject.

The present draft and the annotations thereto were prepared by Special Deputy Attorney General E. Russell Shockley of this department.

Respectfully submitted,

Wm. A. SCHNADER,
Attorney General.

AN ACT

Relating to business corporations: defining and providing for the organization, merger, consolidation, reorganization, winding up and dissolution of such corporations; conferring certain rights, powers, duties and immunities upon them and their officers and shareholders; prescribing the conditions on which such corporations may exercise their powers; providing for the inclusion of certain existing corporations of the second class within the provisions of this act; prescribing the terms and conditions upon which foreign business corporations may be admitted, or may continue, to do business within the Commonwealth; conferring powers and imposing duties on the courts of common pleas, prothonotaries of such courts, recorders of deeds, and certain State departments, commissions and officers; authorizing certain local public officers and State departments to collect fees for services required to be rendered by this act; imposing penalties and repealing certain acts and parts of acts relating to corporations.

ARTICLE I

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Section 1. Short Title. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That this act shall be known and may be cited as the "Business Corporation Law."

Section 2. Definitions. The following words or phrases unless the context clearly indicates otherwise, shall have the meanings ascribed to them in this section:

"Article" includes the original article of incorporation, any or all amendments thereto, and articles of merger or consolidation, and also includes what have heretofore been designated by law as certificates of incorporation or charters.

"Assets" includes all the property and rights of every kind of the corporation.

"Authorized Capital Stock" means the aggregate number of shares of all classes, either with or without par value, which the corporation is authorized to issue.

"Share Certificate" means a written instrument signed by the proper corporate officers, as required by this act, and evidencing the fact that the person or corporation therein named is the registered owner of the shares therein described, and also includes the term "Certificate of Stock" as used in existing laws.[1]

"Corporation for Profit" means a corporation organized for the pecuniary profit of its shareholders.

"Domestic Business Corporation" or "Business Corporation" means a corporation for profit organized under this act, or heretofore organized under or by virtue of any other law of this Commonwealth, for any purpose for which a corporation may be organized under this act[2]

"Foreign Business Corporation" means a corporation for profit, organized under or by virtue of any laws other than those of this Commonwealth, for any purpose or purposes for which a corporation may be formed under this act.

"Incorporator" means a signer of the original articles of incorporation.

"Paid-in Surplus" means that part of the consideration received by a business corporation, for or on account of all shares issued, which does not constitute stated capital.

"Registered Office" means that office maintained by a domestic of foreign business corporation in this Commonwealth, the address of which is filed with the Department of State.

"Shareholder" means a registered owner of shares in a business corporation.

"Shares" are the units into which the shareholders' rights to participate in the control of a business corporation, in its surplus or profits, or in the distribution of its assets, are divided.

"Stated Capital" means, at any particular time, the sum of the par value of all shares then issued having a par value, the consideration received by a business corporation for all shares then issued without par value, except such part thereof as may have been allocated otherwise than to stated capital in a manner permitted by this act, and such other amounts as may have been transferred to the stated capital account of the corporation, whether from the issue of shares, as a share dividend, or otherwise, minus such formal reductions from such sum as may have been effected in a manner permitted by this act[3]

"Subscriber" means one who subscribes for shares in a business corporation, whether before or after incorporation.

"Written" includes printed, typewritten, engraved, lithographed, telegraphed, cabled, radiogramed, photographed, photostated, telephotographed, or other form of recordation.

Section headings shall not be taken to govern or limit the scope of the sections of this act.

The singular shall include the plural and the masculine shall include the feminine and netuer.

Comments:

1. This draft adopts the terms "shareholder" and "share" instead of the terms "stockholders" and "stock," because the former terms are more descriptive of what the member of a corporation is or has. Accordingly, the term "share certificate" is used rather than the term "certificate of stock." Similar terminology is used by the American Law Institute in its Restatement of the Law of Business Associations.

2. Under the Corporation Act of 1874, corporations for pecuniary profit were designated as corporations of the second class. That designation was adopted in that act to distinguish corporations obtaining charters from the Governor from those obtaining charters from the courts. That designation was not adopted for the purposes of this draft, as it is neither necessary nor applicable in a code pertaining only to corporations of one type. Neither was the designation "corporation for profit" adopted, as other corporations outside the scope of this draft (see Section 4) are also corporations for profit. Accordingly, the term "business corporation" was adopted as being more descriptive of the type of corporations covered by this draft.

3. The phrase "capital stock" has been avoided in this draft because of its ambiguity. It is used in several differing senses in statutes relating to the formation of corporations and those relating to the taxation of corporations. It is frequently confused with "capital." See Commonwealth v. Lehigh Avenue Railway Company, 129 Pa. 405 (1889); Cooke v. Marshall, 191 Pa. 315 (1889); Person and Riegel Company v. Lipps, 219 Pa. 99 (1907). See Fletcher Cyclopedia Corporations (Permanent Edition), Volume 11, Sections 5079 and 5080. Accordingly, the more accurate phrase "stated capital" has been adopted. However, the phrase "authorized capital stock" has been used in the draft because the draft speaks of shares of capital stock.

The draft does not define such terms as "net profits," "surplus earnings" and "capital surplus." The advisiability of defining these terms was thoroughly considered by the committee which drafted the new Illinois act. That committee stated, in its report: "The Committee, while recognizing that this would give accountants statutory authority in cases where questions were raised, finds a diversity of opinion in the accounting profession itself with respect to satisfactory definitions of such terms, and therefore is of the opinion that it is not wise to limit these terms by statutory definition."

Section 3. Applicability and Acceptance of Act. A. Every corporation of the second class, heretofore organized and incorporated under the Corporation Act of 1874, its amendments and supplements, and every corporation heretofore created by any special act or formed under any general act, which has accepted in any manner whatsoever the Constitution of Pennsylvania and which, if not existing, would be required to incorporate under this act, shall hereafter be subject to the provisions of this act without formal reorganization hereunder, and shall be deemed to exist under this act. The provisions of this act shall govern all such corporations heretofore incorporated in this Commonwealth.[1]

B. Any corporation incorporated prior to 1874 by any general or special act, which has not accepted the Constitution of Pennsylvania in any manner whatsoever, and which, if not existing, would be required to incorporate under this act, shall be deemed to exist under and shall be governed by the provisions of this act, upon filing with the Department of State a certificate accepting the provisions of the Constitution of Pennsylvania and of this act.[2] The certificates shall be executed under the seal of the corporation, shall be signed by two duly authorized officers of the corporation, and shall set forth:

(1) The name of the corporation,

(2) The Act of Assembly by or under which it was created,

(3) A statement that the corporation accepts the Constitution of Pennsylvania and the provisions of this act, and

(4) A statement that the acceptance of the Constitution of Pennsylvania and of the provisions of this act was duly authorized by a meeting of the shareholders called for that purpose.

C. Every foreign business corporation heretofore admitted to do business in this Commonwealth, which, if now seeking admission, would be required to comply with the provisions of this act, shall, within ninety days after the effective date of this act, secure a certificate of authority from the Department of State, and shall thereafter be subject to the provisions of this act.[3]

D. This act shall not be construed as attempting to deprive any existing corporation of any corporate power, right, privilege or franchise which such corporation now enjoys.

Comments:

1. The repeal of a general corporation law cannot be construed, in the absence of express provisions, as intended to repeal the charters of corporations formed under it, especially where the manifest purpose of the repealing act is to substitute a new law, extending the provisions of the old, and perfecting its details, but not changing its general policy. Under such circumstances the corporations continue to exist and to be governed by the provisions of the act under which they were organized, except so far as the Legislature had power to alter such act in its application to corporations under the various constitutional provisions. 1 Thompson on Corporations, Section 371, Page 468

In view of the foregoing, the proposed act subjects to its provisions existing corporations whose charters may be altered or amended by the Legislature.

2. This provision permits any existing corporation whose charter may not be altered, revoked or annulled by the General Assembly to accept the provisions of the proposed act by filing a certificate of acceptance with the Department of State.

3. See Article X of this draft.

Section 4. Scope of Act. This act does not relate to, does not affect, and does not apply to:

(1) Associations operating on a co-operative plan, whether for profit or not for profit.[1]

(2) Any corporation which may be organized under the Nonprofit Corporation Law.

(3) Any corporation which, by the laws of this Commonwealth, is subject to the supervision of the Department of Banking, the Insurance Department, The Public Service Commission, or the Water and Power Resources Board.[2]

Comments:

1. The Act of June 7, 1887, P. L. 365, as amended, 14 PS Secs. 1-23, authorizes the formation of co-operative, productive and distributive associations, and the Act of April 30, 1929, P. L. 885, 14 PS Secs. 81-106, authorizes the formation of co-operative agricultural associations with capital stock. As there is no confusion, uncertainty or inconsistency in the law relating to these associations, and as these associations have many features uncommon to corporations in general, the law pertaining to these associations has not been included in this draft. Discussion is invited on the question (1) whether it is desirable to include in the proposed act the law relating to these associations, and (2) whether it is desirable to include in the proposed act general provisions permitting the formation of all kinds of co-operative associations having capital stock and conducted for profit.

2. The formation of corporations subject to the supervision of the Department of Banking or the Insurance Department is provided for in our revisions of the laws relating to insurance and banking.

Like banking, building and loan, and insurance corporations, public service corporations have many characteristics unlike those of corporations organized to carry on business enterprises not impressed with a public interest. Accordingly, the laws relating to the formation of public service corporations have been omitted from this draft. Like the laws relating to banking, building and loan, or insurance corporations, the laws relating to public service corporations should be revised and embodied in an act relating solely to the incorporation of public service companies.

In revising the laws relating to corporations, we found that it would be impossible to revise properly the laws relating to the incorporation of public service companies without mutilating The Public Service Company Law of 1913, inasmuch as that act contains many provisions relating to the powers of public service companies which logically belong in an act providing for the incorporation of such companies. On the other hand, we were not authorized to revise The Public Service Company Law, and we deemed it more advisable to allow that law to stand as a complete act rather than to mutilate it at this time by incorporating the greater part of it in an incorporation statute and leaving but a fragment of it unrepealed. Also, we found that many interrelated changes are necessary, both in the laws pertaining to the incorporation of public service companies and in The Public Service Company Law, which regulates them. Accordingly, we have made no revision of the laws relating to the incorporation of public service companies at this time.

Section 5. Saving Clause. A. This act shall not impair or affect any act done, offense committed, or right accruing, accrued, or acquired, or liability, penalty, judgment or punishment incurred prior to the time this act takes effect, but the same may be enjoyed, asserted, enforced, prosecuted, or inflicted as fully and to the same extent as if this act had not been passed.

B. The provisions of all acts or parts of acts which are repealed by this act, or are re-enacted in this act, shall be considered as remaining continuously in force, so that all rights enjoyed and liabilities incurred under such provisions before the effective date of this act shall be enjoyed or may be enforced as if this act had not been passed.

C. The provisions of this act, as far as they are the same as those of existing laws, shall be construed as a continuation of such laws and not as new enactments. The repeal of any acts by this act shall not affect the corporate existence of any corporation heretofore created. Any person holding office under any act repealed by this act shall continue to hold such office until the expiration of the term thereof, subject to the conditions attached to such office prior to the passage of this act.

Section 6. Interpretation of Act. A. The provisions of this act are severable, and if any of its provisions shall be held unconstitutional, the decision of the court shall not affect or impair any of the remaining provisions of this act. It is hereby declared to be the legislative intent that this act would have been adopted had such unconstitutional provisions not been included herein.

B. Whenever in this act reference is made to any act by title, such reference shall be construed to apply to and include any codification wherein the provisions of the act referred to are substantially re-enacted.

C. Nothing in this act shall be interpreted to authorize a corporation to do any act in violation of the common law or the statutes of this Commonwealth or the United States, with respect to monopolies and illegal restraint of trade.[1]

D. No corporation which may be incorporated under this act shall hereafter be incorporated except under the provisions of this act.[2]

E. This act shall not be deemed to curtail in any manner whatsoever the equity jurisdiction of the courts of this Commonwealth.[3]

Comments:

1. This provision is taken from Section 66 of the Uniform Act.
2. This provision is taken from Section 188 of the Michigan Act.
3. The Act of June 16, 1836, P. L. 784, Section 13, 17 PS Sec. 281, provides:

"The several courts of common pleas shall have the jurisdiction and powers of a court of chancery, so far as relates to:

* * * * *

"V. The supervision and control of all corporations other than those of a municipal character * * *."

While the equity powers conferred by the Act of 1836 are circumscribed within certain limits as to individuals, they are general and unlimited over corporations. In the exercise of their equity jurisdiction over corporations, such courts possess all the powers and jurisdiction of a court of chancery, by bill, injunction or otherwise, as the equity of the case may require. Sandford v. Railroad Company, 24 Pa. 378 (1855); Titusville Oil Exchange's Dissolution, 2 Pa. Super. 508 (1896); Sarver and Others' Appeal, 81* Pa. 183 (1874); Central Printing and Publishing House v. Gross, 38 Pa. C. C. 21 (1910); McDougall, et al., Appellants v. Huntingdon and Broad Top R. and R. Company, 294 Pa. 108 (1928); Schwab, Appellant, v. Miller, et ux., 302 Pa. 507 (1931); First Regular Baptist Church v. Allison, 304 Pa. 1 (1931).

Also, the courts have held that the Act of April 9, 1856, P. L. 293, 15 PS Sec. 501, which is restated in Article XI of this draft and which provides the procedure for the voluntary dissolution of corporations, must be understood as referring to the equity jurisdiction given to the courts of common pleas by the Act of June 16, 1836, P. L. 784. Titusville Oil Exchange's Dissolution, 2 Pa. Super. 508 (1896); Commonwealth v. Exchange Operators, Inc., 32 Dau 59 (1928).

In view of the foregoing, it is deemed advisable to include the proposed section in this draft.

Section 7. Fees. Any prothonotary or recorder of deeds, and any State department, board, commission, or officer, shall be entitled to receive for services performed, as required by this act, such fees as are lawfully charged for similar services.

Comments:

Fee bills and other Acts of Assembly prescribe the charges to be made by prothonotaries of the courts of common pleas and the recorders of deeds for documents filed or recorded with them. The same is true of the Department of State. This draft does not reiterate such charges but leaves the existing fee bills intact.

Section 8. Waiver of Notice. Whenever any notice is required to be given under the provisions of this act or the articles or by-laws of any corporation, a waiver thereof in writing, signed by the person or persons entitled to such notice, whether before or after the time stated therein, shall be deemed quivalent to the giving of such notice.

New Jersey—Section 16; Illinois—Section 144; Indiana—Section 8.

Comments:

Provisions for notice, whether found in the constitution or statutes of the state, or in the charter or by-laws of the corporation, if for the benefit of the stockholders, may be waived by them, either expressly, or their acts may be such as to constitute a waiver of notice. See Fletcher Cyclopedia Corporations (Permanent Edition), Volume 5, Section 2011, and the cases there cited.

Article XVI, Section 7 of the Pennsylvania Constitution provides, inter alia: "The stock and indebtedness of corporations shall not be increased except in pursuance of general law, nor without the consent of the persons holding the larger amount in value of the stock, first obtained at a meeting to be held after sixty days notice given in pursuance of law." In 1883, the Department of Justice advised that the sixty days' notice required by the Constitution and by the enabling act might be waived by consent of all the stockholders. See In re Bellefonte and Buffalo Run Railroad Company (Op. Atty. Gen.), 2 Chester 128 (1883).

This has been held true of the provisions of the Constitution and statutes of Missouri, requiring sixty days' notice of a meeting called for the purpose of voting on the issuance of bonds or an increase of stock. State v. Cook, 178 Mo. 189, 77 S. W. 559; Riesterer v. Horton Land and Lumber Company, 160 Mo. 141, 61 S. W. 235.

Accordingly, this draft permits the waiver of notice, including notice of any meeting called for the purpose of increasing the capital stock and indebtedness of a corporation.

Section 9. Effect of Filing or Recording Papers Required to Be Filed. The filing or recording of the articles or amendments thereto, or of any other papers or documents, pursuant to the provisions of this act, is required for the purpose of affording all persons the opportunity of acquiring knowledge of the contents thereof, but no person dealing with the corporation shall be charged with constructive notice of the contents of any such articles or papers by reason of such filing or recording.

Uniform Act—Section 10.

Comments:

This section supplements Section 301 as an attempt to improve the state of law with regard to ultra vires transactions. These sections, dealing with the doctrine of constructive notice and the doctrine of limited capacity, would remove two of the causes of greatest confusion in ultra vires cases—the chief obstacles to uniform decisions. These obstacles spring from an interpretation of legislative intention, and can be removed only by legislation.

Section 10. Powers of Department of State. The Department of State shall have the power and authority reasonably necessary to enable it to administer this act efficiently and to perform the duties imposed upon it by this act[1] All reports required by this act to be filed with the Department of State shall be made on forms which shall be prescribed and furnished by that department. Forms for all other documents to be filed with the department shall be furnished by the departments on request therefor, but the use thereof, unles otherwise specifically prescribed in this act, shall not be mandatory.[2]

Reference:

Illinois—See Sections 150, 151.

Comments:

1. As The Administrative Code of 1929 contains general provisions relating to the powers and duties of the Department of State, including the power to prescribe, adopt, promulgate and enforce rules and regulations necessary to carry out the duties imposed upon the department, the above provision in this draft is sufficient.
2. It is submitted that the enforced use of prescribed forms and printed blanks for articles of incorporation, amendments, articles of merger and consolidation, and other complicated documents, is not advisable. While forms for such documents may be furnished by the Department of State on request and be used in those instances where, by reason of the simplicity of the particular case the printed blank may be adequate, nevertheless, the complexity and length of many of such documents in modern corporate practice often makes it practically impossible to use the standardized printed form. For example, it is impractical to prescribe the use of a printed blank for articles of incorporation which are to contain complete provisions relating to the rights and preferences of preferred shares and provisions relating to the issuance of such shares in series. Accordingly, this draft permits, but does not require, the use of prescribed forms and printed blanks furnished by the Department of State.

Section 11. Certificates and Certified Copies of Certain Documents to Be Received In Evidence. All certificates issued by the Department of State in accordance with the provisions of this act, and all copies of documents filed with the Department of State in accordance with the provisions of this act, when certified by the Secretary of the Commonwealth, shall be taken and received by all courts, public offices and official bodies as prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated. A certificate by the Department of State, under the seal of the Commonwealth, as to the existence or nonexistence of the facts relating to corporations which would not appear from a certified copy of any of the foregoing documents or certificates, shall be taken and received by all courts, public offices and official bodies as prima facie evidence of the existence or nonexistence of the facts therein stated.

Comments:

Instead of providing in the different sections of the draft, relating to filing of certificates or documents with the Department of State, that certified copies of them may be received in evidence, this draft combines these provisions in one section.

ARTICLE II

FORMATION OF BUSINESS CORPORATIONS

Section 201. Purpose of Incorporation and Qualifications of Incorporators. Three[1] or more natural persons[2] of full age[3] and of either sex, married or single,[4] at least two-thirds of whom are citizens[5] of the United States or of its territories or possessions,[6] may form a domestic business corporation under the provisions of this act, for any lawful purpose or purposes.[7]

Corporation Act of 1874, Section 1, 15 PS Sec. 1.
Act of May 29, 1901, P. L. 326, as amended by the Act of April 23, 1903, P. L. 272, 15 PS Sec. 5.
Act of April 18, 1919, P. L. 67, 15 PS Sec. 593.

Comments:

1. In its original form, the Corporation Act of 1874 required at least five incorporators to form a corporation of the second class. This number was reduced to three by the supplementary Act of May 29, 1901, P. L. 326, as amended by the Act of April 23, 1903, P. L. 272, 15 PS Sec. 5. The Uniform Act also requires at least three incorporators.

2. Under the provision of the Corporation Act of 1874 that "five or more persons" may form a corporation, the term "person" has been construed to mean only a natural person. In re The Decorative Trades Association of Philadelphia, 18 D. R. 180 (1909); Board of Real Estate Brokers, 21 D. R. 59 (1911). The Act of May 29, 1901, P. L. 326, which reduced the number of incorporators to three, made no change in this respect. The Uniform Act specifically requires the incorporators to be "natural persons." See, however, Section 901, post, which provides that in the case of consolidation, the constituent corporations may be named as incorporators in the articles of incorporation of the new consolidated corporation. On the other hand, the Michigan act, adopted in 1931, permits incorporators to be "natural or corporate."

3. Under our case law, incorporators must be of full age. Lady Foresters of America, 18 D. R. 780 (1909). This qualification is also contained in the Uniform Act.

4. Formerly a married woman could not be an incorporator,—Potter Gas Company, 15 Pa. C. C. 347 (1883),—but the right of a married woman to act as an incorporator is now expressly given by the Act of April 18, 1919, P. L. 67, 15 PS Sec. 593.

5. The Act of May 29, 1901, P. L. 326, as amended by the Act of April 23, 1903, P. L. 272, 15 PS Sec. 5, requires at least one of the incorporators of a corporation of the second class to be a citizen of this Commonwealth. On the other hand, the Uniform Act does not contain this requirement. A note to the latter act points out that:

"Only eighteen out of fifty-three states and territories require that at least one incorporator shall be a resident thereof. Foreign corporations are now readily admitted to do business in a state other than that of their creation. Assuming that the law of corporations became uniform in all states by the adoption of this act, there would then be little dissimilarity between foreign and domestic corporations. In practice, incorporators frequently do not remain as shareholders and they are even less apt to when they have offered themselves as incorporators simply to fulfill a requirement as to residence.

"According to the better authority, the incorporators' lack of qualification will not prevent the recognition of a de facto corporation. (See Taft, Cir. J., in Continental Trust Co. v. Toledo etc. R. R. Co., 82 Fed. 642.) This is upon the same principle of law that a person may be a de facto officer though ineligible for office."

The California, Illinois and Michigan acts, all of which were adopted in 1931, do not require the residence qualification.

6. It has been held that a majority at least of the subscribers to a proposed corporation of the first class should be citizens of the United States. Chinese Club, 1 D. R. 84 (1891); Charter of the Saint Ladislaus Roman Catholic Sick and Beneficial Association of Johnstown, 19 Pa. C. C. 25 (1897); In re Regina Elina, 14 D. R. 476 (1905). However, in Mount Sharon Cemetery Company, 3 D. & C. 179 (1922), it was held unnecessary to state that the petitioners were citizens of the United States. Apparently, the same is true in the case of corporations of the second class, as the provisions of the Corporation Act of 1874, construed in the above cases, also apply to corporations of the second class.

On the other hand, the Uniform Act specifically requires "at least two-thirds" of the incorporators to be citizens of the United States or of its territories or possessions. This draft follows the Uniform Act in this respect.

7. Unlike the Corporation Act of 1874, this draft does not specifically enumerate the purposes for which a business corporation may be formed. The enumeration of purposes in that act has hampered the creation of useful corporations of the second class, because the desired purpose could not be brought within the enumerations of the act. Also, it was necessary from time to time to pass amendments to provide for new types of corporations which were not thought of at the time the act was originally passed. The Act of May 11, 1909, P. L. 515, PS Sec. 3, relieved this situation to some extent by authorizing a corporation of the second class to be formed for "any lawful purpose not specifically designated by law, as the purpose for which a corporation may be formed." The courts, in construing this act, however, ruled that it did not permit the amplification of any purpose enumerated in the Act of 1874.

The courts have ruled that a Pennsylvania corporation must be formed for a single purpose. On the other hand, it is possible to obtain broader charter powers by the formation and subsequent merger of two or more separate corporations than may be obtained in original incorporation proceedings. In other words, what cannot be done directly is permitted to be done indirectly. Certainly, there is no justification for this anomalous situation. Besides, very few states now limit a corporation to a single purpose.

Accordingly, the only limitations that this draft places upon domestic business corporations are that such corporations shall be formed for a purpose or purposes which are lawful. Singleness of purpose is not required. It is submitted that the proposed section is more in conformity with present and future needs and more in line with the provisions of the laws of the great majority of the other states pertaining to business corporations.

Section 202. The corporate Name. A. The corporate name may be in any language, but shall be expressed in English letters or characters[1], and shall contain the word "corporation," "company", or "incorporated", or shall end with an abbreviation of one of these words[2], except that the word "company" or the abbreviation "Co." may be used only if that word or abbreviation is not immediately preceded by the word "and" or any symbol or substitute therefore[3]. The corporate name shall not imply that the corporation is an administrative agency of the Commonwealth or is subject to the supervision of the Department of Banking or of the Insurance Department, and shall not contain the word "bank", "banking", "bankers", "savings", "trust", "deposit", "insurance", "mutual", "assurance", "indemnity", "building and loan", "surety", "security", "guaranty", "guarantee", "co-operative", "State" or "Commonwealth"[4].

B. The corporate name shall not be the same as or deceptively similar to:

(1) The name of any other domestic corporation, or any foreign corporation authorized to transact business in this Commonwealth, or the name of any unincorporated body whatsoever registered with the Department of State under any Act of Assembly, unless such other domestic or foreign corporation or unincorporated body is about to change its name or to cease to do business, or is being wound up, or such foreign corporation is about to withdraw from doing business in this Commonwealth, and the written consent of such other domestic or foreign corporation or unincorporated body to the adoption of its name or a deceptively similar name has been given and is filed with the articles.[5]

(2) The name of any administrative department, board or commission or other agency of the Commonwealth.[6]

(3) A name the exclusive right to which is at the time reserved by any other corporation whatsoever in the manner provided in this act or any other Act of Assembly.[7]

C. Nothing in this section shall abrogate or limit the law as to unfair competition or unfair practices, nor derogate from the common law, the principles of equity, or the statutes of this Commonwealth with respect to the right to acquire and protect trade names.[8]

D. The assumption of a name in violation of this section shall not vitiate or otherwise affect the corporate existence, but the Court of Common Pleas of Dauphin County may, upon the application of the Attorney General, acting on his own motion or at the instance of any administrative department, board or commission of the Commonwealth, and the court of common pleas of any county may, upon the application of any person, unincorporated body or corporation adversely affected, enjoin the corporation from using or continuing to use a name assumed in violation of this section.[9]

Comments:

1. In Deutsch-Amerikanischer Volksfest-Verein, 200 Pa. 143 (1901), it was held that the corporate name may be expressed in a foreign language. Since the articles are required to be in the English language, the proposed section requires the foreign name to be expressed in English characters or letters, and, in this respect, follows the Uniform Act.

2. This provision is taken from Section 4 (1) of the Uniform Act and is new to Pennsylvania law. At least twenty-three jurisdictions, including Delaware, New York, Maryland, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana and Ohio require that the name shall indicate a corporate existence. This provision, by virtue of Section 5 of this draft, will not affect the right of any existing corporation to continue the use of its name.

3. This provision also is taken from Section 4 (1) of the Uniform Act and is new to Pennsylvania law. The purpose of this provision is to permit the use of the word "company" in such a manner that it will not indicate a partnership. For instance, "John Smith and Company" signifies a partnership, whereas "The John Smith Company" indicates corporate existence. This distinction is embodied in this provision.

4. This provision also is new to Pennsylvania law. The purpose of this provision is to supplement Section 4 of this draft and to prevent the use by corporations organized under this act of names suitable only for corporations which must be organized under this act of names suitable only for corporations which must be organized under other statutes. The Uniform Act and the laws of many other states contain a similar provision.

The Act of April 22, 1909, P. L. 121, as amended by the Act of May 19, 1923, P. L. 274, 7 PS Sec. 687, confines the use of the word "trust" to corporations subject to the supervision of the Department of Banking, and the Act of June 12, 1919, P. L. 466, 14 PS Sec. 61, confines the use of the word "co-operative" to co-operative associations.

5. This provision is taken from Section 4 of the Uniform Act, with minor changes to meet our local conditions, and is a necessary supplement to Section 202 of the proposed Nonprofit Corporation Law. There is no similar statutory provision in Pennsylvania relating to corporations of the second class. The Act of May 18, 1917, P. L. 257, prohibits the assumption by any corporation not for profit of a name similar to the name of my agency of the Commonwealth. Also, the Act of May 16, 1923, P. L. 246, provides for the registration and protection of names of unincorporated bodies and corporations of the first class. This provision was drafted to extend the provisions of these acts to names of business corporations.

In practice, the Department of State will not permit a business corporation to adopt a name deceptively similar to the name of an existing corporation if the similarity of such names would be confusing to the Commonwealth in the imposition and collection of taxes, or would produce uncertainty in the service of judicial process upon the corporations, or would be confusing to the postal service and other agencies of the Federal government in the Commonwealth. See Savidge on Pa. Corps., Volume 1, Section 20, Page 42.

As pointed out in a note to the Uniform Act, thirty-eight jurisdictions prohibit the assumption of a name similar to that of an existing domestic corporation. The English Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, Section 8, is similar in effect. Twenty-two American jurisdictions have the further provision that the name shall not be similar to that of any foreign corporation authorized to do business in the state.

Under this provision, a corporation whose name is to be used by a new corporation to be formed need not go out of existence or retire from business in the Commonwealth until the new corporation has come into existence and is prepared to take over the good will and assets, if they are to be transferred. The provision also recognizes that a corporation which is in process of winding up still has a valuable right in its name which it can protect and sell.

6. This provision is suggested by the Act of May 18, 1917, P. L. 257, which prohibits the assumption by a corporation not for profit of a name similar to the name of any administrative agency of the Commonwealth. It is submitted that the name of a business corporation also should not imply that the corporation is an agency of the Commonwealth. Accordingly, the provisions of this act have been extended to such corporations.

7. See Section 203 for provisions relating to the reservation of corporate names.

8. This provision is taken from Section 4 of the Uniform Act. As pointed out in a note to that section, this provision seems desirable to prevent the provisions of the proposed section from being construed as excluding rights and limitations under existing law.

9. This provision is taken from the Uniform Act, Section 4 (VIII). In the absence of a statutory provision, an individual or corporation may obtain injunctive relief against the use of his or its name, both because of the injury to his or its property right in the name, and because of the possible deception of the public by the use of the name; but the mere identity or similarity of names does not furnish ground for relief. There must be either (a) probable deception of the public or, (b) an appropriation of a property right in a name. As both the possible deception of the public and the plaintiff's property right in an assumed name are dependent upon such use of that name as causes it to be associated with the plaintiff and his business, the common law affords no protection except in a territory where the name has been used for a length of time. Thus, one who has used a name in one state only cannot prevent its use in another state. American Clay Manufacturing Company v. American Clay Manufacturing Company, 198 Pa. 189 (1901); Erie Printing Company v. Erie Lithographing and Printing Company, 31 Pa. C. C. 1 (1905); The New Method Steam Laundry Company v. Tomlinson, et al., 17 D. R. 362 (1908); Savidge on Pa. Corps., Volume 1, Section 893, Page 709. See also, Fletcher Cyclopedia Corporations (Permanent Edition), Volume 6, Sections 2422 and 2423.

By the inclusion of this provision, the remedy of injunction is extended to that group of cases not governed by common law principles. Furthermore, the object of this provision is to prevent the unlawful assumption of a corporate name from being considered as a defect in incorporation. The remedy is to enjoin a validly incorporated company from the use of an improper name. The statutes of Massachusetts and Vermont and the English Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, have similar provisions as to the use of the injunction.

Section 203. Reservation of Corporate Name. The exclusive right to the use of a corporate name may be reserved by:

(1) Any person intending to organize a corporation under this act, or

(2) Any domestic business corporation intending to change its name, or

(3) Any foreign business corporation intending to make application for a certificate of authority to transact business in this Commonwealth, or

(4) Any foreign business corporation authorized to transact business in this Commonwealth and intending to change its name, or

(5) Any person intending to organize a foreign business corporation and intending to have such corporation make application for a certificate of authority to transact business in this Commonwealth. Such reservation shall be made by filing with the Department of State an application to reserve a specified corporate name, executed by the applicant. If that department finds that such name is available for corporate use, it shall reserve the name for the exclusive use of the applicant for a period of sixty days. The right to the exclusive use of a specified corporate name so reserved may be transferred to any person by filing with the Department of State a notice of such transfer executed by the person for whom such name was reserved and specifying the name and address of the transferee.

Comments:

While the present laws of Pennsylvania do not provide for the reservation of a corporate name, it is submitted that the reservation of a corporate name for a limited period certainly is desirable. It frequently happens that an attorney who is about to organize a corporation is advised by the Department of State that a certain corporate name is available, and before the necessary documents can be prepared and filed such name, or one almost identical, has been acquired by another corporation. As this draft prohibits a foreign corporation from having a name deceptively similar to the name of a domestic corporation, this will also be true where a corporation is being organized under the laws of another state and it is intended to make application for a certificate of authority to transact business in Pennsylvania. Several days must of necessity elapse between the time of the granting of a charter in another state and the filing of certified copies of the necessary documents with the Department of State of the Commonwealth. The new Indiana, Illinois, and California acts have recognized this fact and provide by statute for the reservation of a corporate name. The Indiana and California acts permits a corporate name to be reserved for a period of thirty days, and the Illinois act permits the reservation to be made for a period of sixty days. In Delaware the Secretary of State, without statutory authority, but as an administrative matter, will reserve a corporate name on application therefor. This draft permits the reservation of a corporate name for a period of sixty days, as this period will be ample in any case and will not permit any person or corporation to obtain an option on a corporate name for an undue length of time.

Section 204. Articles of Incorporation. Articles[1] shall be signed in duplicate originals[2] by each of the incorporators, and acknowledged by at least two of them before any officer within this Commonwealth authorized to take acknowledgements,[3] and shall set forth, in the English language:

(1) The name of the corporations.[4]

(2) The location and post office address of its initial registered office in this Commonwealth, and the name of its initial registered agent at such address[5].

(3) A precise and accurate statement of the purpose or purposes for which the corporation is organized and that it is organized under the provisions of this act[6].

(4) The term for which it is to exist[7].

(5) The aggregate number of shares which the corporation shall have authority to issue, and, if the shares are to consist of one class only, the par value of each of the shares or a statement that all of the shares are without par value, or, if the shares are to be divided into classes, the number of shares of each class, if any, that are to have a par value and the par value of each share of each class, and the number of shares of each class, if any, that are to be without par value.[8]

(6) If the shares are to be divided into classes, a description of each class and a statement of the preferences, qualifications, limitations, restrictions and the special or relative rights granted to or imposed upon the shares of each class.

(7) If the corporation is to issue the shares of any preferred or special class in series, a description of each series and a statement of the variations in the relative rights and preferences as between different series, in so far as the same are to be fixed in the articles, and a statement of any authority to be vested in the board of directors to establish series and fix and determine the variations in the relative rights and preferences as between series.

(8) The amount of paid-in capital with which the corporation will begin business, which shall not be less than Five Hundred Dollars ($500.00) in cash[9].

(9) The names of the first directors, their post office addresses, and their terms of office[10].

(10) The name and post office address of each of the incorporators and a statement of the number of shares subscribed by each, which shall not be less than one, and the class of shares for which each subscribes[11].

(11) Any provisions which the incorporators may choose to insert granting to shareholders the pre-emptive rights to subscribe to any or all issue of shares or securities of the corporation[12].

(12) Any provisions not inconsistent with law which the incorporators may choose to insert for the regulation of the internal affairs of the corporation and the business of the corporation.

Pennsylvania Corporation Act of 1874, Section 3, as amended, 15 PS Sec. 21.

Comments:

1. The Corporation Act of 1874 uses the terms "certificate", "certificate of incorporation", "charter", and "charter of incorporation" indiscriminately. This draft adopts the title "articles of incorporation" for the statement executed by the incorporators. The articles of incorporation become the charter of the corporation upon being approved by the Department of State. The certificate of incorporation hereinafter required by this draft to be issued by the Department of State constitutes official evidence that the articles of incorporation have been approved by the department and that the corporation has come into existence. When the charter of the corporation is amended, it is the articles of incorporation which are amended. The certificate of incorporation issued by the Department of State is incapable of amendment. The Uniform Act and the laws of most of the other states use similar terms.

2. Unlike the Corporation Act of 1874, this draft requires the incorporators to prepare and file with the Department of State duplicate originals of the articles of incorporation. Under the procedure prescribed by this draft, one set of the articles will be retained by the Department of State for its records, and the other set of the articles will be returned to the incorporators, who will have in their possession a duplicate original of their charter. It is believed that the practice of filing executed documents in duplicate is decidedly in the interest of accuracy and preferable to the present method of copying the contents of the articles in a book kept by the Department of State, particularly as the articles under this draft will be more voluminous than articles under the Act of 1874, due to the additional information required by this draft to be set forth in them.

3. Formerly, a certificate of incorporation was required to be acknowledged before the recorder of deeds of the proper county, but by the Act of April 7, 1925, P. L. 183, 15 PS Sec. 24, such certificates or any amendments thereof may also be acknowledged and sworn to before a notary public or a justice of the peace of the Commonwealth. The proposed section contemplates recorders of deeds, justices of the peace, and notaries public by authorizing the articles to be acknowledged before any officer within the Commonwealth authorized to take acknowledgements.

4. See Section 202 for provisions regulating the choice of name, and Section 203 for provisions permitting the reservation of a chosen name.

5. See Section 2 for definition of "Registered Office", and Sections 306 and 307 for provisions with regard to registered office.

6. Since Section 201 of this draft provides that a business corporation may be formed for any lawful business purpose or purposes, instead of enumerating the specific purposes for which such corporations may be formed, it becomes very important that the articles set forth very clearly the purpose or purposes for which the corporation is formed.

7. The permissible duration of corporate existence is covered by Section 302 (1).

8. The provisions of numbered Paragraphs 5, 6 and 7 are taken from the new Illinois act and the Uniform Act, and the information therein required to be set forth in regard to the capital stock of the corporation is substantially the same as that now required to be set forth by the Corporation Act of 1874, Section 3, as amended, 15 PS Sec. 21, and the Act of July 12, 1911, P. L. 914, Section 1, 15 PS Sec. 181, except that this draft requires the information to be set forth more in detail. See Sections 601 and 602, infra, for provisions relating to the classes and kinds of shares which a business corporation may issue.

9. Section 3 of the Corporation Act of 1874 requires ten per cent of the capital stock to be paid in cash to the treasurer of a corporation of the second class before the incorporators will be granted a charter. In actual practice, the Department of State requires a corporation to have an authorized capital stock of $5,000, with the result that business corporations are required to have at least $500.00 paid-in capital before doing business in Pennsylvania. This capital must be in cash.

The Uniform Act and the laws of many states specify the minimum amount of paid-in capital with which a corporation may begin business. The minimum amount usually fixed by statute ranges from $500.00 to $1,000. For the sake of uniformity, this draft contains a similar requirement, and in view of existing practice prescribes $500.00 as the minimum amount of paid-in capital which a corporation must have before it may begin business. This draft, however, does not require the minimum amount of paid-in capital to be paid to the treasurer of the proposed corporation as a condition precedent to incorporation, but does require such amount to be paid into the corporation as a condition precedent to doing business. In this connection, see Section 208 of this draft.

10. A similar provision is contained in the Corporation Act of 1874. The states are now divided between the practice of naming the first directors in the articles and the practice of having no directors until the first ones are elected after incorporation. The first practice is followed in Pennsylvania and seems preferable. The incorporators cease to be incorporators and become shareholders immediately upon incorporation. A corporation cannot act through its shareholders but only through its board of directors; therefore, it ought to be equipped with a board of directors the moment it comes into existence. The Uniform Act recommends that the first directors be named in the articles.

11. This provision is taken from Section 3 of the Uniform Act, and the Corporation Act of 1874 contains a similar provision.

12. This provision is necessary in view of Section 611 of this draft, which provides that shareholders shall have no preemptive rights except to the extent that such rights are provided for in the articles of incorporation.

IN GENERAL: This section requires information to be set forth in the articles which is deemed necessary in the case of a business corporation. It is submitted that the articles should contain only organic provisions. Administrative provisions should be covered by the by-laws, which may be changed without an amendment to the articles.

Section 205. Advertisement. The incorporators shall advertise their in tention to apply for a charter one time in two newspapers published in the English language[1], one of which shall be a newspaper of general circulation, and the other the legal newspaper, if any, designated by the rules of court for the publication of legal notices; otherwise, in two newspapers of general circulation published in the county in which the initial registered office of the corporation is to be located[2]. Where there is but one newspaper of general circulation published in any county, advertisement in such newspaper shall be sufficient. Advertisements shall appear at least three days prior to the day application for a charter is made to the Department of State, and shall set forth briefly:

(1) The name of the proposed corporation.

(2) A statement that the application is made under the provisions of this act,

(3) The character and purpose or purposes of the proposed corporation, and

(4) The time when application will be made to the Department of State[3].

Comments:

1. The requirement that the newspapers must be published in the English language is not contained in the Corporation Act of 1874. In In re Chartiers Ferry Company (Op. Atty. Gen.), 2 Chester 91, (1875), it was ruled by the Department of Justice that advertisement in a paper printed in the German language was unauthorized and invalid. Also, it was ruled that an act requiring all legal notices in cities of the first and second class to be published in a daily newspaper published in the German language did not apply to charter advertisements. Advertisement of Charter Notices (Op. Atty. Gen.), 17 Pa. C. C. 169, 4 Dist. 771 (1895); In re The Church Club of Philadelphia, 37 W. N. C. 47 (1895). The proposed section makes it clear that the advertisement of an intention to apply for a charter must appear in newspapers published in the English language.

2. The Corporation Act of 1874 provides that the advertisement shall be made in papers "printed in the proper county." To say the least, this expression is indefinite. In In re Chartiers Ferry Company (Op. Atty. Gen.), 2 Chester 91 (1875), it was ruled that the term "proper county" referred to the county or counties in which the corporation was expressly authorized to exercise its powers and privileges. This draft requires the advertisement to be made in the county in which the initial registered office of the corporation is to be located.

3. The Corporation Act of 1874 provides that the advertisement "shall set forth briefly, the character and object of the proposed corporation to be formed, and the intention to make application therefor." This portion of the draft is a restatement of the above provision of the Corporation Act of 1874.

Query: Whether advertisement of intention to apply for a charter of a business corporation should be required. As our existing laws make advertisement a prerequisite to incorporation, the obvious purpose of the advertisement is to give any persons having objections to the granting of the charter an opportunity to present them. Under existing law there probably is some need for this opportunity, in that a corporate name might be adopted which is deceptively similar to the name of an existing corporation, but this draft makes adequate provision for the protection of the corporate name of an existing corporation. Moreover, under existing law and in accordance with existing practice, the incorporators are not required to file the articles of incorporation with the Department of State or at any other place during the period of advertisement.

The laws of most of the states, including New York, Delaware, New Jersey, Maryland, California, Michigan, Indiana and Illinois, and the Uniform Act, do not require advertisement as a prerequisite to the incorporation of a business corporation. In Pennsylvania, due to the advertisement requirement, it is impossible to secure a charter for a business corporation in less than a week's time. As business exigencies often require immediate incorporation, many corporations which otherwise would be organized in Pennsylvania are organized under the laws of our sister states which permit a charter to be obtained within one or two days' time.

The few states which require advertisement as a prerequisite to incorporation are those states which have not recently revised their corporation laws.

Section 206. Filing of Articles: Certificate of Incorporation. On the day specified in the advertisement, the incorporators shall deliver, or cause to be delivered, to the Department of State the duplicate originals of the articles and proof of the advertisement required by the preceding section. If the Department of State finds that the articles conform to law, it shall endorse its approval upon each duplicate original, and when bonus, fees and charges have been paid, as required by law, shall file and record one of the duplicate originals and shall issue a certificate of incorporation. The remaining duplicate original of the articles and the certificate of incorporation shall be returned by the Department of State to the incorporators or their representative, and the duplicate original shall be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation is situated. The duplicate original of the articles, upon being recorded by the recorder of deeds, shall be returned to the incorporators or their representative, and shall constitute the charter of the corporation.

Comments:

This section of the draft makes a radical change in the method of procuring charters for business corporations. Under the Corporation Act of 1874, the incorporators are required to present articles to the Governor, and if he approves thereof he is required to issue letters patent.

Pennsylvania appears to be the only state which requires articles for the incorporation of a business corporation to be presented to and approved by the Governor. In practice, the articles are also approved and signed by the Secretary of the Commonwealth. The Pennsylvania practice not only places an undue burden upon the Governor, but, because of the number of signatures and approvals required, results in delay.

The Uniform Act and the laws of the other states uniformly require the articles for the incorporation of a business corporation to be presented to and approved by the secretary of state, and authorize that officer to issue a certificate of incorporation. This procedure will make the law of Pennsylvana uniform with the laws of the other states.

The certificate of incorporation provided for by this draft stands in lieu of the letters patent which are now issued by the Governor, and constitutes the official evidence that the articles have been filed by the Department of State and that the corporation has come into evistence.

As pointed out under Section 204 of this draft, duplicate originals of the articles are required for accuracy. Under the procedure set forth in this draft, the Department of State will retain one duplicate original and the other will be returned to the incorporators. Accordingly, the Department of State and the incorporators will have a duplicate original of the charter of the corporation.

Section 207. Effect of Issuance of Certificate of Incorporation. Upon the issuance of the certificate of incorporation by the Department of State, the corporate existence shall begin[1], and those persons who subscribed for shares prior to the issuance of the certificate of incorporation, or their assignees, shall be shareholders in the corporation[2]. The certificate of incorporation shall be conclusive evidence of the fact that the corporation has been incorporated, but proceedings may be instituted by the Commonwealth to dissolve, wind up and terminate a corporation which should not have been formed under this act, or which has been formed without a substantial compliance with the conditions prescribed by this act as precedent to incorporation[3].

Comments:

1. The Corporation Act of 1874 makes the recording of articles, "in the office for the recording of deeds, in and for the county where the chief operations are to be carried on," a condition precedent to corporate existence. Upon the recording of the articles, corporate existence begins. Guckert v. Hacke, et al., 159 Pa. 303 (1893); Tonge c. Item Publishing Company, Appellant. 244 Pa. 417 (1914); Deniston's Estate, 70 Pitts, L. J. 59 (1921).

This draft changes the Pennsylvania law in this respect, in that corporate existence begins upon the issuance of the certificate of incorporation by the Department of State. The commissioners on uniform laws strongly recommend that corporate existence begin upon the issuance of the certificate of incorporation, and the laws of most states contain such a provision. Section 208 of this draft, however, prohibits the corporation from incurring any debts until its articles have been filed in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which its registered office is located. In other words, the recording of the articles is not a condition precedent to corporate existence, but a condition precedent to the right to do business.

2. This provision is taken from Section 5 (II) of the Uniform Act. As pointd out in a note to the Uniform Act, it seems desirable to emphasize the distinction between incorporators and shareholders. Furthermore, under present law the subscribers are regarded as making offers to become shareholders, but they cannot become shareholders until their offers are accepted by the corporation after it has come into existence. 1 Machen, Modern Law of Corporations, Section 249. Under this draft, not only do the incorporators become incorporated, but also the persons who have subscribed for shares before incorporation without signing the articles. They become shareholders upon incorporation and without further act on the part of the corporation. As is stated in Chase v. Lord, 77 N. Y. 1, (1879), "Corporators exist before stockholders, and do not exist with them. When stockholders come in, corporators cease to be."

3. The object of this section is to solve the de facto problem. According to a note contained under this section in the Uniform Act, it is believed that the section, as worded, does not alter the present case law as to the right of the state. According to present law, the state may intervene: (a) when the corporation is one that should not have been incorporated under the act; and (b) when there has been a failure substantially to comply with such conditions precedent to incorporation as are considered mandatory. If, however, the conditions not complied with are found to be directory rather than mandatory, the default on the part of the incorporators is held to be unassailable even by the state. If, also, there has been substantial compliance with mandatory provisiosn, the state is not permitted to object that there has not been literal compliance. The proposed section treats all conditions prescribed by the act as precedent to incorporation as mandatory provisions, but declares substantial compliance to be sufficient. The line of distinction between mandatory and directory provsions is not defined with exactness, but it is believe that in most cases the distinction between mandatory and directory provisions is in large part one between conditions precedent to incorporation and conditions precedent to the right to do business.

The present section goes further than the case law in denying collaterial attack upon the legality of incorporation. To deny collateral attack, the cases hold that (a) there must have been a real attempt to incorporate, and (b) the corporation must have been one that was formable under the statute. The present section would make the certificate of incorporation conclusive in all cases.

Section 208. Conditions Precedent to Beginning Business; Penalty for Violation of Section. A. A corporation formed under this act shall not incur any indebtedness or begin the transaction of any business except such as shall be incident to its organization or to the obtaining of subscriptions to, or the payment for, its shares until:

(1) A duplicate original of its articles has been recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds, as heretofore provided in this act[1],

(2) The amount of capital with which it will begin business, as stated in the articles, has been fully paid in[2], and

(3) There has been filed in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the corporation has its registered office an affidavit signed by at least a majority of the board of directors, stating that the amount of capital with which it will commence business, as stated in the articles, has been fully paid in[3].

B. If a corporation shall transact any business in violation of this section, the officers who participated therein and the directors, except those who dissented therefrom and caused their dissent to be filed at the time in the registered office of the corporation, or who, being absent, filed their dissent upon learning of the action, shall be severally liable for the debts and liabilities of the corporation arising therefrom.[4]

Comments:

1. As pointed out in Note No. 1, under Section 207 of this draft, corporate existence begins under this draft upon the issuance of the certificate of incorporation by the Secretary of the Commonwealth, instead of upon the recording of the articles in the office of the recorder of deeds, as is now the case under existing law. Under this draft, the recording of the articles in the office of the recorder of deeds is constituted a condition precedent to the beginning of business by the existing corporation.

2. Under the Corporation Act of 1874, ten per centum of the capital stock of a proposed corporation must be paid to the treasurer before a charter will be granted to the incorporators. Under the provisions of Section 204 of this draft, the articles must state the amount of capital which the corporation will have paid in before it transacts business, but the capital does not have to be paid in before a charter is granted to the incorporators.

As is pointed out in the annotatiosn to the Uniform Act, there is a division under existing statutes between the practice of (a) requiring a certain fund to be paid in before incorporation, (b) requiring a certain fund to be paid in before a corporation may begin business, and (c) having no requirement that a minimum fund shall be paid in at any time. Twelve jurisdictions require the payment of a certain fund as a prerequisite to incorporation. Nineteen jurisdictions provide that a certain fund shall be paid in before the corporation may do business. In the remaining twenty-two American jurisdictions, there is no requirement that a minimum amount shall be paid in, either before incorporation or before business is begun. Where one of these requirements does exist, the object is to protect creditors. Is it not sufficient, therefore, to require that the corporation shall have a certain fund paid in before it can incur debts?

One objection to the requirement that a certain amount shall be paid in as a condition precedent to the right to incorporate is that such a provision invites an evasion of the spirit of the requirement by a complicance with the letter of the requirement. The minimum amount usually fixed by statute ranges from $500.00 to $1,000. Is it not the natural result that this nominal amount will be paid in to secure incorporation and the real financing will be done after incorporation? If persons are to incorporate their existing business, it is more logical and reasonable for them to be able to transfer the assets of the old business to the new corporation after it has been formed.

Another objection to this requirement is that, there being no corporation to receive payment, the fund must be transferred to someone for the benefit of the future corporation. In the District of Columbia, it must be paid to a trust company; in Missouri and South Carolina, to the directors named in the articles; in the Philippine Islands and in Pennsylvania, to the person elected by the incorporators as treasurer.

A further objection to this type of provision is to the consequences attributed to a noncompilance with the requirement. In Pennsylvania, if the statement that ten per cent of the capital stock has been paid in cash be false, the charter may be forfeited by the Commonwealth. Until a judgment of ouster is entered against the corporation at the instance of the Commonwealth, it is a corporation de facto. Paterson, Appellant, v. Franklin, et al., 176 Pa. 612 (1896); The Hoover Mercantile Company v. The Evans Mining Company, 193 Pa. 28, (1899); Northrop v. Finn Construction Company, 260 Pa. 15 (1918). The creditors cannot, by action ex contractu or by a bill in equity against the incorporators, compel them to account for and pay the balance of the ten per cent falsely certified as having been paid. Patterson v. Franklin, supra; Barr v. Jarboe, 614 Pitts. L. J. 34 (1897). In consequence, one who became a creditor after the certificate of incorporation had been issued would not be able to attack the corporate existence and would find himslf bound to a corporation which had no existence. Probably the incorporators who signed the affidavit annexed to the articles would be guilty of perjury, and a creditor who could show reliance upon the statement contained in the articles would have a common law action of deceit against such persons. See Barr v. Jarboe, supra. Also, it has been held that an assignee for the benefit of creditors of an insolvent corporation has no standing to maintain an action against the incorporators because they falsely swore that ten per cent of the capital stock had been paid in. Patterson v. Franklin, supra.

It seems more logical and more workable to make the payment into the corporate treasury of a certain amount of capital a condition precedent to the right to do business rather than a condition precedent to the right to be incorporated. Even the national banking law does not require any portion of the capital to be paid in before incorporation, but it does require that a certain proportion of the capital stock shall be paid in before the Comptroller may authorize the corporation to commence business. 6 Fed. Stat. Ann., Sections 5134, 5136 and 5140.

Accordingly, this draft adopts the suggestion made in the Uniform Act, and requires a certain fund to be paid in before a corporation may begin business, and in this respect changes the present requirement that a certain fund be paid in before incorporation. See Section 204 (8) and the notes thereunder.

3. This provision is taken from Section 8 of the Uniform Act and is essential to the scheme of this draft.

4. This penalty is taken from Section 8 of the Uniform Act. Under the Corporation Act of 1874, which makes the recording of the articles a condition precedent to corporate existence, it has been held that failure to record the articles will render the incorporators personally liable to persons who deal with them without knowledge of the corporation. Guckert v. Hacke, et al., 159 Pa. 303 (1893). Since under this draft corporate existence begins upon the issuance of the certificate of incorporation and not upon the recording of the articles, this penalty is necessary. Under this draft, there will be a corporation, but the right of the creditor against the officers and directors who are responsible for a violation of the section is not conditioned upon the cerditor's ability to prove that he was deceived.

Section 209. Cemetery and Burial Corporations. In the case of the incorporation of a cemetery or burial corporation a sa business corporation, the articles shall, in addition to the information heretofore required by this article, contain a provision that a sum equal to at least one-tenth of the gross amount of the funds arising from the sale of lots in the burial ground or cemetery of the corporation shall be set apart for the perpetual care and preservation of the grounds and the repair and renewal of the buildings and property of such corporation; that such sum shall be invested by the board of directors in securities which are legal investments for trustees under the laws of this Commonwealth; and that the income arising therefrom shall be applied by the board of directors to the foregoing purposes.

Comments:

The Act of 1909 provides that no charter shall be granted to a burial or cemetery corporation, either of the first or second class of corporations, unless its application for a charter sets forth the above provision.

This act also provides that the directors or managers of such companies shall file annually with the clerk of the court of the county in which the company is situate a bond with sufficient sureties, to be approved by the court of quarter sessions, for the faithful performance of the trust.

Query: Whether this requirement is necessary. This draft does not contain this requirement.

Section 210. Organization Meetings. After the issuance of the certificate of incorporation, the first meeting of the shareholders shall be held within or without this Commonwealth at the call of the incorporators, or a majority of them, for the purpose of adopting by-laws, unless the articles provide that by-laws shall be adopted by the board of directors, and for such other purposes as shall be stated in the notice of the meeting. The incorporators calling the meeting shall give, by mail, to each shareholder, at least ten days' notice of the time, place, and purpose or purposes of the meeting.

Aftr the issuance of the certificate of incorporation, an organization meeting of the board of directors named in the articles shall be held, either within or without this Commonwealth, at the call of a majority of the directors, for the purposes of adopting by-laws, if the articles authorize the directors to adopt by-laws, of electing officers, and of transacting such other business as may come before the meeting. The directors calling the meeting shall give at least five days' notice, by mail, to each director named in the articles, of the time and place of the meeting.

Comments:

There is no statutory provision in Pennsylvania regulating organization meetings of the shareholders or directors. This section of the drafts sets forth the usual practice in Pennsylvania.

The general provision relating to waivers, contained in Section 8 of this draft, permits the holding of either of the organization meetings on waiver of notice. In practice, these meetings are generally held on waiver of notice.

ARTICLE III

CORPORATE POWERS, DUTIES AND SAFEGUARDS

Section 301. Corporate Capacity and Authority. A business corporation shall have the capacity of natural persons to act, but shall have authority to perform only such acts as are necessary or proper to accomplish its purpose or purposes, and which are not repugnant to law.

Comments:

This section is supplementary to Section 9 of this draft. Section 9 abolishes the doctrine of constructive notice of the contents of the charter of a corporation.

This section abolishes another prop of the ultra vires structure, namely, the doctrine that a corporation has a limited capacity measured by its statutory powers. This section, in effect, restores the common law rule that a corporation has the capacity of natural persons; that is, the capacity to do an unauthorized or even an illegal act.

A note to Section 11 of the Uniform Act points out:

"The fundamental conflict in the authorities may be represented by the statement of Justice Gray in Central Transportation Co. v. Pullman Car Co., 139 U. S. 24, 59, that "The objection to the contract is, not merely that the corporation ought not to have made it, but that it could not make it. The contract cannot be ratified by either party, because it could not have been authorized by either. No performance on either side can give the unlawful contract any validity, or be the foundation of any right of action upon it,' as opposed to the statement of Comstock, J., in Bissell v. R. R., 22 N. Y. 258, 264, that 'To say that a corporation has no right to do unauthorized acts, is only to put forth a very plain truism; but to say that such bodies have no power or capacity to err, is to impute to them an excellence which does not belong to any created existence with which we are acquainted. The distinction between power and right is no more to be lost sight of in respect to artificial than in respect to natural persons. * * * When we speak of the powers of a corporation, the term only expresses the privileges and franchises which are bestowed in the charter; and when we say it cannot exercise other powers, the just meaning of the language is, that as the attempt to do so is without authority of law, the performance of unauthorized acts is a usurpation which may be a wrong to the state, or, perhaps, to the shareholders. But the usurpation is possible. In the same sense natural persons are under restraint of law, but they may transgress the law, and when they do they are responsible for their acts.' The first view may be said to prevail in the federal courts and a minority of the state courts, while the second view probably obtains in the courts of all but eight of the states.

"The first view is based upon the conception of limited corporate capacity; the conception that a corporation cannot do what it has not been given authority to do. * * * This doctrine of limited capacity, like the doctrine of constructive notice, is the result of a judicial interpretation of legislative intention. * * * At common law, a corporation had the capacity of natural persons, i. e., the capacity to do an unauthorized or even an illegal act. * * *

"Sections 10 and 11 of this draft, by abolishing the doctrine of constructive notice and the doctrine of limited capacity, would remove two of the sources of greater confusion in the ultra vires cases, the chief obstacles to uniformity in decisions. As suggested, these obstacles, springing from an interpretation of legislative intention, can be removed only by legislation. Further legislation than this in connection with the ultra vires problem seems to be unnecessary. * * *"

Section 302. General Powers. Subject to the limitations and restrictions contained in this act or in its articles, every business corporation shall have authority:

(1) To continue as a corporation for the time limited in its articles, or, if a time limit is not specified therein, then perpetually, subject to the power of the General Assembly, under the Constitution of this Commonwealth[1].

(2) To sue and be sued, complain and defend in its corporate name[2].

(3) To have a corporate seal which may be altered at pleasure, and to use the same by causing it or a facsimile thereof to be impressed or affixed, or in any manner reproduced[3].

(4) To purchase, take, receive, lease as lessee, take by gift, devise or bequest, or otherwise acquire, and to own, hold, use and otherwise deal with any real or personal property, or any interest therein, situated in or out of this Commonwealth, which may be appropriate to enable it to accomplish fully and properly its corporate purpose or purposes[4].

(5) To sell and convey, mortgage, pledge, lease as lessor, and otherwise dispose of all or any part of its property and assets[5].

(6) Whenever appropriate to enable it to accomplish any or all of its purposes, to guarantee, purchase, take, receive, or otherwise acquire, hold, sell, assign, transfer, mortgage, loan, pledge, or otherwise dispose of, and otherwise use and deal in and with the shares, bonds, securities and other evidences of indebtedness of any domestic corporation or any corporation formed under any laws other than those of this Commonwealth, and, while the owner of the same, to exercise all the rights, powers, or privileges of ownership, including the right to vote thereon[6].

(7) To purchase, take, receive or otherwise acquire, hold on pledge, transfer, or otherwise dispose of its own shares, except that no such purchase or acquisition shall be made at a time when the net assets of the corporation are less than its stated capital, or which would reduce its net assets below its stated capital[7].

(8) To borrow money for any or all of its corporate purposes, to issue its promissory notes, bonds, or other forms of certificates of indebtedness, for the repayment thereof, with interest at a rate not exceeding six per centum, and to secure any of its obligations by mortgage, pledge, or deed of trust of, or on, any of its property, franchises and income[8].

(9) To invest its surplus funds from time to time, to lend money for any or all of its corporate purposes, and to take and hold real and personal property as security for the payment of funds so invested or loaned[9].

(10) To conduct its business, carry on its operations, and have offices within and outside of this Commonwealth, and to exercise in any other state, territory, district, or possession of the United States, or in any foreign country and the territories and colonies thereof, the powers granted by this act[10].

(11) To make, alter, amend and repeal by-laws not inconsistent with its articles or with law, for the administration and regulation of the affairs of the corporation[11].

(12) To elect or appoint and remove officers and agents of the corporation, and to define their duties and fix their compensation[12].

(13) To enter into any obligation necessary for the transaction of its ordinary affairs[13].

(14) To have and exercise all of the powers and means necessary or essential to effect the purpose or purposes for which the corporation is formed[14].

(15) To dissolve and wind up[15].

The powers herein enumerated shall not be construed as limiting or enlarging the grant of authority hereinbefore made by this article, or as a limitation on the purpose or purposes for which a corporation may be organized, as set forth in its articles. It shall not be necessary to set forth any of such enumerated powers in the articles of the corporation. Except as otherwise provided in this act or in the by-laws, the powers herein enumerated shall be exercised by the board of directors of the corporation.

Comments:

1. This is practically a restatement of a provision in the Act of 1874, which provides that a corporation shall have power, "To have succession by its corporate name for the period limited by its charter, and when no period is limited thereby, or by this act, perpetually, subject to the power of the general assembly, under the constitution of this commonwealth." This draft does not specifically limit the corporate existence of any corporation; therefore, the underlined provision was not included in this draft.

In twenty-eight American jurisdictions corporate existence may be perpetual; in twenty-four it must not exceed a certain maximum period, which varies from twenty to one hundred years. Of these twenty-four states, however, seventeen permit an extension of corporate existence by amendment or renewal.

2. The Act of 1874 provides that every corporation shall have the power: "To maintain and defend judicial proceedings." This draft restates the Pennsylvania provision.

3. The Pennsylvania provision is as follows: "To make and use a common seal and alter the same at pleasure."

4. Article XVI, Section 6, of the Pennsylvania Constitution provides, interalia, that: "No corporation shall * * * take or hold any real estate except such as may be necessary and proper for its legitimate business." The Corporation Act of 1874 provides that a corporation has the power: "To hold, purchase and transfer such real and personal property as the purposes of the corporation require, not exceeding the amount limited by its charter or by law."

This draft does not place any limitations upon the power of a business corporation to hold real estate, other than the limitation contained in the Pennsylvania Constitution.

5. This provision, which is not similar to any provision in the Corporation Act of 1874, was taken from the Illinois act. Section 311 of this draft prescribes what procedure shall be followed before the corporation may sell or otherwise dispose

6. This provision is a restatement of the Act of July 2, 1901, P. L. 603, as amended, 15 PS Sec. 661, except that this draft permits the exercise of this power only to an extent appropriate to enable the corporation to accomplish any or all of its purposes.

Prior to the Act of 1901, Section 12 of the Corporation Act of 1874 provided: "it shall not be lawful for any such corporation to use any of its funds in the purchase of any stock in any other corporation, or to hold the same, except as colateral security for a prior indebtedness, except as provided in section thirty-seven of this act." Section 37 related to building and loan associations. The amendatory Act of June 26, 1895, P. L. 369, 15 PS Sec. 134, authorizes corporations formed for the purpose of carrying out any manufacturing business or for the supply of water, or for the manufacturing or supplying of light, to acquire stocks or bonds in any company of the same character and to guarantee the payment of bonds so acquired and the interest thereon. The Act of July 2, 1901, P. L. 603, permits any corporation for profit to hold the stock and bonds of any corporation as freely as any individual might do so.

At least twenty-nine American jurisdictions have provisions expressly conferring authority upon corporations to own stock in other corporations. The provisions of many of the jurisdictions contain the restriction that the corporation whose stock is held must have been incorporated for "the same or similar purposes," or for purposes "ancillary and auxiliary" to the business of the holding corporation.

The objections to a corporation's ownership of stock in other corporations are: (1) If the purposes and chartered authority of the two corporations are different, then the holding of the stock by one in the other embarks the former on a business not authorized by its charter, and (2) If the authorized purposes are similar, then the combination through stock ownership may tend toward monopoly.

Section 12 of the Uniform Act permits a corporation to acquire shares, bonds, securities, etc., of any domestic or foreign corporation to the extent necessary to accomplish the purpose of the corporation. This section of the draft similarly restricts the power of Pennsylvania business corporations to acquire stocks and bonds, etc., of other corporations.

As poinetd out in the Uniform Act, the section, as drafted, would not permit engaging in ultra vires business indirectly through ownership of stock in other corporations with dissimilar purposes, but does sanction the employment of subsidiary corporations as agencies to carry on the authorized business or branches thereof. The taking of stock as security for, or in payment of, a debt, and the investment of idle funds in the stock or securities of other corporations, would be in furtherance of its corporate purposes.

This section of the draft also permits a Pennsylvania business corporation to guarantee the bonds or other obligations of another corporation, whenever it becomes necessary to do so in furtherance of the corporate business. See Fletcher Cyclopedia Corporations (Permanent Edition), Volume 6, Section 2591.

7. The Act of March 31, 1868, P. L. 50, authorizes the directors, with the approval of the stockholders, to invest the surplus or other funds or earnings of the corporation in the purchase "from holders thereof of any of the shares of the capital stock of of the respective company".

The authorities are in sharp conflict over the question whether, in the absence of statutory or charter restrictions, a corporation may employ its assets for the purchase of shares of its own stock. In the United States some of the courts have held, as in England that a corporation cannot purchase its own shares of stock, either to retire them or reissue them, unelss such power is expressly conferred by its charter or some other statute largely on the ground that it is foreign to the purposes for which the corporation was created and consittutes a diversion of its funds to an unauthorized purpose. In most jurisdictions, as in Pennsylvania, the doctrine prevails that, in the absence of a statutory prohibition, a corporation may purchase its own stock, provided it acts in good faith and without prejudice to the rights of creditors, and has a surplus with which to make the purchase. See Fletcher Syclopedia Corporations (Permanent Edition) Volume 6, Sections 2845 and 2848. Accordingly, this provision of the draft would embody in our statutory law the prevailing judicial doctine in this State to the purchase by a corporation of its own stock.

8. The Act of May 21, 1889, P. L. 57, 257, 15 PS Sec. 341, authorizes all corporations to borrow money and to secure the same by a mortgage on their real estate. This act provides that corporations may secure a loan by mortgage "upon their real estate and machinery, or on their real estate alone, to an amount not exceeding one-half of the capital stock of the corporation paid in, and at a rate of interest not exceeding six per centum". The Act of February 9, 1901, P. L. 3, as amended by the Act of April 22, 1905, P. L. 280, 15 PS Sec. 241, must be read in connection with the Act of 1889. The Act of 1901 permits corporations to increase their indebtedness, regardless of any limitations prescribed in any general or special law, to an amount necessary to accomplish and cary on and administer the business and purposes of the corporation.

As a general rule, a corporation has the implied power to borrow money and, as an incidental power thereto, to issue its certificate of indebtedness and to secure the same by a mortgage on its property. Savidge on Pa. Corps., Volume 1, Section 496, and Volume 2, Section 1002. See Section 309 of this draft for the procedure to be followed in increasing the indebtedness of a corporation.

9. The Act of March 31, 1868, P. L. 50, authorizes the directors of a corporation, with the approval of the shareholders, to invest the surplus funds or earnings of a corporation in: (1) Mortgages on improved real estate; (2) Ground rents; (3) Bonds of the United States; (4) Shares of the corporation's own capital stock; (4) Bonds of the Commonwealth of Pennsyvania or of the City of Philadelphia; (6) In other stocks or securities.

There is little or no reason to enumerate the classes of investments in which surplus funds of the corpporation may be invested. The Act of 1868 merely reflects the suspicion which people attached to corporations at the time it was enacted.

This draft permits any corporation to invest its surplus funds as freely as an individual.

10. This provision is new to Pennsylvania statutory law, and a similar provision is found in the corporation laws of many states. A corporation may, like a natural person, carry on business and make contracts through its agents in state or country other than that by or under whose laws it was created, provided the other state or country expressly or impliedly consents, and provided there is no restriction in its charter. A corporation, however, since it is a mere creature of the law, and since the laws of the particular state or country have no force beyond their territorial limits, can have no "existence" in a foreign state or country. In other words, a corporation cannot, in a sovereignty other than that of its own creation, do any act which cannot be done through the intervention of a mere agent, but which is in contemplation of law, the direct act of the corporate body itself. Strictly corporate acts must, as a general rule, be performed within the limits of the state of incorporation; and these are defined to be those relating to or concerning its existence as a corporation. See Fletcher Cyclopedia Corporations (Permanent Edition), Volume 6, Section 2500.

11. The Corporation Act of 1874 authorizes a corporation "To make by-laws notinconsistent with law, for the management of its property, the regulation of its affairs, and the transfer of its stock." The proposed provisions is practically a restatement of the Pennsylvania provision, except that is specifically permits a corporation to alter, amend, and repeal its by-laws.

12. The Corporation Act of 1874 contains a similar provision, as follows: "To appoint and remove such subordinate officers and agents as the business of the corporation requires, and to allow them a suitable compensation."

13. This provision is taken directly from the Corporation Act of 1874.

14. This provision is not contained in the Corporation Act of 1874, but appears to be desirable. It is a statement of the implied power theory, and was taken from the Illinois act.

15. This provision, which does not appear in the Corporation Act of 1874, was taken from the Uniform and the Illinois acts. A similar provisions appears in the laws of many of the states.

Section 303. Defense of Ultra Vires. A. No limitation upon the business, purpose or purposes, or powers of a business corporation, expressed or implied in its articles or implied by law, shall be asserted in order to defend any action at law or in equity between the corporation and a third person, or between a shareholder and a third person, involving any contract to which the corporation is a party or any right of property or any alleged liability of whatsoever nature; but such limitation may be asserted:

(1) In an action by a shareholder against the corporation to enjoin the doing of unauthorized acts or the transaction or continuation of unauthorized business. If the unauthorized acts or the business sought to be enjoined are being transacted pursuant to any contract to which the corporation is a party, the court may, if all of the parties to the contract are parties to he suit, and if it deems the same to be equitable, set aside and enjoin the performance of such contract, and in so doing shall allow to the corporation, or the other parties, as the case may be, compensation for the loss or damage sustained by either of them, which may result from the action of the court in setting aside and enjoining the performance of such contract, but anticipated profits to be derived from the performance of the contract shall not be awarded by the court as a loss or damage sustained.

(2) In an action at law or in equity by the corporation, whether acting througha receiver, trustee, or other legal representative, or through shareholders in a representative suit, against the officers or directors of the corporation for exceeding their authority.

(3) In a proceeding by the Commonwealth, as authorized by law, to dissolve the corporation, or in a proceeding by the Commonwealth to enjoin the corporation from the transaction of unauthorized or unlawful business.

B. No conveyance or transfer by or to a corporation of property, real or personal, of any kind or description, shall be invalid or fail because in making such conveyance or transfer, or in acquiring the property, real or personal, the board of directors or any of the officers of the corporation, acting within the scope of the actual or apparent authority given to them by the board of directors, have exceeded any of the corporation's objects, purposes, or powers.

C. The provisions of this section shall extend to contracts and conveyances made by foreign corporations in this Commonwealth and to all conveyances by foreign corporations of real property situated in this Commonwealth.

Comments:

Fletcher Cyclopedia Corporations (Permanent Edition) Volume 7, Section 3439, (1931), at page 589, states:

"Until a few years ago, there were no statutes in this country relating to ultra vires as a defense. However, the conflict and confusion in the decisions as to the effect of ultra vires, and the desire of many to abolish the doctrine as between the parties to the ultra vires act, have resulted in the past few years in numerous proposed codifications of statutes in several states either limiting or abolishing the doctrine of ultra vires as between the parties to the alleged ultra vires transaction. These statutes may be classified as (1) those adopting wholly or in substance the Uniform Business Corporation Act, and (2) statutes in states not adopting this act. This first class of statutes does not go so far, and is not as comprehensive, as the latter class of statutes."

The Uniform Act merely attempts to make uniform the decisions relating to the defense of ultra vires by abolishing two doctrines which give rise to most of the confusion in such decisions; name: (1) the doctrine of constructive notice of the contents of the charter, and (2) the doctrine of limited corporate capacity. If these two doctrines are abolished, the effect will be to bring the few states in this country which follow the Federal rule in line with the majority of the states, which don ot follow the Federal rule in the field of ultra vires. This draft, in Sections 9 and 301, follows the suggestion of the Uniform Act

It is submitted, however, that the elimination of the doctrines of construction notice and limited corporate capacity will make little change in the present Pennsylvania law. In Pennsylvania an unexecuted corporate act or agreement which is ultra vires can ordinarily be repudiated by the corporation,—Pittsburgh and Steubenville Railroad Company v. Allegheny County, 79 Pa. 210 (1875); Twelfth Street Market Company v. Jackson, 102 Pa. 269 (1883),—but a corporation may not avail itself of ultra vires as a defense where a contract has been entered into and executed in good faith by the other party and the corporation has received the benefit of the performance. This rule is founded upon the doctrine of estoppel rather than ratification, and relates to all contracts except those absolutely void on the ground of public policy,—Boyd v. The American Carbon Black Company, 182 Pa. 206 (1897); Presbyterian Board v. Gilbee, 212 Pa. 310 (1905); Lemmon v. The East Palestine Rubber Company, 260 Pa. 28 (1918); Doylestown and Danborough Turnpike Railroad Company v. Philadelphia and Easton Electric Railway Company, 49 Pa. Super. 381 (1912). If an ultra vires contract is partly executory, a corporation may, if the contract is easily divisible, avoid the executory portions, because of their ultra vires nature,—Thomas, et al., v. West Jersey Railroad Company, 101 U. S. (1800); Gloninger v. Pittsburgh & C. R. Company, 139 Pa. 13 (1891); Bosshardt v. Crescent Oil Company, ltd., 171 Pa. 109 (1895).—otherwise the doctrine of equitable estoppel is applicable to the partly executory contract.—Leslie and Company, Ltd., v. Baird Manufacturing Company, 66 Pitts. 752 (1918). Also, in Pennsylvania this doctrine may be set up by stockholders, the Statefi or by creditors, but not by a stranger to the transaction.—Hazelwood Brewing Company v. Siebert, 256 Pa. 9 (1917). Generally speaking, the defense of ultra vires is not looked upon favorably by the courts of this Commonwealth. As is stated in Wright, et al., v. The Pipe Line Company, 101 Pa. 204 (1882). "The lew never sustains a defence of this nature out of regard for a defendant; it does so only where an imperative rule of public policy requires it."

On the other hand, in very recent years, Vermont, Ohio, California, Illinois and Michigan have abolished the defense of ultra vires between the corporation and a third party or a stockholder and a third party. Ohio, however, expressly retains the ultra vires doctrine as against a person having actual knowledge of the want of authority of the corporation. These states, however, permit such defense to be set up between the corporation and the stockholders. None of the statutes enacted by these states changes the law as to the power of the State to forfeit or oust because of ultra vires, or the power of the corporation or its stocksolders to prevent ultra vires transactions, or obtain redress therefor as against corporate officers.

This draft goes further than the Uniform Act and abolishes the doctrine of ultra vires between the corporation and third parties or shareholders or the corporation and third parties. The provisions of this section are taken from the Illinois and California acts, which were adopted in 1931.

QUERY: Whether Pennsylvania should follow the Ohio act and permit the corporate body to use the defense of ultra vires against the third party which dealt with the corporate agents knowing that the transaction was ultra vires and that the agents had no authority from the corporation to engage in this transaction.

Section 304. Adoption and Contents of By-Laws. Except as hereinafter provided, the shareholders shall have the power to make, alter, amend and repeal the by-laws of a business corporation. The authority to make by-laws may be expressly vested by the articles in the board of directors, subject to the power of the shareholders to change or repeal such by laws. Unles sthe articles or by-laws otherwise provide, the by-laws may be adopted, altered, amended and repealed by a majority vote of the board of directors, or of the shareholders, as the case may be, at any regular or special meeting duly convened after notice to the shareholders or directors of that purpose. The by-laws may contain any provisions fo rthe regulation and management of the affairs of the corporation not inconsistent with law or the articles, and may provide penalties for the breach thereof not exceeding twenty dollars.

Comments:

The Corporation Act of 1874, Section 5, as amended, provides that the by-laws: "shall be made by the stockholders or members of the corporation at a general meeting called for that purpose, unless the charter prescribes antoher body or a different mode."

While the recent incorporation acts of Illinois and Indiana and a few other states vest thepower to make by-laws primarily in the board of directors, unless the articles provide otherwise, this draft, in accordance with the Uniform Act and the Pennsylvania act, vests this power primarily in the shareholders. The general rule is now, as it was under the common law, that the power to adopt by-laws resides inherently and primarily in the stockholders or members of the corporation—Fletcher Cyclopedia Corporations (Permanent Edition), Volume 8, Section 4172,—and we can see no reason for shifting this inherent power from the shoreholders to the board of directors.

Section 305. Persons Bound by By-Laws. The by-laws of a business corporation shall operate merely as regulations among the members of the corporation, and shall not affect contracts or other dealings with other persons, unless such persons have actual knowledge of such by-laws. Any form of execution provided in the by-laws to the contrary notwithstanding, any note, mortgage, evidence of indebtedness, contract, or other intsrument of writing, or any assignment or endorsement thereof, executed or entered into between any corporation and any other person, copartnership, association or corporation, when signed by the president, or vice-president and secretary or treasurer of such corporation, shall be held to have been properly executed for and in behalf of the corporation.

Comments:

The Act of 1925 overruled the cases (1) which held that a person dealing with a corporation is charged with notice of the by-laws, and (2) which held that parties acting under agreements with a corporation are bound by the form of execution provided for in the by-laws or resolutions authorizing the specific contracts.

Section 306. Registered Office. Every business corporation shall have and continuously maintain in this Commonwealth a registered office which may, but need not, be the same as its place of business. The address, including street and number, if any, of the initial registered office, shall be stated in the articles of the corporation, as heretofore provided in this act.

Pennsylvania Corporation Act of 1874, Section 3, 15 PS Sec. 21.

Comments:

Under the provisions of the Corporation Act of 1874, every corporation of the second class is required tohave a "principal office" in this Commonwealth. However, unlike the laws of most states, that act does not require a domestic corporation to designate a resident or registered agent to be in charge of the principal office and to receive service of process against the corporation.

This draft makes no change in the present Pennsylvania law. This draft also does not embody the provisions of existing statutes relating to service of process upon corporations, as such provisions are contained in laws relating also to individuals, joint-stock associations, and limited partnerships.

The general tendecy of recent legislation in other jurisdictions is to provide for one or more registered agents to be appointed by the corporation to receive service of process. By some of these statutes the agent so designated is the exclusive one for service. Fletcher Cyclopedia Corporation (Permanent Edition), Volume 9, Section 4425. While this requirement may not be necessary in the case of a domestic corporation which transacts most of its business in Pennsylvania, it may be necessary in the case of nonresident corporations. It is infrequently the case that the principal business operations of a domestic corporation will be entirely outside the Commonwealth and that the corporation will have no officer or agent in the Commonwealth upon whom service can be had. In the latter case, service in Pennsylvania may be on any resident director, manager, or officer (see Act of March 15, 1847, P. L. 361, 12 PS Sec. 1309),—or if there are no resident officers, by publication(see Act of April 11, 1862, P. L. 449, 12 PS Sec. 1308.) Also, under the Act of May 10, 1923, P. L. 197, 12 PS Sec. 1311, service of process may be made against such corporations upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth, if no officer of the corporation can be found within the county.

The Act of July 9, 1901, P. L. 614, as amended by the Act of April 3, 1903, P. L. 139, 12 PS Sec. 293, permits the service of process upon the president, secretary, treasurer, cashier, chief clerk or other executive officer by several methods outlined in the act.

New Jersey and Illinois require the domestic corporation to maintain an agent in charge of the registered office, upon whom process against the corporation may be served. If for any reason service cannot be had upon the registered agent, service may be made upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth. In California and Delaware, service must be made upon the president, or, if the president resides outside of the state, upon the secretary or one of the directors, or upon the registered agent in charge of the principal office. If service cannot be had as aforesaid, service may be made upon the Secretary of State.

In view of the foregoing, discussion is invited whether Pennsylvania should require every domestic corporation to maintain a registered agent in Pennsylvania who shall be available at the registered office for any service of process, and if service cannot be had upon the registered agent then upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

It would seem fundamental that it should at all times be possible to procure service in this Commonwealth upon a domestic corporation in a simple manner which would eliminate all possibility of faulty service, as is so prevalent under existing laws.

If it should be deemed advisable that Pennsylvania corporations should designate a resident agent upon whom service of process may be had, then this draft should require the corporation to appoint such agent, but the draft should not authorize the service upon such agent. This should be done by amendment to existing statutes relating entirely to the service of process.

Section 307. Change of Registered Office. After incorporation, a change of the location of the registered office may be authorized at any time by a two-thirds vote of the board of directors. Before the change of location shall become effective, the directors shall file with the Department of State and the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office is then located a statement signed and verified by two duly authorized officers of the corporation, setting forth:

(1) The name of the corporation,

(2) The address, including street and number, if any, of its then registered office,

(3) The address, including street and number, if any, to which the registered office is to be changed,

(4) That such change was authorized by resolution duly adopted by a least two-thirds of the members of the board of directors.

If the registered office of the corporation is changed from one county to another county, then the corporation shall also file for record in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county to which such registered office is changed a copy of its articles, together with a copy of the statement of change of address of its registered office. The change of address of the registered office shall become effective upon the filing of such statement with the Department of State and the recorder of deeds.

Pennsylvania Act of June 8, 1893, P. L. 355, 15 PS Sec. 55.

Comments:

The Act of June 8, 1893, P. L. 355, permits any corporation of this Commonwealth to change the location of its principal office "by resolution of its board of directors, adopted by a two-thirds vote thereof, approved at any annual meeting or special meeting duly called of the stockholders, by a two-thirds vote thereof."

It will be noted that the Pennsylvania act requires the stockholders of the corporation to approve the change of the principal office of the corporation, and that a two-thirds vote of the stockholders is required. The Uniform Act, the laws of registered office of a domestic corporation without the approval Delaware and New Jersey, and the more recent corporation acts of most states permit the board of directors to change the of the stockholders. As there is no outstanding reason why the stockholders of the corporation should approve a change in the location of the registered ofice of a corporation, this draft, like the Uniform Act and the laws of the other states, does not require the stockholders of a corporation to approve a change of location of the registered office of a domestic corporation. This draft instead of prescribing a penalty for failing to notify the Secretary of the Commonwealth of a change in the location of the registered office, as is suggested in the Uniform Act, provides that the change in location may only be made by filing a formal statement with the Department of State.

While the Act of 1893 does not so provide, this draft requires written notice of the change of location of the registered office to be filed in the recorder of deeds' office of the county where the articles of incorporation setting forth the location of the initial registered office are filed, and in the event the registered office is moved to another county, also in the recorder of deeds' office of that county. In the later event, the corporation is also required to file its articles with that recorder of deeds, as under the scheme of this draft the articles of a corporation are to be on file in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation is at any time located.

Section 308. Corporate Records; Inspection. A. Every business corporation shall keep at its registered office records of the proceedings of the shareholders and of the directors, and the original or a copy of its by-laws, including all amendments or alterations thereto to date, certified by the secretary of the corporation, and shall keep at its registered office, or at the office of a transfer agent or registrar withing this Commonwealth, an original or a duplicate share register giving the names of the shareholders in aphabetical order, and showing their respective addresses, the number and classes of shares held by each, the number and date of certificates issued for the shares, and the number and date of cancellation of every certificate surrendered for cancellation. Every such corporation shall also keep appropriate, complete and accurate books or records of account, which may be kept at is registered office, or at its principal place of business.

B. Every shareholder shall have a rgiht to examine, in person or by agent or attorney, at any reasonable time or times, for any reasonable purpose, the share register, books and records of account, and records of the proceedings of the shareholders and directors, and make extracts therefrom.

C. A business corporation shall be liable to the Commonwealth for a penalty of Fifty Dollars ($50.00) for each day it neglects to keep or maintain any or all of the books and records required by this section.

Comments:

This section of the draft is substantially similar to Section 35 of the Uniform Act.

Under this section, a corporation must keep a share register at its registered office within this Commonwealth, unless it has a transfer agent within the Commonwealth, in which event the share register may be kept at the office of such agent. If the corporation has a transfer agent outside the Commonwealth (see Section 613 of this draft), it must keep a duplicate share register at its registered office.

The books of account, unlike the minutes, share register, etc., may be kept at that place at which the corporation is actually doing business, even though that may be outside the Commonwealth.

The provision relating to inspection of corporate books is the same as the common law rule, and the existing law in Pennsylvania. McClintock v. Young Republicans of Philadelphia, 210 Pa. 115 (1904); Commonwealth v. Pennsylvania Silk Company, et al., (No. 1), 267 Pa. 331 (1920). This provision makes the shareholders' rights and the directors' duties dependent upon the reasonableness of the motive and purpose of the shareholder. The right to inspect cannot be exercised for speculative purposes or the mere gratification of curiosity. The right to inspect may, in a proper case, be enforced by a peremptory writ of mandamus. Phoenix Iron Company v. Commonwealth, 113 Pa. 562 (1886).

The penalty provided by this section is taken from the Uniform Act, and is included solely for the purpose of discussion.

Section 309. Procelure to Increase Indebtedness of Corporation. No business corporation shall increase its indebtedness, except in the manner provided in this section. The board of directors of the corporation shall adopt a resolution setting forth the desired increase and the purpose thereof, and directing that the question of the proposed increase be submitted to a vote at an annual meeting of the shareholders or at a special meeting of the shareholders entitled to vote thereon. Written notice stating that the purpose, or one of the purposes, of such meeting is to consider the question of increasing the indebtedness of the corporation, shall be given to each shareholder at least sixty days before the date of the meeting. If such meeting be an annual meeting, such purpose may be included in a notice of such annual meeting, provided the notice is given at least sixty days before the date of the annual meeting. The resolution shall be adopted upon receiving the affirmation vote of the holders of at least a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote thereon, unless any class of shares is entitled to vote thereon as a class, in which event the proposed reslution for increase of indebtedness shall require for its adoption the affirmative vote of the holders at least a majority of the outstanding shares of each class entitled to vote thereon. In every such case, the holder of shares transferred within sixty days of any such meeting of the shareholders shall not be entitled to vote either in person or by proxy on the question of increase of indebtedness, nor shall any proxy be received or entitle the holder to vote on the question of increase of indebtedness unless the proxy shall have been executed at least sixty days before the meeting called to consider such juestion. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to apply to indebtedness contracted in the usual course of corporate business.

Pennsylvania Constitution, Article XVI, Section 7.
Pennsylvania Act of February 9, 1901, P. L. 3, as amended, 15 PS Secs, 241-246.

Comments:

This section of the draft provides a method of carrying into effect the constitutional provision that "The * * * indebtedness of corporations shall not be increased except in pursuance of general law, nor without the consent of the persons holding the larger amount in value of the stock- first obtained at a meeting to be held after sixty days notice given in pursuance of law."

This section is substantially similar to the Act of 1901, supra, except that this draft does not require: (1) The corporation to file with the Secretary of the Commonwealth a copy of the resolution authorizing an increase of indebtedness; and (2) The corporation to publish notice of the shareholder's meeting called to consider the proposed increase of indebtedness. While the filing of the resolution may have been desirable when the law placed a limitation on the indebtedness of corporation, this reason no longer exists. As an increase of indebtedness is primarily a matter between the corporation and the shareholders this draft requires written notice to be given to each shareholder at least sixty days before the meet ing called to consider the question of increase of indebtedness, instead of constructive notice by publication.

Section 310. Authority to Acquire Property at Judicial Sale. A business corporation may, at any judicial sale of any property upon which the corporation holds a mortgage or has a lien of any nature whatsoever, bid in such property if necessary for the protection of its interests. The corporation shall acquire a good and indefeasible title to any and all property so purchased, irrespective of any limitation as to the acquisition of property that may exist in its articles or in this act. All property so purchased may be held by the corporation until such time as it shall believe its advisable to dispose of the same, except that such property shall be sold within twenty years from the time it was purchased at the judicial sale. It shall be lawful to sell the property for cash or for part cash and a mortgage to run from the purchaser to the corporation. The corporation may sell such property, and convey a marketable title thereto, without the authorization or confirmation of any court.

Comments:

This section is a restatement of the Act of 1879, except that it permits the corporation to hold property purchased at a judicial sale for a period of twenty years, instead of ten years.

In the past corporations at times have been unable to sell such real estate advantageously within the ten-year period prescribed by the Act of 1879. The same situation confronted other corporations authorized by their charters or other special acts to acquire, for a limited time, real estae under execution or in satisfaction of debts. As a result, the Legislature has from time to time authorized such corporations to hold such property for a further period of five years, by the Acts of May 22, 1878, P. L. 96; May 22, 1883, P. L. 41; May 26, 1887, P. L. 274; May 18, 1893, P. L. 88; April 20, 1897, P. L. 28; and April 15, 1903, P. L. 200. In order to eliminate the necessity for the passage of such acts, this draft extends the time within which such corporations may hold such property from a period of ten years to a period of twenty years. It is submitted that a period of twenty years should be ample time within which the corporation could sell such property advantageously.

Section 311. Voluntary Transfer of Corporate Assets. A. The sale, lease or exchange of all, or substantially all, the property and assets of a corporation, when made in the usual and regular course of the business of a corporation, may be made upon such terms and conditions and for such considerations, which may consist in whole or in part of money or property, real or personal, including shares of any other other corporation, domestic or foreign, as shall be authorized by its board of directors. In every case, no authorization or consent of the shareholders shall be required.

B. A sale, lease, or exchange of all ,or substantially all, the property and assets, with or without the good will of a corporation, it not made in the usual and regular course of its business, may be made upon such terms and conditions and for such considerations which may consist, in whole or in part, of money or property, real or personal, including shares of any other corporation, domestic or foreign, as may be authorized in the manner hereinafter provided in this section. The board of directors shall adopt a resolution recommending such sale, lease or exchange, and directing the submission thereof, to a vote of the shareholders entitled to vote in respect thereof at a meeting which may be either an annual meeting of the shareholders or aspecial meeting of the shareholders entitled to vote in respect of such sale, lease, or exchange. Written notice stating that the purpose, or one of the purposes, os such meeting is to consider the sale, lease, or exchange of all or substantially all, the property and assets of the corporation, shall be given to each shareholder of record, whether or noa entitled to vote, at least twenty days prior to the date of the meeting, in the manner provided by this act for the giving of notice of meetings of shareholders. If such meeting be an annual meeting, such purpose may be included in the notice of the annual meeting. At such meeting, the shareholders may authorize the board of directors to fix, any or all of the terms and conditions thereof, and the consideration to be received by the corporation therefor. Such authorization shall receive the affirmative vote of the holders of at least a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote on the question, unles any class of shares is entitled to vote as a class on the question, in which event such authorization shall receive the affirmative vote of the holders of at least a majority of the outstanding shares of each class of shares entitled to vote as a class on the question, and at least a majority of all other outstanding shares entitled to vote thereon. After such authorization by a vote of the shareholders, the board of directors, in its discretion, may abandon such sale, lease or exchange, subject to the rights of third parties under any contracts relating thereto, without further action or approval by the shareholders.

C. Any business corporation, upon receiving the approval of its shareholders, in the manner specified in the preceeding subsection of this section, may sell, assign, dispose of and convey to any other business corporation its franchises and all its property and assets, and therafter such corporation shall cease to exist and its property and assets and franchises shall thereafter be vested in the purchasing corporation. The vendor corporation shall file wit hthe Secretary of the Commonwealth a statement, executed in duplicate originals, under the seal of the corporation, signed by at least two duly authorized officers of the corporation, and setting forth:

(1) The name of the vendor corporation and the address of its registered office.

(2) The name of the vendee corporation and the address of its registered office.

(3) A statement that the vendor corporation has agreed to sell all its franchises, property and assets to the vendee corporation. Upon the filing of such statement, the Department of State, if all fees and charges have been paid, as required by law, shall file one copy of the duplicate originals and shall send the other to the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the vendor corporation in this Commonwealth is situated, who shall record the same without fee therefor[s].

D. Nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize the conversion or exchange of assets in frau dof corporate creditors, or of minority shareholders, or shareholders without voting rights, or in violation of the act approved the twenty-third day of May, one thousand nine hundred nineteen (Pamphlet Laws, two hundred sixty-two), and its amendments and supplements, or The Fiscal Code, approved the ninth day of April, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (Pamphlet Laws, three hundred forty-three), and its amendments and supplements.

Comments:

1. This provision is new to Pennsylvania law, and is taken from Section 70 of the new Illinois act. As pointed out by the drafting committee of that act, there is no provision to this effect in the statutes of any state except Illinois and Indiana. The desirability of such a provision is obvious in certain cases, such as corporations holding or trading in securties. In such cases, it is frequently desirable to be able to dispose of all securities owned, and as this comes within the regular course of its business, shareholders' action should not be necessary.

2. This provision is new to the statutory law of Pennsylvania. It is modeled on Section 71 of the new Illinois act, and is substantially similar to Section 37 of the Uniform Act. Under this provision, one corporation may sell out its assets to another corporation, but it is made clear in Subsection D that this section doesnot authorized a transfer in fraud of corporate creditors, nor does it nullify the effect of the bulk sales and antimonopoly laws. A sale of the assets of a corporation is not usually "in the course of business," but it should be within the power of the majority to compel a sale necessary for the payment of debts. By the weight of judicial authority, a sale of corporate assets may be authorized by a vote of the majority of the shareholders when the company is insolvent, but when it is solvent, the vote must be unanimous, unless the statute otherwise provides.

It is well settled in Pennsylvania that a corporation may sell all its property and assets (except its franchises). Lauman v. The Lebanon Valley Railroad Company, 30 Pa. 42 (1858); Koehler, et al., v. St. Mary's Brewing Company, et al., 288 Pa. 648 (1910); Maxler, Appellant, v. Freeport Brank, et al., 275 Pa. 510 (1923); Ringler, Appellant, v. Atlas Portland Cement Company, et al., 301 Pa. 176 (1930). In such cases, minority shareholders cannot prevent the sale of the corporate property and assets, whether the corporation is solvent or insolvent. The minority shareholders, however, cannot be compelled to accept anything but cash for their stock. Maxler, Appellant, v. Freeport Bank, et al., supra. This provision of the draft provides a statutory procedure for the voluntary sale of the corporate property and assets, excluding its franchises, and makes no change in the existing case law.

3. Section 23 of the Corporation Act of 1874, supra, provides that "it shall be lawful for any corporation in the same manner to sell, assign, dispose of and convey to any corporation in the same manner to sell, assign, dispose of and convey to any corporation created under or accepting the provisions of this act, its franchises, and all its property, real, personal and mixed, and thereafter such corporation shall cease to exist, and the said property and franchises not inconsistent with this act, shall thereafter be vested in the corporation so purchasing as aforesaid."

Under the above section of the Corporation Act of 1874, such sales must be authorized by the shareholders of the vendor corporation in a manner similar to that prescribed for the approval by shareholders to an increase in the indebtedness of the capital stock of the corporation. Also, under the above act a return of the vote of the shareholders to the proposed sale is required to be filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

This section of the draft makes little change in existing law, except that the minimum period of notice is reduced from sixty days to twenty days, and the vendor corporation is required to file a statement with the Secretary of the Commonwealth setting forth the fact of such sale. As the corporate existence of the vendor corporation ceases upon the sale of its franchises, this draft requires the Secretary of the Commonwealth to file a copy of the statement of this fact in the office of the recorder of deeds where the original articles of the vendor corporation are on file.

Section 312. Reorganization Upon Forced Sale of Corporate Property and Franchises. A. When the franchises, property and assets of any domestic or foreign corporation, which are located in this Commonwealth, shall be sold under and by virtue of any process or decree of any court of this Commonwealth or of the United States, or under or by virtue of a power of sale contained in any mortgage or deed of trust, duly executed by the corporation, the persons for or on whose account such franchise, property and assets were purchased shall be, and they are hereby, constituted a corporation. Such corporation shall be vested with, and be entitled to exercise and enjoy, all the rights, privileges and franchises which at the time of such sale belonged to or were vested in the corporation last owning the property sold, or its receiver, and shall be subject to all the duties imposed by law on business corporations.

B. At or previous to the sale, the purchasers, or the persons for whom the purchase is to be made, may enter into a plan or agreement for, or in anticipation of, the readjustment of the respective interests of any creditors, mortgagees, shareholders, or any of them, of the corporation owning such franchises, property and assets at the time of the sale, and of holders of claims against such corporation, and for the representation of such interests in the bonds or shares of the new corporation. Such plan or agreement may provide for the regulation of the voting powers of any class or classes of shares, and may provide for and regulate voting by the holders and owners of any or all of the bonds of the old corporation, or of the bonds issued or to be issued by the new corporation. In such event, the right of voting by bondholders shall be exercised in such manner, for such period, and upon such conditions as shall be provided in the plan or agreement. Such plan or agreement shall be binding upon the new corporation. The new corporation may issue its bonds and stock in conformity with the provisions of such plan or agreement, and may at any time within six months after its organization compromise, settle or assume the payment of any debt, claim, or liability of the old corporation, or any claims against it, upon such terms as may be lawfully approved by a majority of the agents or trustees charged with the carrying out of the plan or agreement of reorganization.

C. The purchasers of the franchises, property or assets of a corporation under this section, within thirty days after conveyance of such franchises, property and assets has been made to them, shall meet and organize the new corporation. Notice of the time, place and purpose of such meeting shall be published once a week for two successive weeks prior to such meeting, in at least one newspaper published in the city or county in which the forced sale was held. At such meeting, and subject to the provisions of this act, a board of directors shall be elected, the name and seal of the corporation shall be adopted, and the amount, kinds and classes of the shares of the authorized capital stock of the new corporation shall be determined. Articles of reorganization shall then be executed in duplicate originals, under the seal of the new corporation, signed by at least two duly authorized officers thereof, and setting forth the information heretofore required in this act to be set forth in original articles of incorporation, in so far as such information is applicable, and in addition thereto the name of the corporation whose property and franchises were acquired, the law under which it was organized, the date of the judgment or decree authorizing or directing the sale, and a brief description of the property sold. Such articles shall be delivered to the Department of State. If the Department of State finds that the articles conform to law and all fees and charges have been paid, as required by law, it shall note ias approval on each duplicate original and shall file one copy thereof. The remaining duplicate original shall be returned to the new corporation, or its representative, and shall be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the new corporation is located.

Comments:

This section is substantially a restatement of existing law, except that this draft requires articles of incorporation to be filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth and to be recorded with the recorder of deeds, in the same manner as the articles of any other corporation formed under this draft.

Under Section 2 of the Act of 1878, supra, the corporation is required to file with the Secretary of the Commonwealth a certificate of reorganization, but it has been held that the new corporation is not required to file the certificate of reorganization in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which its registered office is located. Goodbread, et al., v. The Philadelphia, Bala and Bryn Mawr Turnpike Company, 13 Pa. Super. 82 (190). Under the provisions of this draft, the new corporation which is organized after a forced sale will be subject to the limitations contained in this act on the corporate name. This is not true under the existing act. Prince's Metallic Paint Company (Op. Atty. Gen.), 5 Pa. C. C. 194 (1888).

When the purchasers organize, in accordance with the requirements of the existing Act of 1861, it seems that the first corporation no longer has any legal existence. New Castle Northern Railway Company v. New Castle and Shenango Valley Railroad Company, 30 W. N. C. 507 (1892).

The law of Pennsylvania seems to be unique in constituting, as a new corporation, the purchasers of the franchises and property of a corporation at a forced sale. The laws of the other states usually provide that the purchasers may organize a corporation to carry out the franchises of the corporation whose franchises were sold at a forced sale.

Section 313. Usury Not a Defense. No business corporation shall plead or set up usury, or the taking of more than six per cent interest, as a defense to any action brought against it to recover damages on, enforce payment of, or other remedy on, any mortgage, bond, note or other obligation executed or effected by the corporation.

Section 314. Special Powers in Time of War. Comments:

The Act of 1917, supra, authorizes all domestic corporations to invest all or any part of their surplus funds in bonds of the United States government, issued for war purposes, without obtaining the consent or approval of the shareholders. The provision relating to the transacting of any lawful business in aid of the United States in the prosecution of war is taken from the Illinois act, and apears to be very desirable.

Section 315. Payment of Salaries of Employes in Military Service. Any business corporation may continue the salaries of such of its employes as may have enlisted or enrolled, or may hereafter enlist or enroll, in any branch of the military or naval service of the United States or any state thereof, or in any other organization established for the protection of the lives and property of citizens of the United States during the term of such enlistment or enrollment, or during such part thereof as such employes, by reason of such enlistment or enrollment, may be unable to perform their duties as employes of the corporation.

Section 316. Pensions for Employes. Every business corporation may grant allowances or pensions out of the earinngs of the corporation to its employes, for faithful and long-continued service, who have, in such service, become old, infirm, or disabled, but nothing herein contained shall authorize an allowance or pension to be granted to any director or officer of the corporation.

Delaware—Section 29; Michigan—Section 36.

Comments:

This provision is substantially the same as corresponding provisions in the Delaware and Michigan acts. This provision will permit bondholders of a corporation to protect their interests, and seems to be very desirable, in the absence of any limitation upon the amount of indebtedness which a corporation may incur.

Section 318. Financial Report to Shareholders. Unless the by-laws expressly provide otherwise, the directors of every corporation shall cause to be sent to the shareholders, within thirty days after the close of the fiscal or calendar year, a financial report as of the closing date of the succeeding fiscal or calendar year. Such report shall give a summary of the assets and liabilities of the corporation, the amount of dividends paid or delivered during the past year, the condition, as to surplus or deficit and how acquired or created, the number of shares issued and outstanding, together with any such particulars as are necessary to disclose the general nature of the liabilities and assets of the corporation. The report shall also set forth a balance sheet as of the closing date of the preceding fiscal or calendar year, together with a statement of income and profit and loss for the year ended on that date. The statement of income and profit and loss shall be prepared in the form ordinarily used by accountants for the particular kind of business carried on by the corporation. All such reports shall be certified by an auditor elected by the shareholders of the corporation.

Pennsylvania Corporation Act of 1874, Section 39, Clause 8.

Comments:

Section 39 of the Corporation Act of 1874 requires every manufacturing and mining corporation formed under that act to make and file with the recorder of deeds of the proper county, each year, a certified executed and sworn to by the president, treasurer, and a majority of the directors, containing certain information as to the financial condition of the company. This section of the draft is new to Pennsylvania law and appears to be very desirable. Under this provision, the financial report is required to be certified by an auditor appointed by the shareholders. Accordingly, the shareholders will have their own representative to review the activities and management of the affairs of the company.

The appointment of auditors by the shareholders would afford the former a degree of independence from the directors or management of the corporation whose trusteeship is being reviewed, and would enable the directors to bring to light conditions or policies injurious to the shareholders which might not come to their attention if auditors were appointed by the management.

DIRECTORS AND OFFICERS

Section 401. Board of Directors. The business and affairs of every business corporation shall be managed by a board of at least three directors[1], who need not be residents of this Commonwealth[2] or shareholders in the corporation[3], unless the articles or by-laws so require. Each director shall hold office for the term for which he is elected and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified[4]. The names and terms of office of the first directors shall be stated in the articles[5]. Except as hereinafter provided in this article, in the case of vacancies[6], directors other than those constituting the first board of directors shall be elected by the shareholders. A business corporation may allow compensation to its directors for their services, and a director may also be a salaried officer of the corporation[7].

Act of May 17, 1917, P. L. 228, 15 PS Sec. 54.

Comments:

1. Section 5, Paragraph 2, of the Corporation Act of 1874, as amended, 15 PS Sec. 43, provides that the board of directors shall not be less than three. The Act of April 19, 1901, P. L. 80, 15 PS Sec. 45, also provides that the board of directors shall not be less than three.

As is pointed out in a note to the Uniform Act, in forty states and territories the minimum number of directors is fixed at three; in Washington, the minimum is two; and in the Philippine Islands, Tennessee and West Virginia it is five. Thirty-two states put no maximum upon the allowable number of directors, but in fourteen the maximum is fixed at numbers ranging from nine to thirty. In Arizona, Iowa, Rhode Island and Nebraska the number and qualifications of directors is left for the determination of the stockholders in the articles of incorporation or by-laws.

2. States which have recently revised their corporation laws do not require directors to be residents of the state of incorporation. There are at least twenty-six states in which there is no such requirement.

The Act of March 31, 1887, P. L. 281, 15 PS Sec. 44, which authorized the stockholders to determine the time of the annual election and the number of directors, contains a provision: "that at least one-third of the directors of every corporation shall be and remain during their term of service, residents of the to any corporation theretofore incorporated unless the corpostate of Pennsylvania." This act, however, would not apply ration accepted the act and the provisions of the Constitution. In turn, the Act of April 19, 1901, P. L. 80, 15 PS Sec. 45, authorized the stockholders to increase or diminish the number of directors. This act does not contain the residence qualification found in the Act of 1887. Accordingly, in Pennsylvania, only those business corporations which accepted the Act of 1887 are required to have directors who are residents of the Commonwealth.

The requirement in this draft that every domestic business corporation shall at all times maintain a registered office in this Commonwealth makes it unnecessary that all or part of the directors of a domestic business corporation should be residents of Pennsylvania.

3. In Pennsylvania, the directors need not be stockholders unless the charter so provides,—Coe v. Leckrone Coke Company, Carothers and Lenhart, 30 Pa. C. C. 113 (1904). The Uniform Act and the laws of at least nine states specifically provide that the directors need not be shareholders unless the articles so require.

4. It is provided in Section 5 of the Corporation Act of 1874, as amended, 15 PS Sec. 43, that "The directors or trustees shall be chosen annually by the stockholders or members, at the time fixed by the by-laws, and shall hold their office until others are chosen and qualified in their stead." A similar provision is found in practically all the corporation acts of other states.

5. As pointed out in the Uniform Act, states are now divided between the practice of naming the first directors in the articles and the practice of having no directors until the first ones are elected after incorporation. The first practice seems preferable. The incorporators cease to be incorporators and become shareholders immediately upon incorporation. A corporation cannot act through its shareholders, but only through its board of directors; therefore, it ought to be equipped with a board of directors the moment it comes into existence. A similar practice prevails in Pennsylvania under the Act of 1874, which requires that the certificate of incorporation must set forth, inter alia: "The number of its directors and the names and residences of those who are chosen directors for the first year." The purpose of this requirement is merely to show an organization in proper form for incorporation, and not to restrict to the individuals named in the certificate, the personnel of the board of directors during the first year after the creation of the corporation. Accordingly, a Pennsylvania corporation may, during the first year, elect directors in place of those named in the certificate,—Commonwealth, et al., v. Helms, et al., 8 Pa. C. . 410 (1890). This provision of the draft will make no change in the existing Pennsylvania practice.

6. See Section 402 (3).

7. The Act of May 17, 1917, P. L. 228, 15 PS Sec. 54, authorizes directors of corporations to receive compensation for their services, and the Act of May 20, 1891, P. L. 101, 15 PS Sec. 53 authorizes salaried officers to serve as directors.

Section 402. Number, Qualifications and Election of Directors. Subject to the provisions of this act, the number, qualifications, terms of office, manner of election, time and place of meeting, compensation, and powers and duties of the directors may be prescribed from time to time by the by-laws. Except as otherwise provided in the by-laws:

(1) A director shall be elected for a term of one year[1].

(2) The number of directors shall be the same as that stated in the articles[2].

(3) Vacancies in the board of directors shall be filled by the remaining members of the board, and each person so elected shall be a director until his successor is elected by the shareholders, who may make such election at the next annual meeting of the shareholders or at any special meeting duly called for that purpose and held prior thereto[3].

(4) The meetings of the board of directors may be held at such place within this Commonwealth, or elsewhere, as a majority of the directors may from time to time appoint[4].

(5) A majority of the directors shall be necessary to constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, and the acts of a majority of the directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present shall be the acts of the board of directors: Provided, That if the directors shall severally or collectively consent in writing to any action to be taken by the corporation, such action shall be as valid corporate action as though it had been authorized at a meeting of the board of directors.[5]

(6) The board of directors may, by resolution passed by a majority of the whole board, delegate two or more of its number to constitute an executive committee which, to the extent provided in such resolution, shall have and exercise the authority of the board of directors in the management of the business of the corporation[6].

Comments:

1. See Section 403, infra.

2. Section 204 requires the articles to set forth the number, names and addresses of the first directors of the corporation. After incorporation, the shareholders may change the number of directors from time to time by the adoption of a by-law, but until they do so, the number stated in the articles will govern. This provision was taken from Section 33 of the Illinois act.

3. Section 9 of the Corporation Act of 1874 provides: "In case of the death, removal or resignation of the president or any of the directors, treasurer, or other officer of any such company, the remaining directors may supply the vacancy thus created until the next election." The proposed provision is a re-enactment of existing law, in so far as directors are concerned. A similar provision pertaining to the filling of vacancies among the officers may be found under Section 405, infra.

4. The Act of November 27, 1865, P. L. (1866), 1228, 15 PS Sec. 59, provides that where the majority of directors, incorporators, or stockholders of a company are citizens of another state, all meetings, except annual elections for officers, may be held in such place, whether in this State or elsewhere, as such majority may from time to time appoint. This draft will permit the directors to hold their meetings either within or outside of Pennsylvania.

Section 5. Section 5, Paragraph 2, of the Corporation Act of 1874, as amended, 15 PS Sec. 43, provides that: "a majority of * * * directors or trustees shall be necessary to constitute a quorum."

It is also the common law rule that a majority is necessary to constitute a quorum, and that is the number usually required by statute in the absence of a contrary provision in the articles of incorporation or by-laws.

The proviso to the proposed provision is taken from Section 13 (4) (d) of the Michigan act, and appears to be desirable in the case of business corporations.

6. This provision, which is taken from Section 31 of the Uniform Act, is found in the corporation laws of most states and appears to be very desirable for business corporations. The demands of modern business require many matters of importance to be acted upon promptly. Except where the board is small and all members readily available, it is frequently impossible to procure the requisite board action without undue delay.

Section 403. Classification of Directors. If the articles or by-laws of a business corporation so provide, the directors of the corporation may be classified in respect to the time for which they shall severally hold office. In such case, each class shall be as nearly equal in number as possible, the term of office of at least one class shall expire in each year, and the members of a class shall not be elected for a shorter period than one year, or for a longer period than four years. At each ensuing election of directors after such classification, only the number of directors equal to the number of the class whose terms expire at the time of the election shall be elected, and such directors shall be elected for the longest term for which any class may have been elected, as hereinbefore provided in this section.

Comments:

While this provision is not contained in the Uniform Act, it is contained in the laws of many states, including Pennsylvania. The purpose of such classification is that the terms of all the directors shall not expire at the same time, the directors of one class only being elected each year.

While the present statute of Pennsylvania permits classification of directors by a majority vote of the shareholders, this draft, like the laws of the other states, permits classification of the directors only if the articles or by-laws so provide. This draft, like the present acts of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, permits directors to be classified into four classes. Some states, particularly Delaware, and Illinois, permit the classification of directors into not more than three classes. Also, the new Illinois act permits classifications of directors only if the corporation has nine or more directors.

Section 404. Notice of Directors' Meetings. Many of the board of directors shall be held upon such notice as the by-laws may prescribe. Attendance of a director at any meeting shall constitute a waiver of notice of such meeting, except where a director attends a meeting for the express purpose of objecting to the transactions of any business because the meeting was not lawfully called or convened. Neither the business to be transacted at, nor the purpose of, any meeting need be specified in the notice or waiver of notice of such meeting.

Comments:

A general provision that notice of any meeting of directors may be waived in writing by any director is contained in Section 8 of this draft.

Section 405. Officers and Agents. Every business corporation shall have a president, a secretary, and a treasurer, and may have such other officers and assistant officers and agents as the needs of the corporation may require. The officers, assistant officers and agent shall be elected or appointed either by the board of directors or by the shareholders, at such time, in such manner, and for such terms as the by-laws may prescribe[1]. It shall not be necessary for the officers, except the president, to be directors, but a vice president who is not a director shall not succeed to or fill the office of president[2]. If the by-laws so provide, any two or more offices may be held by the same person, except the offices of president and secretary. The board of directors may secure the fidelity of any or all of such officers by bond or otherwise. Unless otherwise provided in the by-laws, the board of directors shall have power to fill any vacancies in any office occurring from whatever reason[3]. All officers and agents of the corporation, as between themselves and the corporation, shall have authority and perform such duties in the management of the property and affairs of the corporation as may be provided in the by-laws, or, in the absence of controlling provisions in the by-laws, as may be determined by resolution of the board of directors[4].

Comments:

1. It is provided by Section 5 of the Corporation Act of 1874, as amended, 15 PS Sec. 43, that "The business of every corporation created hereunder, or accepting the same, shall be managed and conducted by a president, a board of directors or trustees, a secretary or clerk, a treasurer, and such other officers, agents and factors as the corporation authorizes for that purpose * * *, and * * * the choice or appointment of all * * * agents and officers of the company, shall be prescribed by the by-laws." Under that act, the by-laws may authorize either the shareholders or the board of directors to elect the officers of a corporation. This draft also permits the officers of a corporation to be elected either by the directors or the shareholders, as may be provided in the by-laws. On the other hand, the Uniform Act, the new Illinois act, and some of the recent corporation acts of other states, confer absolute authority in the board of directors to elect the officers of a corporation.

2. It is further provided by Section 5 of the Corporation Act of 1874 that one of the directors "shall be chosen president by the directors, or by the members of the corporation, as the by-laws shall direct." This draft restates this requirement. A similar requirement is contained in the Uniform Act and the laws of many other states.

3. Section 9 of the Corporation Act of 1874 provides that: "In case of the death, removal or resignation of the president or any of the directors, treasurer, or other oqicer of any such company, the remaining directors may supply the vacancy thus created until the next election."

4. This provision is taken from Section 32 (III) of the Uniform Act.

Section 406. Removal of Officers. Any officer or agent elected or appointed by the board of directors may be removed by the board of directors whenever in its judgment the best interests of the corporation will be served thereby, but such removal shall be without prejudice to the contract rights, if any, of the person so removed.

Comments:

The general rule is that officers selected by the directors may be removed by them without any cause being assigned. Brindley, Appellant, v. Walker, 221 Pa. 287 (1908); Spahn, Appellant, v. Bielefeld and Spahn Company, et al., 256 Pa. 543 (1917). If an officer lawfully elected has been improperly removed, mandamus will lie to prevent his further exclusion from office. Spahn v. Bielefeld and Spahn Company, supra; also, Riddell v. The Harmoney Fire Company, 3 Phill. 310 (1871).

Section 407. Relation of Directors and Officers to Corporation. Officers and directors shall be deemed to stand in a fiduciary relation to the corporation, and shall discharge the duties of their respective positions in good faith and with that diligence, care and skill which ordinarily prudent men would exercise under similar circumstanecs in like positions.

References:

Uniform Act—Section 33; Michigan—Section 47.

Comments:

According to a note contained under this section in the Uniform Act, the section is necessary in view of the unsettled state of the case law upon the question of the relation of directors to the corporation. Some cases liken the relation of directors to the corporation to that of a trustee to a cestui que trust (Bent v. Priest, 86 Mo. 475); other cases liken directors to mandataries (Spering's Appeal, 71 Pa. 11 (1872); The Citizens Building, Loan and Savings Association of Plainfield v. Coriell, et al., of N. J. Eq. 383 (1881); still other cases hold that directors are agents of the corporation (Ten Eyck v. R. R., 74 Mich. 227; Briggs v. Spaulding, 141 U. S. 132 (1891); Hun v. Carey, 82 N. Y. 65 (1880)). There is a conflict also in the decisions as to whether directors should use that degree of care that the ordinarily prudent man would use in his own business (Hun v. Carey, supra; Hanna v. Lyon, 179 N. Y. 107 (1904); Kavanaugh v. Commonwealth Trust Company, 223 N. Y. 103), or that amount of care that an ordinarily prudent director would use (Briggs v. Spaulding, supra; Allen v. Roydhouse, 232 Fed. 1010 (1916); Stone v. Rottman, 183 Mo. 552 and Spering's Appeal, supra). The draftsman of the Uniform Act states that the weight of authority supports the rule adopted in this draft, and that this rule is the most fair and the most practicable.

The proposed section will effect a change in Pennsylvania law. Back in 1872, Judge Sharswood, in Spering's Appeal, supra, said: "It is by no means a well-settled point what is the precise relation which directors sustain to stockholders. They are undoubtedly said in many authorities to be trustees, but that as I apprehend is only in a general sense, as we term an agent or any bailee intrusted with the care and management of the property of another. It is certain that they are not technical trustees. They can only be regarded as mandataries—persons who have gratuitously undertaken to perform certain duties, and who are therefore bound to apply ordinary skill and diligence, but no more."

Since directors receiving no compensation are treated as gratuitous mandataries, it is held in Pennsylvania that they are required to exercise only ordinary skill and diligence, and are personally liable only for fraud or for such gross negligence as amounts to fraud, and for acts clearly ultra vires. Spering's Appeal, supra.

In Commonwealth v. Anchor Building and Loan Association, 20 Pa. Super. 101 (1902), it was stated: "This rule of law is based upon the fact that directors are gratuitous mandatories. * * * the insignificant payments to directors when attending meetings of the board, were not compensation and did not change the measure of duty and liability of the directors."

In Swentzel v. Penn Bank, 147 Pa. 140 (1892), Judge Paxson, in reiterating the rule of ordinary care laid down in Spering's Appeal, stated: "The ordinary care of a business man in his own affairs means one thing; the ordinary care of a gratuitous mandatory is quite another matter. The one implies an oversight and knowledge of every detail of his business; the other suggests such care only as a man give in a short space of time to the business of other persons, from whom he receives no compensation. * * * care must be taken that we do not hold mere gratuitous mandatories to such a severe rule as to drive all honest men out of such positions."

From the foregoing, it is obvious that in Pennsylvania today a director is held to but the ordinary skill and diligence of a director in the business of the corporatoin and not to the ordinary skill and diligence which a man takes of his own business.

Pennsylvania Act of April 18, 1919, P. L. 67, 15 PS Sec. 593.

Comments:

In view of the doubt existing in Pennsylvania prior to the Act of 1919, as to the eligibility of a married woman to act as incorporator, director, or officer of a corporation for profit, it seems advisable to include the provisions of the Act of 1919 in this draft. See Section 201, which makes married women eligible to be incorporators.

ARTICLE V

SHAREHOLDERS' MEETINGS, RIGHTS, AND LIABILITIES

Section 501. Meeting of Shareholders.—A. Meeting of shareholders may be held at such place within or without this Commonwealth as may be provided in the by-laws. Unless the by-laws provide otherwise, all meetings of the shareholders shall be held in this Commonwealth at the registerd offic of the corporation[1].

B. The by-laws may provide for the number and the time of meetings of shareholders, but at least one meeting of the shareholders shall be held in each calendar year for the election of directors, at such time as shall be provided in the by-laws[2]. Failure to hold the annual meeting at the designated time shall not work any forfeiture or dissolution of the corporation. If the annual meeting shall not be called and held within six months after the designated time, any shareholder may call such meeting[3].

C. Special meetings of the shareholders may be called at any time by the president, the board of directors, the holders of not less than one-fifth of all the shares outstanding and entitled to vote at the particular meeting, and by such other officers or persons as may be provided in the articles or by-laws. At any time, upon written request of any person entitled to call a special meeting, it shall be the duty of the secmore than sixty days after the receipt of the request. If the retary to call a special meeting of the shareholders, to be held at such time as the secretary may fix, not less than ten nor secretary shall neglect or refuse to issue such call, the person or prsons making the request shall do so[4].

D. Adjournment or adjournments of any annual or special meeting may be taken, but any meeting at which directors are to be elected shall be adjourned only from day to day until such directors have been elected[5].

Act of March 30, 1921, P. L. 54, 15 PS Secs. 57-58.

Comments:

1. This provision makes a change in the Pennsylvania law. Under the Act of 1865, supra, where the majority of directors or stockholders of a company are citizens of another state, all corporate meetings, except annual elections for officers, may be held outside of the Commonwealth. In all other cases, corporate meetings of Pennsylvania corporations must be held within Pennsylvania.

This draft, like the Uniform Act and the laws of most other states, including those of Delaware, Maryland, New York and New Jersey, permits meetings of shareholders to be held outside of the state of incorporation, if the by-laws so provide. There is no advantage in compelling such meetings to be held within the state of incorporation. On the contrary, this requirement has given rise to many conflicting judicial views regarding the validity of meetings irregularly held outside of the state of incorporation. See Fletcher Cyclopedia Corporations (Permanent Edition), Volume 5, Section 2003.

Under this act, the time and place of the annual meeting is required to be fixed by the by-laws, and, accordingly, may be changed from time to time by an amendment of the by-laws. Formerly, many corporations specified in their charters the time and place of the annual meetings. In order to permit a change of the time and place of such meetings without the formality of amending the charter, numerous acts, the last of which was the Act of 1921, supra, were passed to enable such corporations to effect such a change by resolution or by a by-law duly adopted with the approval of the shareholders.

2. Section 5 of the Corporation Act of 1874, supra, provides that the by-laws "shall prescribe the time and place of meeting of the corporation." Under existing law, directors are required to be elected annually, unless they are divided into different classes See Section 402 (1) and Section 403 of this draft for election of directors.

3. This provision is inserted to prevent an intrenched board of directors from remaining intrenched by refusing to call the meeting designated in the by-laws for the election of directors. In Strember v. St. Mary's Pipe Company, et al., 33 Pa. 46 (1906), it was held that where an annual meeting regularly called for the election of directors is allowed to go by default, and no by-laws give the president or secretary authority to call such meeting, those officers cannot be compelled by mandamus to comply with a notice signed by a majority in number and amount of the stockholders to cal a meeting of stockholders to elect directors. The Uniform Act permits any stockholder to call such a meeting after eighteen months have been allowed to elapse. This draft permits any stockholder to call such a meeting after six months have elapsed.

4. This provision is substantially similar to Section 27 (11) of the Uniform Act, and it clearly provides that the president, the board of directors, or shareholders holding at least one-fifth of the outstanding shares of the corporation may call a special meeting. The by-laws may also provide for other officers to call such meetings.

5. This provision is taken from Section 27 (III) of the Uniform Act and expresses the general rule on adjournments of meetings of shareholders. See Savidge on Pa. Corps., Volume 1, Section 729, Page 596. The provision relating to the adjournment of meetings called for the purpose of electing directors is intended to insure the election of directors by preventing indefinite adjournments.

Section 502. Notice of Meetings of Shareholders. Written notice of every meeting of the shareholders shall be given, by or at the direction of the person authorized to call the meeting, to each shareholder of record entitld to vote at the meeting, at least five days prior to the day named for the meeting, unless a greater period of notice is required elsewhere in this act in a particular case. The notice shall specify the place, day and hour of the meeting, and, in the case of a special meeting, the general nature of the business to be transacted, and may be given to any shareholder, either personally or by sending a copy thereof through the mail, or by telegram, charges prepaid, to his address appearing on the books of the corporation, or supplied by him to the corporation for the purpose of notice. If the notice is sent by mail, or by telegraph, it shall be deemed to have been given to the shareholder when deposited in the United States mail or with a telegraph office for transmission to the shareholder. When a meeting is adjourned, it shall not be necessary to give any notice of the adjourned meeting or of the business to be transacted at an adjourned meeting, other than by announcement at the meeting at which such adjournment is taken, unless otherwise provided in the by-laws.

Comments:

There is no general statutory provision in Pennsylvania on the subject of notice. Particular statutes prescribe the period of notice required of meetings called for increasing capital stock or indebtedness, for amending charters, or for merger or consolidation proceedings, and the like.

Generally speaking, the by-laws, in the absence of statutory regulation, usually provide how much notice shall be given in advance of a meeting. If the statute and the by-laws both are silent on the subject, the notice must be given a reasonable time before the day of the meeting. The Mercantile Library Hall Company v. The Pittsburgh Library Association, et al., 173 Pa. 30 (1896). This draft prescribes a minimum period of five days.

Unless unusual business is to be transacted, it is not necessary for notice of a regular meeting to specify the object of the meeting, but the notice of a special meeting must specify the character of the business to be transacted. Bagley v. Reno Oil Company, 201 Pa. 78 (1902). Unless the by-laws otherwise provide, stockholders are not entitled to any notice of an adjournment meeting other than that implied in the adjournment. Savidge on Pa. Corps., Volume 1, Section 729.

Section 8 of this draft permits the waiver of notice of a shareholders' meeting.

Section 503. Quorum of Shareholders. A shareholders' meeting duly called shall not be organized for the transaction of business unless a quorum is present. Unless otherwise provided in the articles:

(1) The present, in person or by proxy, of the holders of a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote shall constitute a quorum[1].

(2) The shareholders present at a duly organized meeting can continue to do business until adjournment, notwithstanding the withdrawal of enough shareholders to leave less than a quorum.[2]

(3) If a meeting cannot be organized because a quorum has not attended, those present may, except as otherwise provided in this act, adjourn the meeting to such time and place as they may determine, but in the case of any meeting called for the election of directors, those who attend the second of such adjourned meetings, although less than a quorum as fixed in this section or in the articles, shall nevertheless constitute a quorum for this purpose of electing directors[3].

Pennsylvania Corporation Act of 1874, Section 6, 15 PS Sec. 60.

Comments:

1. This provision is taken from Section 30 (II) of the Uniform Act and is substantially similar to Section 6 of the Corporation Act of 1874. Unlike the Act of 1874, this draft requires the articles, instead of the by-laws, to specify the requirements of a quorum, if the corporators desire a greater number than a majority to constitute a kuorum.

A note to the Uniform Act points out that prevailing practice is to leave to the shareholders the determination of what constitutes a quorum, by provision either in the charter or by-laws, but in view of the conflict in the case law on the question of what constitutes a majority, it seems best to have the matter regulated by statute subject to control by shareholders to meet their particular requirements, such control to be expressed in the articles of incorporation rather than in the by-laws.

2. This provision is also taken from Section 30 of the Uniform Act and is consistent with the Pennsylvania view that a meeting properly constituted cannot be deprived of the right to transact the business for which it was called by the refusal of certain members present to participate therein, or by their capricious withdrawal. Commonwealth v. Vandegrift, 232 Pa. 53 (1911); Lutz v. Webster, 249 Pa. 226 (1915). A few other states, representing the minority view on this point, hold that there must be a quorum present at the time of voting. Bridgers v. Staton, 150 N. C. 216.

3. This provision is taken from Section 30 (11) (c) of the Uniform Act. The purpose of this provision is to insure the election of directors by preventing indefinite adjournments, or by preventing the majority from defeating a quorum by failing to attend the meeting. Without the latter part of this provision, an intrenched board of directors could prevent the holding of an election.

As pointed out in a note to the Uniform Act, the provisions of this subdivision should accelerate the settlement of controversies over management and accord to any minority group of shareholders the right of such preferential representation on the board of directors as their shares entitle them to. It is provided by statute in New York (Section 30, G. C. L.), that if directors are not elected at a regular meeting, a special meeting may be called, and at such special meeting "the members attending shall constitute a quorum."

Section 504. Shareholders May Vote in Person or by Proxy. Except as otherwise provided in the articles and this act, every shareholder of record shall have the right, at every shareholders' meeting, to one vote for every share standing in his name on the books of the corporation. Every shareholder may vote either in person or by proxy executed in writing by the shareholder, or by his duly authorized attorney in fact, and filed with the secretary of the corporation. A proxy, unless coupled with an interest, shall be revocable at will, notwithstanding any other agreement or any provision in the proxy to the contrary, but the revocation of a proxy shall not be effective until notice thereof has been given to the secretary of the corporation. No unrevoked proxy shall be valid after eleven months from the date of its execution, unless a longer time is expressly provided therein, but in no vent shall a proxy, unless coupled with an interest, be voted on after three years from the date of its execution. A proxy shall not be revoked by the death of incapacity of the maker unless before the vote is counted or the authority is exercised, written notice of such death or incapacity is given to the secretary of the corporation. A shareholder shall not sell his vote or execute a proxy to any person for any sum of money or anything of value.

Comments:

This section of the draft is modeled on Section 28 (IV) of the Uniform Act, and is substantially similar to the Act of 1903, supra, except that it changes the time limit on proxies. Under existing law, the statutory time limit of a proxy is two months. Under this draft, and the Uniform Act, the validity of a proxy that contains no time limit contained in the proxy will be given effect up to, but not exceeding three years.

As pointed out in a note to the Uniform Act, the statutory time limit on the validity of proxies varies. In Delaware, New Jersey, and North Carolina, it is three years from the date of execution; in New York, Illinois, Connecticut and California, it is eleven months; in Maine and Maryland, it is ninety days. In the great majority of states, the statutory limitation is made to control only in the absence of a period of validity being named in the proxy itself. In a small minority of states, it is provided that the validity of a proxy cannot, by its own terms be made to exceed the period limited by statute.

Section 505. Elections of Directors; Cumulative Voting. Unless otherwise provided in the by-laws, elections for directors need not be by ballot, except upon demand made by a shareholder at the election and before the voting begins. In all elections for directors every shareholder shall have the right, in person or by proxy, to multiply the number of votes to which he may be entitled by the number of directors to be elected, and he may cast the whole number of such votes for more candidates. The candidates receiving the highest number of votes up to the number of directors shall be elected.

Comments:

In Pennsylvania, the right to cumulative voting is conferred and guaranteed by Article XVI, Section 4, of the Constiution. This right is also expressly confered by the Act of 1876, supra. This section of the draft is taken from Section 28 (III) of the Uniform Act.

Section 506. Voting by Trustees and Pledgees. Shares standing in the name of a trustee appointed by deed or by the court of common pleas[1], or shares held by an assignee for the benefit of creditors, or by a receiver, may be voted either in person or by proxy of the trustee, assignee or receiver. A shareholder whose shares are pledged shall be entitld to vote thereon, in person or by proxy, until the shares have been transferred on the books of the corporation to the pledgee, and thereafter the pledge shall be entitled to vote the shares in person or by proxy[2].

Comments:

1. The voting of shares by fiduciaries, subject to the orphans' court, is now covered by Section 43 of the Fiduciaries Act of 1917, which is a restatement of Section 1 of the Act of 1905, supra, which formerly governed the voting of shares by all fiduciaries. The Fiduciaries Act repealed the Act of 1905, only in so far as it related to fiduciaries subject to the jurisdiction of the orphans' court, as the "act of 1905 is apparently intended to include trustees appointed by the common pleas, though it makes no provision as to trustees appointed by deed." Report of Commission Appointed to Codify and Revise the Law of Decedents' Estates (1917) Page 209.

While practically all corporation statutes have provisions covering voting rights of fiduciaries, Section 43 of the Fiduciaries Act of 1917 was not embodied in this draft, as it was deemed unwise to mutilate that act. Accordingly, this section of the draft applies only to fiduciaries not subject to the jurisdiction of the orphans' court.

2. This provision is taken from Section 28 (V) of the Uniform Act, and makes a change in existing law. Section 3 of the Act of 1893, supra, directs that as between a pledgee and pledgor of shares, the pledgor shall be entitled to vote the shares unless the agreement provides otherwise. Under the Uniform Act, and this draft, the pledgor may not vote the shares as long as they are registered in his name on the books of the corporation; otherwise, the pledgee may vote them.

Section 507. Voting by Joint Holders of Shares. Where shares are held jointly by three or more persons, the will of the majority of such persons shall control the manner of voting or the giving of a proxy. If only one of such persons is present in person or by proxy, he shall have the right to vote all such shares, and all of the shares standing in the names of such persons shall be deemed to be represented for the purpose of determining a quorum. The same shall be true in the case of trustees appointed by deed, or by the court of common pleas, unless the instrument or decree of court appointing them otherwise directs. Where in any case such trustees are equally divided upon the manner of voting the shares jointly held by them, it shall be lawful for the court of common pleas, upon petition filed by any of the trustees, or by any beneficiary, to direct the voting of such shares in the manner which, in the opinion of the court, will be for the best interests of the parties beneficially interested in the shares.

Comments:

The provisions of this section relating to voting by joint holders, other than trustees, were taken from Section 320 (c) of the new California ct. Shares standing in the name of a firm on the books of a corporation may be voted by any partner, but if the partners disagree as to the vote, neither can vote the stock. The same is true where shares are owned by two or more persons jointly. Fletcher Cyclopedia Corporations (Permanent Edition), Volume 5, Section 2038; Savidge on Pa. Corps., Volume 1, Section 758.

In regard to executors, administrators, guardians, and trustees, the Act of 1905, supra, and Section 43 of the Fiduciaries Act of 1917, permit a majority of such fiduciaries to determine how shares held jointly by them may be voted. The Act of 1905 was repealed by the Fiduciaries Act of 1917 in so far as it related to fiduciaries under the jurisdiction of the orphans' court. Accordingly, the Act of 1905 now applies only to trustees appointed by deed or by the court of common pleas. This distinction is maintained by this section of the draft.

The provision authorizing a petition to the court by trustees in a deadlock is similar to a provision in Section 43 of the Fiduciaries Act of 1917, permitting fiduciaries who cannot agree to petition the orphans' court for advice.

Section 508. Voting Shares Held by Corporation. A corporation owning shares in another corporation may vote the same by its president, or by proxy appointed by him, unless some other person, by resolution of its board of directors, shall be appointed to vote such shares, in which case such person shall be entitled to vote the shares upon the production of a certified copy of such resolution. Shares of its own capital stock belonging to a corpoartion shall not be voted, directly or indirectly, at any meeting, and shall not be counted in determining the total number of outstanding shares at any given time, but shares of its own capital stock held by it in a fiduciary capacity may be voted and shall be counted in determining the total number of outstanding shares at any given time.

Comments:

This section is taken from Subsections (VI) and (VII) of Section 28 of the Uniform Act, and is substantially similar to the Act of 1901, supra, which provides that a corporation which owns the stock of another corporation "may exercise all the rights, powers and privileges of ownership, including the right to vote thereon."

The authority of a corporation to hold shares in another corporation will be found in Section 302 (6) of this draft.

The provision prohibiting a corporation from voting its own shares is the common law rule (14 C. J. 904), and many of the corporation laws of the states contain a similar provision.

Section 509. Determination of Shareholders of Record. Unless the by-laws otherwise provide, the board of directors may fix a time, not less than ten or more than forty days, prior to the date of any meeting of shareholders, or the date fixed for the payment of any dividend or distribution, or the date for the allotment of rights, or the date when any change or conversion or exchange of shares will be made or go into effect, as a record date for the determination of the shareholders entitled to notice of, and to vote at, any such meeting, or entitled to receive payment of any such dividend or distribution, or to receive any such allotment of rights, or to exercise the rights in respect to any such change, conversion or exchange of shares. In such case, only the shareholders of record on the date so fixed shall be entitled to notice of, and to vote at, such meeting, or to receive payment of such dividend, or to receive such allotment of rights, or to exercise such rights, as the case may be, notwithstanding any transfer of any shares on the books of the corporation after any record date fixed, as aforesaid. The board of directors may close the books of the corporation against transfers of shares during the whole or any part of such period, and in such case written or printed notice thereof shall be mailed at least ten days before the closing thereof to each shareholder of record at the address appearing on the records of the corporation or supplied by him to the corporation for the purpose of notice. While the stock transfer books of the corporation are closed, no transfer of shares shall be made thereon[1]. Unless a record date is fixed by the by-laws or the board of directors for the determination of shareholders entitled to receive notice of, or vote at, a shareholders' meeting transferees of shares which are transferred on the books of the corporation within ten days next preceding the date of such meeting shall not be entitled to notice of or to vote at such meeting[2]. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to abridge the constitutional requirements of sixty days' notice of a meeting called for the purpose of increasing the authorized capital stock or indebtedness of a corporation or to deprive anyone who was a shareholder of record, sixty days prior to the meeting, or his right to vote at the meeting[3].

Pennsylvania Act of April 30, 1929, P. L. 903, 15 PS Secs. 140-142.

Comments:

1. This part of this section of the draft is taken from Section 28 (I) of the Uniform Act, and is substantially similar to the Act of 1929, supra.

2. This provision is taken from the new Indiana and Michigan corporation acts, and appears to be desirable in view of Section 502 of this draft, which provides that a shareholder must receive at least five days' notice of a shareholders' meeting, and Section 510, which requires a voting list to be prepared at least five days before a meeting.

3. This provision appears necessary in view of Article XVI, Section 7, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, which requires sixty days' notice to be given of a meeting called to consider an increase of the capital stock or indebtedness of a corporation. In this respect, the Act of 1929, supra, provides "No transfer or transfers of shares of such corporations, within sixty days of any election or meeting of stockholders, shall deprive the holder of said shares of the right to vote in respect of the same at such election or meeting, if otherwise entitled thereto."

Section 510. Voting Lists. The officer or agent having charge of the transfer books for shares of a corporation shall make, at least five days before each meeting of shareholders, a complete list of the shareholders entitled to vote at the meeting, arrangd in alphabetical order, with the address of and the number of shares held by each, which list shall be kept on file at the registered office of the corporation and shall be subject to inspection by any shareholder at any time during usual business hours. Such list shall also be produced and kept open at the time and place of the meeting, and shall be subject to the inspection of any shareholder during the whole time of the meeting. The original share ledger or transfer book, or a duplicate thereof kept in this Commonwealth, shall be prima facie evidence as to who are the shareholders entitled to examine such list or share ledger or transfer book, or to vote, in person, or by proxy, at any meeting of shareholders. An officer or agent having charge of the transfer books who shall fail to prepare the list of shareholders, or keep the same on file for a period of five days, or produce and keep the same open for inspection at any meeting, as provided in this section, shall be liable to any shareholder suffering damages on account of such failure, to the extent of such damages.

Comments:

This section is new to Pennsylvania law, and is taken from Section 31 of the Illinois Business Corporation Act. A substantially similar provision is found in the statutes of many states, including New Jersey, Delaware, Illinois and Michigan. Some states, like Delaware, require a list to be prepared only in the case of an election of directors. There seems to be no reason why such a list should not be prepared prior to every meeting of shareholders, and this draft so provides. Under this section, as under the Act of 1889, supra, the transfer books are prima facie evidence of the shareholder's right to vote, but the certificate of stock is not such evidence. Therefore, if the stock list omits a name which the stock book or ledger shows, the record holder is entitled to vote.

Section 511. Voting Trusts. A. Two or more shareholders of any business corporation may, by agreement in writing, transfer their shares to any person or persons, or to a domestic or foreign corporation or corporations having authority to act as trustee, for the purpose of vesting in the transferee or transferees all voting or other rights pertaining to such shares for a period not exceeding ten years, and upon the terms and conditions stated in the agreement. An unexecuted copy of the agreement shall be filed in the registered office of the corporation and shall be open daily during business hours, to the inspection of any shareholder, or any transferor under the agreement, or the attorney of any shareholder or transferor.

B. Upon the filing of the agreement, the share certificates of shares so transferred shall be surrendered and cancelled, and new certificates therefor shall be issued to the transferee or transferees, as voting trustee or trustees, in which new certificates it shall appear that they are issued pursuant to the agreement. In the registration of the transfer of the shares on the books of the corporation it shall be noted that the transfer is made pursuant to the agreement. The trustee or trustees shall execute and deliver to the transferors voting trust certificates which shall be transferable in the same manner and with the same effect as certificates of shares, under the provisions of the Uniform Stock Transfer Act, approved the fifth day of May, one thousand nine hundred eleven (Pamphlet Laws, one hundred twenty-six) and its amendments and supplements, upon the transfer and registration of the shares. The trustee or trustees shall possess all voting and other rights pertaining to the shares so transferred and registered, subject to the terms and conditions of, and for the period specified in, the agreement.

C. Unless otherwise provided in the agreement:

(1) The trustees may vote in person or by proxy.

(2) If there are two or more trustees, the manner of voting shall be determined as heretofore provided in this act for the voting of shares by joint holders.

(3) Vacancies among the trustees shall be filled by the remaining trustees.

(4) A trustee shall incur no responsibility as trustee except for his own individual neglect or malfeasance.

(5) Any other shareholder may transfer his shares to the same trustee or trustees upon the terms and conditions stated in the agreement, and thereupon shall be bound by all the provisions of the agreement, and in every such case a new voting trust shall be deemed to have been formed.

Comments:

This section of the draft has no counterpart in existing Pennsylvania statutes and is substantially the same as Section 29 of the Uniform Act.

The tide of opinion is now away from condemnation of voting trusts toward a discriminating approval of them. See Fletcher Cyclopedia Corporations (Permanent Edition), Volume 5, Section 2078. Voting trusts are not contrary to the public policy of this Commonwealth.—Boyer v. Nesbitt, 227 Pa. 393 (1910); Shelmerdine v. Welsh, 20 Phila. 199 (1890).—but it is difficult to form a valid one in Pennsylvania,—see Morgan v. Hartley Oil and Gas Company; 30 Pa. C. C. 22 (1904); Comomnwealth v. Roydhouse, 233 Pa. 234 (1911); Murphy v. Baker, 6 D. & C. 479 (1925). By the weight of authority, a voting trust will be held invalid only when it has been created for a purpose which is illegal or against public policy (i. e., in violation of the anti-monopoly laws), or when it results in working a fraud in the minority stockholders. See Fletcher Cyclopedia Corporations (Permanent Edition), Volume 5, Chapter 14.

Voting trusts are governed by statute only in Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Michigan, and California. The permissible duration of such a trust is five years in Maryland; in Delaware, New Jersey, New York, Ohio and Michigan, it is ten years; in California, it is twenty-one years. This draft permits a voting trust to be formed for a period of ten years.

Under the typical voting trust statute, as under this draft, the trustor stockholders are required to transfer their stock to trustees, who, in turn, issue to the stockholders voting trust certificates.

Most, but not all, of the voting trust statutes expressly provide that every other stockholder may come into a voting trust agreement. The Uniform Act contains a similar provision. The statutes of Delaware, New Jersey, Michigan and California do not so provide. Such a provision in the New York statute was construed in the recent case of In re Morse, 247 N. Y. 290, 160 N. E. 374, to mean that no voting trust could be formed without this provision and that the trust remains inchoate until those come in who may. Accordingly, it appears that in New York a voting trust which includes any number less than all stockholders is invalid, that a voting trust remains inchoate, and, therefore, revocable, until the last stockholder has come in, and that the trustees may vote the stock, although the voting trust is yet inchoate and incomplete.

Accordingly, this draft departs from the Uniform Act in two respects: (1) It permits a closed voting trust if the agreement so provides. (2) If the agreement does not so provide, then every other shareholder is entitled to come into the trust, and, in order to prevent the trust from being inchoate as in New York, the draft provides "in every such case a new voting trust shall be deemed to have been formed."

Section 512. Judges of Election. A. In advance of any meeting of shareholders, the board of directors may appoint judges of election to act at such meeting or any adjournment thereof. If judges of election be not so appointed, the chairman of any such meeting may, and on the request of any shareholder or his proxy shall, make such appointment at the meeting. The number of inspectors shall be one or three. If appointed at a meeting on the request of one or more shareholders or proxies, the majority of shares present shall determine whether one or three judges are to be appointed. No person who is a candidate for office shall act as a judge.

B. In case any person appointed as judge fails to appear or fails or refuses to act, the vacancy may be filled by appointment made by the board of directors in advance of the convening of the meeting, or at the meeting by the person or officer acting as chairman.

C. The judges of election shall determine the number of shares outstanding and the voting power of each, the shares represented at the meeting, the existence of a quorum, the authenticity, validity, and effect of proxies, receive votes or ballots, hear and determine all challenges and questions in any way arising in connection with the right to vote, count and tabulate all votes, determine the result, and do such acts as may be proper to conduct the election or vote with fairness to all shareholders. The judges of election shall perform their duties impartially, in good faith, to the best of their ability, and as expeditiously as is practical. If there be three judges of election, the decision, act or certificate of a majority shall be effective in all respects as the decision, act or certificate of all.

D. On request of the chairman of the meeting, or of any shareholder or his proxy, the judges shall make a report in writing of any challenge or question or matter determined by them, and execute a certificate of any fact found by them. Any report or certificate made by them shall be prima facie evidence of the facts stated therein.

Act of March 24, 1903, P. L. 50, 15 PS Sec. 101.

Comments:

This section of the draft is substantially similar to Section 321 (b) of the new California act. It changes existing law in that (1) judges need not be appointed unless those participating in a meeting desire them, and (2) the judges are not required to go through the formality of taking an oath, and they are not subject to penalties prescribed in the election laws.

Under the Act of 1903, supra three judges are required, and under the Act of 1874 they must take an oath and are subject to all the penalties imposed by law on election officers for the violation of their duties.

Under this draft, the shareholders of a small or closed corporation need not have judges, while those of a larger corporation may (as they probably will) if they so desire. Recent corporation acts impose no penalties on judges or inspectors of election. In fact, some of the more recent acts do not specifically require the appointment of judges of election in any event. It is submitted that this section of the draft is preferable to the existing provisions in Pennsylvania on this subject.

Section 513. Informal Action by Shareholders. Except for the action required by this act for increasing the stated capital or indebtedness of a corporation, any action required by this act to be taken at a meeting of the shareholders of a corporation make be taken without a meeting, if a consent in writing, setting forth the action so taken, shall be signed by all of the shareholders who would be entitled to vote at a meeting for such purpose and shall be filed with the secretary of the corporation.

Comments:

This provision is substantially similar to Section 146 of the new Illinois act. The exception is necessary in view of Article XVI, Section 7 of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, which provides: "The stock and indebtedness of corporations shall not be increased * * * without the consent of the persons holding the larger amount in value of the stock, first obtained at a meeting to be held after sixty days notice * * *." It has been ruled that the requirement of notice may be waived, but the meeting must be held. Bellefonte and Buffalo Run Railroad Company (Op. Atty. Section 514. Liability of Shareholders. A. A shareholder of a business corporation shall not be personally liable for any debt or liability of the corporation, except salaries and wages due and owing to its laborers and employes, for services rendered to the corporation. In such event, every shareholder shall be personally liable in an amount equal to the amount of shares of the corporation owned by him, but no shareholder shall be liable unless suit for the collection of such salaries and wages shall be brought against him within six months after the same shall become due.

B. In any action brought to enforce the liability imposed by this section upon shareholders, the plaintiff may include as defendants the corporation and any one or more shareholders of such corporation claimed to be liable therefor. Service of summons or other process may be made upon the stockholders resident within such county in the same manner as writs of summons are now directed to be served, and upon those residing in other counties of this Commonwealth by the sheriff of the county in which they may respectively reside and upon those nonresidents of this Commonwealth in such manner as the court may direct. If judgment be given in favor of the plaintiff for his claim, or any part thereof, the judgment shall be given against the corporation and any shareholders found liable. The execution upon such judgment shall be first levied on the property of the corporation within the Commonwealth, and in case such property, sufficient to satisfy the judgment, cannot be found, then execution shall be levied on the property of such shareholders for the deficiency, or so much thereof as the shareholder defendants in such judgment shall be liable to pay. The shareholders who satisfy any such judgment, or any part thereof, shall be entitled to contribution from the corporation in the first instance, and if contribution is unobtainable from the corporation, then pro rata from the other solvent shareholders originally liable for the claims on which the judgment was obtained.

SHARES OF CAPITAL STOCK

Section 601. Classes of Shares. Every corporation shall have power to create and issue one or more classes or kinds of shares, any or all of which classes or kinds may consist of shares with par value or shares without par value, with full, limited, or no voting rights, and with such designations, preferences, qualifications, privileges, limitations, options, conversion rights and other special rights as shall be stated or authorized in the articles. Shares of a business corporation shall be deemed personal property. Except as otherwise provided by the articles, each share shall be in all respects equal to every other share. Unless the articles or by-laws otherwise provide, the board of directors shall have the power, by resolution duly adopted, to issue from time to time, in whole or in part, the kinds or classes of shares authorized in the articles. The power to increase or decrease, or otherwise adjust the stated capital of a corporation, as in this act elsewhere provided, shall apply to all or any such classes or kinds of shares authorized by this section. Shares of a corporation shall not be issued except pursuant to subscriptions received therefor, or pursuant to the declaration of share dividends, as elsewhere provided in this act.

Comments:

This section, with some changes, is modeled on Section 13 of the Uniform Act, and is substantially similar to provisions in the more recent corporation acts of other states. It does not define the different classes of shares, but permits business corporations to create any kind and class of shares authorized and provided for in their articles. Under the present Pennsylvania acts, the articles set forth the kinds of stock the corporation starts out with, but the shareholders may create new kinds of shares without amending their charter. Under this draft, the share structure will be set forth in the articles, and any change therein may be effected only by an amendment to the articles.

The modern tendency is not to define the kinds of shares a corporation may create and issue, but to regulate by statute the use of the consideration derived from the issuance of the shares.

Section 602. Issuance of Certain Shares in Series. A. If the articles so provide, the shares of any preferred or special class may be divided into and issued in series. If the shares of any such class are to be issued in series, then each series shall be so designated as to distinguish the shares thereof from the shares of all other series and classes. Any or all of the series of any such class and the variations in the relative rights and preferences, as between different series, may be fixed and determined by the articles, provided that all shares of the same class shall be identical except as to the following relative rights and preferences, in respect of any or all of which there may be variations between different series, namely, the rate of dividend, the price at, and the terms and conditions on, which shares may be redeemed, the amounts payable upon shares in event of voluntary or involuntary liquidation, sinking fund provisions for the redemption or purchase of shares, and the terms and conditions on which shares may be converted in the event the shares of any series are issued with the privilege of conversion.

B. If the articles shall expressly vest authority in the board of directors, then, to the extent that the articles shall not have established series and fixed and determined the variations in the relative rights and preferences as between series, the board of directors shall have authority, by resolution, to divide any or all of such classes into series and, within the limitations set forth in this section, fix and determine the relative rights and preferences of any series so established. Such authority of the board of directors shall be subject to such limitations, if any, as are stated in the articles, and shall always be subject to the limitation that the board of directors shall not create a sinking fund, in respect of any series, unless provision for a sinking fund, at least as beneficial to all issued and outstanding shares of the same class, shall either then exist or be at the same time created.

C. Prior to the issue of any shares of a series established by resolution adopted by the board of directors, the corporation shall present to the Department of State a statement, in duplicate, signed and verified by at least two duly authorized officers thereof, and setting forth:

(1) The name of the corporation.

(2) The resolution establishing and designating the series and fixing and determining the relative rights and preferences thereof.

(3) The date and the manner of the adoption of such resolution.

If the Department of State finds that such statement conforms to law and the articles of the corporation and when all fees have been paid as required by law, it shall endorse its approval on each copy thereof, shall file one of the copies of the statement, and shall forward the other approved copy to the corporation or its representative, whereupon such copy shall be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation, in this Commonwealth, is situated. Upon the filing of such statement by the Department of State, the resolution establishing and designating the series and fixing and determining the relative rights and preferences thereof shall become effective.

Comments:

This provision is substantially similar to Section 14 of the new Illinois act. As pointed out by the committee which drafted that act, the developments of recent years in corporate financing have made it essential that, as additional capital is required, a corporation shall be able to issue its authorized shares of preferred or special classes of stock in series. The issuance of shares in series may be regarded as not unlike the familiar practice of issuing additional series of bonds from time to time under an open mortgage or deed of trust, pursuant to restrictions found in the mortgage. To accomplish this object, without the necessity of frequent amendment to the articles of incorporation, the more recent acts of other states have adopted provisions authorizing the board of directors to establish, by resolution, one or more series from time to time within an authorized class and, within varying degrees of latitude, fix the characteristics of the series.

If the authority to be given to the board of directors is to be effective, it is essential that the board of directors be permitted to fix and determine those characteristics of the series which are ordinarily affected by market conditions at the time the shares are to be issued. On the other hand, it is equally essential that the fundamental rights and preferences for all shares of a particular class shall be preserved.

The acts of several states, in addition to granting authority to establish series within a class and fix the rights and preferences thereof in the articles of incorporation, also give almost unlimited authority to the board of directors to establish series and fix all the rights and preferences thereof. The effect of some of these acts is practically to confer power on the board of directors to create classes which may have rights and preferences senior to shares of other classes already outstanding, and prejudicial to the holders of such shares. Clearly, this grant of unlimited authority is unwarranted. Priority as to payment of dividends and as to distribution of assets on liquidation should not be permitted within a class. Accordingly, this draft permits the board of directors to establish series within any class, to such extent as the articles may permit, but the authority of the board of directors is limited to those characteristics the determination of which is dependent on market conditions.

Section 603. Consideration For Shares. A. Subscriptions for shares of a business corporation shall not be made payable in whole or in part with any consideration other than money, other property, tangible or intangible, or with necessary services actually rendered to the corporation[1]. Subscriptions for shares having a par value shall be made payable with money to an amount not less than the aggregate par value of the shares subscribed for or with consideration other than money, the fair valuation of which to the corporation is not less than the aggregate par value of the shares subscribed for. Subscriptions for shares having no par value, which are signed before incorporation, shall be made payable with consideration of the character and value determined by the incorporators. Subscriptions for shares having no par value, which are signed after incorporation, shall be made payable with consideration of the character and value determined by the shareholders at any annual or special meeting duly called and held for that purpose, or determined by the board of directors, acting under authority conferred by the shareholders or by the articles of the corporation.[2] Shares of a corporation issued and thereafter acquired by it may be disposed of by the corporation for such consideration as may be fixed from time to time by the board of directors. For the purpose of determining whether shares have been fully paid for, in order to fix the extent of the outstanding obligation of a shareholder to the corporation with respect to such shares, the valuation placed by the incorporators, the shareholders, or the board of directors, as the case may be, upon the consideration, other than cash, with which the subscriptions for shares are made payable, shall be conclusive[3].

B. The consideration for the issuance of shares as a share dividend shall be that part of the surplus of a business corporation which is hereinafter required by this act to be transferred to stated capital upon the issuance of such shares[4].

C. In the event of an exchange of issued shares having a par value for a different number of shares having the same aggregate par value, whether of the same or a different class or classes, or in the event of a conversion of shares, or in the event of an exchange of shares with or without par value into the same or a different number of shares without par value, whether of the some or a different class or classes, the consideration for the shares so issued in exchange shall be deemed to be (1) the consideration originally received for the shares so exchanged or converted, and (2) that part of the surplus, if any, transferred to stated capital upon the issuance of shares for the shares so exchanged or converted, and (3) any additional consideration paid to the corporation upon the issuance of shares for the shares so exchanged or converted[5].

Comments:

1. Article XVI, Section 7, of the Constitution, provides: "No corporation shall issue stocks or bonds except for money, labor done, or money or property actually received; and all fictitious increase of stock or indebtedness shall be void." Section 17 of the Corporation Act of 1874, as amended, supra, contains a similar requirement. Accordingly, a similar requirement has been incorporated in this draft. Where a constitution or statutes prohibit the issuance of shares except for any paid labor done or money actually received, there is a conflict of authority whether stock may be issued for services to be performed in the future. See Fletcher Cyclopedia Corporations (Permanent Edition), Volume 11, Section 5187.

The early case of Shannon v. Stevenson, 173 Pa. 419 (1896), held that the constitutional provision permitted shares to be issued for future services. But the more recent case of Gearhart v. Standard Steel Car Company, 223 Pa. 385 (1909), held that, under the Corporation Act of 1874, stock can be issued only for "labor done or money or property actually received", and hence an employment contract for a salary and a sum of stock to be set aside for the employe to be paid for out of earnings was void as to the stock provision.

This draft, like the Uniform Act, adopts the view that shares should not be issued except for services actually rendered to the corporation.

2. This portion of this section is taken from Section 15 (III) and (IV) of the Uniform Act. These provisions require that consideration other than cash shall be taken at a fair valuation. The vaulation put upon consideration other than cash, when that is to be received in payment of valuations for par value shares, must at least equal the par value of the shares subscribed for. As is now permitted under the Act of 1923, supra, a business corporation under this draft may issue and sell its par value stock for a consideration in excess of the par value, if desired, and thereby create a paid-in surplus. The consideration to be received in payment for subscriptions for shares without par value is required to be taken at a value fixed by the incorporators, by the directors, or by the shareholders, as the case may be. In any case, the valuation must be a fair one.

As is pointed out in a note to the Uniform Act, existing statutes provide that shares having no par value shall be issued for such consideration (a) as is fixed by the articles of incorporation, (b) as is determined by the shareholders at any regular or special meeting, and (c) as is determined by the board of directors acting under authority of the shareholders. To direct that the articles of incorporation shall fix the value at which non-par stock shall be sold has two objections: (a) that it tends in effect to give the stock a nominal value and thus to impair the benefits of the non-par stock principles, and (b) that it would involve the formality of an amendment to permit the sale at any price other than that originally fixed. To establish the fair market value as a criterion seems to cast the directors into an unnecessary peril of determining what that is. Under the provisions of the Uniform Act and this draft the stockholders are adequately protected by being able to limit the authority conferred upon the directors. It becomes essential that some such control over the subsequent allotment of no par value shares shall be reserved to the shareholders. Every shareholder knows that when all shares have a par value no new members can come in without paying par. When shares have no par value, every shareholder is entitled to know that a new member cannot come in except by contributing what the shareholders determine is a fair consideration for the participating rights which he will acquire. Having provided in the draft for a possible reservation of this power in the shareholders, it is still made possible for them to confer upon the directors authority to determine for what consideration new shares without par value shall be issued.

This draft permits the creation and issuance of true no par value shares, and substantially similar provisions are contained in the corporation laws of those states which have recently revised such laws.

3. This provision, pertaining to the conclusiveness of the valuation of consideration for shares, is taken from Section 17 of the Uniform Act. This provision is a necessary supplement to the preceding provisions, which permit the incorporators, shareholders, or the directors to evaluate the consideration other than cash for which shares are issued. A similar provision is contained in the more recent statutes of other states relating to the issuance of shares without par value.

4. See Section 703 of this draft.

5. This provision supplements Section 806 (B) of this draft.

Section 604. Payment of Subscriptions for Shares. Unless otherwise provided in the subscription agreement, subscriptions for shares, whether made before or after the organization of a corporation, shall be paid in full at such time, or in such installments and at such times, as shall be determined by the board of director[1]. Any call made by the board of directors for payment of subscriptions shall be uniform as to all shares of the same class, or as to all shares of the same series, as the case may be. The directors shall cause notice of the amount of any call and of the time and place of payment to be given at least thirty days before the date the call is due, either personally or by mail addressed to each shareholder at his last address, as it appears on the books of the corporation[2]. If a shareholder be indebted to a business corporation on account of unpaid subscriptions for shares, the corporation shall have a lien upon such shares for such indebtedness[3]. Shares for which the agreed consideration has been paid, delivered, or rendered to the corporation shall be fully paid shares and non-assessable[4]. No note or obligation given by a shareholder, whether secured by pledge or otherwise, shall be considered as payment, in whole or in part, of any shares of a business corporation[5].

Act of July 12, 1919, P. L. 914, Section 6, 15 PS Sec. 186.

Comments:

1. This part of the draft permits subscriptions to be paid in installments, at the call of the directors. The same is now permissible under Section 11 of the Corporation Act of 1874, as amended, which provides, inter alia, that "all subscriptions to the capital stock shall be paid in such instalments and at such times as the directors may require."

2. While the Pennsylvania act contains no provisions of notice, the laws of many other states require notice ranging from a period of thirty to sixty days. In New Jersey and Delaware, thirty days' notice is required. Notice seems to be desirable in view of the discretionary power of the board of directors to demand payment of installments on unpaid share subscriptions, and the right of a corporation to sell the shares in the event of a default in payment.

3. This provision is taken from Section 22 of the Uniform Act.

Formerly, under Section 7 of the Corporation Act of 1874, a corporation had a lien on its stock for the general indebtedness of the stockholders, as well as that growing out of the subscriptions or subsequent unpaid calls therefor, but since the passage of the Act of June 24, 1895, P. L. 258, it has been held that a corporation no longer has a lien upon its stock for the general indebtedness of the stockholders to it. Sproul v. Standard Plate Glass Company, 201 Pa. 103 (1902).

The Uniform Stock Transfer Act provides, in Section 15, "There shall be no lien in favor of a corporation upon such shares represented by a certificate issued by such corporation and there shall be no restriction upon the transfer of shares so represented by virtue of any by-laws of such corporation, or otherwise, unless the right of the corporation to such lien or the restriction is stated on the certificate."

As pointed out in a note to the Uniform Act, the Uniform Stock Trasnfer Act assumes (a) that an indebtedness may exist upon shares for which a certificate has been issued, and (b) that a corporation may have a lien for debts other than those for balance due upon shares.

Under the Uniform Act, and this draft, a certificate cannot be issued until the shares are fully paid for. The public is, therefore, given better protection than under the Uniform Stock Transfer Act. This act contemplates that shares may be issued on an installment basis, and that one may be a shareholder even though his shares are not fully paid for. Accordingly, it seems proper to give the corporation a lien upon shares for any balance unpaid, to protect it against an insolvent shareholder.

The Uniform Act limits the corporation's lien to amounts due upon shares, and does not permit it to extend to the general indebtedness of the shareholders of the corporation. According to a note in the Uniform Act, it is believed that to give the corporation a lien as against the general indebtedness of the shareholder would impair the transferability of the certificates, even though notice of the lien is printed upon the certificates. It is believed that the lien ought to be a security for debts due with respect to shares only, and, in that case, a provision regarding restrictions on transfer is unnecessary.

4. Formerly, under Section 12 of the Corporation Act of 1874, assessments were permitted to be made upon full-paid capital stock. The amendatory Act of May 25, 1887, P. L. 273, omitted the provision relating to assessments upon full-paid stock, so that since then there has been no statutory liability to assessments upon full-paid capital stock having a par value.

5. This provision is taken from Section 12 of the Corporation Act of 1874, as amended, supra.

Section 16 of the Uniform Act provides "When a corporation has received a note or uncertified check as consideration for shares, such shares shall not be considered as fully paid for until such note or check has been paid." The existing Pennsylvania provision has been retained, in this draft, in view of Article XVI, Section 7, of the Constitution, which provides that "No corporation shall issue stocks or bonds except for money, labor done, or money or property actually received."

Section 605. Defaults in Payment of Consideration for Shares. When any shareholder fails to pay any call upon his shares properly made by the directors, at the time when such payment is due, the directors may proceed to collect the amount due in the same manner as any debt due the corporation, or they may sell, at public sale, such part of the shares of the delinquent shareholder as will pay all or any part of the installments then due from him, with interest and all incidental expenses, and transfer the shares so sold to the purchaser, who shall be entitled to a certificate therefor. Notice of the time and place of such sale, and of the sum due on each share, shall be given by advertisement once a week for two consecutive weeks next preceding the date fixed for the sale, in a newspaper published in the county where the corporation has its registered office, or, if there be no newspaper in such county, then in a newspaper of general circulation in such county, and such notice shall be mailed by the treasurer of the corporation to the delinquent shareholder at his last known post office address, at least twenty days before the date fixed for such sale. If no bidder can be had to pay the amount due on the shares, or if the amount is not collected by an action at law brought within the county where such corporation has its registered office, the shares shall be forfeited to the corporation and the amount previously paid in by the delinquent shareholder on the shares shall be forfeited to the corporation. No share shall be voted at any meeting upon which any installment is due and unpaid.

Comments:

Under the Corporation Act of 1874, and its amendments, subscriptions for shares may be enforced by an action at law or by sale at public auction. In the case of an action at law, the shareholder in default is made liable to the amount called for and unpaid and a penalty "at the rate of one-half per centum per month for the delay of such payment." A public sale may be had if the shareholder remains in default for a period of thirty days. In such event, the treasurer of the company is directed to "give notice of the time and place appointed for such sale, and of the sum on each share, by advertising the same three weeks successively before the sale in some newspaper published in said county". No notice is specifically required to be given to the shareholder in default.

The laws of the several states provide different methods for the enforcement of subscriptions for shares. In practically every state the corporation is permitted to maintain an action at law for unpaid subscriptions. The laws of the several states differ in the methods for forfeiture or the sale of the shares of defaulting shareholders. Thus, in New York the board of directors may declare the shares, and also previous payments thereon, forfeited after the expiration of sixty days from the service of notice upon the defaulting shareholder. The forfeited shares are permitted to be reissued by the corporation. In Illinois and Indiana, the by-laws are permitted to prescribe penalties for failure to pay installments or calls that may become due. In the event of the sale of shares by reason of any forfeiture, the excess of the proceeds realized over the amount due and unpaid is required to be paid to the delinquent subscriber or his legal representative. In New Jersey and Delaware the corporation is allowed to sell the shares at public auction.

Under this draft, a corporation may proceed against a shareholder in default on his subscribed payments: (1) By an action at law to recover the delinquent payments, or (2) By public sale of a sufficient number of the delinquent shareholder's shares necessary to meet the shareholder's obligation to the corporation, or (3) By forfeiting the shares of the delinquent shareholder, in the event either of the foregoing remedies is unsuccessful.

Section 606. Expenses of Organization, Reorganization, and Financing. The reasonable charges and expenses of organization or reorganization of a corporation and reasonable compensation for the sale or underwriting of its shares, may be paid or allowed by such corporation out of the consideration received by it in payment for its shares, without thereby rendering such shares not full paid and non-assessable.

Illinois—Section 19; Ohio—Sections 17, 29.

Comments:

It may be clear that charges and expenses of organization, reorganization, and financing are payable out of the consideration received for shares; nevertheless, it seems desirable to provide specifically that each payment does not render such shares not full paid and non-assessable.

Section 607. Share Certificate. A. The shares of a corporation shall be represented by share certificates, which shall state:

(1) That the corporation is organized under the laws of this Commonwealth.

(2) The name of the registered holder of the shares represented thereby.

(3) The number and class of shares and the designation of the series, if any, which the certificate represents.

(4) The par value of each share represented, or a statement that the shares are without par value.

(5) If the corporation is authorized to issue shares of more than one class, the designations, preferences, voting power, qualifications, privileges, limitations, options, conversion rights, and other special rights of the shares of each class to be issued, which shall be paid in full or in the form of a summary, either upon the face or back of the certificate.[1]

(6) If the corporation is authorized to issue any preferred or special class in series, the variations and the relative rights and preferences between the shares of each series, so far as they have been fixed and determined, and the authority of the board of directors to fix and determine the relative rights and preferences of subsequent series[2].

B. Every share certificate shall be signed by the president and secretary, or by such officers as the by-laws may provide, and sealed with the corporate seal, which may be a facsimile, engraved or printed, but where such certificate is signed by a transfer agent or by a transfer clerk of such corporation and a registrar, the signature of any corporate officer upon such certificate may be a facsimile, engraved or printed. In case any officer who has signed, or whose facsimile signature has been placed upon any share certificate shall have ceased to be such officer because of death, resignation, or otherwise, before the certificate is issued, it may be issued by the corporation with the same effect as if the officer had not ceased to be such at the date of its issue[3].

C. A share certificate representing shares without par value shall not state any par value, nor any value thereof in money, nor any right of dividend to which such shares shall be entitled, in terms of a percentage of any par or other value, but preferences, rights, limitations, privileges and restrictions may be stated thereon in dollars and cents per share[4].

D. Every shareholder of record shall be entitled to a share certificate representing the shares owned by him, but a share certificate shall not be issued by a corporation to any shareholder until the shares represented thereby have been fully paid for[5].

Comments:

1. This provision is modeled on Section 14 (II) (f) of the Uniform Act, which, in turn, is modeled on Section 65 of the New York Stock Corporation Law. As pointed out in the Uniform Act, shares cannot be listed on the New York Stock Exchange unless the "certificates of every class recite the preferences of all classes". The Pennsyvania Act of June 24, 1895, P. L. 258, as amended, supra, does not specify what the certificate of stock shall set forth.

2. This provision is taken from the Illinois act, and appears to be essential for the reasons stated under Note No. 1.

3. This provision is a restatement of Section 1 of the Act of 1895, as amended, supra, and is substantially similar to corresponding provisions in the Uniform Act and the laws of other states.

Most statutes prescribe the precise officers by whom certificates of stock must be signed, but as different corporations may have different officers, it seems wise to make this a matter for regulation by the articles or by-laws. In Idaho, Illinois, Maine, Michigan, Rhode Island, Texas and Virginia, it may be regulated by the by-laws. In Arizona, Mississippi, Missouri and Nebraska, there is no statutory provision as to the manner of executing certificates of stock, and this must, therefore, be covered by the by-laws. In the District of Columbia, it seems that the statute does not specifically require certificates of stock. In New Hampshire, Oregon, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, the statutes provide for execution by one named officer and such other officers as the by-laws require. Under this draft, the by-laws may prescribe the corporate officers who are to sign certificates for shares.

4. This provision is modeled on Section 14 (III) of the Uniform Act and Section 4 of the Act of 1919, supra. As pointed out in a note to the Uniform Act, it is the uniform practice to prevent the exmpression of any nominal or par value on certificates for shares having no par value. A few states, namely, Alabama, Missouri, Illinois, Kansas, Maine, Utah and Pennsylvania, add a further provision that "preferences, rights, limitations, privileges and restrictions may be stated in dollars or cents per share in respect to shares of stock" having no par value. The inclusion of the phrase "nor any value thereof in money", seems desirable to prevent the evasion of the statute by expressing some value other than a technical par value, and to compel a compliance with the spirit of these provisions, which is to eliminate misrepresentation arising from a difference between a value appearing upon the face of the certificate and the actual value of the divisional interest in corporate assets to which the certificate represents the holder to be entitled.

5. This provision is taken from Section 16 (I) of the Uniform Act, and makes a change in Pennsylvania law. Under the Act of 1895, supra, a shareholder who has not paid for his shares in full is entitled to a certificate of stock. Under this draft, a certificate cannot be issued until shares are fully paid for. This draft contemplates that shares may be issued on an installment basis, and that one may be a shareholder even though his shares are not fully paid for. As pointed out in a note to the Uniform Act, the Uniform Stock Transfer Act assumes: (a) that an indebtedness may exist upon shares for which a certificate has been issued; and (b) that a corporation may have a lien for debts other than those for balance due upon shares. As this draft will not permit the issuance of a certificate until shares are fully paid for, the public is, therefore, given better protection than under the Uniform Stock Transfer Act.

Section 608. Issuance of Fractional Shares or Scrip. A corporation may, issue a certificate for a fractional share, and by action of its board of directors may issue in lieu thereof scrip or other evidence of ownership which shall entitle the holder to receive a certificate for a full share upon the surrender of such scrip or other evidence of ownership aggregating a full share, but which shall not, unless otherwise provided, entitle the holder to exercise any voting right, or to receive dividends or to participate in any of the assets of the corporation in the event of liquidation. The board of directors may cause such scrip or evidence of ownership to be issued subject to the condition that it shall become void if not exchanged for share certificate before a specified date, or subject to the condition that the shares for which such scrip or evidence of ownership is exchangeable may be sold by the corporation and the proceeds thereof distributed to the holders of such scrip or evidence of ownership, or subject to any other conditions which the board of directors may deem advisable.

Comments:

It is common practice for corporations issuing additional shares to issue to shareholders scrip or other evidence of fractional part of shares to which the shareholders are entitled, particularly in case of share dividends.

Section 609. Liability of Subscribers and Shareholders. A subscriber to, or holder of, shares of a corporation formed under this act shall not be under any liability to the corporation with respect to such shares, other than the obligation of complying with the terms of the subscription for such shares[1]. Any person becoming an assignee or transferee of shares, or of a subscription for shares, in good faith and without knowledge or notice that the full consideration therefor has not been paid, shall not be personally liable to the corporation or its creditors for any unpaid portion of such consideration[2]. Except when he has voluntarily invested the estate or trust funds in such shares, no person holding shares as executor, administrator, guardian, trustee, receiver, or in any representative or fiduciary capacity, shall be personally liable as a shareholder by reason of so holding such shares, but the estate and funds in the hands of such fiduciary or representative shall be so liable[3]. No pledgee or other holder of shares as collateral security shall be personally liable as a shareholder, but the person pledging such shares shall be considered the holder thereof and shall be liable as a shareholder[4].

Comments:

1. This provision is taken from Section 20 of the Uniform Act. This provision is in conformity with the provisions of this draft which provide that shares of stock of business corporations, upon being fully paid, are non-assessable.

2. This provision is taken from Section 22 of the Illinois act and is substantially similar to a provision contained in Section 20 of the Uniform Act. In Pennsylvania, it has been decided that a transferee who has been accepted by a corporation as a shareholder and his name registered on the stock books is liable for the unpaid portion of his shares to the extend that the unpaid capital is required for the payment of corporate creditors.—The Merrimac Mining Company v. Levy, 54 Pa. 227 (1867): Bell's Appeal, 115 Pa. 88 (1886), unless he is an innocent purchaser for value.—French v. Harding, 235 Pa. 79 (1912). Section 1 of the Act of 1895, supra, also provides that an assignee or transferee of shares shall be a member of the corporation and have and enjoy all the immunities, privileges and franchises, and be subject to all the liabilities, conditions and penalties incident thereto in the same manner as the original subscriber or holder would have been.

3. This provision is modeled on Section 20 (III) of the Uniform Act and Section 29 of the Michigan act. The laws of most states contain a corresponding provision.

4. This provision is, in effect, a restatement of existing case law in Pennsylvania. See Wood's Appeal, 92 Pa. 379 (1880); Aultman's Appeal, 98 Pa. 505 (1882); Krischler v. Wainwright, 255 Pa. 525 (1917).

Section 610. Validity of Shares. The fact that shares are issued in violation of, or without full compliance with, the provisions of this act shall not make the shares so issued invalid, unless they are issued in violation of Article XVI, Section 7, of the Constitution of this Commonwealth.

Comments:

This section of the draft, except the proviso, is taken from Section 19 of the Uniform Act. The proviso appears to be necessary, in view of Article XVI, Section 7, of the Constitution, which provides that: "No corporation shall issue stocks or bonds except for money, labor done, or money or property actually received; and all fictitious increase of stock or indebtedness shall be void."

Section 611. Preemptive Rights of Shareholders. Unless otherwise provided in its articles, a corporation for profit may issue shares, option rights or securities having conversion or option rights, without first offering them to shareholders of any class or classes. Shares which have been offered to shareholders having a preemptive right thereto, at a price or upon terms duly fixed, and which have not been subscribed for by them within the time duly fixed by the articles or the board of directors, may be thereafter offered for subscription to any other person or persons at a price and upon terms not more favorable than those at which they were offered to such shareholders.

Comments:

This section of the draft makes a change in existing Pennsylvania law and will clear up the existing doubt in our present law relating to pre-emptive rights of shareholders.

At common law, existing shareholders have a preemptive right to subscribe, pro rata, for, or purchase original unissued shares of, a corporation, or new shares issuing from an increase in capital stock. Shellenberger v. Patterson, et al., 168 Pa. 30 (1895); Electric Company of America v. Edison Electric Illuminating Company, Appellant, 200 Pa. 516 (1901); Glenn v. Kittanning Brewing Company, et al., 259 Pa. 510 (1919). This right is expressly conferred by the Act of 1923, supra, where shares having a par value are issued at a price in excess of their par value. On the other hand, the statutes authorizing new kinds of stock are conspicuously silent on the preemptive rights of shareholders in regard to such stock. Accordingly, it is not clear what such rights are.

The corporation laws of other states are not uniform on this subject. The Delaware, New Jersey and Illinois laws permit the articles of incorporation to limit or deny the preemptive rights of shareholders. In New Jersey, these rights may also be limited or denied by a by-law adopted by a two-thirds vote of the shareholders. The new Michigan act, adopted in 1931, attempts to set forth in detail the preemptive rights which varies classes of shareholders may have. The Indiana and California laws, adopted in 1929 and 1931, respectively, deny shareholders the preemptive right to subscribe to additional shares, except to the extent, if any, that such rights are fixed and stated in the articles of incorporation.

This section of the draft, like the Indiana and California acts, makes the preemptive rights of shareholders a matter of contract in each instance between the corporation and its shareholders, by the inclusion of appropriate provisions in the articles. If the articles are silent on this question, the shareholders will have no preemptive right. This appears to be more desirable than to attempt to enumerate by statute the preemptive rights which various classes of shareholders may have, or to permit existing preemptive rights, which are not clear in Pennsylvania, to be curtailed or denied by the articles.

Section 612. Employes' Share Purchase Plan. Unless otherwise provided in its articles, every business corporation may provide and carry out a plan for the issue and sale of its authorized but unissued shares to its employes, or to the employes of any subsidiary corporation, or to a trustee on their behalf, without first offering such shares to its shareholders, for such consideration, upon such terms and conditions, and in such manner as shall be provided in the by-laws, except that shares subject to preemptive rights may be so issued and sold under such plan only with the written consent or affirmative vote of the holders of two-thirds of the shares entitled to exercise preemptive rights with respect thereto.

Comments:

This section is a restatement of the Act of 1925, supra, except that no provision is made for the payment of the shares of a dissatisfied shareholder. As this section is drafted, only shareholders having a preemptive right to purchase such shares would be adversely affected by the adoption of such a plan. Accordingly, the draft makes adequate provision for the protection of such a plan, the consent of two-thirds of such shareholders.

Section 613. Transfer of Share Certificates and Shares. A. The transfer of share certificates and the shares represented thereby may be regulated by the by-laws, provided such by-laws are not inconsistent with the provisions of the Uniform Stock Transfer Act, approved the fifth day of May, one thousand nine hundred eleven (Pamphlet Laws, one hundred twenty-six), and its amendments and supplements.

B. A business corporation may open a share register in any state of the United States and may employ an agent or agents to keep such register and to record therein transfer of shares in this, or in other states, or both. The acts of such agents shall be binding on the corporation and their duties and liabilities shall be such as may be agreed to by the corporation.

Pennsylvania Corporation Act of 1874, Section 11, as amended by the Act of May 9, 1889, P. L. 180, 15 PS Sec. 132.

Comments:

This provision is taken from the Uniform Act. Section 11 of the Corporation Act of 1874, supra, provides "The shares of the capital stock of every such company may be transferred on the books of the company, in person or by attorney, subject to such regulations as the by-laws may prescribe."

As the Uniform Stock Transfer Act also applies to corporations beyond the scope of this draft, that act was not included in this draft. A note to the Uniform Act points out that this section is not superflous and is necessary, as Sections 1 and 15 of the Uniform Stock Transfer Act expressly refer to possible by-laws or other corporate regulation of transfer. By the inclusion of this section, the proposed act and the Uniform Stock Transfer Act would be made to dovetail without unnecessary repetition. Michigan, which is one of the states that have adopted the Uniform Stock Transfer Act, has a similar provision in its new corporation act.

The provision relating to share register is taken from Section 35 (III) of the Uniform Act. Section 308 of this draft requires every corporation which maintains its share register outside the Commonwealth to maintain a duplicate one at its registered office.

Section 614. Stated Capital and Paid-in Surplus. Every business corporation shall have a stated capital, which shall consist of the appregate par value of all its issued shares having a par value, and the aggregate amount of value of the agreed consideration received for all its issued shares without par value, unless the board of directors, by resolution, and subject to the limitations hereinafter contained in this section, shall determine (a) before or at the time of issue of any shares of the corporation issued for cash, or (b), within sixty days after the issuance of any shares issued for labor or services actually performed for the corporation, or issued for property other than cash, that only a part of the consideration for shares so issued shall be stated capital, and that the remainder of the consideration so received shall be paid-in surplus. In the event of any such determination:

(1) If the shares to be issued shall consist wholly of shares having a par value, then the stated capital represented by such shares shall be the aggregate par value of the shares so to be issued.

(2) If the shares to be issued shall consist wholly of shares without par value, all of which shares have a preferential right in the assets of the corporation in the event of involuntary liquidation, then the stated capital represented by such shares shall be not less than the aggregate preferential amount payable upon such shares in the event of involuntary liquidation.

(3) If the shares to be issued consist wholly of shares wtihout par value, and none of such shares has a preferential right in the assets of the corporation in the event of its involuntary liquidation, then the stated capital represented by such shares shall be the total consideration received therefor less such part thereof as may be allocated to paid-in surplus.

(4) If the shares to be issued shall consist of several or all of the classes of shares enumerated above, then the stated capital to be represented by such shares shall be not less than the aggregate par value of any shares to be issued having a par value, and the aggregate preferential amount payable upon any shares to be issued without par value having a preferential right, in the event of involuntary liquidation.

In each such case, the resolution of the board of directors shall specify, in dollars, the part of such consideration which shall be stated capital. Every business corporation shall at all times keep its books in such manner as to indicate clearly the allocation of consideration received for shares between stated capital and paid-in surplus. The stated capital of the corporation may be increased from time to time by resolution of the board of directors, directing that all or a part of the surplus of the corporation be transferred to stated capital. The board of directors may direct that the amount of the surplus so transferred shall be deemed to be state capital in respect of any designated class of shares.

Comments:

This section is substantially similar to corresponding sections in the corporation laws of Illinois, Michigan and California. In Pennsylvania, the stated capital for shares without par value is expressed by the Act of 1919, supra, to be the capital with which the corporation will begin business, stated in the charter, increased by any net additions thereto, or diminished upon any net deductions therefrom; but the stated capital must not include any net profits or surplus earnings until transferred to capital, and must not be larger in amount than the excess, as shown by the books of assets over liabilities other than stock liabilities.

The evident intention of the Act of 1919 is to capitalize the amount of capital with which the corporation will commence business, to prevent the so-called "freezing" of earnings, without the express transfer thereof to capital by the directors, and also to prevent the stated capital from being represented as more than the excess of the assets over real liabilities, excluding so-called "stock liabilities." In other words, the attempt here is to fix a maximum limit of capital at an amount not beyond the actual net value of the assets, at the same time "freezing" only a minimum of capital and providing that no earnings shall become capital except by proper action of the directors. See Wickersham on Stock Without Par Value, Section 52, Page 108. Section 8 of the Act of 1919, supra, prevents the use of stated capital for dividends. It is permanent capital, not available for distribution to stockholders as income. The statutes of other states are neither clear nor uniform on the question of how stock without par value should be capitalized. In some states the directors are apparently subject to no restrictions in allocating consideration received for shares between stated capital and paid-in surplus. Under the new corporation laws of California and Illinois, the directors are required to capitalize a sufficient amount of the consideration received from the issue of shares without par value necessary to meet the aggregate preferential amount payable upon preferred shares in the event of involuntary liquidation. Under the new Michigan act, the directors are required to capitalize at least fifty per cent. of the consideration received for the issue of shares without par value. This draft, like the California and Illinois acts, requires the directors to capitalize an amount of the consideration received for shares having a preference in the assets, equivalent to the liquidating value of such shares, in the event of involuntary liquidation. This limitation is essential; otherwise, it would be possible to allocate to surplus a large part of the consideration received for preferred shares and seriously prejudice the rights of preferred shareholders by paying out dividends on junior shares from a surplus so created.

In the case of no-par shares, it is highly desirable that some allocation to surplus of a part of the consideration received for such shares be permitted. As pointed out in a note to the Uniform Act, where a corporation having a surplus desires to reorganize by transferring its assets to a new corporation whose shares shall have no par value, the exchange of stock and assets will result in capitalizing the entire value of the assets of the corporation, unless allocation of consideration for shares between stated capital and paid-in surplus is permitted. The Act of 1919, supra, guards against this contingency by providing that the stated capital shall not be larger in amount than the excess, as shown by the books of the corporation, of its assets, over and above its liabilities, other than stock liabilities. The allocation of consideration received for shares without par value is also highly desirable for the purpose of creating a fund for the payment of dividends on preferred stock issued by a corporation in order to finance a development or construction program. See the comments under Section 704 of this draft.

ARTICLE VII

DIVIDENDS, REDEMPTION OF SHARES AND REDUCTION OF STATED CAPITAL

Section 701. Directors May Declare Dividends. A. Subject to any restrictions contained in the articles of the corporation and the provisions of this article, any business corporation, by its board of directors, may declare and pay dividends upon the outstanding shares of the corporation out of its surplus, as hereinafter provided, from time to time and to such extent as the board of directors may deem advisable[1]. Dividends may be paid in cash, in property, or in shares of the corporation, but no corporation shall pay dividends:

(1) In cash or property, except from the surplus of the aggregate of its assets over the aggregate of its liabilities, including in the latter the amount of its stated capital, after deducting from such aggregate of its assets the amount by which such aggregate was increased by unrealized appreciation in value or revaluation of fixed assets.

(2) In shares of the corporation, except from the surplus of the aggregate of its assets over the aggregate of its liabilities, including in the latter the amount of its stated capital[2]

B. In computing the aggregate of the assets of the corporation, the board of directors shall determine and make proper allowance for depreciation and depletion sustained, and losses of every character, except as otherwise provided in this section. Deferred assets and prepaid expenses shall be written off at least annually in proportion to their use, as may be determined by the board of directors. Amounts of surplus arising from an unrealized appreciation or revaluation of fixed assets shall be shown on the books of the corporation as a separate item apart from surplus profits or paid-in surplus[3].

C. A corporation engaged solely or substantially in the exploitation of mines, oil wells, gas wells, patents or other wasting assets, or organized solely or substantially to liquidate specific assets, need not make any deduction for the depletion of such assets by lapse of time, consumption, liquidation, or exploitation in computing the fund available for dividends, and such a corporation may pay dividends from the net profits arising from its business without deduction of such depletion, subject, however, to the rights of shareholders of different classes[4].

Comments:

1. As a general rule, it is within the discretion of the directors whether or not dividends shall be declared and paid, and the courts will not interfere unless bad faith, abuse of discretion or dishonesty can be shown on their part. See McLean et al., v. Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, 169 Pa. 112 (1893); Pardee et al., v. The Harwood Electric Company, 262 Pa. 68 (1918). See also the Acts of 1913 and 1919, supra. This portion of the draft makes no change in the Pennsylvania law in this respect.

2. This portion of the draft is taken from Section 24 (IV) of the Uniform Act, which, in turn, is modeled on Section 38 of the new Ohio act. As pointed out in a note to the Uniform Act, nearly every state has a statutory provision prohibiting the payment of dividends out of capital, or the converse statement permitting the payment of dividends only out of surplus or profits. In a few statutes, the only provision is one with respect to dividends paid while the corporation is insolvent or causing insolvency. The rule that dividends must not be paid out of capital is not the same as the rule that dividends must not be paid by an insolvent corporation, for even an insolvent corporation may earn profits, but these profits should be used in paying debts. Conversely, a corporation may be quite solvent and yet have no profits, and may, therefore, be unable to pay dividends. (Machen, Sections 1313, 1343). A payment made when the corporation is insolvent, or the making of which produces insolvency, is a voluntary conveyance in fraud of creditors, and, therefore, recoverable from those to whom it has been paid. McDonald v. Williams, 174 U. S. 397 (1899). Under the Act of 1913, supra, a Pennsylvania corporation may declare a dividend out of "net profits," but under no circumstances may the capital stock be impaired by any dividend. The Act of 1919, supra, relating to shares without par value, expressly provides that dividends shall be paid only out of "net profits or surplus earnings." Accordingly, in Pennsylvania, a dividend may be paid out of surplus or profits representing an excess in the aggregate value of all assets of a corporation over the sum of its entire liabilities, including capital stock. Also, no dividend may be paid out of profits as long as the corporation has a capital deficit. See Branch v. Kaiser, et al., 291 Pa. 543 (1928).

This section of the draft clearly defines the fund out of which a dividend may be paid and makes no change in the existing Pennsylvania law, except that under this section and Section 704 of this draft dividends may be paid out of paid-in surplus, under certain restrictions (See the note under Section 704). This section goes further than the Pennsylvania law by prohibiting a dividend in cash or property from being paid from a surplus created by a mere write-up of the valuation of fixed assets. Until the appreciation in value is actually realized, dividends from such a surplus should not be paid other than in the form of a share dividend, and this draft so provides. The Uniform Act and the new acts of Illinois and Ohio contain a similar provision.

3. The provisions of Subsection B of this section of the draft are taken from Section 24 (I) of the Uniform Act, and are necessary requirements for the ascertainment of the fund out of which dividends may be paid.

4. This provision is taken from Section 346 of the California act, and a substantially similar provision is contained in Section 24 (VII) of the Uniform Act.

The general rule that corporations may not pay dividends except out of net profits or surplus is subject to a well-established exception in the case of "wasting asset" companies; that is to say, companies engaged in the exploitation of such assets as mines, oil wells, leases, patents and the like. Since the business of such corporations involves the exhaustion of their assets in order to make a profit, they are not bound to set aside each year a sum equal to the amount of the exhaustion, in order to keep intact the original amount of the capital, but may pay dividends out of net profits derived from the employment of such assets. This is true, notwithstanding those statutes providing that dividends must not be paid except from surplus profits. See Fletcher Cyclopedia Corporations (Permanent Edition) Volume 11, Section 5347.

The proviso at the end of Subdivision C of this draft is taken from the Uniform Act. A note to the Uniform Act points out that this proviso is intended to protect the rights of shareholders inter sese, e. g., if there are common shares and shares preferred as to principal, a sufficient amount of the net profits must be retained to insure the repayment of principal to the holders of the preferred shares.

Section 702. Additional Limitations on Cash or Property Dividends. Cash or property dividends shall not be paid out of surplus due to or arising from:

(1) Any profit on treasury shares before resale; or

(2) Any unrealized profits due to increase in valuation of inventories before sale; or

(3) The accrued portion of unrealized profits on notes, bonds, or obligations for the payment of money purchased or acquired at a discount, unless such notes, bonds, or obligations are readily marketable, in which case they may be taken at their actual market value; or

(4) The unaccrued or unearned portion of any unrealized profit in any form whatever, whether in the form of notes, bonds, obligations for the payment of money, installment sales, credits, or otherwise.

Uniform Act—Section 24 (IV); Indiana—Section 12; Michigan—Section 22; California—Section 346.

Comments:

This section is new to Pennsylvania law. It is taken from Section 24 (IV) of the Uniform Act and is a necessary supplement to Section 701. Under Section 701, no dividend, except a dividend payable in shares, may be declared or paid out of surplus created by or arising from unrealized appreciation in value, or revaluation of fixed assets, such as patents, good will, or interests in real estate. Under this section, paper profits arising from assets other than fixed assets may not be included in the assets of the corporation for the payment of dividends until such profits become due and are actually realized. See Loan Society of Philadelphia v. Eavenson, 248 Pa. 407 (1915). The same is true under the California, Michigan and Indiana acts, all of which prohibit the payment of dividends out of surplus arising from unrealized appreciation of value of the corporate assets.

Section 703. Limitations on Dividends Payable in Shares. Dividends in shares of the corporation may be payable in shares with or without par value. If a dividend is declared payable in shares having a par value, such shares shall be issued at the par value thereof, and there shall be transferred to stated capital at the time such dividend is declared an amount of surplus equal to the aggregate par value of the shares to be issued as a dividend. If a dividend is declared payable in shares having no par value, such shares shall be issued at such value as shall be fixed by the board of directors by resolution at the time such dividend is declared, and there shall be transferred to stated capital at the time such dividend is declared an amount of surplus equal to the aggregate value so fixed in respect to such shares. For the purpose of determining whether shares have been fully paid for, in order to fix the extent of the outstanding obligation of a shareholder to the corporation with respect to such shares, the valuation placed by the board of directors upon the corporate assets in estimating the surplus to be transferred to stated capital as payment for shares issued as a share dividend shall be conclusive. Shares issued as share dividends shall be fully paid shares and non-assessable. No dividend payable in shares of any class shall be paid to shareholders of any other class, unless the article so provide, or such payment is authorized by the vote of the holders of a majority of the shares of the class in which the payment is to be made. A split-up or division of issued shares into a greater number of shares of the same class shall not be construed to be a share dividend within the meaning of this section.

Comments:

A share dividend is a dividend payable in reserved or additional shares of the corporation instead of in cash or in property. It converts surplus assets into capital. It takes nothing from the property of the corporation and in no way depletes its assets. Gibbons v. Mahon, 136 U. S. 549, 34 L. Ed. 525 (1890); Lehigh Crane Iron Company v. The Commonwealth, 55 Pa. 448 (1867); Eisner's Estate, 175 Pa. 143 (1896); Wright's Estate, 24 Pa. C. C. 376 (1900).

Accordingly, this draft defines the amount of surplus which must be transferred to stated capital upon the declaration of a share dividend. A substantially similar provision is contained in the Uniform Act and in the laws of many states, including Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and California.

The provision restricting the payment of share dividends where there are several classes of shares, is taken from Section 24 (VI) (c) of the Uniform Act, which, in turn, is modeled upon a corresponding provision in Section 38 of the new Ohio act. As pointed out in a note in the Uniform Act, where there is but one class of shares a stock dividend may be paid without affecting the relative rights of shareholders, but when there are two or more classes of shares, it is obvious that if shares of one class are paid as dividend to holders of another class, the relative rights of shareholders will be affected. This provision is necessary to protect shareholders in this respect. The corporation acts of Illinois and Indiana have a substantially similar provision.

The provision pertaining to the conclusiveness of the valuation of the consideration for shares issued as a share dividend is taken from Section 17 of the Uniform Act.

Section 704. Dividends Payable Out of Paid-in Surplus. Dividends may be paid out of paid-in surplus only upon shares having a preferential right to receive dividends, provided, that the source of such dividends shall be disclosed to the shareholders entitled thereto, prior to or concurrently with the payment of such dividends.

Comments:

This section makes a radical change in Pennsylvania law and is supplementary to Section 614 of this draft, relating to the capitalization of consideration received for shares having no par value. See the notes under that section.

Under the Act of 1919, supra, dividends may be paid by corporations having shares without par value only from "net profits" or "surplus earnings." Dividend payments from "capital" are forbidden. Should dividends be paid out of "paid-in surplus?" It has been held by a writer on the subject that the statutes may be divided into three clases; first, those which allow the consideration received for the shares in excess of the stated capital to be treated as paid-in surplus available for dividends, of which an example is one of the two alternatives under the New York statute, namely, stating a dollar or more per share; secondly, statutes providing that the entire consideration must be established as fixed capital not available for dividends, as in Pennsylvania; and thirdly, those which require no fixed or stated amount of capital stock and allow the corporation to determine what part of the consideration is fixed capital and what part may be established as paid-in surplus available for dividends, as in Delaware (See William D. Mitchell, American Bar Association Journal, June, 1925, Page 377. See also Wickersham on Stock Without Par Value, Page 115).

Many states, including Delaware, New Jersey, New York, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana and California, permit some allocation to surplus of a part of the consideration received for shares and the payment of dividends therefor. This is particularly desirable in corporate financing of business corporations. For instance, a corporation requires $1,000,000 to carry out a development or construction program. It can raise $500,000 through the sale of common stock without par value. It can raise the remaining amount by the sale of preferred stock to investors who require a fixed dividend return continuous from the date of their investment. Until the program is completed, there will not be sufficient earnings available for such dividends because of the nature of the business of the corporation. Accordingly, it is essential that a part of the consideration received for the shares of common stock be allocated to surplus to create a fund from which dividends may be paid on the preferred shares during the development or construction period. On the other hand, dividends so paid out of surplus should be properly identified and their source disclosed to the preferred shareholder, so that he will know that the dividends are not being paid from earnings.

Also, as pointed out by the drafting committee of the new Illinois act, if the payment of dividends out of surplus is not permitted, then in reorganization cases handled pursuant to the provisions of the existing Federal income tax laws the entire consideration received for shares, even though a part thereof may be allocated to paid-in surplus, is made unavailable for dividends on any class of shares, and is completely "frozen."

Accordingly, this draft, unlike the present law of Pennsylvania, permits dividends to be paid out of paid-in surpluses on preferred shares, provided the shareholders are notified of the source of the dividends.

The restrictive provisions of this draft, relative to allocation of consideration for shares, eliminate the possibilities for fraud found in the corporation acts of some states. See Section 614 of this draft.

Section 705. Redemption and Cancellation of Shares. A. Whenever any business corporation shall have issued any shares which, under its articles, are subject to redemption and cancellation, it may, by resolution of its board of directors, redeem and cancel such shares for consideration not in excess of that provided in the articles. Such corporation may apply to such redemption an amount out of its stated capital which shall not be greater than that portion of the stated capital represented by such shares at the time of such redemption, and the stated capital of the corporation shall be deemed to be reduced to this extent. No redemption of shares shall be made which will reduce the remaining assets of the corporation below an amount sufficient to pay all debts and known liabilities of the corporation as they mature, except such debts and liabilities as have been otherwise adequately provided for, or which will reduce the net assets below the aggregate amount payable to the holders of shares having prior or equal rights to the assets of the corporation upon dissolution.

B. In every such case, a statement of redemption and cancellation shall be executed in duplicate originals, under the seal of the corporation, signed and verified by at least two duly authorized officers thereof, which shall set forth:

(1) The name of the corporation and the address of its registered office.

(2) The aggregate number of shares which the corporation had authority to issue, itemized by classes and series.

(3) The number of shares redeemed and cancelled, itemized by classes and series.

(4) The number of shares which the corporation has authority to issue, itemized by classes and series, after giving effect to the redemption and cancellation.

(5) A statement of the aggregate number of issued shares, itemized by classes, par value of shares, shares without par value, and series, if any, within a class, after giving effect to such redemption and cancellation.

(6) A statement, expressed in dollars, of the amount of the stated capital and the amount of paid-in surplus of the corporation, after giving effect to such redemption and cancellation.

C. The duplicate originals of such statement shall be delivered to the Department of State, either prior to or within thirty days after the date of such redemption and cancellation. If the Department of State finds that the statement conforms to law, it shall endorse its approval upon each duplicate original and shall file and record one of the duplicate originals. The filing of such statement shall operate as an amendment to the articles of the corporation and shall reduce the number of shares of the class so redeemed which the corporation is authorized to issue by the number of the shares so redeemed and cancelled. The remaining duplicate original of the statement shall be returned by the Department of State to the corporation, or its representative, and the corporation shall cause the statement to be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation is situated. The duplicate original of the statement, upon being recorded by the recorder of deeds, shall be returned to the corporation or its representative. Nothing contained in this section shall be construed to prohibit a reduction of authorized capital stock or a reduction of stated capital in any other manner permitted by this act.

Comments:

This section of the draft makes a change in existing law. Under the Act of 1893, the capital stock of a corporation may be reduced only with the approval of at least a majority of the shareholders and the filing of a return with the Secretary of the Commonwealth. Section 801 (4) of this draft requires the articles to be amended in order to reduce the authorized capital stock of a business corporation. The procedure outlined in that section requires the shareholders to approve the amendment.

However, where the articles provide that shares redeemed are to be cancelled and not reissued, there is no need for a meeting of the shareholders to approve the redemption and cancellation of such shares. Accordingly, this draft, like the laws of many other states, including Delaware, New Jersey, Illinois and California, permits the redemption and cancellation of shares to be effected by resolution of the board of directors. The directors are required to file a statement of redemption and cancellation with the Department of State, which statement will operate as an amendment to the articles.

This draft does not permit the entire redemption price, including premiums, to be charged against or paid out of stated capital but only permits the use of stated capital to the extent it is attributable to such shares. Premiums, and the remaining part of the redemption price, if any, must be paid from surplus. The draft follows the Illinois act in this respect.

Section 706. Reduction of Stated Capital Without Change in Share Structure. A. A reduction in the stated capital of a corporation which does not involve an exchange, reclassification, or cancellation of shares, or a reduction of the number of authorized shares of any class below the number of issued shares of that class, or a redemption and cancellation of shares, may be effected in the manner hereinafter provided in this section. The board of directors of the corporation shall adopt a resolution setting forth the amount of the proposed reduction and the manner in which the reduction shall be effected, and directing that the question of such reduction be submitted to a vote at an annual meeting of the shareholders or at a special meeting of the shareholders entitled to vote thereon. Written notice stating that the purpose or one of the purposes of such meeting, is to consider the question of reducing the stated capital of the corporation, shall be given to each shareholder of record entitled to vote thereon, within the time and in the manner prescribed in this act for the giving of notice of meetings of shareholders. If such meeting be an annual meeting, such purpose may be included in a notice of such annual meeting. The resolution shall be adopted upon receiving the affirmative vote of the holders of at least a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote thereon, unless any class of shares is entitled to vote thereon as a class, in which event the proposed resolution for reduction of stated capital shall require for its adoption the affirmative vote of the holders of at least a majority of the outstanding shares of each class entitled to vote thereon.

B. Upon the approval of the resolution by the shareholders, a statement shall be executed in duplicate originals, under the seal of the corporation, signed and verified by at least two duly authorized officers thereof, and shell set forth:

(1) The name of the corporation and the address of its registered office.

(2) The number of shares outstanding, the number of shares entitled to vote in respect of such reduction, and, if the shares of any class are entitled to vote as a class, the number of shares of such class and the number of shaes of all other classes entitled to vote thereon.

(3) The number of shares voted for and against such reduction, respectively, and, if the shares of any class are entitled to vote as a class, the number of shares of each such class and the number of shares of all other classes voted for and against such reduction, respectively.

(4) A statement, expressed in dollars, of the amount of stated capital and the amount of paid-in surplus of the corporation adjusted to give effect to such resolution.

C. The duplicate originals of the statement shall be filed with the Department of State. If the Department of State finds that such statement conforms to law, it shall endorse its approval upon each duplicate original and shall file and record one of the duplicate originals. Upon the filing of such statement, the reduction shall be effective. The remaining duplicate original shall be returned by the Department of State to the corporation, or its representative, and shall be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation is situated. The duplicate original, upon being recorded by the recorder of deeds, shall be returned to the corporation or its representative.

Comments:

The reduction of stated capital, as authorized by this section, is not covered by statute in Pennsylvania, but the same result may be reached in several ways. For instance, some corporations follow the procedure for reduction of capital stock, under the Act of 1893, notwithstanding the fact that Section 9 of the Act of 1919, in the case of no-par shares, impliedly provides for such procedure only when the number of shares authorized is to be reduced. In some cases corporations partly follow the procedure outlined in the Act of 1893, in that they do not file the election return with the Secretary of the Commonwealth, as required by that act. Other corporations accomplish this result by first changing stock with no par value into stock with par value, in accordance with the procedure outlined in the Act of 1923, and then, at a second meeting usually called on the same day, change such shares back to no par value stock, but with a lower stated capital.

Under this draft, stated capital may be reduced (1) by an amendment of the articles, if a change of share structure is involved, or (2) in connection with the redemption of shares which are to be cancelled and not reissued, or (3) under this section, where it is desired to reduce stated capital representing the shares of common stock without par value but without change in the number of issued shares. In the latter case the approval of the shareholders should be required, and this section of the draft so provides.

Section 707. Liability For Unlawful Dividends and Distributions. A. The directors of a business corporation shall not declare or pay dividends, or authorize or ratify the withdrawal or distribution of any part of its assets to shareholders, except as authorized in this act. If any dividend shall be paid, or if any withdrawal or distribution of the corporate assets shall be made, except as provided in this act, the directors under whose administration the same were made, except those who shall have caused their dissent therefrom to be entered on the minutes of the meeting at which such action was authorized, or who being absent at the time shall have promptly filed their written objection thereto with the secretary of the corporation upon learning of such action, shall be jointly and severally liable to the corporation in an amount equal to the amount of the unlawful dividend or the unlawful withdrawal or distribution of assets. Any director against whom a claim shall be asserted under or pursuant to this section, and who shall be held liable thereon, shall be entitled to a contribution from the other directors who are likewise liable thereon, pro rata, according to the number of directors. Any two or more directors may be sued in the sace action[1].

B. Any shareholder who shall accept or receive any dividend or distribution of the assets of a corporation not authorized by this act to be made shall be individually liable to the corporation in an amount equal to the amount so accepted or received by him. Any two or more shareholders may be sued in the same action[2].

Comments:

1. This provision is, substantially, a restatement of Section 8 of the Act of 1919, supra. In Pennsylvania, directors are trustees of the capital of the corporation and liable for any breach of duty respecting its application.—Cornell v. Seddinger, 237 Pa. (1912); Hechelman v. Geyer, 248 Pa. 430 (1915),—and a corporation has a right and is under a duty to compel replacement by directors of capital illegally distributed as dividends.—Loan Society of Philadelphia v. Eavenson, 248 Pa. 407 (1915); Cochran v. Shetler, 286 Pa. (1926),—even when the corporation is solvent,—Prudential Loan Society v. Mayer, 25 D. R. 885 (1916). Under the Corporation Act of 1874, Section 39, Clause 5, the directors of any company who declare a dividend when the company is insolvent, or the payment of which would render it insolvent, are made jointly and severally liable for all the corporate debts then existing and for all thereafter contracted, so long as they respectively continue in office. Section 8 of the Act of 1919, relating to shares without par value, provides that directors who pay dividends out of capital, or out of anything except net profits or surplus earnings, are jointly and severally liable to the corporation and the creditors thereof, to the full amount of any loss sustained by the corporation or by its creditors by reason of such dividends. Accordingly, this draft makes no change in existing law, except that, in accordance with the Uniform Act, it makes the liability of the directors run to the corporation. Under the Acts of 1874 and 1919, supra, the directors are liable "to such corporation, and to the creditors thereof." As pointed out in a note to the Uniform Act, the liability of the directors should run to the corporation. As an asset of the corporation, it may be availed of by a creditor who resorts to equitable execution or similar court remedies. To pursue such a remedy, the creditor must first obtain a judgment against the corporation and have it returned unsatisfied.

The laws of other states differ on this point. Thus, in Delaware, and New York, the directors are liable "to the corporation and the creditors thereof," while in Michigan and Illinois the directors are liable to the corporation. In New Jersey, the directors are liable to the stockholders, or, in the case of insolvency, to the corporation or its receiver.

2. This provision increases the existing liability of stockholders in Pennsylvania, and a similar provision is contained in the laws of some of the other states. Under this provision of the draft, innocent shareholders, as well as those who knowingly participated in the illegal dividend or distribution, are made liable to the corporation for the amount they received. As pointed out in a note to the Uniform Act, the authorities are in conflict as to whether a shareholder who has innocently received a dividend paid out of capital when the corporation is solvent can be made liable for the amount received. Of course, if the payment to the shareholder causes insolvency, or is made at a time when the corporation is insolvent, that payment can be treated as a fraud on creditors and the shareholder, even though innocent, can be made to disgorge. This would be true though the payment were made from surplus or profits.

The only statutory provision in Pennsylvania on this subject is Section 39, Clause 4, of the Corporation Act of 1874, which makes shareholders liable for the debts of the company contracted before any part of the capital stock of the company is withdrawn and refunded to the stockholders. The statutes of other states are not uniform on this point. In some states, as in this draft, all shareholders are made liable to the amount of any unlawful dividend or distribution of the corporate assets received by them. In other states only those shareholders who knowingly recive any unlawful dividend or distribution of assets are made liable to the corporation for the amount received. In some states, like Pennsylvania, there is no specific statutory provision on this point.

To require shareholders receiving illegal dividends or distributions to return the same to the corporation would seem to be logical and just. Accordingly, this draft so provides.

AMENDMENT OF ARTICLES

Section 801. Amendment of Articles Authorized. A business corporation, in the manner hereinafter provided in this article, may from time to time amend its articles:

(1) To adopt a new name, subject to the restrictions heretofore provided in this act[1];

(2) To modify any provision thereof limiting its term of existence by increasing such term, or to remove such provision and provide for perpetual existence[2];

(3) To change, add to, or diminish its powers or purposes, or to set forth different or additional powers or purposes[3];

(4) To increase or diminish its authorized capital stock, or to reclassify the same by changing the number, par value, designations, preferences, or relative, participating, optional or other special rights of the shares, or the qualifications, limitations, or restrictions of such rights, or by changing shares with par value into shares without par value, or shares without par value into shares with par value, either with or without increasing or decreasing the number of shares[4]; and in any and as many other respects as desired, provided that the articles, as so amended, would be authorized by this act as original articles of incorporation[5].

Act of April 22, 1903, P. L. 251, 15 PS Sec. 462.

Comments:

1. Prior to the Act of 1903, supra, the name of a corporation of the second class was changed by amendment to its charter, under the general provisions of the Act of 1883, supra. Fort Pitt Building and Loan Assocaition, Appellant, v. Model Plan Building and Loan Association, 159 Pa. 308 (1893). Now, however, under the Act of 1903, the corporate name is changed by filing a certificate of change of name with the Secretary of the Commonwealth, who in turn issues a certificate authorizing the use of the new name upon the filing of the certificate in the office of the recorder of deeds of the proper county.

As the Uniform Act and the laws of most states, including Delaware, New Jersey and New York, require a business corporation to amend its articles in order to change its name, for the sake of uniformity, this draft restores the former practice in Pennsylvania of changing the name of a business corporation by an amendment to its articles. In many cases, a corporation not only desires to change its name, but to make other changes in its charter. Under existing law, such a corporation must make separate applications for an amendment enlarging or changing the corporate powers and for a change of name. In re Coal and Timber Publishing Company, 15 D. R. 671 (1906). Under the procedure prescribed in this draft, such a corporation may make such changes in one application. See Section 805 for corporate vote required to change the corporate name.

2. Section 40 of the Corporation Act of 1874 provides: "Corporations * * * embraced within either of the classes named in section two of this act, the charters whereof are about to expire by lapse of time from their own limitation, may be rechartered, or the charters thereof renewed." This draft treats the renewal of a charter as an amendment of an existing charter, similar to the Uniform, California and New York acts. Practically speaking, the renewal of a charter about to expire is identical with an amendment extending the time of corporate existence. In fact, it may be questioned whether the word "renew," used in Section 40 of the Act of 1874, is proper, in that to renew a charter is to give a new existence to one which has been forfeited or which has lost its vitality by lapse of time. See Moers v. The City of Reading, 21 Pa. 188 (1853).

3. Under existing law the articles of a corporation of the second class cannot be amended so as to change its original purpose. Pennsylvania Bottling and Supply Company, 19 Pa. C. C. 593 (1897); Duquesne Brewing Company (Op. Atty. Gen.), 29 Pa. C. C. 463 (1904). The same is true of corporations of the first class. Petition of Liberty Bell Lodge, 231 Pa. 112 (1911).

This provision of the draft will permit a business corporation to change its original purpose or purposes. The Uniform Act and the laws of many states, including Delaware, New Jersey, New York, and California, also permit the corporation to change its original purpose by amendment of its articles. While it may not be desirable for certain classes of corporations, like nonprofit corporations, public service corporations, banking and insurance corporations, to change their original purpose by amendment of their articles, there appears to be no reason why business corporations should not be able to do so.

4. This provision makes several changes in the existing Pennsylvania law. Under the Act of February 9, 1901, P. L. 3, the capital stock of a Pennsylvania corporation may be increased by resolution of the directors, approved by the shareholders, at an annual or special meeting. The resolution must be filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth. Also, under the Act of July 2, 1901, P. L. 606, a corporation may change the par value or face value of the shares of its capital stock by a vote of the majority of the shareholders, and upon the filing of the certificate of this fact with the Secretary of the Commonwealth. Under the Act of June 8, 1893, P. L. 351, as amended, 15 PS Sec. 281, a corporation may reduce its capital stock by resolution of its directors, approved by its shareholders, and filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth. All of these changes are now made without amending the charter of the corporation and without filing a certificate of such changes in the office of the recorder of deeds of the proper county.

Under this draft, like the Uniform Act and the laws of most states, including New Jersey, Delaware, New York, Michigan and California, the articles of incorporation are required to state the number, kinds and classes of shares which the corporation is authorized to issue. To make any change in the number, par value, or classes of its shares, a corporation must amend its articles. The procedure required by this draft seems to be more desirable than the existing Pennsylvania practice, as it will afford publicity to the share structure of business corporations and will also facilitate the collection of bonus, in that the Secretary of the Commonwealth will be fully advised of all increases of capital stock. Under the present practice, a corporation may increase its capital stock, and by the simple device of not notifying the Secretary of the Commonwealth thereof, avoid payment of the bonus. See Section 803 for notice and the vote necessary before the changes authorized by this provision may be made.

5. The Act of 1883 provides that any corporation of the second class may "improve, amend or alter the articles and conditions of the charter or instrument upon which said corporation is formed and established." This provision, therefore, is more or less a restatement of the Act of 1883. In fact, a general statement such as this may properly be used to include all amendments to the charter of a corporation, and such is the case in the Uniform Act and the acts of some of the other states. However, the enumerations in this draft were made to point out specifically the changes made in existing Pennsylvania practice.

Section 802. Proposal of Amendments. Every amendment to the articles shall first be proposed by the board of directors by the adoption of a resolution setting forth the proposed amendment and directing that it be submitted to a vote of the shareholders entitled to vote thereon at a designated meeting, which may be either an annual meeting of the shareholders, or a special meeting of the shareholders entitled to vote on the amendment. The resolution shall establish the language of the proposed amendment to the articles by providing that the articles shall be amended so as to read as therein set forth in full, or that any provision thereof be amended so as to read as therein set forth in full, or that the matter stated in the resolution be added to or stricken from the articles.

Comments:

While the Pennsylvania act does not specify who shall propose amendments to the articles, in practice, the directors usually do so by resolution adopted by a majority vote of the members of the board. This section of the draft makes no change in existing Pennsylvania law, and is similar to provisions contained in the laws of many of the other states. The provision requiring the resolution to specify the amendments in full is taken from the California act, and appears to be very desirable. Unless the proposed amendments are set forth in the manner required by this provision, the occasion might easily arise where the shareholders assenting to amendments did not fully comprehend their provisions.

Section 803. Notice of Shareholders' Meetings. Written notice shall, not less than ten days before the shareholders' meetings called by the board of directors for the purpose of considering proposed amendments, be given to each shareholder of record entitled to vote on the proposed amendment, except that written notice of any proposed amendment for increasing the authorized capital stock of the corporation shall be given to each shareholder entitled to vote thereon at least sixty days before such meeting. Such notice shall state the place, the day and hour of the meeting, and shall set forth the proposed amendment or a summary of the changes to be effected thereby. Notice of such meeting shall also be given by publication in a manner similar to that prescribed in this act in the case of the formation of the corporation.

Comments:

The Act of 1883, authorizing amendments to charters of corporations of the second class, requires the corporation to publish notice of its intention to apply for an amendment "in two newspapers of general circulation, printed in the county wherein the principal office or place of business of said corporation is located, once a week for three weeks." Here we have another anomalous situation in our existing corporation law. In the formation of a corporation, advertisement must be made once for at least three days before the application for a charter is filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth, but in order subsequently to amend the charter so obtained it is necessary to advertise once a week for three weeks before the application for amendment is filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth. This draft requires the same amount of advertising in the case of an amendment of a charter as is required to obtain the charter of the corporation.

The Act of 1893, authorizing a reduction of the capital stock, requires notice of the shareholders' meeting to be published "once a week for sixty days prior to such meeting in at least one newspaper published in the county, city or borough wherein such office or place of business is situate." There is no constitutional requirement that sixty days' notice be given of a decrease in capital stock, and such a period of notice seems wholly unnecessary.

Under the Act of 1901, P. L. 3, notice of a meeting for increasing the capital stock of the corporation must be published "once a week for sixty days prior to such meeting in at least one newspaper published in the county, city or borough wherein the chief office or place of business of the corporation is situate." This provision carries out the constitutional mandate of Article XVI, Section 7, that "The stock and indebtedness of corporations shall not be increased except in pursuance of general law, nor without the consent of the persons holding the larger amount in value of the stock, first obtained at a meeting to be held after sixty days notice given in pursuance of law." Accordingly, this draft requires that at least sixty days' notice be given of a meeting at which it is proposed to consider a proposed amendment authorizing an increase of the authorized capital stock of the corporation. The notice of such a meeting may be waived by unanimous consent of all the stockholders, although the meeting itself cannot be waived. Tally-on-Top Salesbook Company (Op. Atty. Gen.), 17 Pa. C. C. 199 (1895). In practice, such notice is usually waived, and Section 8 of this draft specifically permits such notice to be waived.

Section 804. Shares Entitled to Vote on Amendments. Except as hereinafter provided, only the holders of outstanding shares who, under the articles are entitled to vote on proposed amendments to the articles of the corporation, shall be entitled to vote thereon. If a proposed amendment would authorize the board of directors to fix and determine the relative rights and preferences, as between series, of any preferred or special class, or would revoke the authority of the board of directors to do so, then the holders of the outstanding shares of any class shall be entitled to vote in respect to such amendment. If a proposed amendment would make any change in the preferences, qualifications, limitations, restrictions or special or relative rights of the shares of any class, or increase or decrease the par value or the authorized number of shares of any class, or limit or deny the existing preemptive rights of the shares of any class or authorize a new class of shares, senior or superior in any respect to the shares of any class then authorized, or increase the number of authorized shares of any class, senior or superior in any respect to the shares of any class then authorized, the holders of the outstanding shares of the class or classes affected by the proposed amendment shall be entitled to vote as a class on such amendment regardless of any limitation stated in the articles on the voting rights of such class or classes. If a proposed amendment would authorize an increase of the authorized capital stock of the corporation, the holders of shares transferred within sixty days of the meeting called for this purpose shall not be entitled to vote, either in person or by proxy; nor shall any proxy be received or entitle the holder to vote on such amendment unless the proxy shall have been executed at least sixty days before the meeting.

Comments:

This draft, like the Uniform Act and the acts of many other states, does not require a majority vote of each class of shares to adopt an amendment, as this requirement might prove unduly burdensome on the corporation with respect to such amendments as change of name, amendments changing corporate purposes, or amendments regulating the internal affairs of the corporation. It is not desirable to permit the holders of any one class of shares whose relative rights and preferences are not effected by a proposed amendment, and who may hold a very small percentage of the total outstanding shares, to defeat such an amendment desired by the holders of a great majority of the outstanding shares. Accordingly, those distinctions have been incorporated in this draft, and they are substantially in accord with the provisions of the Illinois, Indiana and Uniform acts.

The provision relating to shares transferred within sixty days of the shareholders' meeting, called for the consideration of a proposed amendment for the increase of the authorized capital stock of the corporation, is taken from Section 2 of the Act of 1901, and is necessary to carry out the constitutional mandate of Article XVI, Section 7, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, requiring sixty days' notice to be given to the shareholders before an increase of the capital stock may be authorized.

Section 805. Adoption of Amendments by Shareholders. A vote of the shareholders entitled to vote on a proposed amendment shall be taken at the annual or special meeting called for that purpose. Unless the articles require a greater vote, the proposed amendment shall be adopted upon receiving the affirmative vote of the holders of at least a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote on the amendment, unless any class of shares is entitled to vote as a class on the amendment, in which event the proposed amendment shall be adopted upon receiving the affirmative vote of the holders of at least a majority of the outstanding shares in each class of shares entitled to vote as a class on such amendment, and a least a majority of all other outstanding shares entitled to vote thereon. Any number of amendments may be submitted to the shareholders and voted upon by them at one meeting.

Comments:

The Act of 1883, supra, which authorizes the amendment of charters of corporations of the second class, does not specify the vote by which the proposed amendment must be approved by the shareholders. Accordingly, a majority vote is required, unless the articles specify a larger vote. The Act of 1901, authorizing an increase of the capital stock of a corporation, also requires a majority vote of the shareholders. The Act of 1903, authorizing corporations of the second class to change their names, requires a two-thirds vote of the shareholders.

The Uniform Act and the laws of most states, including Illinois, Delaware and New Jersey, require a two-thirds vote of the shareholders to amend the articles of a corporation. The Uniform Act, however, permits a majority vote for the approval of an amendment changing the corporate name. The new acts of Michigan and California require a majority vote to amend the articles of a corporation.

This draft continues the Pennsylvania practice of requiring a majority votes to amend the articles of a corporation and also permits of the shareholders change of the corporate name by a similar vote, unless the articles require a greater vote.

Section 806. Articles of Amendment. A. After an amendment has been adopted by the shareholders, duplicate originals of articles of amendment shall be executed under the seal of the corporation by two duly authorized officers of the corporation, and shall set forth:

(1) The name and location of the registered office of the corporation.

(2) The Act of Assembly under which the corporation was formed, and the date when and the place where the original articles were recorded.

(3) The time and place of the meeting of the shareholders of the corporation at which the amendment was adopted, and the kind and period of notice given to the shareholders.

(4) The number of shares outstanding, the number of shares entitled to vote on the amendment, and, if the shares of any class are entitled to vote as a class, then the number of shares of each class and the number of shares of all other classes entitled to vote thereon.

(5) The number of shares voted for and against such amendment, respectively, and if shares of any class are entitled to vote as a class, the number of shares of such class and the number of shares of all other classes voted for and against such amendment, respectively.

(6) The amendment adopted by the shareholders, which shall be set forth in full.

(7) If the total number of shares is to be increased or decreased, the total number of shares, including those previously authorized, which the corporation will thenceforth be authorized to have, the number of shares that have a par value and the par value thereof, and the number of shares that have no par value; and if shares are divided into more than one class, a description of the classes and a statement of the number of shares in each class and of the relative rights, voting powers, preferences and restrictions granted to or imposed upon the shares of each class.

B. If shares having a par value are to be changed into an equal or different number of shares having no par value, the amount of the consideration for which shares having no par value are issued to take the place of outstanding shares having a par value shall be deemed to be the amount of the aggregate par value of such outstanding shares, or if the actual value of such shares be less than their par value, the consideration may be stated in the articles of amendment to be their actual value. If shares having no par value are to be changed into an equal or different number of shares having a par value, the shares having a par value which are issued to take the place of outstanding shares having no par value shall be taken to be fully paid for, but the aggregate par value of such shares shall not exceed the actual value of the assets of the corporation less its liabilities, represented by the shares having no par value so exchanged. If shares having no par value are to be changed into a different number of the same class or of any other class or classes of shares having no par value, the corporation shall be deemed to have received for such new shares as represent or take the place of such outstanding shares the amount of the capital of the corporation represented by the outstanding shares so changed.

Comments:

Under the provisions of the Act of 1883, the corporation is required to prepare a certificate, under its corporate seal, setting forth "the character and objects of the proposed improvement, amendment or alteration of their charter." That act does not enumerate what shall be set forth in the certificate of amendment. This draft specifically requires certain facts to be set forth which, in practice, are generally set forth in the certificate of amendment. As Section 204 of this draft requires the share structure of a corporation to be set forth in its articles, this section of the draft also requires any change in the share structure to be set forth explicitly in the articles of amendment.

The Act of 1383 requires the corporation to prepare a certificate of amendment. While some other states use the same terminology, this draft follows the suggestion of the Uniform Act and designates the document to be filed by a corporation amending its charter as "articles of amendment." The new Illinois and Indiana acts use the same designation. Under the following section of this draft, the Department of State is authorized to issue a certificate of amendment, which constitutes official evidence that the articles of amendment have been filed in its office and that the charter of the corporation has been amended.

The provision of this section prescribing the basis of exchangable value of shares is taken from Section 40 of the Uniform Act. That section of the Uniform Act, in turn, is based upon Section 38 of the New York Stock Corporation Law. Only a few states, including Illinois, California and Delaware, attempt to prescribe, by statute, the basis of exchangeable value of shares. This provision is inserted solely for the purpose of discussion.

Section 807. Filing and Recording of Articles of Amendment. The duplicate originals of the articles of amendment and proof of the advertisement heretofore required in this article, shall be delivered to the Department of State. If the Department of State finds that such articles conform to law, it shall endorse its approval upon each duplicate original, and when all bonus, fees, taxes and charges have been paid, as required by law, shall file and record one of the duplicate originals and shall issue a certificate of amendment. The remaining duplicate original of the articles of amendment, and the certificate of amendment, shall be returned by the Department of State to the corporation, or its representative, and such certificate and articles shall be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds in the county in which the registered office of the corporation is situated. A duplicate original of the articles of amendment, and the certificate, upon being recorded by the recorder of deeds, shall be returned to the corporation or its representative.

Comments:

This section of the draft makes a radical change in the procedure outlined in the Act of 1883 for the amendment of a charter of a corporation of the second class. Under the Act of 1883, a corporation is required to prepare a certificate acknowledged by its president and secretary. The certificate, together with proof of publication, is then required to be presented to the Governor. If the certificate is in proper form and all taxes due the Commonwealth have been paid, the Governor is required to approve the certificate and to direct letters patent to issue in the usual form, reciting the amendments. The certificate is then required to be recorded in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth and in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county where the principal office or place of business of the corporation is located.

This draft, as in the case of the formation of a corporation, does not require the Governor to approve articles of amendment. This duty is placed squarely upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth. The Uniform Act and practically all of the corporation laws of other states prescribe a similar procedure.

Section 808. Effective Date of Amendment. Upon the issuance of the certificate of amendment by the Department of State, the amendments shall become effective and the articles of incorporation shall be deemed to be amended accordingly. The certificate of amendment shall be conclusive evidence of the performance of all conditions required in this act in proceedings to amend the articles of incorporation, except as against the Commonwealth. No amendment shall affect any existing cause of action in favor of or against the corporation, or any pending suit in which the corporation shall be a party, or the existing rights of persons other than shareholders; and, in the event the corporate name shall be changed by the amendment, no suit brought by or against the corporation under its former name shall be abated for that reason.

Comments:

Under the Act of 1883, the amendment of a charter becomes effective upon the recording of the certificate of amendment in the office of the recorder of deeds of the proper county.

Under this draft, as under the Uniform Act and the laws of many states, the amendment becomes effective upon the issuance of the certificate of amendment by the Department of State. Before that department may issue such certificate, all taxes, bonus, fees and other charges required by law must first have been paid, but this draft does not require the corporation to state in its articles of amendment that all taxes have been paid. It is submitted that the Department of State may readily ascertain this fact from the Department of Revenue, and that there is no necessity for imposing upon the corporation the duty of stating this fact in the articles of amendment.

MERGER AND CONSOLIDATION

Section 901. Merger and Consolidation Authorized. A. Any two or more domestic business corporations, or any one or more domestic business corporations and any one or more foreign business corporations, may, in the manner hereinafter provided in this article, be merged into one of such domestic business corporations, hereinafter designated as the surviving corporation, or consolidated into a new corporation to be formed under this act, provided such foreign business corporations are authorized by the law or laws of the jurisdiction under which they were formed to effect such merger or consolidation[1].

B. Any one or more domestic business corporations, and any one or more foreign business corporations, may, in the manner hereinafter provided in this act, be merged into one of such foreign business corporations, hereinafter designated as the surviving corporation, or consolidated into a new corporation to be formed under the law or laws of the jurisdiction under which one of the foreign business corporations was formed, provided the laws of such jurisdiction authorize such merger or consolidation[2].

Pennsylvania Act of May 3, 1909, P. L. 408, Section 1, 15 PS Sec. 421.

Comments:

1. Section 1 of the Act of 1909 expressly permits domestic corporations to merge or consolidate only with domestic corporations transacting "the same or a similar line of business." The proposed provision, which is taken from Section 43 of the Uniform Act, not only permits domestic corporations to merge or consolidate with each other, but also permits the merger or consolidation of domestic and foreign corporations into a domestic corporation. Practically every state which has recently devised its corporation laws has a similar provision.

Also, this draft does not contain the existing Pennsylvania limitation that corporations may merge or consolidate only with corporations transacting "the same or a similar line of business." The modern tendency is not to so restrict the merger and consolidation of such corporations. The Uniform Act, the new acts of California, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, and the Delaware act, do not contain this limitation. On the other hand, the acts of New Jersey and New York do contain such a limitation. There seems to be little need for this limitation in the case of business corporations, particularly as this draft does not require singleness of purpose.

As used in the Act of 1909, the words "consolidate" and "merge" appear to be used synonymously, whereas such words, technically, have different meanings. In a merger, only one of the constitutent corporations survives, whereas the others lose their identities; while in a consolidation all the constituent corporations lose their identities and a new corporation springs up in their place. This draft, like the Uniform Act and the acts of the states above listed, makes a clear distinction between a merger and a consolidation.

2. This provision is taken from Section 43 of the Uniform Act and is new to Pennsylvania law. Under this provision, a domestic business corporation may be merged or consolidated into a foreign business corporation. It is pointed out in the annotations to that section of the Uniform Act that if merger and consolidation of domestic and foreign corporations is to be permitted, a uniform act should provide for reciprocity between the states. The New Jersey statute expressly limits, and the New York statute seems to limit, the merger and consolidation of domestic and foreign corporations to merger and consolidation into a domestic corporation. The Illinois, Delaware and Indiana acts limit their effect to mergers and consolidations of domestic corporations. The new California and Michigan acts, however, permit domestic corporations to be merged or consolidated into foreign corporations. Discussion is invited on this point.

Section 902. Approval of Joint Plan of Merger or Consolidation. A. The board of directors of each of the corporations which desire to merge or consolidate shall, by resolution adopted by at least a majority vote of the members of each board, approve a joint plan of merger or consolidation, as the case may be, setting forth the terms and conditions of the merger or consolidation and mode of carrying the same into effect, the manner and basis of converting the shares of each corporation into shares or other securities or obligations of the surviving or new corporation as the case may be, and such other details and provisions as are deemed necessary[1].

B. The board of directors of each corporation, upon approving such plan of merger or plan of consolidation, shall, by resolution, direct that the plan be submitted to a vote of the shareholders of such corporation entitled to vote thereon, at an annual or special meeting of the shareholders. Written notice shall, not less than fifteen days before such annual or special meeting, be given to each shareholder of record of such corporation, whether or not entitled to vote on such plan. The notice shall state the place, day, hour and purpose of the meeting, and a copy or a summary of the plan of merger or plan of consolidation, as the case may be, shall be included in or enclosed with such notice. Such notice shall also be published once a week for two consecutive weeks before such meeting in at least one newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the registered office of the corporation is located[2].

C. The plan of merger or consolidation shall be approved upon receiving the affirmative vote of the holders of at least the majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote thereon of each of the merging or consolidating corporations, unless any class of shares of any of such corporations is entitled to vote thereon as a class, in which event, as to such corporation, the plan of merger or consolidation shall be approved upon receiving the affirmative vote of the holders of at least a majority of the outstanding shares of each class of shares entitled to vote thereon as a class, and at least a majority of all other outstanding shares entitled to vote thereon. Different series of the same class of shares shall not be construed to constitute different classes of shares for the purpose of voting by classes under this section[3].

Comments:

1. Under the Act of 1909, supra, the directors of each corporation are required to enter into a joint agreement for the merger and consolidation of the constitutent corporations. The agreement is required to set forth: "the terms and conditions thereof, the mode of carrying the same into effect, the name of the new corporation, the number and names of the directors and other officers thereof, and who shall be the first directors and officers, and their places of residence, the number of shares of the capital stock, the amount or par value of each share, and the manner of converting the capital stock of each of said corporations into the stock of the new corporation, and how and when directors and officers shall be chosen, with such other details as they shall deem necessary to perfect the said consideration and merger." The word "consideration," which appears in the quoted petition of the Act of 1909, apparently should be "consolidation."

This provision of the draft is a restatement of the quoted portion of the Act of 1909, except that the joint agreement specified in that act is here designated as a joint plan of merger or consolidation. We have adopted this designation because this draft, in the succeeding section, requires articles of merger or consolidation to be filed with the Department of State. Under the Act of 1909, the joint agreement is required to be so filed.

2. Under the Act of 1909, after the directors of each corporation approve the joint agreement of merger and consolidation, the next step is to submit the joint agreement to the stockholders of each corporation at either special or annual meetings, after notice of "the time, place and object of which * * * meetings * * * (is) given by publication, once a week for two consecutive weeks before said respective meetings, in at least one newspaper in the county or in each of the counties in which the principal office of said respective corporations shall be situate * * *".

It will be noted that the Act of 1909 requires only constructive notice by publication to be given to the shareholders of the corporation. This draft, in addition to requiring constructive notice by publication, also requires written notice to be given to each shareholder, whether or not the shareholder is entitled to vote. The Uniform Act and the new corporation acts of Illinois, Indiana and California do not require notice of a merger or consolidation to be given by publication. On the other hand, the laws of Delaware, New Jersey, and the new corporation act of Michigan require notice by publication, as well as written notice to each shareholder.

QUERY: Whether notice by publication is necessary, if written notice is required to be given to each shareholder.

Unlike the Act of 1909, this draft also requires that each shareholder shall receive a copy of a summary of the plan of merger or consolidation. This provision was taken from the new Illinois act and seems to be very desirable. A similar provision is contained in the new California act.

3. Under the Act of 1909, the vote of a majority in amount of the entire capital stock of each corporation is necessary to the adoption of the merger and consolidation agreement. This draft also requires a similar vote of the shareholders. On the other hand, the Uniform Act and the acts of Delaware, New Jersey, Michigan, Illinois, California, and many other states require at least a two-thirds vote of the outstanding shares of a corporation for the approval of a merger or consolidation.

Unlike the Act of 1909, this draft provides for the voting of classes of shares. This provision was taken from the Illinois and California acts.

Section 903. Articles of Merger or Consolidation. Upon the approval of the plan of merger or the plan of consolidation by the shareholders of the corporations desiring to merge or consolidate, duplicate originals of articles of merger or articles of consolidation, as the case may be, shall be executed under the seal of each corporation by two duly authorized officers of each corporation, and shall set forth:

(1) The name and the location of the registered office of the surviving or new corporation.

(2) The time and place of the meeting of the shareholders of each corporation at which the plan of merger or consolidation, as the case may be, was adopted, the kind and period of notice given to the shareholders, and the total vote by which the plan was adopted.

(3) Any changes desired to be made in the articles of the surviving corporation, in the case of a merger, or, in the case of a consolidation, all of the statements required by this act to be set forth in original articles in the case of the formation of a corporation.

(4) The number, names and addresses of the persons to be the first directors of the surviving or new corporation.

(5) The plan of merger or consolidation.

Comments:

This section of the draft makes a radical change in the procedure outlined in the Act of 1909 for the merger or consolidation of domestic corporations. Under the Act of 1909, the directors and shareholders approve a joint agreement, which is filed with the Department of State. Under this draft, the directors and shareholders first approve a plan of merger or consolidation and then articles of merger or consolidation are drawn up for presentation to the Department of State. This seems to be more logical than the present practice in Pennsylvania. In the case of a merger, the surviving corporation frequently requires an amendment of its existing articles, and in the case of a consolidation the new corporation certainly should not spring up in any manner other than that required for the formation of a corporation in the first instance, namely, by the filing of articles of incorporation. The procedure set forth in this draft was taken from the new Illinois act. The Uniform Act, in the case of a consolidation, requires articles of corporation to be prepared and delivered to the secretary of state, together with the joint agreement. In the case of a merger, that act requires the agreement to be filed with the secretary of state.

Section 904. Filing and Recording of Artciles of Merger or Consolidation. The duplicate originals of the articles of merger or articles of consolidation, as the case may be, shall be delivered to the Department of State. If the Department of State finds that such articles conform to law, it shall endorse its approval upon each duplicate original, and when all bonus, fees, taxes and charges have been paid, as required by law, shall file and record one of the duplicate originals and shall issue a certificate of merger or a certificate of consolidation, as the case may be. The remaining duplicate original of the articles and the certificate of merger, or the certificate of consolidation, shall be returned by the Department of State to the surviving corporation, or the new corporation, as the case may be, or to its representative, and such certificate and articles shall be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the surviving or new corporation is situated. A duplicate original of the articles and the certificate, upon being recorded by the recorder of deeds, shall be returned to the surviving or new corporation, or its representative.

Comments:

Under the Act of 1909, the secretary of each corporation, in a consolidation and merger proceeding, is required to issue a certificate that the joint agreement of merger was approved by a majority vote of the shareholders of the corporations. The certificate and the joint agreement are then required to be filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, who is required to present them to the Governor for his approval. Upon the agreement being approved by the Governor, and upon the issuance of new letters patent by the Governor, the merger becomes effective.

This draft, as in the case of the formation of corporations, does not require the Governor to approve articles of merger or consolidation. This duty is placed squarely upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth. The Uniform Act and practically all of the corporation laws of other states prescribe a similar procedure.

The Act of 1909 does not require the joint agreement of merger and consolidation to be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds.

Kuyalowicz v. Schuylkill Gas and Electric Company, 1 D. & C. 159 (1921). See also Keller v. Riverton Consolidated Water Company, 34 Pa. Super. 301 (1907), in which a similar conclusion was reached under the Act of May 29, 1901, P. L. 349, which formerly authorized merger and consolidation proceedings in Pennsylvania. It is submitted that articles of merger or articles of consolidation should be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the proper county, just as original articles of incorporation or articles of amendment are required to be recorded. Accordingly, this draft provides for the recording of such articles. The Uniform Act and the acts of Delaware, New Jersey, Illinois, Michigan, California, and many other states contain a similar requirement.

Section 905. Effective Date of Merger or Consolidation. Upon the issuance of the certificate of merger or the certificate of consolidation by the Department of State, the merger or consolidation shall be effective. The certificate of merger or the certificate of consolidation shall be conclusive evidence of the performance of all conditions precedent to such consolidation or merger and the creation or existence of a new or surviving corporation, except as against the Commonwealth. The merger or consolidation of one or more domestic corporations into a foreign corporation shall be effective according to the provisions of law of the jurisdiction in which such foreign corporation was formed, but not until articles of merger or articles of consolidation have been adopted and filed, as heretofore provided in this act.

Pennsylvania Act of May 3, 1909, P. L. 403, Section 3, as amended by the Act of April 29, 1915, P. L. 205, 15 PS Sec. 423.

Comments:

Under the Act of 1909, "upon the issuing of new letters patent thereon by the Governor, the * * * merger shall be deemed to have taken place." Also, under the Act of 1909, no merger and consolidation shall be complete and no consolidated corporation shall do business of any kind until: (1) It shall have first obtained from the Governor of the Commonwealth new letters patent; (2) It shall have paid to the State Treasurer a bonus upon its capital stock in excess of the amount of capital stock of the several corporations so consolidating; and (3) It shall have filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth a certificate from the Auditor General of the Commonwealth setting forth that all reports required by the Auditor General of the Commonwealth have been duly filed to the date of the proposed merger and that all taxes due the Commonwealth have been paid up to and including that date.

Under this draft, the merger and consolidation becomes effective upon the issuance of the certificate of merger or the certificate of consolidation by the Department of State. Before that department may issue such certificate, all taxes, bonus, fees and other charges required by law must first have been paid. The draft does not require the corporation to obtain from the Department of Revenue, which now carries out the functions formerly exercised by the Auditor General in the collection of taxes, a certificate that the taxes have been paid. It is submitted that the Department of State may readily ascertain this fact from the Department of Revenue, and that there is no necessity for imposing upon the corporation the duty of obtaining such certificate.

Section 906. Effect of Merger or Consolidation. Upon the merger or consolidation becoming effective, the several corporations parties to the plan of merger or consolidation shall be a single corporation which, in the case of a merger, shall be that corporation designated in the plan of merger as the surviving corporation, and, in the case of a consolidation, shall be the new corporation provided for in the plan of consolidation. The separate existence of all corporations parties to the plan of merger or consolidation shall cease, except that of the surviving corporation, in the case of a merger. The surviving or new corporation, as the case may be, shall have all the rights, privileges, immunities and franchises of each of the merging or consolidating corporations, except that the surviving or new corporation shall not thereby acquire authority to engage in any business or exercise any right which a corporation may not be formed under this act to engage in or exercise. All the property, real, personal, and mixed, of each of the corporations parties to the plan of merger or consolidation, and all debts due on whatever account to any of them, including subscriptions to shares and other choses in action belonging to any of them, shall be taken and deemed to be transferred to and vested in the surviving or new corporation, as the case may be, without further act or deed. The surviving or new corporation shall thenceforth be responsible and liable for all the liabilities and obligations of each of the corporations so merged or consolidated, in the same manner as if the surviving or new corporation had itself incurred such liabilities or obligations; but the liabilities of the merging or consolidating corporations, or of their shareholders, directors, or officers, shall not be affected, nor shall the rights of the creditors thereof or of any persons dealing with such corporations, or any liens upon the property of such corporations, be impaired by such merger or consolidation, and any claim existing or action or proceeding pending by or against any of such corporations may be prosecuted to judgment as if such merger or consolidation had not taken place, or the surviving or new corporation may be proceeded against or substituted in its place. In the case of a merger, the articles of incorporation of the surviving corporation shall be deemed to be amended to the extent, if any, that changes in its articles are stated in the articles of merger; and in the case of a consolidation, the statements set forth in the articles of consolidation, and which are required or permitted to be set forth in the articles of incorporation of corporations formed under this act, shall be deemed to be the articles of incorporation of the new corporation. The aggregate amount of the net assets of the merging or consolidating corporations which was available for the payment of dividends immediately prior to such merger or consolidation, to the extent that the value thereof is not transferred to stated capital by the issuance of shares or otherwise, shall continue to be available for the payment of dividends by such surviving or new corporation.

Comments:

The provisions of this section are taken from Section 47 of the Uniform Act and Section 68 of the new Illinois act.

The Act of 1909 provides that upon a consolidation or merger becoming effective, the consolidating or merging corporations shall be:

" * * * one corporation under the name adopted in and by said agreement, possessing all the rights, privileges, and franchises theretofore vested in each of them; and all the estate and property, real and personal, and rights of action, of each of said corporations, shall be deemed and taken to be transferred to and vested in the said new corporation, without any further act or deed: Provided, That all rights of creditors and all liens upon the property of each of said corporations shall continue unimpaired, limited in lien to the property affected by such liens at the time of the creation of the same, and the respective constituent corporations may be deemed to be in existence to preserve the same; and all debts not of record, duties, and liabilities of each of said constituent corporations shall thenceforth attach to the said new corporation, and may be enforced against it to the same extent and by the same process as if debts, duties, and liabilities had been contracted by it. * * * "

This section of this draft makes no change in existing law and similar provisions are contained in the laws of many other states.

Section 907. Rights of Dissenting Shareholders. A. If any shareholder of a corporation which becomes a party to a plan of merger or consolidation shall file with such corporation, prior to or at the meeting of shareholders at which the plan of merger or consolidation is submitted to a vote, a written objection to such plan of merger or consolidation, and shall not vote in favor thereof, and such shareholder, within twenty days after the merger or consolidation was effected, shall make written demand on the surviving or new corporation for the payment of the fair value of his shares as of the day prior to the date on which the vote was taken approving the merger or consolidation, without regard to any depreciation or appreciation thereof in consequence of the marger or consolidation, the surviving or new corporation shall pay to such shareholder the fair value of his shares upon surrender of the share certificate or certificates representing his shares. The demand of the shareholder shall state the number and class of the shares owned by him. Any shareholder failing to make demand within the twenty-day period shall be conclusively presumed to have consented to the merger or consolidation, and shall be bound by the terms thereof. If within thirty was effected the value of such shares shall be agreed upon days after the date on which such merger or consolidation between the dissenting shareholder and the surviving or new corporation, payment thereof shall be made within ninety days after the date on which such merger or consolidation was effected, upon the surrender of the share certificate or certificates representing his shares. Upon payment of the agreed value, the dissenting shareholder shall cease to have any interest in such shares or in the corporation.

B. If within such period of thirty days the shareholder and the surviving or new corporation do not so agree, then the dissenting shareholder may, within sixty days after the expiration of the thirty-day period, apply by petition to the court of common pleas within the county in which the registered office of the surviving or new corporation is situated for the appointment by the court of three disinterested persons to appraise the fair market value of his shares without regard to any depreciation or appreciation thereof in consequence of the merger or consolidation. The award of the appraisers, or of a majority of them, when confirmed by the court, shall be final and conclusive. The costs of such appraisal, including a reasonable fee to the appraisers, shall be fixed by the court and shall be borne by the surviving or new corporation, unless in the opinion of the court the action of any shareholder in refusing the offer of the corporation has been arbitrary, vexatious, or in bad faith, in which case the costs shall be assessed in the discretion of the court. The award shall be payable only upon, and simultaneously with, the surrender to the surviving or new corporation of the share certificate or certificates representing the shares of the dissenting shareholder. If the award shall not be paid by the surviving or new corporation within thirty days after the award was confirmed by the court, the amount of the award shall be a judgment against the surviving or new corporation, as the case may be, and may be collected as other judgments in such court are by law collectible. Upon the payment of the award or judgment, the dissenting shareholder shall cease to have any interest in such shares or in the surviving or new corporation. Such shares may be held and disposed of by the surviving or new corporation as it may see fit. Unless the dissenting shareholder shall file a petition within the time herein limited, such shareholder and all persons claiming under him shall be conclusively presumed to have approved and ratified the merger or consolidation, and shall be bound by the terms thereof. The right of the dissenting shareholder to be paid the fair value of his shares, as herein provided, shall cease if and when the corporation shall abandon the merger or consolidation.

Pennsylvania Act of May 3, 1909, P. L. 408, Section 5, 15 PS Sec. 425.

Comments:

It is provided by Section 5 of the Act of 1909 that the shareholders voting against consolidation may, within thirty days after the adoption of the consolidation agreement, petition the court of the proper county to appoint appraisers to appraise the damages to such stockholders by the consolidation. It is the duty of the appraisers, so appointed, not only to award damages to the objecting stockholders, but to appraise the market value of their stock. The corporation may then elect to pay either the damages awarded or the value of the stock as ascertained, and if it elect to pay the value of the stock to the objecting holders, they are required to transfer the same to the corporation.

This section of the draft makes the following changes in the Pennsylvania law:

(a) The dissenting shareholder must look to the surviving or new corporation for payment of the fair value of his shares. Under the Pennsylvania act the shareholder must look to his own corporation. As the constituent corporations cease to exist upon the effective date of the merger or consolidation, it appears to be more logical for all dissenting shareholders of the constituent corporations to look to the surviving or new corporation for the fair value of their shares. The Uniform Act and the laws of Delaware, New Jersey, New York, Michigan, and many other states contain a similar requirement. On the other hand, California, like Pennsylvania, requires the demand to be made on the constituent corporation.

(b) A dissenting shareholder is entitled to only the fair value of his shares as of the day prior to the date on which the vote was taken approving the merger or consolidation, without regard to any depreciation or appreciation thereof in consequence of the merger or consolidation. Under the Act of 1909, the shareholder is entitled, in the discretion of the corporation, either to damages suffered by him as a result of the merger or consolidation, or the value of his stock. Pennsylvania appears to be the only state which contains such a provision. The laws of most states, including Delaware, New Jersey, Michigan, California, and others, permit a dissenting shareholder to recover only the fair value of his shares without regard to any depreciation or appreciation thereof in consequence of a merger or consolidation. Accordingly, this draft adopts the practice of other states in this respect, for the sake of uniformity.

(c) The shareholders and the surviving or new corporation are required to try to get together on the fair value of the shareholder's shares. If an agreement cannot be reached, then, and only then, are appraisers to be appointed. Under the Pennsylvania act a dissenting shareholder must, in the first instance, apply to the court for the appointment of appraisers to ascertain the value of the shares of the dissenting shareholder. It seems more logical to require the appointment of appraisers only in those instances where the new or surviving corporation and the dissenting shareholder cannot agree upon the fair value of his shares. The laws of Delaware, Illinois, Michigan and California so provide.

This draft follows the Act of 1909 in providing for the appointment of appraisers to determine the fair value of the shares of a dissenting shareholder, and, in this respect, the provisions of other states are not uniform. In the California and Uniform Acts, if an agreement cannot be reached with the shareholder and the corporation, each appoints an appraiser and the two appraisers appoint a third one. In other states, as in Pennsylvania, the statutes provide for the appointment of appraisers and usually provide that their appraisal shall be submitted to the court, which may hear further evidence as to the fairness of the appraisal. It would seem that the practice of having the court appoint appraisers is unduly complicated, and that the practice suggested in the Uniform Act is more desirable. Discussion is invited whether it is desirable for Pennsylvania to follow the Uniform Act in this respect.

ARTICLE X

FOREIGN BUSINESS CORPORATIONS

Section 1001. Admission of Foreign Business Corporations. A foreign business corporation, before doing any business in this Commonwealth[1], shall procure a certificate of authority to do so from the Department of State[2], in the manner hereinafter provided in this article, unless the entire business operations of the corporation within this Commonwealth are within the protection of the Commerce Clause of the Federal Constitution, in which event the corporation may engage in such business operations without procuring a certificate of authority[3]. A foreign business corporation shall not be denied a certificate of authority by reason of the fact that the laws of the state or country governing its organization and internal affairs differ from the laws of this Commonwealth, and nothing in this act contained shall be construed to authorize this Commonwealth to regulate the organization or the internal affairs of such corporation[4].

Pennsylvania Act of June 8, 1911, P. L. 710, 15 PS Sec. 3142.

Comments:

1. Article XVI, Section 5, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, provides that "No foreign corporation shall do any business in this State without having one or more known places of business and an authorized agent or agents in the same upon whom process may be served."

Under the Act of 1911, which was passed to carry this section into effect, every foreign corporation "before doing any business in this Commonwealth," is required to appoint the Secretary of the Commonwealth as its agent upon whom process in any proceeding against it may be served. While the phrase "doing business" is not defined in that act, certain well-established rules have been formulated by the courts to be followed in determining whether or not, under a particular set of facts, a foreign corporation is "doing business" within the Commonwealth.

Delaware and a few other states attempt to define the term "doing business" by statute, by stating certain rules for determining what does not constitute "doing business." The first tentative draft of the Uniform Foreign Corporation Act also contains a definition of doing business, which, according to the drafting committee "is to a great extent negative in character, that is, it to a great extent states rules for determining what does not constitute 'doing business' rather than what does constitute 'doing business.'"

It is practically impossible to formulate a general and all-inclusive definition of "doing business," because the determination of it depends almost entirely on the facts of each case. Therefore, this draft does not define the term, as no useful purpose would be served in doing so until the Uniform Foreign Corporation Act has been drafted in final form and recommended for adoption in the several states. The draft restates the language used in the Act of 1911. Accordingly, the rules established by the courts of this Commonwealth under the Act of 1911 will still apply under this draft.

2. Under the Act of 1911, the Secretary of the Commonwealth is not required to issue to a foreign corporation any evidence of the fact that the corporation has designated him as its agent for the service of process. The laws of many states, including New Jersey, New York, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan, require the Secretary of State to issue a certificate of authority or admission to a foreign corporation authorizing it to do business. The tentative draft of the Uniform Foreign Corporation Act also requires the Secretary of State to issue a license to the corporation.

It appears to be advisable for the Commonwealth to issue some evidence of its permission to a foreign corporation to do business within its borders. Accordingly, this draft requires the Department of State to issue a foreign corporation desiring to do business in Pennsylvania a certificate of authority to do so.

See Section 1004 of this draft.

3. It is well settled that a state cannot require a foreign corporation engaged exclusively in interstate commerce to file a statement and secure a certificate therefor from the Secretary of State as a condition precedent to its right to do business, or bring suit within the state, as this type of corporation is not subject to regulation by the several states. Crutcher v. Commonwealth of Kentucky, 141 U. S. 47 (1891); International Text-Book Company v. Pigg 217 U. S. 91 (1910); Buck Stove and Range Company et al. v. Vickers, 226 U. S. 205 (1912). While our Act of 1911 is drafted in general and all-inclusive terms, it has been held not to apply to foreign corporations exclusively engaged in interstate commerce. Philadelphia and Gulf Steamship Company v. Pechin, 23 D. R. 518 (1 Corp. 228), (1914). Unlike the Act of 1911, this draft specifically exempts foreign corporations engaged exclusively in interstate or foreign commerce from its requirements. This would appear to be expedient, in view of the language of the United State Supreme Court in International Text-Book Company v. Pigg, supra, construing a statute of Kansas as applied to a Pennsylvania corporation, namely:

"* * * It is true that the statute does not, in terms, require the corporation of another state engaged in interstate commerce to take out what is technically 'a license' to transact its business in Kansas. But it denies all authority to do business in Kansas unless the corporation makes, delivers, and files a 'statement' of the kind mentioned in Section 1283. The effect of such requirement is practically the same as if a formal license was required as a condition precedent to the right to do such business. In either case it imposes a condition upon a corporation of another state seeking to do business in Kansas, which, in the case of interstate business, is a regulation of interstate commerce and directly burdens such commerce. The state cannot thus burden interstate commerce. It follows that the particular clause of Section 1283 requiring that 'statement' is illegal and void.

"* * * although the Text-Book Company may have a valid contract with a citizen of Kansas, one directly arising out of and connected with its interstate business, the statute denies its right to invoke the authority of a Kansas court to enforce its provisions unless it does what we hold it was not, under the Constitution, bound to do * * *."

4. This provision is taken from the new Illinois act. It appears to be desirable that this Commonwealth should not refuse a certificate of authority because the laws of another state regulating the internal affairs of the corporation differ from those of this Commonwealth. If there is any question of policy as to the sale in this Commonwealth of the securities of such a corporation, that is a matter for the Pennsylvania Securities Commission, under the Blue Sky Law.

Section 1002. Restrictions on Admission of Foreign Business Corporations. The Department of State shall not issue a certificate of authority to any foreign business corporation:

(1) If the application for the certificate of authority, hereinafter required by this article to be filed, sets forth any kind of business for the transaction of which a domestic business corporation could not be formed under the laws of the Commonwealth[1].

(2) The name of which is not expressed in English letters or characters or does not contain the word "corporation," "company," or "incorporated," or end with an abbreviation of one of such words, as provided in this act in the case of domestic business corporations, unless such corporation, for use in this Commonwealth, expresses its name in English letters or characters and includes in or adds to the end of its name one of such words or an abbreviation thereof, in the manner heretofore provided in this act[2].

(3) Which has a name the same as or deceptively similar to the name of any domestic corporation or any other foreign corporation authorized to do business in this Commonwealth, or the name of any unincorporated body registered with the Department of State under any Act of Assembly, unless such other domestic or foreign corporation or unincorporated body is about to change its name, or to cease to do business, or is being wound up, or such foreign corporation is about to withdraw from doing business in this Commonwealth, and the written consent of such other domestic or foreign corporation or unincorporated body to the adoption of its name or a deceptively similar name has been given and is filed with the statement hereinafter required by this act[2].

(4) Which has a name the same as or deceptively similar to a name the exclusive right to which is at the time reserved by any other corporation, in the manner provided in this act or any other Act of Assembly[2].

(5) Which has as part of its name any word or phrase not permitted by this act to be a part of the name of a domestic business corporation[2].

Comments:

1. Under the present Pennsylvania law, it is possible for a foreign corporation to engage in business in Pennsylvania for the doing of which a Pennsylvania corporation could not be formed. This provision of the draft attempts to eliminate this anomalous condition, and, in so doing, equalize domestic and foreign corporations. Numerous states have a similar provision in their corporation laws.

Section 2 of Chapter 181 of The Massachusetts Code provides: "A foreign corporation, including an insurance company, shall not engage or continue in any kind of business in this Commonwealth the transaction of which by domestic corporations is not permitted by the laws of this commonwealth."

Article 13, Section 211, of the General Corporation Law of New York provides that a certificate of authority shall not be issued by the Secretary of State: "if it sets forth any business for which a corporation or corporations could not be formed under a general law of this state, other than the banking law or the insurance law."

The Indiana General Corporation Law, Part III, Section 57, provides: "No foreign corporation shall be admitted (a) for the purpose of transacting any kind of business in this state the transaction of which by domestic corporations is not permitted by the laws of the state."

Section 94 of the Michigan General Corporation Act provides: "That no such foreign corporation shall be permitted to transact business in this state, unless it be incorporated in whole or in part for the purpose or object for which a corporation may be formed under the laws of this state, and then only for such purpose or object."

2. These provisions also carry out the policy of this draft of equalizing foreign and domestic corporations. Similar provisions relating to the names of domestic business corporations are contained in Section 204 of this draft.

Under existing Pennsylvania law, a foreign corporation having a name the same as or deceptively similar to the name of a domestic corporation, may enter Pennsylvania and transact business here under such name unless restrained from so doing by an injunction. American Clay Manufacturing Company v. American Clay Manufacturing Company, 198 Pa. 189 (1901); Savidge on Pa. Corps., Volume 1, Section 893, Page 709. On the other hand, a domestic corporation cannot adopt a name the same as or deceptively similar to the name of an existing domestic corporation registered with the Department of State. Under this draft, a foreign corporation will be subject to the same restrictions as to the use of a corporate name as a domestic corporation.

Section 4 of the Uniform Act provides that the corporate name of a domestic corporation should not be the same as or deceptively similar to the name of any domestic corporation or of any foreign corporation authorized to do business in the state. A note to this section states that twenty-eight jurisdictions prohibit the assumption of a name similar to that of an existing domestic corporation, and that twenty-two American jurisdictions have a further provision that the name shall not be similar to that of any foreign corporation authorized to do business in the state. On the other hand, many states, including New York, California, Indiana and Illinois, prohibit a foreign corporation from doing business within their borders if it has a name the same as or deceptively similar to the name of a domestic corporation.

Like the laws of New York and Illinois, this draft permits a foreign corporation, the name of which would otherwise not be available in this Commonwealth, to adapt or change its name so as to make it available for use in this Commonwealth.

Section 1003. Application For a Certificate of Authority. A foreign business corporation, in order to procure a certificate of authority, shall present to the Department of State a copy of its articles and all amendments thereto, duly certified by the proper public officer of the state or country of its incorporation, or, if the corporation is created by a special law and has no articles, a duly certified copy of such law, a verified translation of any part of such articles, amendments or law, which is in a foreign language, and an application for a certificate of authority, executed under the seal of the corporation, and signed and verified by at least two duly authorized officers thereof, which shall set forth:

(1) The name of the corporation.

(2) If the name of the corporation does not contain one of the words "corporation," "company," or "incorporated," or does not end with an abbreviation of one of such words, then the name of the corporation with the word or abbreviation which it elects to add thereto for use in this Commonwealth.

(3) The name of the state or country under the laws of which it is formed.

(4) The address, including street and number, if any, of its principal office in the state or country under the laws of which it is formed.

(5) The address, including street and number, if any, of its proposed registered office in this Commonwealth.

(6) A designation of the Secretary of the Commonwealth and his successor in office as the true and lawful attorney of the corporation upon which all lawful process in any action or proceeding against it may be served, that the service of process upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall be of the same legal force and validity as if served on the corporation, and that the authority for such service of process shall continue in force as long as any liability remains outstanding against the corporation in this Commonwealth.

(7) The character and nature of the business it proposes to do within this Commonwealth.

(8) A statement of the aggregate number of shares it has authority to issue, itemized by classes, par value of shares, shares without par value, and series, if any, within a class.

(9) A statement of the aggregate number of its issued shares, itemized by classes, par value of shares, shares without par value, and series, if any, within a class.

(10) Such further and additional information as the Department of State may from time to time require.

Pennsylvania Act of June 8, 1911, P. L. 710, Section 2, 15 PS Sec. 3142.

Comments:

The Act of 1911, supra, requires every foreign corporation, before doing any business in this Commonwealth, to file a power of attorney with the Secretary of the Commonwealth appointing him as its authorized agent upon whom all lawful process in any proceeding against it may be served. The power of attorney is required to "contain a statement showing the title and purpose of said corporation, the location of its principal place of business in the Commonwealth, and the post-office address within the Commonwealth to which the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall send by mail any process against it served on him."

This draft restates the Act of 1911 in this respect, except that it prescribes in more detail the information to be contained in the application for a certificate of authority which now forms part of the written power of attorney.

The only prerequisite required by the Act of 1911 of a foreign corporation to obain the right to do business within the Commonwealth is the filing of a written power of attorney. It is submitted that the Secretary of the Commonwealth should have a copy of the articles or charter of the foreign corporation in order to determine whether or not the corporation is one for profit or not for profit, and whether the corporation has the power to engage in the business it proposes to transact within the Commonwealth. Also, this draft provides that a foreign corporation may be authorized to do in Pennsylvania only such business as a domestic corporation may do. Therefore, it becomes necessary for the Secretary of the Commonwealth to have a copy of the charter of the foreign corporation to determine this fact.

Under this draft, a foreign corporation desiring to secure permission to do business must file a certified copy of its articles and must file an application for a certificate of authority. Both of these requirements are almost uniformly required by the laws of other states, including those of New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and California. The proposed Uniform Foreign Corporation Act also contains a similar requirement.

Section 1004. Issuance and Recording of Certificate of Authority. If the Department of State finds that the provisions of this article have been complied with and that the applicant corporation is entitled to a certificate of authority to do business in this Commonwealth, it shall endorse its approval upon the application for a certificate of authority, and when all bonus, fees and charges have been paid, as required by law, shall file the application and the copy of the articles, and shall issue to the corporation a certificate of authority to do business in this Commonwealth. The certificate of authority shall set forth the name of the corporation, the address of its registered office in this Commonwealth, and the character and nature of the business it is authorized to transact in this Commonwealth. Upon the issuance of the certificate of authority by the Department of State, the corporation may do, in this Commonwealth, any of the business referred to in the certificate of authority and no other, subject, however, to the right of the Commonwealth to cancel or revoke such right to transact business in this Commonwealth, as provided in this act. The certificate of authority shall be returned to the corporation, or its representative, and such certificate, and a verified copy of its articles, shall be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation in this Commonwealth is located. The certificate of authority, upon being recorded by the recorder of deeds, shall be returned to the corporation or its representative.

Comments:

This section of the draft makes a change in existing practice in Pennsylvania. Under the Act of 1911, the Secretary of the Commonwealth is not required to issue to a foreign corporation any evidence of its right to do business. On the other hand, the laws of many states, including New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan require the Secretary of State to issue some evidence of admission to a foreign corporation before it may do business. The tentative Uniform Foreign Corporation Act contains a similar requirement. It appears to be advisable to have the Commonwealth issue to the foreign corporation some evidence of its permission to the corporation to do business in the Commonwealth, and this draft so provides by requiring the issuance of a certificate of authority.

The states which require a certificate of authority or admission have different requirements as to the contents of the certificate of authority. In Illinois and New York the certificate of authority does not reiterate the information contained in the application for the certificate, but merely states the date of the filing of the requisite documents and the business that the corporation is authorized to do. In Indiana, the certificate of authority contains all the information set forth in the application. The proposed Uniform Foreign Corporation Act does not provide what the certificate shall set forth. This draft follows the New York law and does not require the certificate to contain all the information contained in the application.

Also, under existing law, a domestic corporation is required to file its charter in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which its principal office is located, but a foreign corporation need not do so. Illinois requires the certificate of authority and the duplicate original of the application to be filed in the office of the recorder of deeds. California requires a copy of the articles to be filed. Indiana requires the certificate of authority (which sets forth in detail the information contained in the application) to be filed. New York and New Jersey do not require the certificate or any other document to be filed with the recorder of deeds.

In accordance with the policy of this draft of equalizing foreign and domestic corporations, this section of the draft requires a foreign corporation to file the certificate of authority and a copy of its articles in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation is situated, as the certificate of authority, under this draft, will set forth the business which the corporation is authorized to transact in this Commonwealth. It does not appear to be necessary to require the application for the certificate of authority also to be filed.

Section 1005. Registered Office of Foreign Business Corporations. Every foreign business corporation required by the provisions of this article to obtain a certificate of authority to do business in this Commonwealth, shall have, and continuously maintain, in this Commonwealth a registered office, which may, but need not, be the same as its place of business in this Commonwealth. The address, including street and number, if any, of the initial registered office of each foreign corporation shall be stated in its application for a certificate of authority to do business in this Commonwealth. A foreign business corporation may, from time to time, change the address of its registered office upon obtaining from the Department of State, before such change is made, an amended certificate of authority, as hereinafter provided in this article.

Comments:

Section 2 of the Act of 1911, supra, requires a foreign corporation to designate "the location of its principal place of business in the Commonwealth, and the post-office address within the Commonwealth to which the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall send by mail any process against it served on him; which address said corporation may change, from time to time, as it may find occasion, by filing a certificate, under its corporate seal, with the Secretary of the Commonwealth, setting forth such change of address."

The primary purpose of requiring a foreign business corporation to maintain a registered office in this Commonwealth is to provide an address to which the Secretary of the Commonwealth may send by mail any process served upon him as agent of the corporation.

Article XVI, Section 5, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, provides: "No foreign corporation shall do any business in this State without having one or more known places of business and an authorized agent or agents in the same upon whom process may be served."

The Act of April 22, 1874, P. L. 108, which was passed to carry out this constitutional provision, required every foreign corporation to file in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth a statement showing, among other things, the location of its office or offices in this Commonwealth, and the name or names of its authorized agent or agents therein.

The Act of 1911, supra, repealed the above Act of 1874, and revolutionized the method of making service on foreign corporations. The purpose of the Act of 1911 was to do away with the requirement that foreign corporations should have a registered agent in every place at which they did business within the Commonwealth, and to provide one registered agent upon whom the Secretary of the Commonwealth could always make service as long as a claim existed in favor of citizens of Pennsylvania against the foreign corporation registering the same. Under the Act of April 22, 1874, P. L. 108, as construed by the courts, a foreign corporation could register anyone as its agent, enter into a contract, terminate its business in the State, the resident agent move away, and leave the citizens of Pennsylvania without remedy.

This draft makes no change in the method prescribed in the Act of 1911, except that it clearly imposes upon the corporation the duty of maintaining a registered office. This requirement is only implied from the present wording of the Act of 1911.

Article XVI, Section 5 of the Constitution, quoted above, of course, still applies, but since the repeal of the Act of 1874 by the Act of 1911, there is no law requiring a foreign corporation to register with the Secretary of the Commonwealth an agent or agents for the service of process, other than the secretary himself. The laws of many states not only require a foreign corporation to maintain a registered office, but also require the corporation to designate a registered agent (other than the Secretary of the Commonwealth) upon whom service against the corporation may be served. If the agent cannot be found, then service may be made upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth. In view of the above constitutional provision, it is doubtful whether a similar requirement could be had in Pennsylvania inasmuch as the courts have construed the constitutional provision as requiring a corporation to have a designated agent in each place of business which it maintains in this Commonwealth, for the service of process. See De La Vergne Refrigerating Machine Company v. Kolischer, 214 Pa. 400 (1906); Carr v. Aetna Accident and Liability Company, 263 Pa. 87 (1919).

Section 1006. Amended Certificate of Authority. After receiving a certificate of authority, a foreign business corporation may, subject to the provisions of this act, change its name or the address of its registered office in the Commonwealth, or be authorized to do in this Commonwealth other or additional business than that authorized by its certificate of authority, by filing with the Department of State an application for an amended certificate of authority. Such application shall be executed under the seal of the corporation, signed and verified by two duly authorized officers thereof, and shall set forth the changes desired by the corporation. If the Department of State finds that the provisions of this article have been complied with and that the applicant corporation is entitled to an amended certificate of authority, it shall approve and file the application, and when all fees and charges have been paid, as required by law, shall issue to the applicant corporation an amended certificate of authority setting forth the desired changes. The amended certificate of authority shall be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the original certificate of authority was recorded. If the address of the registered office of the applicant corporation is changed from one county to another county, then the corporation shall have recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which its new registered office is situated its original and amended certificates of authority and a verified copy of its articles.

Comments:

This section of the draft provides a method for keeping the records of the Department of State up to date, and, in accordance with the policy of this draft of equalizing domestic and foreign corporations, permits foreign corporations to change their name, the address of their registered office, and the kind of business they may transact. As domestic corporations are required to file amendments to their articles in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which their registered office is located, this draft contains a similar requirement for foreign business corporations.

The states which require a certificate of authority or admission, provide different methods for changing the name of the corporation, the location of its registered office, and the kind and nature of the business the corporation is authorized to transact. In Illinois, the corporation must obtain an amended certificate of authority in the event it changes its name or the kind or type of business it is authorized to transact in that state. A change of the corporate name is permitted by the filing of a certificate with the Secretary of State. In New York, a corporation may change its name, the location of its registered office, or the type of business it is authorized to transact, by amending a statement on file with the Secretary of State. In such event, a new certificate of authority is issued, except in the case of a change of the address of the registered office of the corporation. In Pennsylvania under the Act of 1911, a foreign corporation admitted to do business may change the address of its registered office, from time to time, by filing a certificate with the Department of State. The Act of 1911 contains no provisions pertaining to the name or the type of business which the corporation may transact in Pennsylvania.

This draft requires a foreign business corporation to obtain an amended certificate of authority in the event it changes its name, the location of its registered office, or the kind of business it is authorized to transact in Pennsylvania under its certificate of authority.

Section 1007. Amendments to Articles of Foreign Business Corporations. Upon amendment of the articles of any foreign corporation authorized by a certificate of authority to transact business in this Commonwealth, such corporation shall forthwith file with the Department of State a copy of such amendment, duly authenticated by the proper official of the state or country under the laws of which such corporation is organized, and shall also file a verified copy thereof in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which its registered office is located in this Commonwealth. The filing of any such amendment shall not, of itself, enlarge or alter the nature or kind of business which such corporation is authorized to transact in this Commonwealth, nor authorize such corporation to transact business in this Commonwealth under any other name than the name set forth in its certificate of authority, unless such corporation shall apply for and receive an amended certificate of authority, as hereinafter provided in this article.

Comments:

This provision is new to Pennsylvania law and is a necessary supplement to Sections 1003 and 1004 of this draft, which require a foreign business corporation to file a copy of its articles with the Department of State and with the recorder of deeds of the county in which its registered office is located.

Section 1008. Merger of Foreign Business Corporations. Whenever a foreign business corporation authorized by a certificate of authority to transact business in this Commonwealth shall be a party to a statutory merger permitted by the laws of the state or country under which it is organized, and such corporation shall be the surviving corporation, it shall forthwith file with the Department of State a copy of the articles of merger, duly authenticated by the proper officer of the state or country under the laws of which such statutory merger was effected. It shall not be necessary for such corporation to procure either a new or amended certificate of authority to transact business in this Commonwealth, unless the name of such corporation be changed thereby, or unless the corporation desires to transact in this Commonwealth other or additional business than that which it is then authorized to transact in this Commonwealth.

Illinois—Section 112.

Comments:

This provision is also new to Pennsylvania law and is a necessary supplement to Sections 1003 and 1004 of this draft, which require a foreign business corporation to file a verified copy of its articles with the Department of State and the recorder of deeds of the county in which its registered office is located. In the case of a consolidation, if a new corporation is formed it will be necessary for a foreign business corporation to obtain a certificate of authority.

Section 1009. General Powers of Foreign Business Corporations. A foreign business corporation which shall have received a certificate of authority under this act, so long as such certificate of authority shall not be revoked or cancelled, shall enjoy the same rights and privileges as a domestic business corporation, but no more, and, except as in this act otherwise provided, shall be subject to the same liabilities, restrictions, duties and penalties now in force or hereafter imposed upon domestic business corporations, to the same extent as if it had been organized under this act to transact the business set forth in its certificate of authority.

Comments:

This section is modeled on Section 102 of the Illinois act and Section 57 of the Indiana act, and is a necessary supplement to Sections 1001 and 1002 of this draft. This provision further carries out the policy of equalizing foreign and domestic corporations. Under present law, a foreign corporation may have greater powers and privileges than a domestic corporation.

Section 1010. Service of Process Upon the Secretary of the Comonwealth. Service of process against a foreign business corporation, upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth, shall be made by the Sheriff of Dauphin County by leaving the fee the plaintiff is required by law to pay for this service[1], and two copies of the process, at the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. The sheriff shall make due return of his service of the process to the court, magistrate, or justice of the peace issuing the same. Such process may be issued by any court, magistrate or justice of the peace having jurisdiction of the subject matter of the controversy in any county of the Commonwealth in which the corporation shall have its registered office, or in the county in which the right of action arose. When legal process against any such corporation has been served upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth, he shall immediately send by mail, postage prepaid, one copy of such process directed to the corporation at its registered office. The fee paid by the plaintiff to the Secretary of the Commonwealth at the time of the service shall be taxed in the plaintiff's costs, if he prevails in the suit necessitating the service of the process. The Secretary of the Commonwealth shall keep a record of the day and hour of the service of such process on him, and a certified copy of such record shall be sufficient evidence thereof. The service of process on the Secretary of the Commonwealth, under this section, shall be of the same legal force and validity as if the process had been served on the corporation, and the authority for such service of process shall continue in force as long as any liability remains outstanding against the corporation in the Commonwealth[2]. Nothing herein contained shall limit or affect the right to serve any process, notice, or demand required or permitted by law to be served upon a foreign corporation in any other manner nor or hereafter permitted by law[3].

Comments:

1. The Act of June 8, 1923, P. L. 685, authorizes the Secretary of the Commonwealth to charge the plaintiff a fee of $2.00 for service of process upon the secretary. As the Act of 1923 is a general law prescribing the fees for the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, this draft does not specifically mention the fees to be charged by that office for services performed under this draft.

2. This section of the draft is a restatement of part of Section 2 of the Act of 1911, and supplements Section 1003 of this draft. It makes no change in the present laws of Pennsylvania relating to service of process upon foreign corporations. Such laws are not embodied in this draft, as they are beyond the scope of this draft. This part of the Act of 1911 was included in this draft to avoid leaving but a fragment of the Act of 1911 unrepealed.

The laws of many states require a foreign corporation to have an agent registered with the Department of State upon whom process against the corporation may be served. If service cannot be had on the agent, then service may be had on the Department of State. In Pennsylvania, service may be had, in the first instance, upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

3. In Eline v. Western Maryland Railway Company, 253 Pa. 204 (1916), it was definitely established that the method of service of process upon corporations provided by the Act of 1911 is not exclusive, and that suit may be brought against a foreign corporation under Section 6 of the Act of April 8, 1851, P. L. 353, which provides that suit may be brought against a foreign corporation in any county where it "shall have an agency or transact any business * * *, and the writ may be served upon the president, cashier, agent, chief, or any other clerk, or upon any directors or agents of such corporation within such county." See also Shambe v. Delaware and Hudson Railroad Company, 288 Pa. 240 (1927). The last sentence of this section of the draft makes it plain that service of process upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth is only one method of serving process upon a foreign business corporation.

Section 1011. Acquisition of Real Property. Every foreign business corporation authorized to transact business within this Commonwealth may acquire, hold, mortgage, lease and transfer real property in this Commonwealth, in the same manner and subject to the same limitations as domestic business corporations[1]. Every such corporation may purchase in its corporate name, at any sheriff's or other judicial sale, any real estate within this Commonwealth upon which such corporation may have or hold a judgment or lien, and may, at its pleasure, sell and convey such real estate, but any real estate so purchased shall be sold and conveyed within ten years from the date of such purchase. All the rights, privileges and duties now by law accorded to and imposed upon lien creditors purchasing at judicial sales are hereby extended to such corporations[2].

Comments:

1. Under the Act of May 24, 1923, P. L. 438, as amended, a foreign corporation may acquire, hold and transfer such real estate as may be necessary and proper for its corporate purposes.

2. This portion of the draft is a restatement of the Act of May 23, 1887, P. L. 176. Attention is drawn to the fact that in the case of domestic corporations numerous acts, from time to time, have extended the time of disposing of real estate acquired by them in satisfaction of debts. The last of these acts is the Act of April 15, 1903, P. L. 200, 15 PS Sec. 883.

QUERY: Whether under present day conditions it is necessary or advisable to prescribe a specific time within which such real estate must be sold.

Section 1012. Revocation of Certificate of Authority. Whenever the Department of State shall find that a foreign business corporation, authorized by a certicate of authority to do business in this Commonwealth, is engaged in this Commonwealth in any business which it is not authorized to transact by its certificate of authority or by any amended certificate of authority, or has changed its name or the location of its registered office without first securing an amended certificate of authority, as required by this act, or has failed to file a copy of its articles, or a copy of any amendments thereto, or its certificate of authority, or any amended certificate of authority, in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which its registered office is situated, or is violating any of the laws of this Commonwealth, the Department of State shall give notice by registered mail to such corporation that such default exists and that its certificate of authority, including any amendments thereto, will be revoked and cancelled unless such default shall be cured within thirty days after the mailing of such notice. If such default shall not be cured within such period of thirty days, the Department of State shall revoke and cancel the certificate of authority of such foreign corporation, including any amendments thereto. Upon revoking and canceling any such certificate of authority, the Department of State shall mail to such corporation at its registered office in this Commonwealth a certificate of revocation and shall mail a copy of such certificate to the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation is situated, who shall record the same without any fee therefor. Upon the issuance of such certificate of revocation, the authority of the corporation to transact business in this Commonwealth shall cease, and such corporation shall not thereafter transact any business in this Commonwealth unless it applies for and receives a new certificate of authority.

Comments:

This section of the draft is new to Pennsylvania law and is substantially in accord with similar provisions contained in the tentative Uniform Foreign Corporation Act, the new Illinois act and the Indiana corporation act. The power of revocation will be an effective means whereby the Department of State may enforce the provisions of this article. The prime purpose of the section is not to expel foreign corporations arbitrarily from Pennsylvania, but to induce them to transact business here in accordance with the laws of the Commonwealth. Accordingly, the draft, like the tentative Uniform Foreign Corporation Act, allows a corporation in default a period of thirty days' grace to remove the default. The acts of Illinois and Indiana also allow a similar period of grace.

Section 1013. Penalty For Doing Business Without Certificate of Authority. Any person, agent, officer, or employe who shall transact any business within this Commonwealth for any foreign business corporation which is required by the provisions of this article to procure a certificate of authority, but has not done so, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment not exceeding thirty days, or by a fine not exceeding One Thousand Dollars ($1,000), or both, in the discretion of the court trying the same, but the failure of any such corporation to apply for and secure a certificate of authority from the Department of State shall not impair or affect the validity of any contract with such corporation, and actions or proceedings at law or in equity, may be instituted and maintained on any such contract. No such action, however, shall be instituted or recovery had by any such corporation on any such contract, either expressed or implied, in any of the courts of this Commonwealth, or before any justice of the peace or magistrate thereof, until such corporation shall obtain a certificate of authority, and shall pay to the Department of State a fine of Two Hundred Fifty Dollars ($250.00).

Comments:

This section of the draft is a restatement of Section 4 of the Act of 1911, as amended, supra. There is a complete lack of uniformity in the laws of other states in regard to the imposition of penalties on foreign corporations which transact business without first qualifying to do so. Some states provide that the foreign corporation shall not bring suit until it has qualified; others provide that the contracts of an unqualified foreign corporation cannot be enforced by it but can be enforced against it; other states make the directors, officers, agents or shareholders of such a corporation personally liable as partners; and other states penalize the agents acting for the corporation.

As the existing Pennsylvania provisions appear to be effective and fair, this draft adopts them without change.

Section 1014. Surrender of Certificate of Authority. A. Any foreign business corporation may withdraw from doing business in this Commonwealth and surrender its certificate of authority by filing with the Department of State an application for a certificate of withdrawal, executed under the seal of the corporation and signed and verified by two duly authorized officers thereof, which shall set forth:

(1) The name of the corporation.

(2) The state or country of its corporation.

(3) The date on which it received a certicate of authority to do business in the Commonwealth.

(4) A statement that it revokes its designation of the Secretary of the Commonwealth as the person on whom process against it may be served in this Commonwealth.

(5) A statement that it surrenders its certificate of authority to do business in this Commonwealth.

(6) A statement that it consents that process against it in an action or proceeding upon any liability or obligation incurred within this Commonwealth before the issuance of the certificate of withdrawal may be served upon the Secretary of the Comomnwealth after the filing of such certificate.

(7) A post office address to which the Secretary of the Commonwealth may mail a copy of any process against it that may be served upon him.

B. Upon the filing of such application, and the return for cancellation of the corporation's certificate of authority, or the filing of proof that it has been lost or destroyed, the Department of State, after all bonus, taxes, fees and charges have been paid, as required by law, shall cancel the certificate of authority, if any, and shall issue, in duplicate, a certificate of withdrawal. The Department of State shall return one of such certificates of withdrawal to the corporation or its representative, and shall send the other to the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation in this Commonwealth is situated, who shall record the same without fee therefor. Upon the issuance of the certificate of withdrawal, the authority of the corporation to do business within this Commonwealth shall cease and determine, and no such corporation doing business in this Commonwealth after the issuance of such certificate shall maintain any action in this Commonwealth upon any contract made by it in this Commonwealth subsequent to the issuance of such certificate of withdrawal. The issuance of such certificate shall not, however, affect any action pending at the time thereof, or affect any right of action upon any contract made by such corporation in the Commonwealth before the issuance of the certificate. Process against the corporation in an action upon any liability or obligation incurred within this Commonwealth, before the issuance of such certificate, may be served thereafter upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Comments:

This section of the draft is modeled on Section 10 of the tentative Uniform Foreign Corporation Act, which, in turn, is substantially similar to provisions in the laws of New York, Illinois and California. Under the Uniform Act and the Illinois act (adopted in 1931), the Secretary of State is required to issue to the corporation some evidence of its withdrawal, which in the former act, is designated as a certificate of voluntary cancellation and, in the latter act, as a certificate of withdrawal. In New York, Indiana and California, the corporation merely files a certificate of withdrawal, or a certificate of surrender, as the case may be, with the Secretary of State, who in turn is merely required to file the certificate. In practice, in Pennsylvania (there being no statutory provision on this point) the corporation files a certificate of revocation of the power of attorney with the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Under this draft, a foreign business corporation holding a certificate of authority may withdraw from doing business in this Commonwealth and surrender its certificate of authority by filing an application for, and receiving from the Department of State, a certificate of withdrawal. The Department of State is also required to file a duplicate certificate of withdrawal with the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the withdrawing company was located. This draft not only provides an easy way for a corporation to cease to do business, but also protects creditors in Pennsylvania by providing that the withdrawal of the corporation shall not determine pending litigation or prevent suit against the corporation arising out of business done prior to its withdrawal.

Since the withdrawal of a corporation is made effective on the issuance of a certificate of withdrawal by the Department of State, this draft provides that that department shall cause a duplicate certificate of withdrawal to be recorded with the recorder of deeds, without charge, in order to enforce the requirement in respect of recording. The new Illinois Act contains a similar requirement.

The Act of June 8, 1923, P. L. 685, provides that the Secretary of the Commonwealth may charge a fee of $5.00 for: "Filing statement of revocation of agent by foreign corporations." As that act is a general law prescribing the fees chargeable by the Secretary of the Commonwealth, the amount of this fee is not specified in this draft.

ARTICLE XI

Section 1101. Voluntary Dissolution by Incorporators. The incorporators of a business corporation which has not commenced business, and which has not issued any shares, may effect the dissolution of the corporation by filing articles of dissolution with the Department of State. The articles of dissolution shall be executed in duplicate originals, signed and verified by a majority of the incorporators, and shall set forth:

(1) The name of the corporation.

(2) The address, including street and number, if any, of its registered office.

(3) The date of its incorporation.

(4) That the corporation has not commenced business and that none of its shares has been issued.

(5) That the amount, if any, actually paid in on subscriptions to its shares, less any part thereof disbursed for necessary expenses, has been returned to those entitled thereto.

(6) That no debts of the corporation remain unpaid.

(7) That all the incorporators elect that the corporation be dissolved. The duplicate originals of the articles of dissolution shall be delivered to the Department of State. If the Department of State finds that the atricles conform to law, it shall endorse its approval upon each duplicate original, and when all bonus, taxes, fees and charges required by law have been paid, shall file, for record, one of the duplicate originals, and shall issue, in duplicate, a certificate of dissolution. Upon the issuance of the certificate of dissolution, the existence of the corporation shall cease. The Department of State shall send one copy of the certificate of dissolution to the incorporators, or their representative, and shall send a copy of the articles of dissolution and a copy of the certificate of dissolution to the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation in this Commonwealth is situated, who shall record the articles and certificate without fee therefor.

Comments:

This section of the draft meets a contingency which is not provided for under existing statutes in Pennsylvania. Under the Act of 1883, supra, a corporation which has not commenced business within two years after its incorporation is subject to have its charter forfeited by an action instituted by the Attorney General, upon the application of any citizen. The provisions of that act were not included in this draft, on the theory that that act is more applicable to public and quasi public corporations than to business corporations. If a business corporation files its periodical tax reports and pays its required taxes, there appears to be no reason why it should not be prmitted to continue its corporate existence, if it so desires. Accordingly, this draft contains no provision which would forfeit the charter of a corporation which does not begin business. If the incorporators desire to surrender their franchise, this section of the draft provides the procedure for them to follow.

If such corporation intentionally fails to file capital stock tax returns with the Department of Revenue for a period of three successive years, the Governor, by proclamation, may declare the charter of the corporation forfeited. See Section 1704 of the Fiscal Code.

Section 1102. Election of Corporation to Dissolve Voluntarily. Any business corporation which has commenced business and which has issued shares may elect to dissolve voluntarily and wind up its affairs, by a written agreement signed by all the shareholders of record of the corporation, consenting to its dissolution[1], or after the board of directors shall have adopted a resolution recommending that the corporation be dissolved voluntarily, and directing that the question of dissolution be submitted to a vote of the shareholders at a meeting which may be either an annual meeting of the shareholders, or a special meeting of the shareholders entitled to vote on the question. Written notice stating that the purpose, or one of the purposes, of such meeting is to discuss the advisability of voluntarily dissolving the corporation shall be given to each shareholder of record, whether or not entitled to vote, within the time and in the manner provided in this act for the giving of notice of meetings of shareholders. If such meeting be an annual meeting, such purpose may be included in the notice of the annual meeting. The resolution shall be declared adopted upon receiving the affirmative vote of the holders of at least a majority of the outstanding shares entitled to vote on the resolution, unless any class of shares is entitled to vote on the resolution as a class, in which event the resolution must receive for its adoption the affirmative vote of the holders of at least a majority of the outstanding shares of each class of shares entitled to vote on the resolution as a class, and at least a majority of all other outstanding shares entitled to vote on the resolution[2].

See Pennsylvania Act of April 9, 1856, P. L. 293, 15 P. S. Sec. 501.

Comments:

1. This provision is new to Pennsylvania law. This provision will avoid the necessity of a formal meeting of shareholders in those cases where the shares are owned by a limited number of persons. A similar provision is contained in the laws of many states, including those of Delaware, New Jersey, Illinois and California.

2. The Act of April 9, 1856, P. L. 293, provides that a corporation may "by and with the consent of a majority of a meeting of the corporators, duly convened" present its petition for dissolution. This draft will permit the articles to specify the vote of each class of shareholders required to authorize the dissolution of the corporation. If the articles do not so specify, then the draft requires at least a majority vote.

Section 1103. Certificate of Election to Dissolve. Upon the execution by all the shareholders of a written agreement for the voluntary dissolution of a corporation, or upon the adoption at a meeting of the shareholders of a resolution for the voluntary dissolution of a corporation, as the case may be, a certificate of election to dissolve shall be executed in duplicate, under the seal of the corporation, signed and verified by at least two duly authorized officers of the corporation, which shall set forth:

(1) The name of the corporation.

(2) The address, including street and number, if any, of the registered office of the corporation in this Commonwealth.

(3) The names and respective addresses, including street and number, if any, of its officers.

(4) The names and respective addresses, including street and number, if any, of its directors.

(5) If the election to dissolve was by written agreement of all shareholders, a statement that the agreement was signed by all shareholders of record of the corporation, or signed in their names by their duly authorized attorneys.

(6) If the election to dissolve was by resolution adopted at a meeting of the shareholders, the number of shares outstanding, the number of shares entitled to vote in respect of the dissolution of the corporation, and the number of shares voted for and against the voluntary dissolution of the corporation, respectively, and if the shares of any class are entitled to vote as a class, the number of shares of such class and the number of shares of all other classes voted for and against the voluntary dissolution of the corporation.

The duplicate originals of the certificate of election to dissolve shall be delivered to the Department of State. If the Department of State finds that the certificate conforms to law, it shall endorse its approval upon each duplicate original, and when all bonus, taxes, fees and charges, required by law, have been paid, shall file for record one of the duplicate originals and shall return the other duplicate original to the corporation or its representative. The duplicate original returned by the Department of State shall be promptly recorded by the corporation, or its representative, in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation in this Commonwealth is situated. Upon the filing by the Department of State of a certificate of election to dissolve, the corporation shall cease to carry on its business, except in so far as may be necessary for the proper winding up thereof, but its corporate existence shall continue until a certificate of dissolution has been issued by the Department of State, or until a decree dissolving the corporation has been entered by a court of common pleas, as elsewhere provided in this act.

Comments:

There is no statutory provision in Pennsylvania similar to this section of the draft. Under the Act of 1856, supra, a corporation desiring to dissolve must file a petition with the court of common pleas. Under this and the succeeding sections of this draft a corporation may be voluntarily dissolved without a court proceeding. The provisions of this draft are substantially similar to corresponding provisions in the Uniform Act and the new California and Illinois acts.

Under this section of the draft, the corporation, after it has elected to wind up voluntarily and be dissovled, is required to file with the Department of State a certificate of election to dissolve. If the certificate is in proper form and all bonus, taxes, fees and charges owing by the corporation to the Commonwealth are paid, the Department of State is required to endorse its approval upon the certificate and file it. The proceedings for voluntary dissolution begin on the date the certificate is filed by the Department of State. The corporation is not dissolved by the filing of the certificate, but continues its existence for liquidating purposes, the liquidation to be carried out under the authority and direction of its board of directors and officers, who continue to function in the same manner as if the certificate had not been filed. The corporation, however, can transact no business except in so far as may be necessary for the winding up its affairs.

Section 1104. Winding Up in Voluntary Dissolution Proceedings. A. The board of directors of a business corporation shall have full power to wind up and settle the affairs of a business corporation in the event of a voluntary dissolution proceeding.

B. After the filing by the Department of State of a certificate of election to dissolve, the board of directors shall immediately cause notice of the winding up proceedings to be mailed to each known creditor and claimant, and to be published once a week for two successive weeks in two newspapers published in the English language, one of which shall be a newspaper of general circulation and the other the legal newspaper, if any designated by the rules of court for the publication of legal notices; otherwise, in two newspapers of general circulation published in the county in which the registered office of the corporation is located. Where there is but one newspaper of general circulation published in any county, advertisement in such newspaper shall be sufficient.

C. The board of directors shall, as speedily as possible, proceed to collect all sums due or owing to the corporation, to sell and convert into cash any and all corporate assets, to collect the whole or so much as may be necessary or just of any amounts remaining unpaid on subscriptions to shares, and, out of the sum so realized, to pay, safisty, and discharge all debts and liabilities of the corporation, according to their respective priorities. Any surplus remaining after paying off all debts and liabilities of the corporation shall be paid by the board of directors to the shareholders, according to their respective rights and performances.

D. The board of directors, at any time during winding up proceedings, may, by petition, apply to any court of common pleas of the county in which the registered office of the corporation is located, to have the proceedings continued under the supervision of the court and thereafter the proceedings shall continue under the supervision of the court, as hereinafter provided in this act.

Comments:

In Pennsylvania, a corporation may be voluntarily dissolved only by obtaining a decree of dissolution from the court of common pleas, in the manner provided in the Act of 1856, supra.

Under the Act of 1881, supra, mining, manufacturing, trading, real estate and construction companies are permitted to wind up their affairs after the expiration of their charters or after their dissolution decree of court. For this purpose, the officers of the dissolved corporation are authorized to bring suits, maintain and defend already brought for the protection and possession of the corporate property and the collection of debts and obligations owing the corporation, and may sell convey and dispose of the corporate property.

Under the scheme of this draft, of business corporation, in a voluntary dissolution proceeding, is not dissolved until all the affairs of the corporation have been wound up. After the certificate of election to dissolve is filed with the Department of State the directors are charged with the duty of winding up the affairs of the corporation. If a corporation is not dissolved during this period, the directors will continue to function in the same manner as if the certificate of election to dissolve had not been filed, except that they may transact no business other than that necessary for winding up the affairs to the corporation

Paragraph D of this section provides the protection of a court of equity and a receiver appointed by the court on the application of the corporation, whenever the orderly liquidation of the assets of the corporation is threatened by dissatisfied shareholders or creditors. This provision is necessary to prevent numerous independent suits by various creditors and claimants, particularly where, in the course of winding up, it develops that the corporate assets will be unsufficient to meet all liabilities. The Uniform Act and the new corporation acts of Illinois and California contain a similar provision.

Section 1105 Articles of Dissolution. When all debts liabilities and obligations of the corporation have been paid and discharged, or adequate provision shall have been made therefor, and all of the remaining property and assets of the corporation shall have been distributed to its shareholders, articles of dissolution shall be executed in duplicate originals, signed and verified by at least two duly authorized officers of the corporation, which shall set forth:

(1) The name of the corporation.

(2) The address, including street and number, if any, of the registered office of the corporation.

(3) A statement that the corporation has theretofore filed with the Department of State and with the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation is situated a certificate of election to dissolve, and the date on which the certificate was filed by the Department of State.

(4) A statement that all debts, obligations and liabilities of the corporation have been paid and discharged, or that adequate provision has been made therefor.

(5) A statement that all the remaining property and assets of the corporation have been distributed among its shareholders, in accordance with their respective rights and interests.

(6) A statement that there are no suits pending against the corporation in any court.

The duplicate originals of the articles of dissolution shall be delivered to the Department of State. If the Department of State finds that such articles conform to law, it shall endorse its approval on each duplicate original, and if all bonus, taxes, fees and charges required by law have been paid, shall file for record one of the duplicate originals, and shall issue, in duplicate, a certificate of dissolution. Upon the issuance of the certificate of dissolution, the existence of the corporation shall cease. The Department of State shall send one copy of the certificate of dissolution to the representative of the dissolved corporation, and shall send a copy of the articles of dissolution and a copy of the certificate of dissolution to the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation in this Commonwealth is situated, who shall record the articles and certificate without fee therefor.

Comments:

The procedure outlined in this section is entirely new to Pennsylvania law. The final step in procuring the judicial dissolution of a corporation is the filing and recording of a certified copy of the decree of dissolution in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. By the Act of 1925, supra, the Secretary of the Commonwealth is required to send to the prothonotory a certificate of the receipt and recording of the certified copy of the decree, and the prothonotary is required to record in the proper docket the receipt of such certificate. There is no provision for filing in the office of the recorder of deeds in which the original charter of the corporation is recorded any evidence of the dissolution of the corporation.

Under this section of the draft, the directors, after completely winding up the affairs of the corporation, are required to send to the Department of State articles of dissolution. The Department of State, in turn, issues a certificate of dissolution, a copy of which is returned to the representative of the corporation. The Department of State is also required to send to the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation is located a copy of the articles of dissolution and a copy of the certificate of dissolution. The recorder of deeds is required to record such documents without charge. Evidence of the dissolution of the corporation should be filed in the office of the recorder of deeds in which the original articles of the corporation are filed; otherwise, the records of the recorder of deeds will not be complete.

Section 1106. Winding up of Corporation Upon the Expiration of Its Charter. Every business corporation which is dissolved by expiration of its charter, shall nevertheless continue to exist for the purpose of winding up its affairs, prosecuting and defending actions by or against it, collecting and discharging obligations, disposing of and conveying its property, and collecting and dividing its assets, but not for the purpose of continuing business, except in so far as necessary for the winding up of the corporation. The board of directors of such corporation shall continue as a board, and shall have full power to wind up the affairs of such corporation.

Comments:

Upon the expiration of the time specified in its charter, a corporation is dissolved. In such case, the corporation cannot contract to sell its real estate, or sue or be sued, or otherwise wind up its affairs. See Savidge on Pa. Corps., Volume 2, Sections1204, 1207, 1210, and the cases there cited. In Pennsylvania, mining, manufacturing, real estate and construction companies are authorized, by the Act of 1881, supra, to wind up their affairs after expiration of their charters. Also, the Act of 1885, supra, authorizes the court of common pleas to direct the sale of real estate of a dissolved corporation on the petition of any one or more of the stockholders, and to appoint a trustee to make the sale and to distribute the proceeds among the creditors or stockholders.

This section of the draft confers upon the directors of a business corporation whose charter expires the necessary powers to wind up the affairs of the corporation. Similar provisions are contained in the Delaware, New Jersey, Michigan and California acts.

Section 1107. Involuntary Proceedings For Winding Up and Dissolution. A. The several courts of common pleas of the Commonwealth may, upon petition filed by a shareholder of a business corporation, entertain proceedings for the involuntary winding up and dissolution of the corporation, when it is made to appear:

(1) That the objects of the corporation have wholly failed, or are entirely abandoned, or that their accomplishment is impracticable; or

(2) That the acts of the directors, or those in control of the corporation, are illegal, oppressive, or fraudulent; or

(3) That the corporate assets are being misapplied or wasted, and that it is beneficial to the interests of the shareholders that the corporation be wound up and dissolved; or

(4) That the directors are deadlocked in the management of the corporate affairs and the shareholders are unable to break the deadlock, and that irreparable injury to the corporation is being suffered or is threatened by reason thereof.

B. The several courts of common pleas of this Commonwealth may, upon petition filed by a creditor of a business corporation whose claim has either been reduced to judgment and an execution thereon returned unsatisfied, or whose claim is admitted by the corporation, entertain proceedings for the involuntary winding up and dissolution of the corporation when, in either case, it is made to appear that the corporation is unable to pay its debts and obligations in the legal course of business, as they mature, or to afford reasonable security to those who may deal with it.

C. Any petition for the involuntary winding up and dissolution of a corporation, authorized to be filed under this section, shall be filed with a court of common pleas of the county in which the registered office of the corporation is located.

Comments:

This section of the draft is entirely new to Pennsylvania statutory law, and is substantially similar to provisions in the Uniform Act and in the new corporation acts of Illinois and California.

The Act of 1836, supra, confers on the courts of common pleas general and unlimited equity powers over corporations. Such courts possess all the powers and jurisdiction of a court of chancery by bill, injunction, or otherwise, as the equity of the case may require. Sanford v. Railroad Company, 24 Pa. 378 (1855); Titusville Oil Exchange's Dissolution, 2 Pa. Super. 508 (1896); Thompson, et al., v. McCleary, et al., 159 Pa. 189 (1893); McDougall, et al., Appellants v. Huntingdon and Broad Top R. and C. Company, 294 Pa. 108 (1928); Schwab, Appellant v. Miller, et ux., 302 Pa. 507 (1931); First Regular Baptist Church v. Allison, 304 Pa. 1 (1931).

In most of the instances enumerated in this section of the draft, our courts have held that the courts of common pleas, by virtue of their equity jurisdiction over corporations, can appoint receivers to afford equitable relief in such cases. See the note under Section 1108 of this draft.

This section is permissive only, and does not curtail the existing equity powers over corporations conferred by the Act of 1836, supra, on the courts of common pleas.

Section 1108. Procedure in Liquidation of Corporations by Courts of Common Pleas. A. Upon the filing of a petition, by the board of directors, or a shareholder or a creditor, as authorized in this article, for the voluntary or involuntary winding up and dissolution of a business corporation, as the case may be, the court of common pleas shall have all the ordinary powers of a court of equity to issue injunctions, to appoint a receiver or receivers, pendente lite, with such powers and duties as the court from time to time may direct, and to take such other proceedings as may be requisite to preserve the corporate assets and carry on the business of the corporation until a full hearing can be had.

B. Upon a hearing and proof of the issues, after such notice as the court may direct to be given to all parties to the proceeding, and to any other parties in interest designated by the court, the court may appoint a liquidating receiver with authority to collect the assets of the corporation, including all amounts owing to the corporation by shareholders on account of any unpaid portion of the consideration for the issuance of shares. Such liquidating receiver shall have authority, subject to the order of the court, to sell, convey, and dispose of all or any part of the assets of the corporation, either at public or private sale. The assets of the corporation, or the proceeds resulting from a sale, conveyance, or other disposition thereof, shall be applied to the expenses of such liquidation and to the payment of the liabilities and obligations of the corporation, and any remaining assets or proceeds shall be distributed among its shareholders according to their respective rights and interests. The order appointing such liquidating receiver shall state their powers and duties. Such powers and duties may be increased or diminished at any time during the proceedings. A receiver of a corporation appointed under the provisions of this section shall have authority to sue and defend in all courts in his own name as receiver of such corporation. The court appointing such receiver may issue writs in favor of such receiver to the sheriff of any county in this Commonwealth for service.

C. A receiver shall in all cases be a resident of this Commonwealth, or a corporation authorized to act as receiver, which corporation may be a domestic corporation or a foreign corporation authorized to transact business in this Commonwealth, and shall give such bond as the court may direct, with such sureties as the court may require.

D. In proceedings to liquidate the assets and business of a corporation, the court may require all creditors of the corporation to file with the prothonotary of the court, or with the receiver, proofs under oath of their respective claims. If the court requires the filing of claims, it shall fix a date, which shall be not less than four months from the date of the order, as the last day for the filing of claims, and shall prescribe the notice that shall be given to creditors and claimants of the date so fixed. Prior to the date so fixed, the court may extend the time for the filing of claims. Creditors and claimants failing to file proofs of claim on or before the date so fixed may be barred, by order of court, from participating in the distribution of the assets of the corporation.

Comments:

The Act of 1856, supra, is the only statutory provision in Pennsylvania which is similar to this section of the draft. The Act of 1881, supra, authorizes the directors of a corporation to wind up a manufacturing or trading corporation which has been dissolved by decree of court, or by expiration of the time limited in its charter. The Act of 1885 authorizes the court of common pleas to direct the sale of real estate of a dissolved corporation, on the petition of any one or more of the stockholders, and to appoint a trustee to make the sale and distribute the proceeds among the creditors or stockholders.

Generally speaking, the appointment of receivers in Pennsylvania is governed by case law. In Pennsylvania, a receiver may be appointed for a financially sound corporation, where the necessities of the case demand this to be done to protect the rights of minority stockholders, and, where actual fraud can be established, such order will be made,—Cunliffe, et al., v. Consumers Association of America, et al., 280 Pa. 263 (1924); Treat v. Pennsylvania Mutual Life Insurance Company, 203 Pa. 21 (1902). Mismanagement may be such as to justify the appointment,—Cowan v. Pennsylvania Plate Glass Company, 184 Pa. 1 (1898); Fletcher on Corporations, Volume 11, Section 1511,—as is true where the attempt is made by those in control to manipulate the assets for their own benefit,—Schipper Brothers Coal Mining Company v. Economy Domestic Coal Company, 277 Pa. 356 (1923). However, ordinarily, this will not be directed on the ground of dissension among stockholders, as to the manner of the administration or conduct of the business,—Savidge on Pa. Corps., Volume 2, Section 886; Crombie v. Order of Solon, et al., 157 Pa. 588 (1893),—unless the division has become so great as to make impossible the carrying out of the charter purposes,— —14a C. J. 955; 43 A. L. R. 238. In such cases, if the parties fail to adjust their differences, the receiver appointed may be directed to convert the assets and distribute the sum thus obtained to those entitled to share,—Schipper Brothers Coal Mining Company v. Economy Domestic Coal Company, supra,—or the bill filed may be retained for the protection of those aggrieved,—Gilmore, et al., v. Gilmore Drug Company, et al., 279 Pa. 193 (1924); Devine v. Frankford Steel and Forging Company, Appellant, 205 Pa. 114 (1903). Where a corporation is unable to perform its proper functions by operation of law, a minority stockholder may ask the court to force liquidation of the assets, but in such cases the officers of the corporation should be allowed a reasonable time for voluntary liquidation. Hall v. City Park Brewing Company, 294 Pa. 127 (1928). A court of equity has no power to dissolve a solvent corporation upon a bill filed by a minority stockholder. See Hlawati, Appellant, v. Maeder—Hlawati Company, et al., 289 Pa. 233 (1927).

For a general statement of the law relating to receivers in Pennsylvania see McDougall, et al., Appellants, v. Huntingdon and Broad Top R. and C. Company, 294 Pa. 103 (1928).

Section 1109. Discontinuance of Liquidation Proceedings; Reorganization. The liquidation of the assets and business of a corporation may be discontinued at any time during the winding up proceedings, in the following manner:

(1) If the suit shall have been instituted by a shareholder and it is made to appear to the court that the deadlock in the corporate affairs has been broken or the management or control of the corporation has been changed, the court, in its discretion, may dismiss the proceeding and direct the receiver to redeliver to the corporation all its remaining property and assets.

(2) If the suit shall have been instituted by a creditor and it is made to appear that the debts of the corporation have been paid or provided for, and that there remain or can be obtained sufficient funds to enable the corporation to resume its business, the court, in its discretion, may dismiss the proceeding and direct the receiver to redeliver to the corporation all its remaining property and assets.

(3) When a compromise or reorganization of the corporation is proposed, whether the suit shall have been instituted by a shareholder or by a creditor, the court, upon the summary application of any shareholder, or creditor, or receiver, may order a meeting of the creditors, or shareholders, to be summoned in such manner as the court may direct. If a majority in number, representing three-fourths in value of the creditors or the holders of three-fourths of the shares entitled to vote thereon, or both, or if a majority in number representing three-fourths in value of any class of creditors, or if the holders of three-fourths of the shares of any class, as the case may be, agree to any compromise or reorganization of the corporation, such compromise or reorganization, if approved by the court, shall be binding on all creditors or on all shareholders, or both, or on the class of creditors or class of shareholders, or both, as the case may be, and also on the corporation and its receiver, if any.

Comments:

This provision is new to Pennsylvania law. Paragraph (3) of the above section follows substantially Section 59 of the Uniform Act. As stated in the explanatory note to that section of the Uniform Act, the provision is intended to follow up the decision in the case of Northern Pacific Railway v. Boyd, 228 U. S. 482 (1913). In that decision the court held, in effect, that a plan of reorganization which includes shareholders of an insolvent or financially embarrassed corporation could not be sustained, which failed to provide for unsecured creditors. See also Kansas City Terminal Railway Company, et al., v. Central Union Trust Company of New York, et al., 271 U. S. 445 (1926). It seems reasonable that some means should exist to compel minority creditors and minority shareholders to accept a reasonable proposal for reorganization, when approved by three-fourths of their own class, and, if the plan of reorganization is approved by the court, that such plan of reorganization should be binding upon them instead of permitting them to hold out until it is necessary to buy them out at a price which usually includes a substantial sum for a nuisance value.

Under the Dlaware act, authority is given to put such a provision as that contained in this section into the articles originally, or by amendment. In case it is introduced by amendment, then it is binding only upon those creditors and shareholders who become such after the amendment has been adopted. However, according to the present draft, it is recognized that creditors are not charged with notice of the contents of the articles and that they may, in fact, be ignorant thereof. Accordingly, as indicated in the note to the Uniform Act, it would seem preferable to confer the authority upon the court to act in a proper case, rather than to limit the application of the section to cases in which the corporation has elected to make the statute operative by including its language in the articles.

Section 1110. Decree of Involuntary Dissolution. The court of common pleas, in a proceeding to wind up the assets and business of a business corporation, shall enter a decree dissolving the corporation, when the costs and expenses of such proceeding, and all debts, liabilities, and obligations of the corporation shall have been paid and discharged, and all of its remaining property and assets distributed to its shareholders, or, in case its property and assets are not sufficient to satisfy and discharge such costs, expenses, debts, and obligations, when all the property and assets have been applied, as far as they will go, to their payment. Upon the issuance of the decree by the court, the existence of the corporation shall cease. After the court shall enter a decree of dissolution, it shall be the duty of the prothonotary of the court to cause a certified copy of the decree of dissolution to be filed with the Department of State, and a certified copy thereof to be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation in this Commonwealth is situated. No fee shall be charged by the Department of State for the filing thereof, and no fee shall be charged by the recorder of deeds for the recording thereof.

Comments:

Under the Act of 1856, supra, a decree of dissolution entered by a court does not go into effect until a certified copy thereof is filed by a representative of the corporation in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. Under the Act of 1925, supra, the Secretary of the Commonwealth is required to file with the clerk or prothonotary of the court a certificate that the corporation has filed and recorded a copy of the decree with him. Under this draft, as under the Uniform Act, the existence of the corporation ceases upon the entering of a decree of dissolution by the court. Under existing law, a decree dissolving a corporation is not required to be filed in the office of the recorder of deeds, although the charter of the corporation is on file in that office. The clerk or prothonotary of the court, instead of the representative of the corporation, is required to file a certified copy of the decree in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and also in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the registered office of the corporation is situated.

Section 1111. Survival of Remedies After Dissolution. The dissolution of a business corporation, either by the issuance of a certificate of dissolution by the Department of State, or by the decree of a court of common pleas, when the court has not liquidated the assets and property of the corporation, or by expiration of its period of duration, or by the sale of all its franchises, property and assets to another business corporation, shall not take away or impair any remedy given against such corporation, its directors, or shareholders, for any liability incurred prior to such dissolution, if suit thereon is brought and service of process had within two years after the date of such dissolution. Such suits may be prosecuted against and defended by the corporation in its corporate name.

Comments:

After dissolution, a corporation has no existence and cannot sue or be sued; all suits brought by or against it are abated and judgment against it obtained after dissolution is void. See Savidge on Pa. Corps., Volume 2, Sections 1204, 1207 and 1210.

In the recent case of Merwine, Appellant, v. Mount Pocono Light and Improvement Company, 304 Pa. 517 (1931), it was held that the sale of the assets and franchises of one corporation to another corporation, under the provisions of the Corporation Act of 1874, did not make effective a dissolution of the vendor corporation, so as to defeat the rights of creditors to maintain and continue suits against it.

Section 1112. Action to Annul, Vacate or Forfeit Corporate Franchises. The Attorney General may institute proceedings to annul, vacate or forfeit the articles of incorporation and the franchises of a business corporation, upon such grounds and in such manner as is now provided by law. In every such case, the court of common pleas in which such action is instituted shall have full power to wind up the affairs of the corporation in the manner hereinbefore provided in this article.

Comments:

As the laws relating to quo warranto proceedings relate to individuals, partnerships, and corporations, such laws have not been included in this draft. The above provision, however, is necessary to enable a court of common pleas to wind up the affairs of the corporation after a judgment of ouster has been entered.

PROPOSED SCHOOL CODE

By the 1931 General Appropriation Act the Legislature directed this department to prepare for submission at this session a revision of the school laws.

The School Code was enacted in 1911. Hundreds of amendments have been made since then, but there has been no general revision.

A complete revision of the law as it now stands, together with such changes as present economic conditions dictate, will be most helpful in the administration of the public school system.

The draft herewith submitted was prepared by Assistant Deputy Attorney General Paul H. Rhoads, in consultation with Deputy Attorney General Harris C. Arnold and the Attorney General, and with the full co-operation of Superintendent of Public Instruction James N. Rule, his deputies and the other officers of the Department of Public Instruction.

At the 1932 special session, the Legislature by resolution authorized the appointment of a joint committee of the Senate and the House to co-operate with this department in preparing this revision. The committee consisted of Senators William D. Mansfield, William H. Earnest, Leon C. Prince, and House Members Thomas B. Wilson, Edward Nothnagle and Chester H. Rhodes. This committee met with us on a number of occasions, discussed with us the problems involved and gave us the benefit of their advice.

Respectfully submitted,
WM. A. SCHNADER,
Attorney General.

AN ACT

Establishing a public school system for the Commonwealth, and prescribing the manner in which such system shall be adminitsered, including appointment, election and compensation of certain officials thereof; revising, amending and consolidating existing laws concerning the public school system and discontinuing certain school districts and offices thereunder; vesting in the courts jurisdiction of certain school affairs; providing revenue for such system and the manner and methods of collecting it; imposing liabilities upon certain counties; prescribing penalties for violation of its provisions; and repealing certain acts and parts of acts

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, as follows:

ARTICLE I

PRELIMINARY PROVISIONS

Section 1. Short Title.—[1]This act shall be known, and may be cited as, "The School Code".

Note:

1. This title has been selected in preference to "The School Law" for the reason that the word "Code" connotes a more distinctive and compact act on a specified subject than does the phrase "School Law."

Section 2. General Construction.—Article and section headings shall not be construed to affect, in any manner, the scope or meaning of any article or section of this act.

The singular shall be construed to include the plural, the masculine to include the feminine, and the neuter to include the masculine and feminine.

Each reference to any act by title or otherwise shall be construed to apply to and include any codification wherein the provisions of such act are substantially re-enacted.

Section 3. Definitions.—The following terms shall be construed in this act to have the following meanings, except in those instances where the context clearly indicates otherwise:

1. "Board"—The board of school directors of a school district.

2. "Department"—The Department of Public Instruction of this Commonwealth.

3. "District"—A school district of this Commonwealth.

4. "Superintendent"—The district superintendent, in districts which shall have elected such a superintendent; the county superintendent, in all other districts.

Section 4. Constitutional Construction.—The provisions of this act shall be severable, and, if any of its provisions shall be held to be unconstitutional, the decision of the court as to those provisions shall not affect the validity of the remaining provisions of this act. It is hereby declared as a legislative intent that this act would have been adopted by the General Assembly had such unconstitutional provisions not been included herein.

Section 5. Saving Clause.—This act shall not impair or affect any act done, offense committed, or right accruing, accrued, or acquired, or liability, penalty; judgment or punishment accrued prior to the effective date of this act, but the same may be enjoyed, asserted, enforced, prosecuted, or inflicted, as fully and to the same extent as if this act had not been passed.

The provisions of this act, as far as they are the same as those of existing laws, shall be construed as a continuation of such laws and not as new enactments.

The repeal by this act of any existing act or of any part thereof, shall not be construed to revive any act or part of any act heretofore repealed or superseded.

All resolutions, regulations, and rules make pursuant to any act repealed by this act shall, unless inconsistent with any provision of this act, continue with the same force as if such act had not been repealed.

Each person holding office under any act or part of any act repealed by this act shall, except as herein otherwise provided, continue to hold such office until the expiration of his term, subject to the conditions attached to such office prior to the effective date of this act.

Section 6. Advertisement.—[1]Unless expressly otherwise provided, each advertisement or publication of a notice required by this act shall be made once a week for three weeks in at least two newspapers of general circulation published in the territory comprising the one or more school districts to be affected by the subject of the advertisement. If there shall be but one such newspaper published in such territory, the advertisement shall be made in that newspaper and one other newspaper of general circulation published at the county seat of the county in which such area or the greater part thereof is located. If no such newspaper shall be published in the affected territory, publication shall be made in any two newspapers of general circulation published in the county, one of which shall be a newspaper published at the county seat, If no newspapers shall be published at the county seat, such publication in any two newspapers published in the county shall be sufficient. If there shall be but one newspaper published in the county, publication in that newspaper shall be sufficient. If no newspapers shall be published in the county, the advertisement shall be made in the two newspapers most widely circulated in the affected area.

Note:

1. Express reference to the Newspaper Advertising Act of 1929, 1929 P. L. 1784, as amended by the Act of 1931, P. L. 67, 45 PS Sec. 1, etc., has been omitted. The provisions of that act remain unaffected.

Section 7. Advertisement for Bids.—[1]In each school district which shall be required by the provisions of this act to advertise for bids for construction, supplies, or equipment, the board may, in its discretion, legally authorize the publication of such advertisement, in addition to the newspapers herein specified, in any publication or journal devoted to the dissemination of information about construction work published in this Commonwealth at least once a week and circulating among contractors, manufacturers, and dealers doing business in the community in which such construction is to be performed, or the supplies or equipment purchased. No advertisement for any such bids shall be inserted in any such publication or journal which shall not have been established and regularly issued from a printing office and publication house in this Commonwealth for a period of at least eighteen (18) months; nor unless such publication and journal shall be entered or entitled, for admission to the United States mails as second class matter; nor if the rates and charges for such advertising shall be in excess of those of newspapers of general circulation as defined by the Newspaper Advertising Act of May sixteen, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (Pamphlet Laws one thousand seven hundred eighty-four), of a like circulation published in the community in which the construction is to be performed, or the supplies or equipment purchased.

Note:

1 This section has been drawn from the Act of 1931, P. L. 845, 45 PS Sec. 12. That act related to counties, cities, boroughs, townships, towns, school districts, or poor districts. It has been inserted in this draft in order to set forth a more complete system for school management.

Section 8. Effective Date.—[1]The provisions of this act authorizing the State Council of Education to group one (1) or more municipal subdivisions into units which will subsequently become school districts, and the provisions authorizing the appointment of school directors for new districts shall become effective upon the passage of this act by the general Assembly and its approval by the Governor. All other provisions of this act including all changes in districts shall become effective on the first Monday of July, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three.[2]

Note:

1. The first Monday of July, 1933, is the first day of the new school year in district sof the second, third and fourth classes.
2. Sections 401 and 402 of this draft provide for the preliminary work of the State Council of Education in the forming of the new districts which shall have a population of between five thousand and ten thousand. That work of the Council must necessarily be performed before the system of districts, to be established by this proposed act, could go into force.
Section 506 provides for the appointment of new boards of school directors where such appointments will be necessary in the new districts created under the provisions of this proposed act.

Section 9. Religious and Political Qualifications.—[1]No religious or political test or qualification shall be required of any director, visitor, superintendent, teacher or other officer, appointee or employee in the public schools of this Commonwealth.

Note:

1. This is Section 2801 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2388.

Section 10. Disposition of Fines and Penalties.—[1]All fines that shall be imposed and collected under any of the provisions of this act shall be paid into the treasury of the proper school district, or, where the proper school district cannot be determined, into the State School Fund.

Note:

1. This is Section 2802 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2391.

Section 11. Compensation for Additional Services.—[1]When, by the provisions of this act, any services or additional services shall be imposed upon any public officer for which no compensation shall be provided, the board of school directors of the proper district, may, unless such services shall be required to be performed without compensation, or unless the person who shall have performed such service is prohibited, by this act, from receiving any such compensation, pay out of the funds of the district such reasonable compensation for such services or additional services as it may determine, subject to the provisions of this act.

Note:

1. This is Section 2804 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2387.
Section 2804 of the School Law of 1911, supra, was construed in Formal Opinion No. 71, by Deputy Attorney General Harris C. Arnold, as not including, within its provisions the directors of a school district. Under Section 226 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 187, Section 531 of this draft, the directors are precluded from receiving additional compensation from the district.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION

Section 200. Power and Duty.—In addition to the further powers and duties provided herein, the Department of Public Instruction shall have the power and its duty shall be:

(a) To continue to exercise, subject to any inconsistent provisions of this act, the powers, and to perform the duties which have been vested in and imposed upon such Department and the Superintendent of Public Instruction.[1]

(b) To administer all of the laws of this Commonwealth relating to the establishment, maintenance, and conduct of the public schools, and to vocational, industrial, agricultural, and household arts education.[2]

(c) To exercise supervision over all of the public schools.[3]

(d) To prepare blank forms for the annual district reports, with suitable instructions and forms for conducting the various proceedings and details of the school system in a uniform and efficient manner, and to forward the same to the district superintendents for distribution to and among the proper district officers.[4]

(e) To prepare and furnish to the proper persons suitable blanks and all other papers required by law.[5]

(f) To give advice, explanations, constructions, or information to such extent as the Superintendent of Public Instruction may deem proper to school officers relative to the school laws and other questions and matters calculated to promote the cause of education.[6]

(g) To classify the high schools, upon the basis of the reports of the directors and inspectors of high schools, in compliance with the provisions of this act.[7]

(h) To issue all commissions to superintendents and assistant superintendents of the public schools.[8]

(i) To prepare minimum courses of study for the public schools.[9]

(j) To prepare and furnish to boards of school directors sample blank forms for keeping and reporting school accounts, and sample bonds for their treasurers, secretaries, tax collectors, and depositiories, and samples of other bonds or forms required by law.[10]

(k) To investigate the need for, to aid in the establishment of, and to supervise, inspect, and approve, for the purpose of reimbursement on the part of the State, schools, departments, and courses for agricultural, industrial, commercial, home economics, mining and other vocational and practical education, and continuation schools, when maintained as a part of the public school system.[11]

(l) To pay, out of funds appropriated to it by the General Assembly for that purpose, for the education of deaf and blind children who shall be residents of Pennsylvania and who are in schools which shall afford vocational training to such children; and to make appropriate rules and regulations for the admission of State pupils to such schools, and to supervise the education of State pupils in any such schools.[12]

(m) To fix and collect fees for services rendered by it to persons or agencies other than departments of the State government. Such charges shall not exceed the actual cost of such services and the fees collected under the provisions of this subsection shall be paid into the State Treasury as part of the General Fund.[13]

(n) To form and promulgate rules and regulations relating to the issuance of permits to children, between the ages of fourteen (14) and sixteen (16), to engage, during school hours in farm work or domestic services in a private home.[14]

(o) To organize and supervise when it shall deem it proper, schools and classes, according to the regulations and standards established for the conduct of schools and classes of the public school system, in all institutions wholly or partly supported by the Commonwealth which are not supervised by public school authorities.[15]

Note:

1. Subsection (a) of this section has been drawn from Subsection (a) of Section 1301 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 351.
2. Subsection (b) has been drawn from Subsection (a) of Section 1303 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 353, and from Subsection (a) of Section 1302 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 352.
3. Section 1001 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 901, provided: "The Superintendent of Public Instruction * * * shall have supervision of all the public schools of this Commonwealth, as well as the following powers and duties:" In this draft that power has been placed in the Department of Public Instruction; the Superintendent of Public Instruction is vested with the powers placed in, and is charged with the performance of the duties of the Department of Public Instruction. This principle is applicable to the subject-matter of Subsections (d), (e), (f), (g), (h), (i), (j), and (m) of this section.
4. Subsection (d) has been drawn from Subsection (b) of Section 1302 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 352.
5. Subsection (e) has been drawn from Subsection (c) of Section 1302 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 352.
6. Subsection (f) has been drawn from Subsection (d) of Section 1302 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 352.
7. Subsection (g) has been drawn from Subsection (e) of Section 1302 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 352.
8. Subsection (h) has been drawn from Subsection (f) of Section 1302 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 352.
9. Subsection (i) has been drawn from Subsection (g) of Section 1302 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 352.
10. Subsection (j) has been drawn from Subsection (h) of Section 1302 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 352.
11. Subsection (k) has been drawn from Subsection (b) of Section 1303 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 353.
12. Subsection (l) has been drawn from Subsection (c) of Section 1303 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 353.
13. Subsection (m) has been drawn from Section 1 of the Act of 1925, P. L. 122, 71 PS SEC. 1011.
14. Subsection (n) has been drawn from the last portion of Section 1416 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1034, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 23.
15. Subsection (o) has been drawn from the amendment of 1931, 1931 P. L. 243, Section 39, 24 PS Sec. 1657a.
The subject-matter of Sections 1001, 3, 4, 6, 7, 10, 12, 13, 14, and 16 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 901, 3, 4, 8, 10, 11, 13, 5, 9, and 15, relating to the powers of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, have been included in this section. As to Section 1002, 24 PS Sec. 902, see Section 202 of this draft; as to Section 1005, 24 PS Sec. 905, see Section 504 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 184; as to Section 1008, 24 PS Sec 916, see Section 203 of this draft; as to Section 1009, 24 PS Sec. 918, see Section 213 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 73; as to Section 1015, 24 PS Sec. 914, see Section 204 of this draft; as to Section 1018, 24 PS Sec. 907, see Section 206 of this draft.
The subject-matter of Section 1017 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 917, which granted to the Superintendent of Public Instruction the power to condemn school buildings or premises, and Section 1301 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 351, placing a similar power in the Department of Public Instruction, have been omitted for the reasons stated in the note to Section 1212 of this draft.

Section 201. Superintendent of Public Instruction.—[1]The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall, either personally or by deputy, or by a duly authorized agent or deputy of the Department of Public Instruction, exercise and perform, in the manner provided by law, the duties vested in and imposed upon the Department of Public Instruction.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 206 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 66.

Section 202. Signing of Requisitions.—[1]The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall sign all requisitions for the payment of moneys which the school districts shall be entitled to receive from the Commonwealth, and for all other moneys which shall be paid according to law, out of the appropriations for public school purposes.

Note:

1. This is Section 1002 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 902.

Section 203. Seal.—[1]The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall have charge of the seal of the Department of Public Instruction, by which copies of papers deposited or filed with such department, and all official acts and decisions, may be authenticated, and when so authenticated, they shall be evidence equally and with like effect as the originals.

Note:

1. This is Section 1008 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 916.

Section 204. Oaths and Affirmations.—[1]The Superintendent of Public Instruction may administer oaths and affirmations concerning any matters relating to the affairs or duties of his office.

Note:

1. This is Section 1015 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 914.

Section 205. Vacancies in the Office of County Superintendent.—[1]The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall appoint a proper person to fill each vacancy in the office of county superintendent. Before making any such appointment, the superintendent shall give careful consideration to any recommendations concerning the appointment which may have been made by the officers of the proper school directors' association within (10) days after the occurrence of such vacancy.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 1120 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1004.

Section 206. Printing.—[1]The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall hove power to authorize the printing of, at the expense of the Commonwealth, his annual report or any extracts therefrom for distribution among school officers and teachers, courses of study, and such other treatises and investigations on educational subjects as he may deem necessary.

Note:

1. This is Section 1018 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 907.

ARTICLE III

STATE COUNCIL OF EDUCATION

Section 300. Appointment; Term; Vacancies.—[1]There shall be a State Council of Education composed of nine (9) members appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The members of the Council on the effective date of this act shall continue to serve during the remainder of their terms. On or before the first Monday of July, 1934, and biennially thereafter, the Governor shall, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint two (2) members to such Council; on or before the first Monday of July 1935, and biennially thereafter, the Governor shall, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint one (1) member to such Council. The term of office shall be six (6) years, and any vacancies in the Council shall be filled for the remainder of the unexpired term by appointment made by the Governor, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Note:

1. Section 901 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 871, provided for a State Board of Education consisting of six members. By the amendment of 1921, P. L. 1014, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 871, this number was increased to nine.
Section 408 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 118, also provides for a State Council of Education composed of nine members.
The appointment for 1933 will be made under the School Law of 1911, for this proposed act would not become effective until the first Monday of July, 1933.

Section 301. Office.—[1]The office of the State Council of Education shall be at the State Capitol. It shall be the duty of the Department of Property and Supplies to provide the Council with suitable rooms, properly furnished and maintained.

Note:

1. This section is based on Section 910 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1014, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 880.

Section 302. Place of Meeting.—[1]The regular place of meeting of the State Council of Education shall be at its office at the State Capitol, but the Council may meet elsewhere when it shall deem it necessary.

Note:

1. This is Section 911 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 882.

Section 303. Officers; By-Laws; Quorum.—[1]The State Council of Education may annually elect a secretary who need not be a member of the Council and such other officers as it shall deem necessary; the Council shall define the duties of such officer or officers. Such secretary shall serve with or without compensation for the performance of his duties in such office as the Council may determine.

The State Council of Education shall fix the time for its regular meetings, and shall make its own by-laws and all regulations which it shall deem necessary to carry on its proper work and affairs.

The Superintendent of Public Instruction and five (5) other members shall constitute a quorum.

Note:

1. The first two paragraphs of this section have been drawn from Section 909 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1014, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 881.

The provision pertaining to the secretary's being a non-member of the Council has been drawn from Section 408 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 118.

Section 304. Superintendent of Public Instruction.—[1]The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be, ex officio, a member of the State Council of Education, and president, and chief executive officer thereof.

Note:

1. This is Section 902 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1919, P. L. 676, Section 1, 1921, P. L. 1014, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 872.

Section 305. Powers and Duties of the State Council of Education.—In addition to the further powers and duties provided herein, the State Council of Education shall have the following power and its duty shall be, subject to the provisions of this act:

(a) To continue to exercise the power and perform the duties which have, by law, been vested in and imposed upon the State Council of Education.[1]

(b) To report and recommend to the Governor, and the General Assembly, legislation needed to make the public schools of this Commonwealth more efficient and useful.[2]

(c) To equalize, through special appropriations made for this purpose, or otherwise, the educational advantages of the different parts of this Commonwealth.[3]

(d) To adopt standards for, and to require reports from schools and institutions wholly or partly supported by the Commonwealth which are not supervised by the public school authorities, including schools and institutions for the blind and the deaf and dumb; to make recommendations to the Governor and the General Assembly concerning the amount of appropriations to be made to, or for the use of, any such school or institution, and to supervise the expenditure thereof. A copy of the report of the inspection of any such institution which may be made to the State Council of Education shall be sent to the head of such institution. The powers conferred by this subsection shall be vested solely in the State Council of Education and shall not be exercised by an other department or State agency.[4]

(e) To encourage, aid in the introduction of, co-operate with the Federal Government concerning, and promote agricultural education, manual training, domestic science, and such other vocational and practical education as the needs of this Commonwealth may require from time to time, and to make a report annually to the Governor and the Legislature describing the condition and progress of vocational, industrial, agricultural, and home economics education, together with such recommendations as the Council may deem desirable.[5]

(f) To investigate and make recommendations pertaining to the work of any schools of design, schools of industrial arts, or industrial schools, or other educational institutions within the Commonwealth, to which the General Assembly may make an appropriation.[6]

(g) To determine and promulgate standards for certificates to teach in the public schools of this Commonwealth, where such standards shall not otherwise be fixed by law.[7]

(h) To employ such assistants and incur such other expenses as it shall find necessary for the performance of its duties, within limits of the appropriation made for its use.[8]

(i) To provide for summer schools in State teachers colleges, colleges, universities, and other educational institutions, and for extension courses and correspondence courses for all teachers employed in the public school system who wish to acquire the minimum qualifications prescribed herein or such further qualifications as may be desirable.[9]

(j) To investigate and aid in the establishment of consolidated schools and to inspect and approve such schools, as is herein provided."

(k) To adopt standards concerning extension education."

Note:

1. Subsection (a) is similar to Section 913 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1014, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 884, which provides that the State Council of Education shall perform the duties formerly imposed upon the State Council of Education. It has also been drawn from Subsection (a) of Section 1307 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 357.

2. Subsection (b) is similar to Section 904 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 874, and to Subsection (b) of Section 1307 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 357.

3. Subsection (c) has been drawn from Section 905 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1014, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 875, and Subsection (c) of Section 1307 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 71 PS Sec. 357.

4. Subsection (d) has been drawn from Section 906 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1014, Section 1, and 1923, P. L. 930, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 876.

8. Subsection (h) has been drawn from Section 912 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1014, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 883.

9. Subsection (i) has been drawn from Subsection (15) of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1131.

11. Subsection (k) has been drawn from Section 6 of the Act of 1925, P. L. 462, 24 PS Sec. 1756.

Section 306. Education of Blind Children.—[1]The State Council of Education may educate blind children, residing in this Commonwealth, under eight (8) years of age, whenever, from any cause the parent or parents or person in parental relation thereof may be unable to properly educate such child or children. Upon the written consent of the parent, guardian, or person in parental relation, or if there be none, of the poor authorities of the proper poor district, the State Council of Education may contract with any non-sectarian institution in this Commonwealth, or elsewhere, established for the education of the blind, whereby any such child may, at a cost not exceeding one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50) per day, be educated until he shall reach the age of eight (8) years. Such education may be continued beyond the age of eight (8) years, when, for physical, mental, or other proper reasons, such child or children shall need special care for a longer period. The State Council of Education may, at any time, cancel such contract and return the child or children to the school district.

All expenses incurred in pursuance of the provisions of this section shall be paid from the State School Fund, in the manner provided by law.

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1439 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1478. That section was added to the School Law of 1911 by the Act of 1913, P. L. 158. It was amended by the Act of 1917, P. L. 206, Section 1.

Section 307. State Scholarships.—[1]In order to assist worthy young men and women who shall be graduates of secondary schools of this Commonwealth, the Commonwealth shall award competitive scholarships to the value of one hundred dollars ($100.00) per year for a term of four (4) years, to enable students, who shall have been selected by the State Council of Education, to attend any institution of higher learning in this Commonwealth which shall have been approved by the State Council of Education. The Council, after having given reasonable notice of the time, place and subject-matter of such examinations, shall conduct competitive examinations to select such students. One such scholarship shall be awarded to a pupil from each county, unless there shall be more than one senatorial district within a county, in which case one scholarship shall be awarded to a pupil for each entire senatorial district.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Sections 1, 2 and 3 of the Act of 1919, P. L. 1044, 24 PS Sec. 2451, 2453.
Section 4 of the Act of 1919, supra, contained an appropriation in the amount of sixteen thousand dollars ($16,000.00) for the biennium which began on the first day of June 1919.

Section 308. Compensation; Expenses.—[1]The members of the State Council of Education shall serve without compensation. The actual expenses incurred in the performance of their duties as members of such Council shall be paid in the manner provided by law upon the requisition of the Superintendent of Public Instruction drawn upon the Auditor General.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the last two sentences of Section 901 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1014, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 871.

ARTICLE IV.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS

A. Establishment

Section 400. Division of State Into School Districts.—[1]Each city, and each borough, incorporated town, and township which shall have a population of ten thousand (10,000) or more, as determined from time to time by reference to the last preceding decennial United States census, shall constitute a separate school district. The State Council of Education shall, on or before the first Monday of July, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three (1933), form, in the manner herein provided, the remainder of each county into one (1) or more compact school districts each of which shall have, as nearly as practicably possible, a population of between five thousand (5,000) and ten thousand (10,000).

Note:

1. This is a new section. Under the School Law of 1911, with a few exceptions, each city, borough, incorporated town, and township constitutes a separate school district. The exceptions are formed by fifty-four (54) small independent school districts and two (2) union school districts.
There are at present two thousand five hundred eighty-seven (2,587) school districts in the Commonwealth; of these two (2) belong to the first class; twenty (20) belong to the second class; two hundred sixty-two (262) belong to the third class; and two thousand three hundred three (2,303) to the fourth class.
Of these districts there are one thousand one hundred fifty-seven (1,157) which have less than one thousand (1,000) population, and one thousand five hundred sixty-one ,1,561) which have a population of less than fifteen hundred (1,500). The following table illustrates how small, from an educational standpoint, many of these districts are:

Number of districts having no teachers, 1931-32.....	32
Number of districts having one teacher, 1931-32	110
Number of districts having two teachers, 1931-32	156
Number of districts having three teachers, 1931-32	143
Number of districts having four teachers, 1931-32	167
Number of districts having eight or less, 1931-32	1,293
Number of districts having ten or less, 1931-32	1,427

The evils of the present system are:
(a) In each of these two thousand, five hundred eighty-seven (2,587) districts there is a full complement of officers, consisting of at least a secretary, treasurer, and tax collector, most of whom receive compensation in the form of a salary or commission.
(b) Inasmuch as the boundary lines are artificial and not based upon convenience, children are frequently required to travel long distances to attend school, while another district may have a school which is relatively near the homes of such children.
(c) A small school district with few pupils and teachers is not able to provide adequate educational opportunities for its residents.
(d) There can be no economical, large quantity buying of school supplies in the many small school districts.
Under the school system, as provided in this draft, it is estimated that there will be approximately five hundred districts.
Along with far superior educational advantages, it is estimated that this system will result in a financial saving of approximately two million dollars ($2,000,000) annually for those districts which will be grouped into units having a population of five to ten thousand. This saving will result from economies in the following items:
Salaries of secretaries
Salaries and commissions of treasurers
Commissions of tax collectors
Compensation of auditors
Fees for legal services
Miscellaneous overhead
Purchase of supplies
Securing of fuel, light, water, and power.
The total current expenditures for the year 1931-1932 of the districts which will go into the new districts amount to approximately seventy-two million dollars ($72,000,000). Of this amount approximately fifty-three million, two hundred thousand dollars ($53,200,00) was expended for teachers salaries, this leaves approximately nineteen million dollars ($19,000,000) as the amount spent in those districts for non-instructional purposes. It will thus be seen that the saving of two million dollars ($2,000,000) represents a reduction of approximately ten per centum of all non-instructional expenses in such districts.

Section 401. Manner of Division.—[1]In forming each such compact district, the State Council of Education shall place into single districts the one (1) or more boroughs, incorporated towns, or townships, or any of them, which shall be located within the county, in such manner as will serve most efficiently the educational and economic needs of the area which would be affected by the forming of such districts.
The State Council of Education shall not, except where a borough shall lie within two (2) or more counties, create any district which shall cross county lines.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It sets forth the manner in which the State Council of Education shall divide the territory in each county which is not composed of districts having a population of ten thousand (10,000) or more.
See also the note to the preceding section of this draft.
For the procedure whereby a district may annex, for school purposes, a contiguous part of an adjacent district see Sections 414, et seq. of this draft.

Section 402. Certificate of the State Council of Education.—[1]When the State Council of Education shall have designated the one or more municipal subdivisions which shall form each such district, it shall file its certificate to that effect with the Department, and shall send a copy thereof by registered mail to the board of school directors of each school district which shall include any territory which shall comprise the whole or any portion of the new district. Each such designation shall be final, and the territory within such one or more municipal subdivisions shall, on and after the first Monday of July one thousand nine hundred thirty-three, constitute a school district as provided herein.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Sections 400, and 401 of this draft.

B. Classification

Section 403. First Class.—[1]Each school district which shall have a population of five hundred thousand (500,000), or more, shall be a school district of the first class.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 102 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 22.

Section 404. Second Class.—[1]Each school district which shall have a population of thirty thousand (30,000) or more, but less than five hundred thousand (500,000), shall be a school district of the second class.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 103, of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 23.

Section 405. Third Class.—[1]Each school district which shall have a population of eleven thousand (11,000) or more, but less than thirty thousand (30,000), shall be a school district of the third class.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Under the School Law of 1911, third class districts have a population of five thousand to thirty thousand.
The lower limit of this class has been raised to eleven thousand (11,000) in order to include the new districts which will be formed by the State Council of Education from the consolidation of the small districts which, under the School Law of 1911, were districts of the fourth class or small districts of the third class.
The change will necessarily result in causing some present third class districts to enter the fourth class; the change is, however, necessary for under the principles of classification all districts having a similar population must be governed by the same provisions of the law.

Section 406. Fourth Class.—[1]Each school district which shall have a population of less than eleven thousand (11,000) shall be a school district of the fourth class.

Note:

1. This is a new section. See note to Section 405 of this draft.

Section 407. Ascertainment and Classification of Districts on Effective Date.—[1]The boroughs, incorporated towns and townships which shall become separate school districts on the effective date of this act, and the classification of all districts on such date shall be ascertained by reference to the last preceding decennial census of the United States.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It has been written to establish a basis upon which the ascertainment of the boroughs, incorporated towns, and townships which will form separate school districts and the classification of all districts can be made.

Section 408. Ascertainment of Class.—[1]Except as herein otherwise provided, the boroughs, incorporated towns, and townships which shall, due to their having attained the population stated herein, constitute separate school districts, and the classification of all school districts shall be ascertained by reference from time to time to the last preceding decennial United States census. After the taking of each such census, the Department shall canvass the same so far as it relates to the population of the school districts of this Commonwealth. Whenever it shall appear by any such census that any school district has attained a population entitling it to a change in classification, as herein prescribed, the Department shall issue a certificate to the school district to that effect and such school district shall, with the beginning of the next school year after the issuance of such certificate, become a school district of the class thus determined. Whenever it shall appear by any such census that a borough, incorporated town or township no longer has a population entitling it to be a separate school district, the Department shall issue its certificate to that district to that effect, and with the beginning of the next school year, such borough, incorporated town, or township shall cease to be a separate school district.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It is based on the first nine (9) lines of Section 106 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1915, P. L. 627, Section 1; 1917, P. L. 1023, Section 1; and 1923, P. L. 337, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 26.

Section 409. New School Districts.—[1]After the taking of each decennial United States census, the Department shall canvass the same so far as it relates to the population of the boroughs, incorporated towns, and townships of this Commonwealth. Whenever it shall appear by any such census that any borough, incorporated town, or township has attained a population of ten thousand (10,000) or more, the Department shall issue a certificate to the board of school directors of the school district in which such borough, incorporated town, or township shall be located stating that, with the beginning of the next school year, such borough, incorporated town, or township shall become a separate school district. With the beginning of the next school year after the issuance of such certificate, such borough, incorporated town, or township shall, except as herein otherwise provided, become a school district of the class determined by the Department under the provisions of this act.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
Inasmuch as upon a borough's, incorporated town's, or township's attaining a population of ten thousand or more, it will become a separate school district, it is necessary to ascertain the class to which it shall belong.
2. See Sections 838 and 839 of this draft.
3. The portions of this draft which permit the annexation or consolidation of districts or parts of districts for school purposes will enable a proper disposition to be made of the territory of a district remaining after the creation of such a new district.

Section 410. Special Census.—[1]At any time more than two (2) years after the official certification of the results of the last preceding United States decennial census with respect to a school district, any board of school directors, by a resolution, adopted by the affirmative vote of two-thirds (2-3) of all of the then qualified members, stating that in the opinion of the board there has occurred a twenty per centum (20%) decrease in the population of the school district since the last preceding decennial United States census and that the district no longer has the population necessary to remain a separate school district or in the class in which it then shall be, may authorize and conduct a census in such school district. If from the census taken by such board it shall appear that the district has not the population necessary to remain a separate school district or in such class, the Department, upon receipt of a certificate stating the results of the census, shall issue to the school district a certificate declaring such district to be of the class to which it shall properly belong as disclosed by the census of the school board, or that the territory comprising such district shall no longer be a separate school district. At the beginning of the next school year following the issuance of the certificate by the Department, the school district shall become a district of such new class or cease to be a separate school district, as determined by the Department.

Note:

1. This is a new section; it is based upon the last eleven (11) lines of Section 106, of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1915, P. L. 627, Section 1; 1917, P. L. 1023, Section 1, and 1923, P. L. 337, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 26.
The two-year limitation and the requirement as to the two-thirds (2-3) vote are new. They are designed to prevent the conduct of unnecessary enumerations.
The provision relating to a borough, incorporated town, or township which has ceased to be a separate school district is new; it is necessary under the provisions of this draft.
No machinery has been provided for the taking of a census, between decennial United States censuses, in a borough, incorporated town, or township, to ascertain if it has attained a population of ten thousand (10,000). The establishment of small school districts should not be encouraged for the reasons set forth in the note to Section 400 of this draft.

Section 411. New Cities, Incorporated Towns, Townships, and Boroughs as New School Districts.—[1]When a new school district shall hereafter be formed by the creation of a new city, or by the creation of a new borough, incorporated town, or township having a population of ten thousand (10,000) or more, the court of common pleas having jurisdiction of the proceedings for the incorporation of such municipal subdivision shall determine the class to which the school district shall belong. Each such city, incorporated town, township, or borough, shall, except as herein otherwise provided,[2] become a separate school district upon the opening of the next school year for school districts of the class so determined.

A certified copy of the order or decree of the court shall be sent by the clerk of the court, or other proper officer, to the Department.[3]

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See the note to Section 400 of this draft.
The first sentence of Section 210 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1929, P. L. 642, Section 3, and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 3, 24 PS Sec. 171, pertained to a similar subject.
2. See Sections 838 and 839 of this draft.
3. Se note 3 to Section 409.

Section 412. Annexation or Consolidation of Municipal Subdivisions.—[1]When any territory, the population of which can be ascertained from the preceding decennial United States census, shall be consolidated with or annexed, for municipal or school purposes, to a school district or one or more of the municipal subdivisions comprising a school district, the Department, upon receipt of the certification of the decree of the court, final resolutions, or vote of the electors effecting such annexation or consolidation, shall ascertain the class to which the enlarged school district shall belong by reference to the last preceding decennial United States census. The Department shall thereupon issue a certificate to such school district stating the class to which it shall belong. With the beginning of the next school year, the enlarged district shall, except as herein otherwise provided,[2] become a school district of the class thus determined.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It is somewhat similar to the first sentence of Section 210 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1929, P. L. 642, Section 3, and the Act of 1931, P. L. 243, Section 3, 24 PS Sec. 171.
No provision for approval by the State Council of Education of newly created school districts of the fourth class is included, however, due to the reasons set forth in the note to Section 400 of this draft.
2. See note to Sections 838 and 839 of this draft.

Section 413. Enlarged Districts.—[1]Where any territory shall be annexed or consolidated for school or municipal purposes to a school district or to one (1) or more of the municipal subdivisions of which a school district shall be formed and thereby the population of the school district shall be increased and the population of such annexed territory cannot be ascertained from the last preceding decennial United States census, the directors of the enlarged school district may apply to the court of common pleas of the county in which such school district, or the greater part in area, is located for the appointment of a commissioner to make an enumeration of the population of such annexed territory. From this enumeration and the last preceding decennial United States census, the court shall determine and enter its decree stating the class to which the enlarged district shall belong. With the beginning of the next school year, the enlarged district shall, except as herein otherwise provided,[2] become a school district of the class so determined. The cost of the proceeding, including reasonable compensation for the commissioner, to be fixed by the court, shall be paid by the school district.

A certified copy of the order or decree of the court shall be sent by the clerk of the court, or other proper officer, to the Department.

Note:

1. This section is based upon a portion of Section 106 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1915, P. L. 627, Section 1; 1917, P. L. 1023, Section 1, and 1923, P. L. 337, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 26, and upon Section 107 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1915, P. L. 627, Section 2; 1917, P. L. 1023, Section 2; and 1921, P. L. 555, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 27. Section 106 of the School Law of 1911, supra, requires the court to send the results of the enumeration to the Superintendent of Public Instruction, who then determines the class to which the district shall belong. This requirement has been eliminated in this draft because the court having jurisdiction of the matter is itself prepared to state the class to which the district shall belong.

The clause covering the effective date for the change is taken from Section 109 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 29.

The last paragraph is new. Its purpose is to enable the records of the Department of Public Instruction to be kept up to date.

2. See Sections 838 and 839 of this draft.

C. Consolidation and Annexation

Section 414. Consolidation of School Districts by General Election.—[1]When two or more school districts shall desire to consolidate into one compact school district, each of those districts may present a petition for the consolidation to the county commissioners of the county wherein that district shall be located. The petition of each district shall be signed by at least fifty (50) freeholders of the district and shall state that, in the opinion of the petitioners, the proposed creation of a consolidated school district would benefit the pupils and taxpayers of that district. Upon the receipt of these petitions it shall be the duty of the county commissioners to submit to the electors of the respective districts desiring to form a consolidated school district, at the next general municipal or primary election, the question whether or not such school district shall become a part of the proposed school district. Such question shall be submitted in the form and manner provided by the general election laws of this Commonwealth for the submission of similar questions. If a majority of the voters of each school district voting at such election shall be in favor of establishing a consolidated school district, as shown by the returns of the election, the county commissioners shall file a certified return of the election with the court of quarter sessions of the proper county, and shall send such a return to the Department. The Department shall forthwith ascertain the class to which the new district shall belong by reference to the last preceding decennial census of the United States, and shall issue a certificate declaring the district to be of the class which it has thus determined. Beginning with the next school year after the issuance of this certificate, the district shall, except as herein otherwise provided,[2] become a school district of the class so determined. The provisions of this section shall be construed as providing an alternative method for effecting a consolidation, and not as restricting or limiting the remaining portions of this act pertaining to consolidation or annexation.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 127 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1023, 24 PS Sec. 101, upon a portion of Section 106 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1923, P. L. 337, 24 PS Sec. 26, upon Section 4 of the Act of 1921, P. L. 1023, 24 PS Sec. 26, and upon the portion of Section 109 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1915, P. L. 627, Section 3, 24 PS Sec. 29, relating to classification and found between lines 9 and 13 of that section.

The existing law requires petitions to be signed by one-fourth of the taxable residents. This number has been reduced to fifty in this draft because it is desired to facilitate the creation of larger school districts.

The approval of the State Council of Education as required by the existing law has been eliminated because it is the desire of the Department of Public Instruction to foster the consolidation of school districts. There is, therefore, no reason for the delay and extra expense which would result from a requirement that the approval of the State Council of Education be secured.

2. See Sections 838 and 839 of this draft.

Section 415. Annexation for School Purposes.—[1]When a board of school directors shall desire to annex, for school purposes, another school district or a portion thereof which shall be coterminous with one (1) or more election districts and, when a board of school directors shall desire to have a portion or all of its territory which shall be coterminous with one (1) or more election districts annexed, for school purposes, to a school district adjacent to such territory, it shall confer with the board of school directors of such other school district.

Note:

1. This is a new section; it provides the preliminary step in the procedure required by this draft for the annexation of any territory for school purposes.

In some localities, the territory adjacent to a city or borough should be, for school purposes, a part of the school district of the city or borough. There is a community of interest between the residents of such territory and the city or borough; existing transportation facilities for the attendance of school in the city or borough are superior to those available for attendance at county schools; and, the existing educational facilities of the city or borough excel those of the county area.

The following sections provide the procedure whereby such annexation, for school purposes, may be effected.

Section 416. Preliminary Resolution.—[1]If such boards of school directors can agree upon the proposed annexation, each of such boards shall adopt, by the affirmative vote of two-thirds (2-3) of all of its then qualified members, a preliminary resolution declaring its intention of effecting such annexation for school purposes.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 415 of this draft.

Section 417. Advertisement.—[1]Immediately after its passage of a preliminary resolution in favor of such annexation, the board of school directors of the school district which shall have the larger population as disclosed by the last preceding United States decennial census, shall cause a notice of such proposed annexation to be published as provided herein.[2] Such notice shall contain a concise statement of the preliminary resolution of such boards and a notice that objections to the proposed annexation may be filed with the secretary of either or both of the boards at stated addresses on or before a specified date. The cost of such advertisement shall be borne equally by the two (2) school districts. Upon the receipt of an itemized statement of the expenses thus incurred, the school district which has not advertised shall pay one-half (½) of such expenses to the other school district.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 415 of this draft.
2. See Section 6 of this draft.

Section 418. Objections; Hearings.—[1]On or before the date fixed by the aforesaid notice, one or more objections to the proposed annexation may be filed in writing with either or both of such boards of school directors by any one (1) or more freeholders of either school district. If any such objection or objections shall be filed, the board with which such one (1) or more objections shall be filed shall hold a public hearing at which all objectors shall be given an opportunity to be heard. Written notice of the time and place of the hearing shall be given to each objector at least fifteen (15) days prior to the holding of the hearing.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 415 of this draft.

Section 419. Final Resolution.—[1]If, after such a hearing and any adjournments thereof which the board of school directors may allow, two-thirds (2-3) of such board shall be of the opinion that the proposed annexation will be for the best interests of the school districts to be affected, it shall, by the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds (2-3) of all of its then qualified members, adopt a final resolution declaring its intention to effect such annexation for school purposes. Written notice of the adoption of such final resolution shall be given by mail to the board of school directors of the other school district and to each person who has filed an objection to the proposed annexation, as provided herein.

When two boards of school directors shall both have adopted such final resolution and no appeal shall have been taken, as herein provided, from either of such resolutions, the annexation shall, except as herein otherwise provided,[2] become effective upon the beginning of the next school year of the enlarged or new school district.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 415 of this draft.
2. See note to Sections 838 and 839 of this draft.

Section 420. Appeal to the State Council of Education.—[1]Within one month after the passage by both boards of school directors of a final resolution in favor of such annexation, any fifty (50), or more, freeholders of either of such school districts may appeal from such resolutions to the State Council of Education. Each such appeal shall act as a supersedeas; it shall be signed by at least fifty (50) of the appellants, and accompanied by affidavits of at least five (5) of the appellants, stating that the appeal has not been taken for purposes of delay. Each such appeal shall be filed with the State Council of Education. Within ten (10) days after the filing of such an appeal, the State Council of Education shall send a notice thereof to each of the two boards of school directors. Upon receipt of such notice each board of school directors shall send to the State Council of Education a list of the names and addresses of all persons who shall have filed objections to the proposed annexation, and shall send a notice of the appeal to each of such persons.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 415 of this draft.

Section 421. Map; Specification of Objections.—[1]Within fifteen (15) days after the filing of such appeal, unless a longer time shall be specifically allowed by the Superintendent of Public Instruction as president of the State Council of Education, the appellants shall file with the Council a plot or map of the territory to be affected, a description of existing educational facilities of that area, and a specification of the grounds of their objections to the annexation. The appellants shall immediately serve a copy thereof upon the secretary of each of the two boards of school directors, and shall, on demand, furnish a copy thereof to each other person who shall become a party to the proceedings conducted before the State Council of Education.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 415 of this draft.

Section 422. Intervention.—[1]At any time prior to the hearing before the State Council of Education, any other persons who might have appealed in the first instance, and the boards of the districts concerned may, as a matter of course, intervene in the appeal by filing an order of intervention with the State Council of Education. Each such order of intervention shall, if opposed to the annexation, be accompanied by a specification of the grounds for the objections and any other relevant facts; if in favor of the annexation, it shall set forth the advantages to accrue from the proposed annexation together with any other relevant facts.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 415 of this draft.

Section 423. Hearing by the State Council of Education; Decree; Notice.—[1]Upon receipt of the appellants' specification of objections, the State Council of Education, after having given reasonable notice to all interested parties, shall hold a hearing, with such adjournments thereof as it may deem necessary, in order to determine the advisability of such annexation. At such hearing, all parties to the proceedings incident to the appeal shall have an opportunity to present, either in person or by counsel, their reasons in favor of or in opposition to the annexation. After such hearing, the State Council of Education shall make an order dismissing the appeal and approving the annexation for school purposes, or sustaining the appeal and prohibiting the annexation. Written notice of its order shall be given by the State Council of Education to all interested parties within five (5) days after the making of the order.

If no appeal, as herein provided, shall be taken from any such order approving the annexation, the annexation shall, except as herein otherwise provided,[2] become effective upon the beginning of the next school year of the enlarged or new school district.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 415 of this draft.
2. See Sections 838 and 839 of this draft.

Section 424. Absence of an Agreement for Annexation.—[1]If no agreement can be reached for the annexation, for school purposes, as herein provided, the board of school directors which shall desire the annexation may, after it has in the manner herein provided, advertised, conducted a hearing or hearings, and adopted a final resolution in favor of such annexation, file its petition with the State Council of Education. The petition shall set forth the request for the annexation, a map or plot of the territory to be affected, a description of the existing educational facilities of the school districts, the advantages to accrue from the proposed annexation, a list of the names and addresses of all persons who filed objections to the preliminary resolution as provided herein, and any other relevant facts.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 415 of this draft.

Section 425. Failure to Adopt a Final Resolution.—[1]If, after the boards of school directors of two school districts shall have reached an agreement for an annexation for school purposes, as herein provided, only one of such boards has within three (3) months following the making of such an agreement, advertised, conducted a hearing or hearings, and adopted, in the manner herein provided, a final resolution in favor of such annexation, such board may file its petition for such annexation with the State Council of Education. The petition shall set forth the request for the annexation, a map or plot of the territory to be affected, a description of the existing educational facilities of the school districts, the advantages to accrue from the proposed merger, a list of the names and addresses of all persons who filed objections to the preliminary resolution as provided herein, and any other relevant facts.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 415 of this draft.

Section 426. Hearing by the State Council of Education.—[1]Upon receipt of a petition for an annexation for school purposes as herein provided, the State Council of Education, after having given reasonable notice to the two (2) boards of school directors and to each person who filed an objection to the preliminary resolution as provided herein, shall conduct a hearing with such adjournments thereof as it shall deem necessary to determine the advisability of such annexation. After such hearings, the State Council of Education shall make an order annexing the districts or parts thereof for school purposes, or refusing the petition. Written notice of its order shall be given by the State Council of Education to all interested parties within five (5) days after the entry of the order.

If no appeal shall be taken from any such order approving the annexation, the annexation, shall, except as herein otherwise provided,[2] become effective upon the beginning of the next school year of the enlarged or new school district.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 415 of this draft.
2. See Sections 838 and 839 of this draft.

Section 427. Appeal to the Court.—[1]Within one (1) month after the State Council of Education shall have made an order approving, granting, or refusing an annexation for school purposes, as provided herein, any party to the proceedings, before the State Council of Education, except as this section otherwise provides, may appeal from such order to the court of common pleas of the county wherein the school districts, or the larger part thereof in area, shall be located. When fifty (50) freeholders have been a party to the proceedings before the State Council of Education, any thirty-five (35) of such freeholders may so appeal.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 415 of this draft.

Section 428. Requirements for the Appeal.—[1]Each such appeal which shall be taken by a board of school directors shall be signed by its president and secretary; each appeal taken by the freeholders, as above provided, shall be signed by at least thirty-five (35) of the appeallants. Each such appeal shall be accompanied by an affidavit that the appeal is not taken for purposes of delay. In appeals by thirty-five (35) or more freeholders, the affidavit shall be taken by at least ten (10) of the appellants; in appeals by a board of school directors the affidavit shall be taken by the president.

Each such appeal shall be filed with the prothonotary of the proper court, and shall act as a supersedeas. Within ten (10) days after the filing of such an appeal, the appellants shall serve notice of the appeal on each board of school directors affected by the annexation and on each person who was a party to the proceedings conducted before the State Council of Education. Such service may be made by mail addressed to the president or secretary of such board of school directors and to each individual, or by personal service on their counsel.

Within fifteen (15) days after the filing of such an appeal, unless a longer time shall be specially allowed by the court, the appellants shall file with the prothonotary of such court a plot or map of the territory to be affected, a description of existing educational facilities of that area, and a specification of the grounds for the objection to or the support of the annexation. The appellants shall immediately serve a copy thereof upon each board of school directors, and shall on demand, furnish a copy thereof to every other party who shall enter an appearance in the proceedings.

The appellants shall also file with such court, a certified copy of the final order of the State Council of Education, and of the one or more final resolutions which shall have been adopted to effect such annexation. Such final order and the one or more final resolutions shall constitute part of the record upon the appeal.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 415 of this draft.

Section 429. Intervention.—[1]At any time prior to the hearing by the court, each party who shall have been a party to the proceedings conducted by the State Council of Education may, as a matter of course, intervene in the appeal by the filing of an order of intervention with the prothonotary of the court. Each such order of intervention shall, if opposed to the annexation, be accompanied by a specificat on of the grounds for the objections, together with any other relevant facts; if in favor of the annexation, it shall be accompanied by a statement of the advantages to accrue from the proposed annexation, together with any other relevant facts.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 415 of this draft.

Section 430. Hearing by the Court.—[1]Upon the filing of an appeal from the order of the State Council of Education, the court in which such appeal shall have been filed shall fix a day for a hearing, not less than fifteen (15) nor more than forty-five (45) days after such appeal shall have been filed. Notice of such hearing shall be given to all parties interested, in such manner as the court shall direct. On such hearing, it shall be the duty of the court to determine on its own findings whether or not the proposed annexation will subserve the best interests of the school children, the residents, and the taxpayers of the areas covered by the proposed annexation, and to make an order approving or refusing the annexation for school purposes. The prothonotary of the court shall send a certified copy of the order to the Department.

If no appeal, acting as a supersedeas, shall be taken as herein provided from any such order approving the annexation, the annexation shall, except as herein otherwise provided,[2] become effective upon the beginning of the next school year of the enlarged or new school district.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 415 of this draft.

Section 431. Appeal to the Supreme Court.—[1]Any party to the proceedings may appeal from such final order or decree to the Supreme Court on matters of law; of the thirty-five (35) freeholders who have been a party to the proceedings before the court of common pleas, as herein provided, any twenty-five (25) or more may appeal to the Supreme Court. Such appeal shall be taken and prosecuted in the same manner and form and with the same effect as is provided in other cases of appeal to the Supreme Court. The record, which shall be certified to the Supreme Court, shall contain all that was before the court of common pleas and the final order or decree of such court. Such appeal shall act as a supersedeas upon the filing of a bond for costs on the appeal in such amount as shall be fixed by any judge of the court of common pleas or of the Supreme Court.

If the judgment of the Supreme Court shall be in favor of the annexation for school purposes, such annexation shall, except as herein otherwise provided,[2] become effective upon the beginning of the next school year of the enlarged or new school district.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 415 of this draft.
2. See Sections 838 and 839 of this draft.

Section 432. Consolidation of Municipal Subdivisions for School Purposes.—[1]When two (2) adjacent boroughs, incorporated towns, or townships, whether they shall be within the same or different school districts, shall desire to consolidate for school purposes into one (1) district which shall have a population of ten thousand (10,000) or more, each of such municipal subdivisions shall present a petition for such consolidation to the State Council of Education. The petition of each such subdivision shall be signed by at least fifty (50) of its freeholders and shall state that, in the opinion of the petitioners, the proposed consolidation would benefit the pupils and taxpayers of the affected area. Within forty-five (45) days after the receipt of the petition from each of such subdivisions, the State Council of Education shall, after having held any hearings which it may deem necessary, consider the request and make an order refusing or permitting the consolidation. If the State Council of Education shall approve the consolidation, it shall issue its certificate, to that effect, and shall forward such certificate together with certified copies of the petitions to the county commissioners of the county in which each of such municipal subdivisions shall be located.

Note:

1. This is a new section. The purpose of this section and the one following is to enable contiguous municipal subdivisions to unite and form one (1) school district. It will permit adjacent boroughs and other subdivisions, having a community of interest, to unite for school purposes and thus to withdraw from the remainder of the one (1) or more districts in which they shall have been located.

Section 433. Election to Effect Consolidation.—[1]Upon the receipt of such certificate and certified petitions, the county commissioners shall submit to the electors of the respective subdivisions, at the next general municipal or primary election, the question whether or not such consolidation shall be made. Such question shall be submitted in the form and manner provided by the general election laws of this Commonwealth for the submission of similar questions. The election officers shall file a certified return of the election with the clerk of quarter sessions of the proper county, and shall send such a return to the Department. If a majority of the voters of each of such municipal subdivisions, voting at such election or elections, shall be in favor of the consolidation, as shown by the return of the election, the Department shall forthwith ascertain the class to which the new district shall belong by reference to the last preceding decennial United States census, and shall issue a certificate to the board of school directors of the one (1) or more school districts which will be affected by the consolidation, declaring that the two (2) municipal subdivisions shall constitute a separate school district. Each such certificate shall also state the class to which the new district shall belong. Beginning with the next school year after the issuance of this certificate, such district shall, except as herein otherwise provided, become a school district of the class so determined.

Note:

1. This is a new section. See note to Section 432 of this draft.

Section 434. Restrictions Upon Boards of Annexed Districts.—[1]Where, under the provisions of any act of assembly an election shall be held for and against the annexation of territory comprising a school district of the second, third or fourth class to a city comprising a separate school district, and, it shall be determined by the official count that a majority of the votes have been cast in favor of such annexation, and the results of the election shall have been certified to the court of quarter sessions having jurisdiction of the proceedings, the board of school directors of the annexed school district shall not thereafter make any change in text books, or adopt additional text books, or contract for any new school sites, or let any contract for the erection, enlargement, alteration, equipment, or furnishing of any new school site, or let any contract for the erection, enlargement, alteration, equipment or furnishing of any school building, without the approval of the board of school directors of the school district of the annexing city.

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of Section 128 (a) of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 102.

Section 435. District to Which Consolidated Subdivisions Shall Belong.—[1]—When two or more municipal subdivisions, which shall be situated in two (2) or more school districts shall be consolidated and none of such subdivisions prior to the consolidation constituted a separate school district and the consolidated subdivision does not, under the provisions of this act, constitute a separate school district, the court having jurisdiction of the proceedings shall make an order stating to which one of the affected school districts the consolidated subdivision shall belong.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
It is designed to meet the case where small portions of two (2) school districts will be consolidated.

Section 436. Budget and Taxes upon Annexation, Consolidation, or Creation of a New District.—[1]When any consolidation or annexation for school or municipal purposes shall be completed, and when a new school district shall be formed by the creation of a new city or of a borough, incorporated town, or township, having a population of ten thousand (10,000) or more, or by a borough's, incorporated town's, or township's having attained a population of ten thousand (10,000) or more, the board of school directors of the enlarged or new school district shall, prior to the effective date of such consolidation, annexation or new school district, prepare the budget and levy and assess the taxes for the enlarged or new school district for the first school year in which such changes shall be in effect, in the manner herein provided for other school districts of that class.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
The purpose of this section is to enable a new school district to prepare its budget and levy its taxes as do other school districts of the same class. Section 814 of this draft provides that in school districts of the second, third, and fourth classes school taxes shall be levied prior to the first day of June of each year. Section 805 of this draft provides that in school districts of the first class, school taxes shall be levied between the first Monday of November and the first Monday of December.
Sections 838 and 839 of this draft extend the time within which such acts may be performed in the event that the final order creating the new or enlarged district was not entered long enough before the opening of the school year.

D. Territory, Property and Indebtedness of Former Districts

Section 437. Territory, Property and Indebtedness of Former Districts Coterminous with New Districts.—[1]When the territory of a school district which shall be dissolved on the effective date of this act is coterminous with an area which, by the provisions of this act, is constituted a separate school district, the territory of such former school district shall become a part of and its property shall belong to the new district; such property shall remain subject to the same trusts, conditions, and liabilities which were legally applicable thereto. All rights of creditors and other persons against such former district shall be reserved against the new district. All debts and taxes owing to such former district and all moneys in its treasury shall be paid to the treasurer of the new district.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It provides that all property and indebtedness of districts, the boundaries of which remain unchanged, shall be unaffected.

Section 438. Property of Former Districts Not Coterminous with New Districts.—[1]All of the territory, rights, and property of a district dissolved, except for the payment of its indebtedness, on the effective date of this act, which shall have had all of its territory located within the boundaries of a territory which shall have become a new district on such effective date, shall belong to such new district; such property shall remain subject to the same trusts, conditions, and liabilities which were legally applicable thereto.

Where the territory of a district, dissolved except for the payment of its indebtedness on the effective date of this act, shall have had its territory located within the territory covered by two (2) or more new districts created on such effective date, the rights and property of such former district shall be apportioned among such new districts in the manner herein provided for the apportionment of property and indebtedness where districts are modified subsequently to the effective date of this act.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It provides for the disposition of the property of former districts which were not coterminous with districts which would be formed under the provisions of this draft.
Sections 439, 440 and 441 of this draft provide for the liquidation of the indebtedness of these districts.

Section 439. Indebtedness and Obligations of Former Districts.—[1]Each school district, created on the effective date of this act, which is not coterminous with the territory of a district which existed prior to such date, shall continue the corporate entity of the one (1) or more school districts which existed prior to such date and were composed of territory which has become part of such new school district. Such continuation of the former district or districts shall be only for the purpose of performing the obligations and paying the indebtedness of such former one (1) or more districts or parts thereof. For this purpose, the board of school directors of such new district shall constitute the board of each of such one (1) or more former districts shall have become a part of two (2) or more such new districts, the proportion of the total indebtedness and obligations of each such former district which shall be paid or performed by each portion of such former district which shall have become a part of a new district, shall be determined as provided herein for the apportionment of indebtedness when districts shall be modified subsequently to the effective date of this act.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It has been written in order that districts existing under the Act of 1911, which would be joined with other districts into larger districts will not be compelled to aid in the payment of the indebtedness of the other districts. Under the provisions of this draft, the taxpayers of each district, now existing under the Act of 1911, will pay their own indebtedness and no other.
An alternative method of adjusting this indebtedness would have been to have the new district assume all the indebtedness of the former districts. The former method has, however, been adopted as being more equitable.

Section 440. Powers and Duties of Boards.—[1]Each board of school directors which shall be vested with the power and charged with the duty of paying the indebtedness and performing the obligations of the whole or a portion of one (1) or more districts which existed on the day preceding the effective date of this act, shall, in the levying of the taxes, the issuance of bonds, the creation or continuance of a sinking fund, and any other acts necessary for the payment of such indebtedness and the performance of such obligations, possess the same powers, be under the same duties, and be subject to the same restrictions as shall be applicable to such board in the exercise of its functions relating to the new district.

Note:

1. This is a new section. The purpose of this section is to confer upon the boards of the new districts sufficient power to enable them to pay the indebtedness and perform the obligations of the former districts.

Section 441. Additional Tax Levies.—[1]Each such board shall provide for the liquidation of the indebtedness and the performance of the obligations of each such prior districts or parts thereof by the levying of an additional tax on each such portion of the new district; such additional tax shall be added to and collected with the annual general tax levy of the new district. For each such portion of the new district, the board shall fix the amount of the additional levy at the number of mills which will enable the payment of the indebtedness of such prior district or part thereof, within the time required by law or by any agreement under which such indebtedness shall have been incurred.

Note:

1. This is a new section. See note to Sections 438 and 439 of this draft.

E. Territory, Property and Indebtedness upon Annexation, Consolidation, or Dissolution

Section 442. Annexation or Consolidation of Districts.—[1]When, in any proceeding arising subsequently to the effective date of the act, any two (2) or more school districts shall be consolidated or annexed for municipal or school purposes, as herein provided, all the debts and obligations of the several districts shall become the debts and obligations of the consolidated school district, unless otherwise provided by an agreement in writing approved by a majority vote of each board of school directors. All rights of creditors against any of the school districts shall be preserved against the new school district. All property heretofore vested in the several districts shall become vested in the new school district, but shall remain subject to the same trusts, conditions and liabilities which were previously applicable thereto. All debts and taxes owing to the school districts, uncollected in the several districts, and all moneys in the treasuries of the several districts, shall be paid to the treasurer of the new district.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 130 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 84.

Section 443. Former Districts Located Wholly within New Districts.—[1]When a school district shall be dissolved for any cause or in any proceeding arising subsequently to the effective date of this act, and its territory shall have been bounded on all sides by one (1) school district, the territory of such district which shall be dissolved shall, with the beginning of the next school year, belong to the district which shall thus have surrounded it; when a district shall thus be dissolved, and shall not have been bounded on all sides by one (1) other school district, the State Council of Education shall, within thirty (30) days, thereafter, designate an adjacent school district to which the territory of such district shall, with the beginning of the next school year belong.

Note:

1. This is a new section; its purpose is to provide for the disposition of the territory of a district which shall be dissolved on a date subsequent to the effective date of this draft. As to to the property and indebtedness of such districts, see the following section of this draft.

Section 444. Property and Indebtedness of Districts Which Become a Part of Another District.—[1]When a school district shall be dissolved for any cause or in any proceedings arising subsequently to the effective date of this act, and all of its territory shall become a part of another district, the property of the district which shall be dissolved shall belong to such other district but shall remain subject to the same trusts, conditions and liabilities which were legally applicable thereto. All rights of creditors and other persons against such former district shall be reserved against the enlarged district. All debts and taxes which shall be owing to the former district and all moneys in its treasury shall be paid to the treasurer of the enlarged district.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It provides for the disposition of the property and indebtedness of districts, dissolved subsequently to the effective date of this draft, which shall have been located wholly within another district.

Section 445. Apportionment of Property and Indebtedness When Districts Are Subsequently Modified.—[1]Where, for any cause or in any proceedings arising subsequently to the effective date of this act, a portion of the territory of a school district shall become part of another district, or where, after such date, a new district shall be formed from a portion of one (1) or more school districts, or where the boundary lines of any district shall be changed by the changing of the boundary lines of any city, borough, incorporated town, township, county, or school district then, in any such case, the boards of school directors of the school district to which land has been annexed, or which is newly created, and the boards of directors of the district or districts from which land has been taken, shall make a just and proper adjustment and apportionment of all school property, real and personal, including funds and unpaid taxes, as well as indebtedness and obligations, if any, to and among such school districts. Such adjustment and apportionment shall be made as of the date of and within one year after, the date on which such change became effective.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 110 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1929, P. L. 1621, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 141. The last sentence of Section 110 has been omitted however, as its contents are covered in Section 444 of this draft.

Section 446. Method of Adjustment.—[1]In making such adjustment and apportionment of property, obligations and indebtedness, the boards of school directors shall take into consideration the amount and assessed value of the land which shall have been lost by any district or districts as compared with the amount and assessed value of the remainder of the land in that district or districts from which the land was taken; they shall also take into consideration the value of school grounds, buildings, furniture, equipment and other school property which have been or will be acquired by any school district due to such changes in boundaries. The assessed value of the property shall be determined by reference to the assessment thereof for county purposes in effect on the date on which the change in boundaries is completed.

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of all of Section 111 of the School Law of 1911. 24 PS Sec. 142, with the exception of the last sentence of Section 111, which has been incorporated in Section 445 of this draft; the title of the new section being "Apportionment of Property and Indebtedness when Districts Are Modified." Section 111 of the School Law of 1911, supra, provided:

"In making such adjustment * * *, the amount and assessed value of land acquired by or taken from such districts, as compared with the amount and assessed value of the other land in the districts, as well as the value of the other land in the districts, as well as the value of the school grounds, together with the buildings thereon, and the furniture and equipment therein, and other school property in such districts, shall be taken into consideration in making such adjustments * * *."

The meaning of this section as quoted is obscure. For this reason the section has been rewritten.

The last sentence of this section is new. The School Law of 1911 contained no such provision. It had been determined in Patton Township School District, 67 Pitts. 521, that the assessed value on the date of the institution of the proceedings value at the time of the completion of the annexation or of should be used. This does not seem as desirable as the assessed the procedure reulting in the change in boundaries for the reason that until the boundaries are finally changed, the school districts remain as originally constituted. There may frequently be long intervals between the beginning of the proceedings and their termination. Values may have varied appreciably during these intervals.

Section 111 of the School Law of 1911, supra, contained a provision requiring the school directors to act within one year. This has been transferred to Section 445 of this draft, the title of which section is "Apportionment of Property and Indebtedness when Districts Are Modified."

Section 447. Appointment of Commissioners. — [1]If such boards of school directors cannot make an amicable apportionment and adjustment of their property, obligations, and indebtedness, in compliance with this act, before or during the first school year beginning after any such change in boundary lines or creation of a new district, any one of such board of school directors may, at any time within the second school year, present its proper petition for an apportionment and adjustment to the court of common pleas of the county in which the school districts concerned are located, or where the districts are situated in two or more counties, to the court of common pleas of the county in which the largest part of the area annexed to or taken from any district or districts is situated. Upon receipt of such a petition, the court shall appoint three disinterested commissioners, who, after a hearing, due notice of which shall be given to the several districts interested as the court may direct, shall make a report to the court. In this report the commissioners shall make an apportionment and adjustment, according to the provisions of this act, of all school property, obligations, and indebtedness, if any, to and among the several school districts from which or to which land has been taken or added, or which have been newly created. The report shall state the amount, if any, that shall be due and payable from one district to another, the amount of indebtedness and obligations, if any, that shall be assumed by any district, and the facts and findings upon which the apportionment and adjustment is based.

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of the first half of Section 112 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1917, P. L. 1134 and 1927, P. L. 685, 24 PS Sec. 143.

Section 112 of the School Law of 1911 provides that a petition for an apportionment should be presented to the court of the county in which the district petitioning was located. The change covers those cases where the districts are located in more than one county. The latter half of Section 112 of the School Law of 1911, supra, dealt with cases where boundary lines had been changed prior to the 1927 amendment, and with the procedure where districts refused to petition the court. The former of these subjects is obsolete and has, therefore, been omitted. The latter has been made a separate section. See Section 450 of this draft.

Section 448. Confirmation of Report; Compensation of Commissioners; Costs.—[1]The commissioners shall give to the several school districts interested at least five days' notice of the time when their report will be filed in the court of common pleas, and unless exceptions to the report, are filed by any district interested within thirty days after its filing, the report shall be confirmed absolutely by the court. Any sum awarded by the report to any school district shall be a legal and valid claim in its favor against the school district charged; the amount of indebtedness and obligations, if any, apportioned to any school district shall be a legal and valid claim against the district charged therewith. After the confirmation of the report, the claim or indebtedness which shall have been charged against any school district may be collected in the same manner as a judgment is collected against a school district. The commissioners shall be allowed three dollars ($3.00) per day for each day actually spent by them in the performance of their duties, together with their actual necessary expenses. All costs and expenses of such proceedings shall be apportioned by the court, to and among the several school districts, as it shall deem proper.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 113 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 144.

Section 449. Exceptions to Commissioners' Report.—[1]If exceptions shall be filed to the report of the commissioners, the court shall, after holding any hearing it may deem necessary, make a final order or decree, from which any party to the proceedings may take an appeal on questions of law to the Superior or Supreme Court.

Such appeal shall be taken and prosecuted in the same manner and form and with the same effect as is provided in other cases of appeal to such courts. The record which shall be certified to the appellate court shall contain the final order of, and all that was before, the court of common pleas. Such an appeal shall act as a supersedeas upon the filing of a bond in such amount as shall be fixed by any judge of the court of common pleas of the appellate court.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 114 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 145.

The only change is in the provision for an appeal from the order of the court. Section 114 of the School Law of 1911, supra, provides that the order of the court shall be final and conclusive. The change has been made because in the apportionment of school property and indebtedness, important questions arise, large sums are involved and there is no reason to restrict the normal use of the courts in reaching a final and legal settlement of school accounts.

Section 450. Procedure Upon Refusal of Boards of School Directors to Make an Apportionment and Adjustment.—[1]If the boards of school directors of such school districts shall neglect or refuse, for a period of two (2) years as herein provided, to petition the court for the appointment of commissioners to secure an apportionment and adjustment of property, obligations, and indebtedness as herein provided, any of such school districts or any ten (10) or more freeholders of any such district may file a bill in equity, at any time within six (6) years from the date of the change in boundaries, in the name of such school district or for the use of such school district, against the other school district or districts. The bill or bills shall be filed in the court of common pleas of any county in which any part of an affected school district shall be situated, sitting in equity; they shall pray for an apportionment and adjustment, and shall set forth the facts upon which any claims, arising out of an apportionment and adjustment, are based. The bill may be served on any board of school directors outside the county without special order of the court. The court shall proceed with such case in accordance with the equity rules and shall make a decree of dismissal or of adjustment and apportionment in accordance with the provisions of this act, after due hearing, subject to the further right of appeal as provided herein, for the taking of an appeal from an order of a court of common pleas relating to exceptions to the commissioners' report.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the latter half of Section 112 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1917, P. L. 1134 and the Act of 1927, P. L. 685, 24 PS Sec. 143.

The portion of Section 112 of the School Law of 1911, as amended, which dealth with the cases where no commissioners had been appointed prior to the 1927 amendment and which is set forth in the last sentence of the section is now obsolete and has, therefore, been omitted from this section of the draft.

F. General Provisions

Section 451. Bodies Corporate.—[1]The several school districts in this Commonwealth, established by this act, shall be and hereby are vested, as bodies corporate, with all necessary powers to enable them to carry out the provisions of this act. Each such district shall be known as the "School District of . . ."

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 119 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 30.

Section 452. Right to Sue and Be Sued.—[1]Each School district in this Commonwealth shall have the right to sue and be sued in its corporate name. Any legal process against any school district shall be served on the president or secretary of its board of school directors.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 123 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 34.

Section 453. Collection of Judgments against School Districts.—[1]Each judgment which shall be obtained against any school district and which shall not be paid as required, may be collected as follows, and not otherwise:

The plaintiff in any such judgment shall petition the court of common pleas in which such judgment was obtained, or in which any transcript of a judgment obtained against the school district before any magistrate, alderman, or justice of the peace, is filed, for the issuance of a writ in the nature of a mandamus execution. Upon receipt of such petition, the court shall issue such writ, directed to the directors and treasurer of the school district against which such judgment was obtained, commanding them to pay the amount of such judgment together with interest and costs out of any unappropriated funds of such school district, and in case there be no unappropriated funds of such school district, then out of the first funds which shall be received by the school district. The court may enforce obedience to such writ by attachment on proper cause being shown.

Note:

1. This is Section 514 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 365.

Section 454. Corporate Seal.—[1]Each school district in this Commonwealth shall, by a majority vote of the members of the board of school directors of such district, adopt a corporate seal for use of the district; the seal shall have engraved thereon the following: "School District of ....." as the case may be, and such other inscription or design as the board of school directors may direct.

Note:

1. This Section is a substitute for Section 124 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 35. It makes compulsory the adoption of a corporate seal. Section 124 of the School Law of 1911, supra, made the adoption optional.

Section 455. Competency of Witnesses.—[1]No person, by reason of being a taxpayer or resident of any school district in this Commonwealth, shall be incompetent to testify in any suit or action to which such school district is a party.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 125 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 36.

Section 456. Gifts, Devises and Endowments.—[1]It shall be lawful for any school district to receive and hold any devise, bequest, grant, endowment, gift or donation of any propery real, personal or mixed which shall be made to such school district for any purposes pertaining to the schools of the district, or the education of the residents thereof, and which the board of school directors of the school district may see proper to accept. Such devise, bequest, grant, endowment, gift or donation shall be administered by and under the direction of the board of school directors of the district to which it shall have been made, subject to all of the conditions thereto annexed.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the first sentence of Section 136 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 37.

The latter portion of Section 126 of the School Law of 1911, supra, relates to gifts, only the income of which may be used by the school district, and has been placed in a separate section of this draft. See Section 457.

Section 457. Gifts, Devises and Endowments Given in Trust or for Use of Income Only.—[1]The board of school directors in each school district shall promptly invest and keep invested as constantly as possible and to the best advantage, any devises, bequests, grants, endowments, gifts or donations and the proceeds thereof which shall have been given in trust or for the use of income only. Such investment or investments shall be made only in securities which are legal investments for trust funds in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. It shall be the duty of the board of school directors in such district to keep an accurate account of all such devises, bequests, grants, endowments, gifts and donations, the income arising therefrom, the proceeds thereof, and expenses of administering them. At the end of each fiscal year, such board of school directors shall render a detailed statement of such devise, bequest, grant, endowment, gift and donation which shall be held and possessed by the school district and the proceeds and investments which shall have been made with them, the income arising from them, the expenses of administration, and the purposes to which the income arising therefrom has been applied; such statement shall be audited as hereinafter provided for the auditing of school finances.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of all but the first sentence of Section 126 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 37. In line 5, the phrase "which shall have been given in trust or for the use of income only" has been added; wihtout such addition, the section would apply to all gifts, bequests, etc., but the manner in which the investments are to be made and the requirements as to the administration of the fund indicate that this portion of the section was to apply only to gifts and bequests of which only the income was to be used by the school district.

Section 126, supra, requires that all such investments be first approved by the president judge of the court of common pleas. This provision has been deleted for the limitation on that type of investment provides sufficient security.

Section 458. Title to School Property.—[1]Any deed for school property, which shall be properly executed and delivered in the name of any school district as established by this act, shall convey to the grantee the entire interest of the grantor in such property was conveyed to or acquired by, or is held by, the school district conveying the same.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 122 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 33.

ARTICLE V.

SCHOOL DIRECTORS

A. Composition of Boards

Section 500. Eligibility of School Directors.—[1]Any citizen of this Commonwealth who shall have a good moral character, be twenty-one (21) years of ago or upwards, and shall have been a resident of the school district for at least one (1) year prior to the date of his election or appointment, shall, with the following exceptions, be eligible to the office of school director therein.

(a) No person who shall hold the office of mayor, chief burgess, county commissioner, district attorney, county, city, borough or township treasurer, municipal councilman,[2] township commissioner, road supervisor, county superintendent, assistant county superintendent, tax collector, assessor, assistant assessor, controller, auditor, or contable, shall be eligible as a school director.

(b) No district superintendent, assistant district superintendent, supervisor, teacher, or employe of any school district shall be eligible as a school director in the district where he shall be employed.

(c) No person who shall have held any office of trust or profit under the laws of the United States or of this Commonwealth, or in any city, county, borough, incorporated town or township, and shall have been removed therefrom for any malfeasance in office shall be eligible as a school director.

(d) No person who shall have been removed from the office of school director under any of the provisions of this act shall be eligible to serve as a school director for a period of five (5) years thereafter.[3] For the purposes of applying this subsection, a finding in a proceeding for his removal that a director has been guilty of acts for which he would have been removed from office except for the expiration of his term or his resignation in the meantime, shall be equivalent to actual removal.

Note:

1. The first two paragraphs of this section are a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 207 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1919, P. L. 517, Section 1; 1921, P. L. 1043, Section 1; 1923, P. L. 181, Section 1; and 1929, P. L. 97, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 168.

The third paragraph is a restatement of the subject-mater of Section 208 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 169.

2. In Subsection (a) the phrase "municipal councilman", has been substituted for the phrase "city councilman" in order to include councilmen of boroughs and incorporated towns.

3. The first sentence of paragraph (d) is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 218 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 181. The remainder of the paragraph has been added to clarify the point as to whether a school director who is found guilty of a misconduct in office in proceedings instituted for his removal is ineligible when, pending the termination of the proceedings, the director is re-elected. In Throop Borough School Directors, 298 Pa. 453, it was held that the court in such a case had power to find the director guilty though he had been re-elected, pending the final determination of the case. The court held that it had no power to make an order of removal, and that the eligibility as to the remainder of the new term could be tested only by quo warranto proceedings.

Such proceedings were subsequently instituted and the school directors of that school district were removed: Commonwealth v. Ollendick, 33 Lack. J. 29.

In Section 522 of this draft, a new provision has been inserted to vest power in the court to make an order of removal under a situation such as existed in the Throop Borough Case without necessitating recourse to quo warranto proceedings.

Section 501. Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, there shall be a board of school directors composed of fifteen (15) members. In each such district, the judges of the courts of common pleas of the county in which such school district, or the greater part thereof is situated, shall, in October one thousand nine hundred thirty-three, and biennially thereafter, appoint five (5) members for a term of six (6) years. Their terms of office shall begin on the second Monday of November next following their appointment.

Note:

1. This sectin is based on Section 202 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 162.

Section 202 of the School Law of 1911, supra, contained a schedule of the terms of office of the first school board. This has been omitted because this section of the draft merely continues the old schedule.

Section 202 of the School Law of 1911, supra, based its schedule upon the year 1911. This has been changed to 1933 in order to bring the schedule up to date.

Section 502. Districts of the Second, Third and Fourth Classes.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, there shall be a board of school directors composed of nine (9) members elected at large.

1. This is a new section.

Under the School Law of 1911 there is a board composed of nine (9) members in each school district of the second class, a board of seven (7) members in each district of the third class, and a board of five (5) members in each district of the fourth class.

Inasmuch as under the new system, introduced by this draft, the area of many districts will be greatly increased, the number of members on the boards of all second, third and fourth class districts has been placed at nine (9). This will permit the election of a board which is more representative of the district.

Section 503. Terms of Present School Directors.—[1]In each school district which is coterminous with the territory of a school district which existed on the day preceding the effective date of this act, the school directors who were in office in such former district on the day preceding such effective date shall serve as school directors of the new district until the termination of the terms for which they were elected or appointed. The terms of office of all other school directors shall expire on the effective date of this act.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
For each district which is coterminous with a district which existed prior to the effective date of this proposed act, it is desirable to have the present board continue to manage the affairs of the district. Where there has been a change in boundary lines, the selection of a new board is necessary.

Section 504. Election in One Thousand Nine Hundred Thirty-three in Districts of the Second Class.—[1]In each school district which is coterminous with the territory of a school district which on the day preceding the effective date of this act was a school district of the second class, the electors of such new district shall elect at the municipal election which shall be held in November, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three, three (3) persons as school directors for terms of six (6) years; such terms of office shall begin on the first Monday of December, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
Inasmuch as the number on the board in school districts of the second class is the same as in former districts of the second class, this section merely continues the regular election of directors in such districts.

Section 505. Election in One Thousand Nine Hundred Thirty-three in Districts of the Third Class.—[1]In each school district which is coterminous with the territory of a school district which on the day preceding the effective date of this act was a school district of the third class, the electors of such new district shall elect, at the municipal election which shall be held in November, one thousand nine hunrded thirty-three, three (3) persons as school directors for terms of six (6) years, and one (1) person as a school director for a term of four (4) years; such terms shall begin on the first Monday of December, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
Under the present schedule as set forth in Section 204 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 164, two (2) directors would be elected in 1933, three (3) in 1935, two (2) in 1937, and two (2) in 1939. In order to bring this number to nine (9), with three (3) to be elected every two (2) years, it has been necessary to enact the above section.

Section 506. Election in One Thousand Nine Hundred Thirty-three in Districts of the Fourth Class.—[1]In each school district which is coterminous with the territory of a school district which on the day preceding the effective date of this act was a school district of the fourth class, the electors of such new district shall elect, at the municipal election which shall be held in November, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three, three (3) persons as school directors for terms of six (6) years, two (2) for terms of two (2) years, and one (1) for a term of four (4) years; such terms shall begin on the first Monday of December, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three.

Note:

1. This is a new section. See notes to Sections 504 and 505 of this draft.

Section 507. Appointment and Election of Directors in New Districts.—[1]For each school district which is not coterminous with the territory of a school district which existed on the day preceding the effective date of this act, the court of common pleas of the county in which such school district is located, shall appoint as soon as practicable, a board of school directors of nine (9) members. The board thus appointed shall assume office on the first Monday of uly, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three, or if it shall not have been appointed on or before such date, on the date on which the board shall be appointed; such board shall serve until the first Monday of December, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three. At the municipal election which shall be held in November, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three, the electors of such new school district shall elect three (3) persons as directors for terms of two (2) years, three (3) for terms of four (4) years, and three (3) for terms of six 6) years. The terms of such persons shall being on the first Monday of December, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
In Section 8 of this draft, it is provided that this proposed act shall become effective, except as to Secions 401, 402, and 506, on the first Monday of July, 1933.
That section also provides that this Section 506 shall become effective upon the approval of this proposed act by the Governor. Between such date and the effective date for the act, generally, the courts may appoint the new boards.

Section 508. Election of Directors in Districts of the Secon, Third and Fourth Classes.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, the electors of such districts shall elect at the municipal election which shall be held in November, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five, and biennially thereafter, three (3) persons as school directors for terms of six (6) years. The terms of office of such directors shall begin on the first Monday of December following their election.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
For all municipal elections occurring after 1933, all districts of the second, third and fourth classes shall elect the same number of directors.

Section 509. Change in Classification; Directors in Districts Entering the First Class.—[1]When any school district, due to an increase in population or for any other cause, shall besome a school district of the first class, the judges of the courts of common pleas shall appoint, in the manner herein provided for the appointment of school directors in new school districts of the first class, a sufficient number of directors to bring the board to the number required in school districts of the first class. As the terms of the members of the board expire, the court shall appoint their successors as is herein provided for the apopintment of school directors in school districts of the first class. In making the appointments provided for in this section, the court shall so arrange the terms of the appointees that at the earliest possible date, the number of school directors to be appointed, the time of their appointment and the terms of their office shall be the same as is provided in this act for other school districts of the first class.

Note:

1. This section replaces the portion of Section 212 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 555, Section 2; 1921, P. L. 1023, Section 5; 1927, P. L. 680; 1931. P. L. 243; Section 4; 24 PS Sec. 173, which relates to school districts of the first class. Section 212 of the School Law of 1911, supra, provides that an entirely new board should be appointed. It is more logical to permit the board which has been elected by the residents of the district to complete its term and to have only the necessary additional members appointed by the court. The old members will be able to be of great aid to the new members during the period of transition.

Section 510. Appointment of Directors in Newly Created Districts of the First Class.—[1]When a new school district of the first class shall be formed by the creation of a new city, or borough, incorporated town, or township, the court of common pleas wherein such district or the greater part inarea thereof is located, shall immediately after the formation of the new municipal subdivision, appoint a board of fifteen (15) school directors for the following terms of office: five (5) for a term of two (2) years, five (5) for a term of four (4) years, and five (5) for a term of six (6) years. Their terms of office shall continue until the second Monday of November, subsequent to the completion of the number of calendar years for which they were appointed. If, however, such second Monday of November shall fall in an even numbered year, the terms of office of each member of the first board of the new school district of the first class shall be shortened one (1) year.

Note:

1. This is a substitute for Section 211 of the School Law of 1911, 24 S Sec. 172.
It concerns only districts of the first class. Section 211 of the School Law of 1911, supra, applied to all districts; it provides that the terms of the members of the new board should be the same as those of directors who went into office when the Act of 1911 became effective, that is in accordance with the schedule set forth in Section 202 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 162. Inasmuch as this act does not have a schedule corresponding to that of Section 202 of the School Law of 1911, supra, it is necessary to set forth here the specific terms.
The proviso is to bring the terms of office into accord with the provisions of Section 501 of this draft.

Section 511. Appointment and Election of Directors in Newly Created Districts of the Second, Third and Fourth

Classes.—[1]When a new school district of the second, third or fourth class shall be formed by the creation of a new city, or of a borough, incorporated town, or township, having a population of ten thousand (10,000) or more, or by a borough's incorporated town's, or township's, having attained a population of ten thousand (10,000) or more, as herein provided, the court of common pleas of the county in which such district, or the greater part thereof in area shall be located shall, immediately after the making of the decree creating such municipal subdivision or the issuance of the certificate stating that the borough, incorporated town, or township has attained the population of ten thousand (10,000), appoint a board of school directors of nine (9) members. The fact district from which such new district shall be formed shall that a person shall, at that time, be a school director of a not prevent his being appointed and elected a member of the new board. Each such person shall, however, on receiving any such appointment, resign from the board of school directors of the original district. The board, thus appointed, shall serve until the first Monday of December next following the first municipal election occurring more than thirty (30) days after the formation of the new district.

At the first municipal election occurring more than thirty (30) days subseuqent to the formation of such new district, three (3) persons shall be elected as school directors for terms of two (2) years, three (3) for terms of four (4) years, and three (3) for terms of six (6) years. The terms of office of the person so elected shall begin on the first Monday of December following such election.

At all subsequent municipal elections, the directors shall be elected as provided herein.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
Sections 210 and 211 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 171-172 provide for the appointment and election of school directors in new school districts.
Section 210, supra, contained a clause which gave the State Council of Education a veto power as to the creation of any fourth class school district. Under the school system of this act there will no longer be the necessity for such a check.

Section 512. School Directors in District Formed by the Annexation or Consolidation of Districts of the Same Class.—[1]When, in any proceeding arising subsequently to the effective date of this act, two (2) or more school districts, all being of the same class, are consolidated or annexed, for municipal or school purposes, the school directors then in office in each such school district shall become school directors of the consolidated school district and shall hold office during the respective terms for which they were elected.

Note:

1. This section and the four sections immediately following are new sections. They are substitutes for Section 212 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 555, Section 2; 1921, P. L. 1023, Section 5; 1927, P. L. 680; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 4; 24 PS Sec. 173.
Section 212 of the Schol Law of 1911, supra, provided that where territory comprising a separate school district is annexed to a city, borough, incorporated town or township, the terms of office of all school directors of the annexed territory, with the exception of the president and vice-president, should expire at the beginning of the first school year after the annexation. When two or more school districts were consolidated into a union school district or due to the consolidation of boroughs, all directors were to hold office for the remainder of their terms.
This new section and the four sections immediately following provide that when the school districts which have been consolidated or annexed are of the same class, all such directors shall continue in office until the en dof their respective terms. When, however, small school districts shall be consolidated or annexed with larger school districts of another class, only the president and vice-president of the smaller districts shall remain in office. If such an elimination of some of the members was not required, we might easily encounter a situation where due to the consolidation of several small school districts of the fourth class with a school district of the second or third class the members from the small school districts, having only a fraction of the total population of the new consolidated school district, would have a majority of the members of the board of school directors.

Section 513. School Directors of a District Consolidated or Annexed with Another District of a Higher Class.—[1]When, in any proceeding arising subsequently to the effective date of this act, any school district shall be consolidated or annexed, for municipal or school purposes, with one or more school districts, any one of which shall belong to a class of school districts, based upon a greater population than such school district, the terms of office of all of the school directors of such school district except the president and vice-president shall expire on the date on which such consolidation or annexation shall become effective. The president and vice-president of such school district shall become school directors of the new school district and shall hold office during the respective terms for which they were elected.

Note:

1. See note to Section 511.

Section 514. Directors of a District Consolidated with Other School Districts None of Which Are of a Higher Class.—[1]When, in any proceeding arising subsequently to the effective date of this act, any school district shall be consolidated or annexed, for municipal or school purposes, with one or more school districts none of which shall belong to a class of school districts based upon a greater population, the school directors then in office in such school district shall become school directors of the new school district and shall hold office during the respective terms for which they were elected.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 511.

Section 515. Appointment of Directors Where Districts Have Been Consolidated or Annexed to Form a District of the First Class.—[1]When, in any proceeding arising subsequently to the effective date of this act, two or more school districts shall be consolidated or annexed, for municipal or school purposes ,and the new school district shall be a school district of the first class, no school directors shall be appointed for such school district until, by reason of the expiration of the terms of existing directors or by reason of vacancies resulting from other causes, the number of school directors shall be less than fifteen (15); at such time the judges of the court of common pleas of the county in which such school district or the greater part thereof in area is situated shall appoint a proper number of school directors to bring the number of members of such board to fifteen (15). The term of office of such appointee or appointees shall extend until the second Monday in November immediately following the first day of the next October occurring in an odd numbered year. In such October and biennially thereafter, there shall be appointed as provided herein a proper number of school directors to maintain the membership of the board of school directors at fifteen (15).

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 511.

Section 516. Election of Directors Where Districts Have Been Annexed or Consolidated to Form a District of the Second, Third or Fourth Class.—[1]When, in any proceeding arising subsequently to the effective date of this act, two or more school districts shall be consolidated or annexed, for municipal or school purposes, and the new school district shall be a school district of the second, third or fourth class, no school directors shall be elected for such school district until such time that on the first Monday of December next following a municipal election there would be a smaller number of directors than is provided herein for school districts of that class. At such municipal election and at each subsequent municipal election only so many directors shall be elected as will on the first Monday of December next following their election, bring the number of school directors to the proper number for that school district. The terms of office of the persons so elected shall be so arranged that at the earliest possible date, the number of persons elected at each municipal election shall be the same as is provided in this act for other school districts of that class.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 511.

B. Manner of Election

Section 517. Cumulative Voting.—[1]In the election of school directors, each voter may cast but one (1) vote for each candidate.

Note:

1. The purpose of this section is to eliminate any cumulative voting for candidates for the office of school director; that system is now in effect in the incorporated town of Bloomsburg,

Section 518. Elections Where Election District Is Not Wholly Within a School District.—[1]Whenever any election district does not lie entirely within any one school district, the county commissioners shall furnish to the election officials of each such election district a certified list of the qualified electors of the school districts composing the election district, who reside in the election district; the commissioners shall also furnish such election officials with the necessary ballots to enable the electors of each school district to vote on a separate ballot for all matters pertaining solely to school affairs.

Note:

1. This is a substitute for the amendment of 1929, P. L. 497 to Section 205 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 165.
The amendment provided: "Provided, That whenever any school district is not co-extensive with the city, borough, or township, the county commissioners shall furnish the proper election officials with a certified list of the qualified electors of such school district, and with the necessary ballots to enable such electors to vote on matters pertaining solely to such school districts." The purpose of the section is to care for cases where an election district does not lie wholly within one school district. It is an adoption of the suggestion made by the court in the New Britain District Case, 295 Pa. 478. As originally written the amendment is too broad and would include cases of union districts where such a procedure is not necessary.

Section 519. Computation of Vote When School District Lies Within Two or More Municipalities.—[1]When any school district shall lie in two (2) or more municipal subdivisions, the judge, inspectors and clerks of each election district within such school district shall make out a complete return of all the votes given at any election for officers in the school district, or for the submission of any question to the electors of such district, designating the number of votes cast for each person and for and against each question so submitted to the electors. The judge and inspectors shall thereupon appoint one of their number for return judge, to meet the other return judge or judges of the school district, on the second day after any such election, at the oldest election place within the district, or at such place within the district as shall have been appointed by the court of common pleas. The judges shall then and there add together the number of votes cast for each person and for and against any question submitted to the electors, and shall make out the returns as the nature of the election shall require, complying in all respects with the provisions of existing election laws. After the performance of such duties, the return judges shall appoint one of their number, by consent or lot, to deliver within two days thereafter, the full return of the vote for officers to the prothonotary of the court of common pleas and of the vote on questions submitted to the electors to the clerk of the court of quarter sessions of the proper county, in the manner now provided by law for making township or borough returns. Such judges shall ascertain and declare the result of such election and shall issue certificates to persons elected to fill such offices within five (5) days after making the returns.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the amendment of 1931, P. L. 243, Section 2 to Section 205 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 165.
Inasmuch as it is entirely separate in subject matter from the text of the original Section 205 of the School Law of 1911, it has been made a separate section. Section 205 of the School Law of 1911 describes the number of directors and their terms of office for school districts of the fourth class.

Section 520. Return and Certification of Elections.—[1]The number of votes which shall be cast for the several candidates for school directors in each school district at any election shall be returned by the election officers, as provided by law, and the clerk, prothonotary, or other proper authority, shall, within ten (10) days thereafter, under seal of the court, certify the result of the election to each candidate duly elected. A duplicate copy of each such certificate shall be mailed to the president of the board of school directors in the district in which each such person was elected.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 222 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 175.

Section 521. Contested Elections; Resulting Vacancies.—[1]Every election of school directors returned by the proper election officers, as required by law, shall be legal unless such election shall be contested within thirty (30) days after the day of election by ten (10) qualified voters of the district by written objections thereto, stating particularly the reason for contesting such election, which objections shall be filed in the court of quarter sessions of the county in which such election shall have been held. If, however, within ten (10) days after any such election, proceedings shall be instituted according to law to open any ballot box on the ground of alleged irregularities in the election of any school director, such election contest may be instituted within ten (10) days after the court shall have opened such ballot box and examined and counted the ballots therein. Such court of quarter sessions is hereby authorized and required, forthwith, to examine into the said contested election and to confirm or set aside the same. If the election of any school director so contested shall be set aside by the court, such vacancy shall be filled, as in case of other vacancies, by the board of school directors organizing on the first Monday of December next following said municipal election, within thirty (30) days after its organization, or after such election has been declared illegal by the court.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 223 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 179.
The period within which the proceedings to contest the election, must be instituted has been extended from ten to thirty days. A reasonable period is required to open the ballot boxes. By the Act of 1927, P. L. 360, Section 5, 25 PS Sec. 2125, the ballot boxes may be opened anythime within four months.
The purpose of this section is to provide a means to contest the validity of an entire election; it does not provide the means to determine which of several candidates was elected to a particular office. This latter matter is covered by the Act of 1874, P. L. 208, 213, 25 PS Sec. 2391 et. seq.

Section 522. Procedure in the Event of a Tie Vote.—[1]In the event that at any election two (2) or more candidates for school directors should receive the same number of votes for the same office, those persons shall, in such manner as they see fit, decide which of them shall be entitled to the office for which they received an equal number of votes. In case they fail to file with the president or secretary of the board of school directors of the district, within twenty (20) days after the election, a paper signed by all the candidates receiving the same number of votes, stating which of them shall hold the office, then, in that case, the office for which they were candidates shall be vacant, and the board of school directors organizing in December shall fill such vacancy by the appointment of an eligible person; however, none of the parties who had received an equal number of votes for such office shall be eligible for such vacancy.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject matter of Section 213 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 174.

C. Removal

Section 523. Removal of Directors.—[1]If the board of school directors in any school district shall fail to organize as hereinafter provided, or if the board or any member or members thereof shall have refused or neglected to perform any duty imposed by the provisions of this act, or shall otherwise misbehave themselves in office, whether such refusal, neglect, or misbehavior be within the current or any prior term, any ten (10) resident taxpayers in the district may present their petition in writing, verified by the oath or affirmation of at least three (3) of them, to the court of common pleas of the county in which such district or the largest part of its area is located, setting forth the facts of such refusal or neglect of duty on the part of such school director or directors; whereupon the court shall grant a rule upon such school director or directors, the same to be made returnable in not less than ten (10) nor more than twenty (20) days from its date of issue, to show cause why they should not be removed from office. On or before the return day of such rule, the school director or directors, individually or jointly, shall file in writing an answer under oath, to the petition; and if the facts set forth in said petition or any material part thereof be denied the court shall then hear the several parties on such matters as are contained in the petition. If on such hearing, or if when no answer is filed denying the facts set forth in the petition, the court shall be of the opinion that any duty imposed on the board of school directors or upon any member or members thereof, which is by the provisions of this act made mandatory upon them to perform, has not been done or has been neglected by him or them, or that he or they have misbehaved in office, the court shall have the power to remove the board or such of its number as in the court's opinion is proper, and to appoint for the unexpired term or terms other qualified persons in their stead, subject to the provisions of this act. No school director or directors shall be removed, however, for any refusal or neglect which has occurred more than six (6) years prior to the institution of the preceeding for the removal.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 217 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 180.
In the seventh line, the phrase "whether such refusal or neglect be within the current or any prior term" has been added in order to provide that directors may be removed for misfeasance in office which occurred prior to re-election. It was held in the case of In Re Fidula, 297 Pa. 364, 147 Atl. 67 (1929), that under Section 217 of the School Law of 1911 a director could not be removed for misconduct which had occurred during a prior term of office. Such a condition is undesirable. The purpose underlying any provision for removal is the elimination from positions of public trust of any persons who do not possess the character or ability for the proper performance of their duties. This conduct in a prior term is as weighty evidence of the lack of such qualities as is misconduct during the current term. In other states, the courts have taken various views of the problem which arose in the Fidula Case, supra. In the following cases it was held that there could be a removal for misfeasance during a prior term: State v. Walsh, 109, Iowa, 18, 79 N. W. 369; Territory v. Sanches, 14 N. M. 493, 94 Pac. 950; State v. Megaarden, 85 Minn. 41, 88 N. W. 412. In Re Throop Borough School Directors, 298 Pa. 453, 148 Atl. 518 (1930) it was held that re-election of directors after removal proceedings had been instituted does not oust the court of its jurisdiction in the removal proceedings; it cannot, however, make a final order of removal. See Section 500 of this draft.

Section 524. Intervention of the Department.—[1]When any proceedings for the removal of school directors shall have been instituted in pursuance of the provisions of this act, the Department, acting through the Department of Justice, may become a party to such proceedings.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Its purpose is to enable the Department, when it is of the opinion that the interests of the State school system require the removal of directors charged with a violation of the school law, to intervene and aid in the conduct of the proceedings.

Section 525. Costs of Removal Proceedings.—[1]The court shall impose the costs of such proceedings upon the petitioner, the intervenor, the accused school directors, or upon the school district, or may apportion the same among them as it shall deem just and proper. However, if a director shall be removed or shall be found guilty of acts which, by this act are made grounds for a removal, no costs may be placed on the petitioners.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 219 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 182.

D. Vacancies.

Section 526. Vacancy upon Refusal or Neglect to Qualify.—[1]If any person who shall have been elected or appointed as school director, and who has been notified of his election or appointment, shall refuse or neglect to qualify as such director, within ten (10) days next succeeding the beginning of his term of office, the remaining members of the board may declare his office as director vacant.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 220 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 183.

Section 527. Power of Board upon Non-attendance or Non-performance of Official Duties by Any Member.—[1]If any person having qualified as school director shall neglect or refuse to attend two (2) successive regular meetings, unless detained by sickness, or prevented by necessary absence from the district, or if in attendance at any meetings shall neglect or refuse to act in his official capacity as a school director, the remaining members of the board after having given at least five (5) days' notice to that director may declare his office as director vacant.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 221 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 184.

The clause requiring notice to the director is new. It has been inserted to guarantee that before being removed a director should have an opportunity to show that his non-attendance was justifiable on grounds of sickness or necessary absence from the district. In Bucks v. District, 15 Del. Co. 126, 28 Pa. Dist. 783 (1918), it was held that such notice was necessary although the School Law of 1911 did not expressly require it.

Section 528. Procedure in the Event of Vacancy.—[1]In case any vacancy shall occur in any board of school directors by reason of death, resignation, removal from the district, or otherwise, such vacancy shall, in a school district of the first class, be filled for the unexpired term by the court of common pleas of the county in which such school district is situated.

If such a vacancy or vacancies shall occur in a school district of the second, third, or fourth class, and a majority of the whole board remains in office, the remaining members of the board of school directors shall, by a majority vote thereof, fill such vacancy within thirty (30) days thereafter. The person so selected shall hold his office, if the term thereof so long continues, until the first Monday of December after the first municipal election occurring more than thirty (30) days after his appointment. At the first municipal election occurring more than thirty (30) days after such appointment, an eligible person shall be elected for the remainder of the unexpired term. If, by reason of a tie vote or otherwise, each such vacancy shall not have been filled by the board of school directors as is herein provided, within thirty (30) days after such vacancy shall have occurred, the court of common pleas of the county in which such school district or the greater part thereof in area is located, upon the petition of ten (10) or more resident taxpayers, shall fill such vacancy by the appointment of a suitable person for the entire unexpired term.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 214 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 176.

Section 529. Procedure in the Event of Vacancies of a Majority in Districts of the Second, Third or Fourth Class.—[1] In case vacancies shall occur whereby the offices of a majority of the members of any board of school directors, other than a board of school directors of a school district of the first class, shall become vacant, the remaining members shall fill such vacancies one at a time, giving the new appointee such reasonable notice of his appointment as to enable him to meet and act with the then qualified members of the board in making further appointments until a majority of the board has been secured. When a majority has been secured, the board shall fill the remaining vacancies at a meeting attended by the majority of said board, such appointees to receive a majority of the votes of the then qualified members. The person selected to fill such vacancies shall hold their offices, if the terms thereof continue so long, until the first Monday in December after the first municipal election occurring more than thirty (30) days after their appointment, at which election eligible persons shall be elected to fill the unexpired terms. If, by reason of a tie vote or otherwise, each vacancy described in this section shall not have been filled, as herein provided, by the board of school directors within forty-five (45) days after such vacancy shall have occurred, the court of common pleas of the county in which such school district or the greater part thereof in area is located, upon the petition of ten (10) or more resident taxpayers, shall fill such vacancy by the appointment of a suitable person for the entire unexpired term.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 215 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 177.

Section 530. Procedure in the Event of a Vacancy of the Entire Board in Districts of the Second, Third and Fourth Classes.—[1]If at any time vacancies should exist or occur in the membership of all the members of any board of school directors in any school district, other than a school district of the first class, the court of common pleas of the county in which such district, or the largest part in area thereof, is located, shall appoint a board of properly qualified persons, who shall serve until the first Monday in December after the first municipal election occurring more than thirty (30) days after their appointment. At this election a board of school directors of the [illegible] upon the creation of [illegible] to the establishment of [illegible] herein provided.

Whenever there shall be a vacancy of the entire membership of a board in any district of the fourth class which shall not have a district superintendent, the county superintendent may enter, take full charge of, and maintain, at the expense of the district, the schools of such district. Each such superintendent shall conduct such schools in accordance with the provisions of this act and under the direction of the Department until a board of school directors shall have been appointed and shall have qualified.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 216 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1038, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 178.

Section 216 of the School Law of 1911, supra, provides that at the election the directors should be elected in the manner directors of that class of school districts were elected when the Act of 1911 went into effect. Since the present act contains no such schedule it has been necessary to insert the provision that the directors shall be elected in the manner provided in this draft for the election of directors upon the creation of a new municipality.

E. Miscellaneous Provisions

Section 531. Oath of Office.—[1]All persons who shall have been elected or appointed as school directors, before entering upon the duties of their office, shall take and subscribe to the following oath or affirmation, which may be administered by anyone qualified to administer an oath, or as hereinafter provided:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) tha I will support, obey and defend the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of this Commonwealth, and that I will discharge the duties of my office with fidelity; that I have not paid, or contributed, or promised to pay or contribute, either directly or indirectly, any money or other valuable thing to procure my nomination or election (or appointment), except for necessary and proper expenses expressly authorized by law; that I have not knowingly violated any election law of this Commonwealth, or procured it to be done by others in my behalf; that I will not knowingly receive, either directly or indirectly, any money or other valuable thing for the performance or nonperformance of any act or duty pertaining to my office, other than the compensation allowed by law."

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 224 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 185.

Section 532. Directors Not to be Employed or Paid by Their Districts.—[1]No school director shall, during the term for which he shall have been elected or appointed, be employed in any capacity by the school district in which he is elected or appointed, or receive from such school district any pay for services rendered to the district except as provided in this act.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 226 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 187.

Section 533. Information for New Board.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall annually, through its proper officers, furnish to the incoming board of school directors all necessary information and such detailed statements as may be needed by it to provide for the annual tax levy and to prepare the annual estimate of expenditures.

Note:

1. This is Section 512 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 261.

ARTICLE VI

ORGANIZATION AND OFFICERS OF BOARDS

A. General Provisions

Section 600. [1]Administration of School Districts.—The public school system established by this act shall be administered by a board of school directors in each school district, to be elected or appointed as herein provided.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 201 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 161.

Section 601. Board of Public Education.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the board of school directors shall be known and designated as "The Board of Public Education" of such district. Any reference in this act to a board of school directors in districts of the first class shall be construed as referring to such Board of Public Education.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the first portion of Section 2202 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1927, P. L. 131, 24 PS Sec. 1991.

The portions of Section 2202, supra, which relate to the general powers of the board are not repeated in this section for those matters are covered in Section 700 of this draft.

B. School Year; Organization Meetings; Election of Officers

Section 602. School Year.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the school year shall begin on the first day of January of each year; in each school district of the second, third and fourth classes the school year shall begin on the first Monday of July of each year.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of the first sentence of Section 301 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1023, Section 6, and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 5, 24 PS Sec. 211.

Section 603. Date of Organization.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the school directors shall meet and organize annually on the second Monday of November. In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, the school directors shall meet and organize annually on the first Monday of December.

Where due to the creation of a new school district, other than one which will become effective on the effective date of this act, or due to the existence of vacancis in the membership of all of the members of any school board, a court shall have appointed a new board of school directors, the members so appointed shall meet and organize within ten (10) days after the appointment of the complete school board.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the first two sentences of Section 301 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1023, Section 6, and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 5, 24 PS Sec. 211.

Section 604. Annual Organization Meeting.—[1]The secretary of each retiring board of school directors shall give to each member of the new board five (5) days' notice by mail of the time and place of the annual meeting at which the organization shall take place; at such time and place, if a majority of the board is present, an organization shall be effected as herein provided. If, at any meeting, at which an organization is to be effected, a majority of the board is not present, the directors in attendance shall adjourn until a stated date of which due notice shall be given to all of the members of the new board by the secretary of the retiring board of school directors. At such time, an organization shall be accomplished whether or not a majority shall be in attendance.

In each school district of the first class, the board of school directors shall elect from among the holdover members a temporary president and secretary; in each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, the secretary of the board of school directors shall perform his ordinary duties, and the board shall elect a temporary president from among the holdover members. The certificates of election or appointment of all new school directors shall be read, and a list of the legally elected or appointed and qualified school directors prepared. If any of the members shall not have taken and subscribed to the oath of office required by this act, the oath may be administered to that director or directors by the temporary president.

After such preliminary organization has been completed, the board of school directors in each school district of the first class shall elect a president and vice-president from among its members, and a secretary who shall not be a member of the board of school directors, each to serve for a term of one year; in each school district of the second, third and fourth classes the board of school directors shall elect from among its members a president and vice-president, each to serve for a term of one year.

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of Section 302 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 213, and the first paragraph of Section 303, 24 PS Sec. 214.

The second sentence in the first paragraph of this section is new. It is designed to meet the condition which would arise if a majority would not be present at the scheduled organization meting. The School Law of 1911 made no provision as to what should be done on the occurring of such a contingency.

Section 605. Officers in Existing Districts.—[1]In each school district which is coterminous with the territory of a school district which existed on the day preceding the effective date of this act, the officers on such effective date shall continue to serve as such until the end of the terms for which they have been elected.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It provides that the officers in each district which remains unchanged by the provisions of this draft shall continue as such until the end of the terms for which they were elected.

Section 606. Organization Meeting in One Thousand Nine Hundred Thirty-Three.—[1]In each school district which shall come into existence on the effective date of this act, and which shall not be coterminous with the territory of a school district which existed on the day preceding such date, the school directors, appointed by the court, shall meet and organize on such effective date or if not then appointed, as soon as practicable after their appointment.

Each such meeting shall be conducted, except as herein otherwise provided, in the manner provided herein for the conduct of the annual organization meeting in school districts of the second, third and fourth classes. At each such meeting, the directors shall elect a president and vice-president who shall serve until their successors are elected at the first organization meeting of the board which shall be held on the date fixed by this act for organization meetings of school districts of the class to which such new school district shall belong. The directors shall also elect a secretary who shall serve for the remainder of the term for which secretaries in that class of districts are elected, and a treasurer who shall serve until the end of the then current school year.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
It requires the board of school directors of each district which is created by the provisions of this draft, other than those which are mere continuations of exactly similar former districts, to meet and organize on the first day on which such districts shall become effective.
Section 505 of this draft provides that directors in these districts shall be appointed prior to the effective date mentioned above.

Section 607. Date of Organization When Districts Are Consolidated or Annexed.—[1]When two (2) or more school districts, all of which shall belong to the same class, shall be consolidated or annexed for school or municipal purposes, the directors of the new district shall meet and organize within the three (3) months immediately preceding the effective date of the consolidation or annexation.

When two (2) or more school districts, belonging to two (2) or more classes, shall be consolidated or annexed for municipal or school purposes and two (2) or more of such districts shall belong to a class which is based upon a higher population than any other of those school districts to be consolidated, the directors of the new district shall meet and organize within three (3) months immediately preceding the effective date of the consolidation or annexation.

The date for each such meeting and organization shall be fixed by the secretary of that one of the school districts to be consolidated or annexed which has the largest population, as disclosed by the next preceding United States decennial census. Such secretary shall give, to each directors, five (5) days' notice by mail of the time and place of the meeting which shall be conducted as herein provided for annual organization meetings.

Note:

1. This section is somewhat similar to the subject-matter of the last paragraph of Section 301 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1023, Section 6, and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 5, 24 PS Sec. 211.
This new section, however, applies only where all the school districts consolidated or annexed are school districts of the same class, or, when belonging to different classes there are two (2) or more of those districts belonging to such one of those classes which is based upon the greater or greatest population.
In Sections 511, et seq. of this draft it is provided that when school districts all of which are of the same class are merged, the complete board of school directors of each board shall remain in office; likewise, when the school districts are of different classes but two or more of them belong to that one of those classes of school districts which is based upon the greater or greatest population, all members of such larger school district or school districts of the same class shall remain in office. In both of these situations an organization meeting is necessary for there will be two (2) complete sets of officers. When, however, school districts are of different classes and only one belongs to that one of those classes which is based on the greatest population, the school board of that district is the only complete board which remains. Its officers should continue to manage the enlarged scool district until the next regular organization meeting.
Section 301 of the School Law of 1911 provides that the organization should be held on the first Monday of July. This is the opening day of the school year in second, third and fourth class school districts. It has no significance as to school districts of the first class. The date of organization has been changed by this section, in order that the board of school directors of the new district may prepare in advance its plans for the new school year. It would be handicapped by being compelled to delay until the official opening of the school year.
Section 301 of the School Law of 1911 also provided that "When two or more school districts are consolidated, or because of the consolidation of boroughs, as provided by the General Borough Act * * *." Reference to the General Borough Act has been eliminated in this new section. That act provided that when two (2) boroughs are consolidated, the school districts should also be merged or consolidated. There is no need for special mention of this type of consolidation.

Section 608. Election of Officers.—[1]At each such organization meeting, the directors shall elect a president and vice-president, who shall serve until their successors are elected at the next organization meeting of the board of school directors of the consolidated district, which shall be held on the date fixed by this act for organization meetings in school districts of the class to which the new school district shall belong. The directors shall also elect a secretary, who shall serve for the remainder of the term for which secretaries in that class of districts are elected; the directors shall also, if the new district is a school district of the second, third or fourth class, elect a treasurer, who shall serve until the end of the then current school year.

Note:

1. See note to Section 607 of this draft. Its subject-matter is somewhat similar to the second paragraph of Section 301 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1023, Section 6, and 1921, P. L. 243, Section 5, 24 PS Sec. 211.

Section 609. Officers in Districts Formed by the Annexation or Consolidation of Districts of Two or More Classes.—[1]When two (2) or more school districts belonging to two (2) or more classes shall be consolidated or annexed for municipal or school purposes and only one (1) of such school districts shall belong to a class which is based upon a higher population than any of the other of those school districts in the annexation or consolidation, the officers of that school district shall serve as officers of the new school district until the end of the terms for which they shall have been elected.

Note:

1. See note to Section 607 of this draft.

C. Meetings; Quorum; Votes.

Section 610. Regular Meetings; Special Meetings.—[1]Each board of school directors shall have specified times and places at which it shall hold its meetings, and shall, during the school term meet at least once every two (2) months. All such meetings which the board of school directors is required to held at stated times, and all meeting for organization purposes, or any adjournments of them, shall be known as "regular meetings"; all other meetings shall be known as "special meetings."

Note:

1. This section is a restatement o fthe subject-matter of Section 307 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 231.

Section 611. Special Meetings Called by a Majority of the Members.—[1]If the president of any board of school directors shall fail to call a special meeting after having received a written request therefor from three (3) members of the board of school directors, a majority of all of the then qualified members of such board may, at any time, call such special meeting.

Note:

1. The subject-matter of this section has been drawn from a portion of Section 311 of the School Law of 1911 ,24 PS Sec. 251.

Section 612. Special Meetings; Notice.—[1]The secretary of each board of school directors shall give written notice of every special meeting to each member of the board of school directors a reasonable length of time before each such meeting.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 310 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 234.

Section 613. Special Meetings; Business to be Transacted.—[1]No business shall be transacted at any special meeting except that named in the call sent to the members for such special meeting. Special meetings may, however, be called for general purposes.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 309 of the School Laf ow 1911, 24 PS Sec. 233.

Section 614. Quorum; Business Which May Be Transacted.—[1]In each school district, a majority of all of the members, which this act provides shall constitute a board of school directors in each school district of the class to which such school district shall belong, shall constitute a quorum. If less than a quorum shall be present at any meeting, no business shall be transacted at such meeting, nor, except as otherwise provided in this section, shall any election of any members to fill any vacancies on the board of school directors be held. The members present may, however, adjourn to a stated time. However, if there shall not be a sufficient number of qualified members on the board of school directors to form a quorum, a majority of all the then qualified members of the board may, at any such meeting, fill vacancies in the manner provided in this act.

Note:

1. This section contains some provisions similar to Section 308 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 232.

Section 308 of the School Law of 1911, supra, provided "a majority of the members of a board of school directors shall form a quorum." The section as above written is designed to eliminate any ambiguity as to whether a majority of all of the qualified members at any given time, or, a majority of the total board, as provided in this draft, shall form a quorum.

The clause "nor shall any election of new members to fill any vacancies on the school board be held," has been introduced to meet the question raised in the Wells Township School District's Directors Case, 297 Pa. 242, as to whether or not under Section 214 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 176, a minority of the board could fill vacancies when there were sufficient qualified members to form a quorum although they did not attend the meetings. It was held that as long as there was a sufficient number of qualified members to constitute a quorum, a minority could not fill vacancies, under the provisions of Section 308 of the School Law of 1911, supra. This clause therefore embodies the results of the Supreme Court's ruling in the Wells Township School District's Directors Case, supra.

Section 615. Subjects Requiring the Vote of a Majority of All Members.—[1]The affirmative vote of a majority of all the then qualified members of the board of school directors in every school district, duly recorded, showing how each member voted, shall be required in order to take action on the following subjects:—

Fixing length of school term.

Adopting textbooks.

Appointing or dismissing district superintendents, assistant district superintendents, associate superintendents, principals, teachers and other employes.

Appointing tax collectors and other appointees.

Levying and assessing taxes.

Purchasing, selling, leasing, or condemning land.

Locating new buildings or changing the locations of old ones.

Adopting courses of study.

Establishing additional schools or departments.

Designating depositories for school funds.

Entering into contracts of any kind, including the purchase of fuel or any supplies, where the amount involved exceeds one hundred dollars ($100.00).

Fixing salaries or compensation of officers, teachers, or other appointees of the board of school directors.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 403 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 309. The provision of Section 403 of the School Law, supra, which requires the affirmative vote of a majority of all of the members for the creating and increasing of the indebtedness has been eliminated. Section 503 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 441, provides that the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the members is necessary to create or increase temporary indebtedness. Section 560 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 421, has no such requirement for the issuance of bonds.

In this draft the affirmative vote of two-thirds of all the members of each board of school directors will be required for the incurring or increasing of any indebtedness.

The requirement as to the majority vote for the appointment of employes, other than superintendents, principals, and teachers is new.

D. President; Vice-President.

Section 616. Powers and Duties of the President; Call of Special Meetings.—[1]The president of each board of school directors shall be the executive officer of the board. He shall have the power and his duty shall be:

1. To preside at all meetings of the board;
2. To call special meetings of the board at any time he may deem proper;
3. To call special meetings of the board upon written request therefor of three (3) members thereof;
4. To execute, when directed by the board, all papers and instruments pertaining to the affairs of the school district which require the signature of the president;
5. To sign all orders on the treasurer for the payment of any proper account or bill which has, except as herein otherwise provided, been approved by the board. Any orders which shall be for the payment of amounts owing under any contract which shall previously have been approved by the board and by the prompt payment of which, the district will receive a discount or other advantage, may be signed without the approval of the board first having been secured; all such orders shall be presented to the board at its next meeting. No order shall be issued or approved unless and until it shall contain the name of the payee and the amount to be paid.[2] In a school district of the first class, however, the board of school directors may direct that any member or officer of such board, in lieu of the president, shall approve all school orders, and in districts of the first class, the president may use a rubber stamp signature, an attested copy of which shall first have been filed with the school controller.[3]
6. To perform such other duties as the board may direct and which pertain to his office.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Sections 311 and 312 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 251, 252.

2. The provision, in this paragraph, relating to the signing of certain orders without the approval of the board is new; its purpose is to enable the district to take advantage of discounts.

3. The provision relating to the rubber stamp signature is new; it has been drawn from Section 1 of the Act of 1899, P. L. 24, 24 PS Sec. 2062.

Section 617. Pice-President; Presiding Officer in the Absence of the President.—[1]In the absence of the president, the vice-president shall act in his stead as presiding officer of the board, and may, by express direction of the board, approve orders on the treasurer during any continued absence or incapacity of the president.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 313 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 253.

Section 618. Temporary President and Secretary.—[1]In the absence of both the president and vice-president from a meeting, the board may elect a president pro tempore for such meeting only; in the absence of the secretary, the board of school dirctors may elect a secretary pro tempore for such meeting only. The election of such temporary officers shall be noted upon the minutes of the meeting.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 333 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 235.

E. Secretary.

Section 619. Qualification of Officers.—[1]No person shall at one time be both secretary and treasurer of any board of school directors.

No superintendent, assistant superintendent, supervising principal, or teacher shall serve either temporarily or permanently as an officer of the board of school directors by which he shall be employed.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the last part of Section 303 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 972, Section 1, 1923, P. L. 178, Section 1; 1923, P. L. 839, Section 1; 1927, P. L. 170, Section 1; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 6; 24 PS Sec. 214.

Section 620. Secretary in School Districts of the Second, Third and Fourth Classes.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, the board of school directors shall, during the month of May, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven and every four (4) years thereafter, elect a secretary who is and shall remain during his term of office a resident of the school district. The term of office of such secretary shall be four (4) years and shall begin on the first Monday of July following his election. Vacancies in the office of secretary shall be filled for the unexpired term by the board of school directors. In school districts of the second class, the secretary shall not be a member of the board of school directors; in school districts of the third and fourth classes, the secretary may be a member of the board.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of part of the third paragraph of Section 303 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 972, Section 1; 1923, P. L. 178, Section 1; 1923, P. L. 839, Section 1; 1927, P. L. 170, Section 1; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 6; 24 PS Sec. 214.

Section 621. Powers and Duties of the Secretary.—[1]In each school district, the secretary of the board of school directors shall have the power and his duty shall be:

1. To keep a correct and proper record of all the proceedings of the board, and to prepare such reports and keep such accounts as are required by the provisions of this act.

2. To prepare and sign an order on the treasurer for the payment of each bill or account, which shall have been approved by the board of school directors.

3. To attest in writing the execution of all deeds, contracts, reports and other instruments that are to be executed by the board of school directors.

4. To furnish, reports concerning the school affairs of the district, on such forms, and in such manner, as the State Council of Education or the Department may require. No reports, however, concerning the attendance of pupils shall be required to contain any facts or figures except the totals of the number of whole or half days of attendance and absence of the pupils in any school for periods of one week or longer.[2]

5. To exercise general supervision over the business affairs of the school district, subject to the instructions and directions of the board of school directors.

6. To have custody of all the records, papers, office property and official seal of the school district, and, at the expiration of his term of office, to turn the same over to his successor.

7. To keep correct accounts with each receiver of taxes, school treasurer, and school tax collector of the district, and to present a statement of such accounts, together with a statement of the finances of the district, at each regular meeting of the board of school directors. These statements shall be entered in full upon the minutes.

8. To perform such other duties pertaining to the business of the school district as are required by this act, or as the board of school directors may direct.[3]

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Sections 314, 315, 316, 317, 318, 319, 320 and 322 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sections 271, 272, 273, 274, 275, 276, 277 and 279.
The powers and duties which, under the School Law of 1911, were conferred upon the secretary in these various sections have been combined into this on section of the draft.
2. The limitation in the fourth paragraph has been added in order to set up a reasonable limit to the reports which teachers and secretaries must prepare and send to Harrisburg.
3. The 1931 amendment to Section 319 of the School Law of 1911, supra, which provides that the accounts and records of the board of school directors should be open to the public, has been placed in a new and separate section, see Section 1008.

Section 622. Compensation of Secretary.—[1]The secretary of each board of school directors whether or not he shall be a member of the board, shall be entitled to receive for his services as secretary such reasonable compensation as the board of school directors, without the vote of the secretary, shall fix.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Setcion 323 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 290.
It expressly states the secretary's right to compensation, whether or not be is a member of the board.

Section 623. Bond of the Secretary.—[1]Each person who shall have been elected secretary of a board of school directors shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, furnish to the board of school directors a proper bond in such amount and with such corporate or individual surety or sureties as the board may approve and require, conditioned upon the faithful performance of his duty in the office of secretary. The cost of such bond may be paid by the board of school directors. However, in lieu of the surety bonds of corporations or individuals, the secretary may deposit with the board of school directors or with any bank or trust company within the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, which may be agreed upon, United States, municipal, or county bonds in an amount to be approved by the board of school directors. Such bonds shall be accompanied by a proper assignment or power of attorney for their transfer. In the event of any depreciation in the value of such bonds, the secretary shall furnish additional similar bonds as the board of school directors shall require.

Note:

1. Section 321 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 278, provides that the secretary of each school district should furnish a bond to the board of school directors.
This section of the draft has been modeled after Section 505 (a) 2, 1929, P. L. 343, of The Fiscal Code of 1929, 1929, P. L. 343, 72 PS Sec. 505, relating to the bonds or security to be furnished by State depositories. The difficulty which has been met in the securing of corporate bonds and the high charges which are made for them, have caused great inconvenience in the smaller school districts. Permitting security to be deposited in lieu of surety bonds, will adequately protect the school districts and will obviate the present inconvenience.

F. Treasurer.

Section 624. Treasurer in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the treasurer of the city constituting the whole or the greater part of such school district shall be, subject to the restriction therein provided, the treasurer of the school district.

Note:

1. Section 303 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 972, Section 1; 1923, P. L. 178, Section 1; 1923, P. L. 839, Section 1; 1927, P. L. 170, Section 1; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 214, had a provision as follows:
The board of school directors, "shall elect the treasurer of the city constituting such school district of the first class as the school treasurer for such school district for the ensuing fiscal year."
Inasmuch as the board of school directors was compelled to elect the city treasurer as treasurer of the school district, the requirement as to the formal election by the school board was unnecessary. In this section of the draft, therefore, it is provided that the city treasurer shall automatically be the treasurer of the school district, and the provision as to the formal election by the board of school directors has been eliminated.

Section 625. Treasurer in Districts of the Second, Third and Fourth Classes.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, the board of school directors shall annually during the month of May elect a treasurer to serve for a term of one year, beginning with the first Monday in July following such election. Such treasurer may be any corporation duly qualified and legally authorized to transact a fiduciary business in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. In school districts of the second class, the treasurer shall not be a member of the board of school directors; in school districts of the third and fourth classes, the treasurer may be a member of the board.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the third paragraph of Section 303 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 972, Section 1; 1923, P. L. 178, Section 1; 1923, P. L. 839, Section 1; 1927, P. L. 170, Section 1; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 6; 24 PS Sec. 214.

Section 626. Duties of Treasurer.—[1]The treasurer of each school district shall receive all State appropriations, school district taxes, and all other funds belonging to the school district. He shall, except as herein otherwise provided,[2] pay out funds only upon proper orders approved by the board of school directors, signed by the president and attested by the secretary. In school districts of the first class, however, the board of school directors may authorize a person to sign the orders instead of the president; in each such school district of the first class, all school orders before being paid by the treasurer shall first have been approved by the school controller.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 324 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 302.
2. See note No. 2 to Section 616 of this proposed act.

Section 627. Deposit of School Funds; Liability of School Treasurer.—[1]In each school district, after the properly designated depository or depositories have fulfilled the prerequisite conditions provided herein, all funds of the school district shall be deposited therein by the school treasurer in the name of the school district, in accordance with the direction of the board of school directors. After any school funds have been thus deposited, the school treasurer shall be relieved from liability for their custody.[2] No school district shall, however, deposit with any one depository any amount in excess of thirty-three and one-third per centum (33 1-3%) of the total capital stock and surplus of such depository.

At the end of each month, the treasurer shall make a report to the school controller, if any, and to the secretary of the board of school directors, of the amount of funds received and disbursed by him during the month.[3]

Note:

1. This is a restatement of a portion of the subject-matter of Section 506 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 461.
2. Section 509, supra, provides that after the treasurer has property deposited the funds, he should "be relieved from all liability therefor." The change has been made to prevent any ambiguity.
3. The latter paragraph has been drawn from Section 325 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 302.

Section 628. Annual Settlement of Accounts.—[1]In each school district, the school treasurer shall annually settle his accounts for the preceding year with the board of school directors.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 327 of the School Laf of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 305.

Section 629. Miscellaneous Duties of School Treasurers.—[1]The school treasurer, in each school district, shall perform such further acts and duties pertaining to the school district as the board of school directors may direct, or as may be required by law. At the end of each term of office, the school treasurer shall promptly pay over to his successor in office the balance of any and all money remaining in his hands, and shall deliver to him all books, accounts and other property of the school district which shall be in his possession.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 328 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 306.

Section 630. Bond of the School Treasurer.—[1]Each person elected treasurer of any school district, and the city treasurer in school districts of the first class shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, furnish to the board of school directors a proper bond in such amount and with such corporate or individual surety or sureties as the board of school directors may approve and require, conditioned upon the faithful performance of his duty in the office of treasurer. The cost of such bond may be paid by the board of school directors. Upon re-election, each such treasurer shall furnish a new bond for the ensuing year. If individual sureties are presented for approval, they shall qualify in an aggregate over and above their individual liabilities to three times the amount of the bond. No one individual may qualify for more than one-fourth (¼) of the total amount of the bond. However, in lieu of the surety bonds of corporations or individuals, the treasurer may deposit with the board of school directors or with any bank or trust company within the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania which may be agreed upon, United States, municipal, or county bonds in an amount to be approved by the board of school directors. Such bonds shall be accompanied by a proper assignment or power of attorney for their transfer. In the event of any depreciation in the value of such bonds, the treasurer shall furnish additional similar bonds as the board of school directors shall require.

Note:

1. Section 326 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 303, provides that the school treasurer shall furnish a bond to the board of school directors. This section has been changed for the reasons stated in Section 623 of this draft.

Section 631. Approval of Treasurer's Bond.—[1]No school treasurer shall enter upon the duties of his office until the bond herein required has been approved by the board of school directors.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 330 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 304.

Section 632. Refusal of City Treasurer to Furnish Bond or Security.—[1]If any person herein authorized to be school treasurer of any school district of the first class shall fail, refuse or neglect to furnish a proper bond or security as herein provided, for a period of fifteen (15) days after he shall have been notified to do so, the board of school directors of such school district may elect any other proper person as school treasurer for such school district to serve for the ensuing school year.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the last paragraph of Section 528 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 567.

Section 633. Compensation of School Treasurer.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, the board of school directors shall annually, at the time of electing a treasurer, whether or not he shall be a member of the board, determine what his compensation shall be for the ensuing scho oylear. In each school district of the first class, the board shall, at the annual organization meeting, determine what shall be the compensation of the treasurer of such district for the ensuing year. Such compensation shall be a fixed salary and shall not be in the form of a commission. No school treasurer shall, however, receive as compensation for his services more than one-half of one per centum of the moneys paid out on school orders during such years, exclusive of balances paid over to a succeeding treasurer and repayments of loans and redemptions of bonds.

The compensation received by each school treasurer for the preceding school year shall be reported annually to the Superintendent of Public Instruction and be printed in his report.

Note:

1. Section 329 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1919, P. L. 1076, 24 PS Sec. 308, provides that treasurers shall be paid such compensation as the board of school directors shall determine. In school districts of the second, third and fourth classes the compensation or commission cannot exceed two per centum of the amount of funds paid out on school orders.

In this new section it has been provided that the compensation of the treasurer must be set at the beginning of each school year and must be in the form of a flat salary. By the requirement that the compensation must be in the form of a salary, it will be possible for interested groups of taxpayers and freeholders to check more easily upon the amount which is being paid to the school treasurer than if the treasurer's compensation were paid in the form of a commission upon funds going through his hands. This manner of payment has been voluntarily adopted in many of the efficiently operated school districts of the State.

The limitation on the salaries is new. Inasmuch as the treasurer performs no other duties than the placing of the school funds in the depository and the drawing of checks, his compensation should be little more than nominal.

Section 634. Audit of Treasurer's Accounts.—[1]The accounts of each school treasurer shall be audited annually as herein provided.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 331 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 307.

Section 635. Embezzlement by School Treasurer.—[1]If any school treasurer shall convert to his own use in any way whatsoever, or shall use by way of investment, any portion of the school funds or school property entrusted to him for safe-keeping or disbursement, or shall prove to be a defaulter, or when in possession of sufficient school funds shall fail to pay a proper school warrant when properly presented or when legally required to do so, or shall fail to pay school funds or any part thereof to his successor in office, or to any other person authorized to demand and receive the same, or shall receive and accept for his own use any interest or profit on any school funds, or shall fail to account for any pay over to the proper school district any and all interest or profit collected by or paid to him on account of any school funds in his hands, or deposited by him, or shall deposit any of the funds of the school district in any other name than in the name of the school district, then every such act shall be deemed and adjudged to be an embezzlement of so much of such money as shall thus be taken, converted, invested, accepted, collected, used, not paid over, unaccounted for, or wrongfully deposited, and is hereby declared to be a misdemeanor. Every such treasurer and every person aiding or abetting, or being in any way an accessory to such acts, or any of them, and being convicted thereof, shall be senutenced to pay a fine for the use of the school district, of not less than twenty-five dollars ($25.00) and not more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00), or be sentenced to an imprisonment of not less than thirty (30) days nor more than five (5) years or both, at the discretion of the court. Any school treasurer convicted of this misdemeanor shall forfeit his office as treasurer of the school district.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 332 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 309.

G. Solicitor and Other Employes.

Section 636. Appointment of Solicitors.—[1]Each board of school directors, or the boards of school directors of two (2) or more school districts jointly may appoint a solicitor. If a slicitor shall be appointed by two (2) or more school districts, the compensation of such solicitor shall be paid by those districts in such proportion as they may determine in advance.

The solicitor, so appointed, shall be the legal officer of the school district. He shall furnish to the board, when so requested in writing, a written opinion on any legal questions pertaining to the affairs of the board. He shall also conduct all legal proceedings to which the school district shall be a party or in which it shall be interested. Each such board or boards may, by resolution, employ additional counsel for the conduct of extraordinary litigation or in other circumstances of emergency.

Each such solicitor may be employed at a fixed salary, to cover all legal services of any nature which the district or districts may require, or, to cover only the furnishing of opinions, drawing of legal instruments, holding of consultations, and other ordinary services, with additional compensation to be paid for the conduct of litigation and extraordinary proceedings.

Note:

1. This section is based upon a portion of Section 305 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 216.
It adds a clause to Section 305 of the School Law to enable several school districts to join in the election of a solicitor, and emphasizes the position of solicitor.

Section 637. Appointment of Employes and Appointees.—[1]Each board of school directors may appoint such other appointees or employes as it may deem necessary, and shall define their duties and fix their salaries. No such appointee or employe shall be a member of the board of school directors.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of a portion of Section 305 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 216.

Section 638. Eligibility of Relatives of Members of the Board of School Directors.—[1]No person who shall be the husband, wife, son, daughter, brother, sister, father, mother, nephew, or niece of any member of the board of school directors, or who shall be the husband or wife of such relative, shall be eligible to hold any office or position of employment of any kind, except that of teacher or janitor, within the appointive or elective power of such board of school directors.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It is designed to prevent school boards from loading the payroll of the school district with relatives of the individual members.

Section 639. Employment of Relatives of Directors.—[1]No board of school directors shall employ, as teacher, any person who shall be related to any member of such board as father, mother, brother, sister, husband, wife, son, daughter, stepson, stepdaughter, grandchild, nephew, nicce, first cousin, sister-in-law, brother-in-law, uncle or aunt, unless such person shall receive the affirmative vote of three-fourths (¾) of all of the then qualified members of such board of school directors.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1207 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1163.

ARTICLE VII.

Powers and Duties of Boards.

Section 700. Powers of Existing Boards.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors, created under the provisions of this act, shall succeed to, and shall have and possess, all the powers, rights, and privileges, not inconsistent with this act, which immediately prior to the effective date hereof were vested in the board of school directors of the school district or districts which comprised the territory constituting such newly created district.

1. This is a restatement of Section 409, of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 344.
Section 409 of the School Law of 1911, supra, contained provisions giving to each school board the powers possessed by the "boards of school controllers and boards of public education." These were the names of the governing bodies of school districts prior to the Act of 1911. All necessary powers are conferred in this draft by merely using the words "board of school directors".

Section 701. Supervision and Visitation.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall exercise general supervision over the schools of itss ditrict and shall, except in districts which shall have a district superintendent or supervising principal, by one or more of its members, visit each school in the district at least once a month and shall cause the report of such visits to be entered on the minutes of the board.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of the first portion of Section 408 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. [illegible].

Section 702. Adoption of Rules and Regulations.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors may adopt and enforce such reasonable rules and regulations as it may deem necessary and proper, for its government and control, and for the management of its school affairs, and the conduct and deportment of all superintendents, teachers, and other appointees or employes during the time they are engaged in their duties to the district. Each such board may adopt and enforce such reasonable rules and regulations as it may deem necessary regarding the conduct and deportment of all pupils attending the public schools in the district, during such time as they are under the supervision of the teachers and board of school directors, including the time necessarily spent in coming to and returning from school.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the first paragraph of Section 404 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1931, P. L. 243, Section 9, 24 PS Sec. 338; it also includes the subject matter of Section 306 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 217.
The amendment authorizes the board of school directors to organize safety patrols. This has been made a separate section in the new act, see Section 707.

Section 703. Establishment of Schools and School Departments.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall establish, equip, furnish, and maintain a sufficient number of elementary public schools, in compliance with the provisions of this act, to provide for the elementary education of every person residing in such district between the ages of six (6) and twenty-one (21) years, who may attend the schools. Each such board of school directors, for the proper operation of its schools, may, in its discretion, establish, equip, furnish, and maintain other schools and departments including the following:

High schools.
Manual training schools.
Vocational schools.
Domestic science schools.
Extension schools.
Continuation schools.
Special schools for handicapped children.
Cafeterias.
Agricultural schools.
Evening schools.
Libraries.
Museums.
Reading rooms.
Gymnasiums.
Playgrounds.
Truant schools.
Parental schools.
Schools for adults.
Public lectures.
Schols for blind, deaf, and mentally deficient.
Kindergartens for children between the ages of four (4) and six (6) years.

Each of these additional schools and departments, if established, shall be an integral part of the pubic school system of that school district and shall be so administered.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of the first paragraph of Section 401 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1066, Section 1, and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 8, 24 PS Sec. 331.
The third and fourth paragraphs of that section provide: "The board of school directors of each school district of the first, second, third and fourth classes may establish and maintain kindergartens for children between the ages of four and six years. When established the kindergartens shall be an integral part of the elementary school system of the district.

"The number of kindergartens in any one district shall be fixed by the board of school directors, and shall be open during the school year."

These two paragraphs have been omitted because they merely repeat what has already been stated in the preceding portion of the section.

The sixth paragraph relating to the certification of teachers in kindergartens has been omitted at this point. Its subject-matter is covered in the article on Certification of Teachers.

The remaining paragraphs of the original section have been made a separate section relating to cafeterias.

Section 704. Admission to Additional Schools or Departments.—[1]No pupil shall be refused admission to such additional schools or departments by reason of the fact that his elementary or academic education is being or has been received in a school other than a public school.

No board of school directors in a district which shall maintain any one or more of such additional schools or departments shall be under obligation to admit thereto or to provide facilities therein for any students over the age of sixteen (16) years, who shall have graduated from or completed a regular program of studies in such school or department or in a school or department of equivalent grade within this State or elsewhere.

Note:

1. The first paragraph of this section is based upon the second paragraph of Section 401 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1066, Section 1, and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 8, 24 PS Sec. 331.

The second paragraph is new.

Recent years have found high school graduates demanding the right to return to the public schools for postgraduate work, in cases where the school district had neither the money nor facilities to accomodate them without hampering undergraduate activities. This paragraph makes it clear that no school board may be required to receive such students against its will.

Section 705. Discontinuance of Kindergartens.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall, if the average attendance in any one or more kindergartens is fifteen (15) or less for the school year, discontinue each such kindergarten at the close of the school year.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the fifth paragraph of Section 401 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1066, and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 8, 24 PS Sec. 331.

The number of pupils has been raised from ten (10) to fifteen (15).

Section 706. Power to Levy and Collect Taxes; General Grant of Powers.—[1]In order to establish, enlarge, equip, furnish, and maintain any school or department, provided herein or to pay any school indebtedness which any school district established by this act, shall be required to pay, or to pay any indebtedness which may at any time hereafter be created by any school district, or to enable it to carry out any of the provisions of this act, the board of school directors in each school district, subject to the restrictions herein provided, shal be, and hereby is, vested with all the authority and power necessary to comply with and perform any and all of the provisions of this act and to levy and collect annually, in the manner and subject to the restrictions herein provided, the necessary taxes.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-mater of Section 402 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 332.

Section 707. Establishment of Safety Patrols.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors may organize school safety patrols, and, with the written permission of the parents, appoint pupils as members thereof, for the purpose of influencing and encouraging the other pupils to refrain from crossing public highways at points other than at regular crossings, and for the purpose of directing pupils not to cross highways at times when the presence of traffic would render such crossing unsafe. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to authorize or permit the use of any safety patrol member for the purpose of directing vehicular traffic, nor shall any safety patrol member be stationed in that portion of the highway intended for the use of vehicular traffic. No liability shall attach either to the school district or any individual director, superintendent, teacher, or other school authority by virtue of the organization, maintenance, or operation of a school safety patrol, organized, maintained, and operated under authority of this section.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of the 1931 amendment of Section 404 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 338.

Section 708. Establishment and Operation of Cafeterias.—[1]The board of school directors in each school district shall have power to stablish, maintain and operate cafeterias in any of the schools under its jurisdiction whenever in its judgment, it is deemed advisable, and to appoint and fix the salaries of any necessary employes. The cost of housing and equipping such cafeterias shall be charged against the funds of the school district. The food served in such cafeterias shall be sold to pupils, teachers, and school employes of the cafeterias at such prices as will not materially exceed the cost of operation and will pay the cost of maintaining the cafeterias.

When any board of school directors shall establish one or more cafeterias, it shall appoint a manager at a fixed salary who shall have authority to purchase the necessary food and to manage the cafeteria or cafeterias of that district. The board of school directors may authorize him to purchase perishable food supplies for the one or more cafeterias without advertisement for bids. All other purchases made by him shall be made in the manner and subject to the restrictions provided herein for the purchase of school supplies.

Each such board of school directors shall maintain a separate cafeteria fund, all payments from which shall be made upon a special order drawn by the manager who shall present each month to the board of school directors, for approval, a statement of receipts and disbursements. The accounts of the one or more cafeterias in the school district shall be subject to audit by the auditors of the school district in like manner as other accounts of the school district are audited.

It shall not be lawful for any board of school directors to permit any school cafeteria to be operated by any private individual, firm, or corporation on a commission or contract basis.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of the 1931 amendment to Section 401 of the School Law of 1911, 1931, P. L. 243, Section 8, 24 PS Sec. 331.

The last paragraph is new. It is designed to prevent commercializing the cafeterias for private profit.

The provision relating to the making of purchases in the manner in which school supplies are purchased is new. Section 401 implies, however, that advertisement was necessary.

Section 709. Establishment of Consolidated Schools.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors may establish, equip, furnish, and maintain consolidated schools, and may transport pupils to and from such schools as herein provided.

In each school district of the fourth class, when the average term attendance of pupils regularly enrolled at any one room school shall be ten (10) or less, the board shall, except as herein otherwise provided, close such school at the end of the then current school term.

Note:

The second paragraph has been drawn from the second paragraph of Section 1406 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1923, P. L. 910; 1925, P. L. 628, 1929; P. L. 497, and 1931, P. L. 243, 24 PS Sec. 1378.

Section 710.—Petition to the State Council of Education.—[1]If any board of school directors, which by the provisions of this act shall be required to close a school, does not deem that to do so would serve the best interests of the pupils and taxpayers of such school district, it may present its petition to the State Council of Education showing the reasons why such school should not be closed. Upon the receipt of any such petition, the State Council of Education shall, after having made any investigation which it may deem necessary, make an order closing the school or permitting the board of school directors to continue the school.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of the third paragraph of Section 1406 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1923, P. L. 910; 1925, P. L. 628, Section 2; 1929, P. L. 497, Section 5, and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 34; 24 PS Sec. 1378.

The first proviso of this section has been omitted. It provides that when any school which had been closed because its average attendance was ten or less had been reopened by the State Council of Education, and then had had an average attendance of twelve or more, the school should be considered as re-established. Such a provision is unnecessary for the compulsory closing applies only to schools which have had an attendance of ten or less.

Section 711. School Police Officers.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors may apply to any judge of the court of common pleas of the county within which such school district, or the greater part thereof in area shall be situated, to appoint one or more persons as a police officer or officers for such school district.

Upon receipt of such an application, such judge may appoint one or more such persons as he may deem proper as police officer or officers, and shall cause such appointment to be entered upon the records of the court.

Each person thus appointed shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, take and subscribe to the oath required by the Seventh Article of the Constitution, before an alderman or justice of the peace or prothonotary; such oath shall be filed by such justice of the peace, alderman, or prothonotary among his papers, and such person shall note, upon his docket the fact that such oath has been administered. Each such police officer shall possess and exercise all of the powers of a constable in this Commonwealth in enforcing the school laws in his school district in policing the grounds belonging to such district, and in protecting the property thereof. Each keeper of a jail or station house shall be required to receive all persons who shall be arrested by such police officer for the commission of any offense against the laws of this Commonwealth, upon or near the grounds owned or occupied by such school district. Each such officer shall, when on duty, wear a metallic shield or badge with the words "School Police" and the name of the district for which he shall have been appointed, inscribed thereon.

Such board of school directors shall determine the amount of and shall pay the compensation which shall be received by any such police officer or officers.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6 of the Act of 1923, P. L. 838, 24 PS Sec. 2361—2366.

Section 712. Co-operation in Selecting and Securing Employment.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors may co-operate with any employment bureau or agency which shall be conducted by the Federal or State government or any subdivision thereof in the advising and assisting of school children between the ages of fourteen (14) and eighteen (18), in the selecting and securing of proper employment.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
The Act of 1915, P. L. 838, 43 PS Sec. 601, et seq. provides that the employment agencies of the Commonwealth shall co-operate with the school authorities in this matter. This section places a reciprocal power in the school boards.

Section 713. Fire Drills.—[1]It shall be the duty of each board of school directors, superintendent, principal, teacher, or other person in charge of any public school where appliances for the extinguishment of fires, fire escapes, or proper or sufficient exits in case of fire or panic shall be required by law to be maintained, to conduct fire drills not less than once each month. Such fire drills shall be conducted as prescribed by the rules and regulations which shall have been promulgated by the district superintendent. In such drills, the scholars and teachers shall be instructed in and made thoroughly familiar with the use of the fire escapes, appliances, and exits; each such drill shall include the complete removal of the scholars and teachers, in an expeditious and orderly manner by means of the fire escapes and exits from the building to a place of safety on the ground. Any person who shall violate or fail to comply with the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars ($25.00) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500.00), and to undergo imprisonment in the county jail for not less than ten (10) days nor more than sixty (60) days.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Sections 1, 2, and 3 of the Act of 1911, P. L. 294, 24 PS Sec. 1513, 1515.

Section 714. Playgrounds.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors may join with any city, borough, incorporated town, township, or county or any combination thereof in the equipping, operating and maintaining of parks, playgrounds, playfields, gymnasiums, public baths, swimming pools, and indoor recreation centers, and may appropriate the money therefor.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the Act of 1919, P. L. 784, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 484, and 1927, P. L. 56; 53 PS Sec. 1504.

Section 715. Scholarships.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the board of school directors may grant and award scholarships upon the merit basis.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the last portion of Section 2202 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1927, P. L. 131, 24 PS Sec. 1991.

Section 716. Regulation of Student Activities.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall prescribe, adopt, and enforce such reasonable rules and regulations as it may deem proper, regarding the management, control, or prohibition of exercises, athletics, or games of any kind, in which pupils shall participate or which are played by any pupils as members of or in connection with any public school, and regarding the organization, management, supervision, control, or prohibition of school publications and organizations or societies of the members of any class or school. Each board may provide for the financing of such student activities by appropriating moneys from the general funds of the district, by charging admission to games and activities, or by the use of both of such methods. Each board of school directors may provide for the suspension, dismissal, or other reasonable penalty in the case of any superintendent, teacher, appointee, employe, or pupil who shall violate any of such rules and regulations.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 405 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 339.
The second sentence is new. It expressly grants a power which previously existed only by implication; though in Blythe Township School Directors Removal, 26 Schuylkill 249, it was held such authority was lacking under the School Law of 1911.

Section 717. Removal of Officers and Employes.—[1]Each board of school directors may, at its pleasure, remove any public officer or other appointee other than superintendents, principals, or teachers who have been appointed by it.

Each such board may remove any superintendent, principal, or teacher for incompetency, intemperance, violation or neglect of duty, or other improper conduct, in the performance of his duties for the district, after it has given reasonable notice stating the reasons for the proposed removal to the person accused. Each such person shall have the right to make a written request, within five (5) days after receiving such notice, that a hearing be held by such board. Upon receipt of such a request, such board shall hold a hearing to inquire into the existence of the grounds of the removal, and shall make no final order of removal until after such hearing has been held.

Note:

1. The first paragraph of this section is new. It expresses the privilege conferred upon each board by Section 4 of Article VI of the Constitution of 1874.
The second paragraph is based upon Section 406 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 341.

Section 718. Surrender of Property by Removed Officers.—[1]On the removal by the board of school directors of any officer, employe, or appointee, such officer, employe, or appointee shall surrender and deliver to the secretary, or other person designatd by the board, any and all papers, property, and effects of the school district in his hands at the time of such removal or which he may subsequently receive.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 407 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 342.

Section 719. Distinction as to Race and Color.—[1]No school director, superintendent, or teacher shall make any distinction on account of, or by reason of the race or color of any pupil or scholar who may be in attendance, or seeking admission to any public school maintained wholly or in part under the school laws of this Commonwealth.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of the third proviso of Section 1405 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1925, P. L. 628, 24 PS Sec. 1377.

Section 720. Delegates to Educational Conferences.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors may authorize the attendance of the superintendent and such other members of the teaching and supervisory staff of the district as it may specify at any educational conference or conferences, when, in the opinion of the board such attendance will be conducive to the best interests of the district. Each person so authorized to attend, who does attend, shall be reimbursed for all necessary traveling and hotel expenses actually incurred. Each such board shall prescribe a maximum amount to be allowed to any such person for such expenses.

Such expenses shall be paid by the treasurer of the school district, in the usual manner, out of the school funds of the district, upon the presentation of an itemized, verified statement of such expenses.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 411 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1931, P. L. 243, Section 10, 24 PS Sec. 246.
The third sentence is new. It is designed to eliminate exorbitant expense accounts.

Section 721. Delegates to Directors' or Secretaries' Conventions.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors may appoint from among its number one delegate to any State convention or association of school directors held within the Commonwealth, and may appoint the secretary of the board as a delegate to attend the annual State convention or association of secretaries of boards of school directors to be held at the same time and place as the State convention or association of school directors. It shall be the duty of such delegate and such secretary to attend the meetings of such convention or association, and each delegate and secretary so attending shall be reimbursed for all necessary traveling and hotel expenses actually incurred. Each such board of school directors shall prescribe a maximum amount to be allowed to any such person for such expenses.

Such expenses shall be paid by the treasurer of the school district, in the usual manner, out of the school funds of the district, upon the presentation of an itemized, verified statement of such expenses.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the School Law of 1911, Section 410, as amended by the Acts of 1919, P. L. 56, Section 1, and 1927, P. L. 684, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 345.
The third sentence is new. It is designed to eliminate exorbitant expense accounts.

ARTICLE VIII.

TAXATION.

A. General Power.

Section 800. Power to Levy Taxes.—[1]All taxes required by any school district in this Commonwealth, in addition to the State appropriation, shall be levied by the board of school directors.

Note:

1. This is Section 501 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 381.

B. Districts of the First Class

Section 801. Fiscal Year in School Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the fiscal year shall begin on the first day of January on each year.

Note:

1. This is Section 523 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 561.

Section 802. Information for Preparation of Budget.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the school controller shall annually furnish to the board of school directors, on or before the first day of November, such information as he may deem proper, or as may be required of him by the board, in order to enable it to prepare the annual estimate of ex-expenditures and tax levy for the following school year.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 2220 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1977.

Section 803. Budget; Diversion of Funds.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the board of school directors shall, annually, at or before the time of levying the annual school taxes, prepare an approximate estimate of the amount of funds that will be required by the school district in its several departments for the following fiscal year. Such budget shall be apportioned to the several classes of expenditures of the district as the board of school directors thereof may determine. Thereafter no moneys, apportioned for any class of expenditure, shall be used for purposes other than those designated for that class in the budget until after a resolution in favor of such diversion of funds shall have been passed by the affirmative vote of two-thirds (2/3) of all of the then qualified members of the board of school directors. The total amount of such estimate shall not exceed the amount of funds, including the proposed annual tax levy and State appropriation to be available for school purposes in the district, for the following fiscal year.

Upon request, the board shall furnish a copy of such budget to any freeholder of the district.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 532 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 571.
The third sentence is new. It has been drawn from Section 563 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 91, Section 2, 24 PS Sec. 610, which required a two-thirds (2/3) vote for any diversion of funds in districts of the second, third and fourth classes.

Section 804. Certification of Annual Estimate of Current Funds to the Controller.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the annual estimate of the fnuds for each current fiscal school year, as made by the board of school directors at or before the time of levying the annual school taxes, shall be properly certified to the school controller of the district by the secretary of the board.

Note:

1. This is Section 534 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 572.

Section 805. Amount of Tax Levy.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the school taxes for the following fiscal year shall be levied annually, by the board of school directors thereof, on or before the second Monday of November and before the first Monday of December.

Such board of school directors shall annually levy a tax on each dollar of the total assessment of all property assessed and certified for taxation in such district, which tax shall be ascertained, determined, and fixed by adding together the following:

(a) An amount which, with all moneys received from the Commonwealth applicable thereto, shall be sufficient to pay the minimum salaries and increments of the teaching and supervisory staff thereof as fixed and provided by law, and to pay the contributions of the district to the teachers' retirement system.

(b) An amount sufficient to pay the interest on, and retire the principal of the indebtedness of the district at maturity.

(c) An amount sufficient to pay all other expenses and requirements of the school district, which amount shall be equivalent to not les than three, nor more than three and one-half mills on the dollar of the total assessment of all property assessed and certified for taxation therein.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 524 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 328, Section 3, and 1929, P. L. 20, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 562.

Section 806. Tax Receiver; Certification of Levy to Tax Officials.—[1]Upon any school taxes being levied by the board of school directors in any school district of the first class, the amount of such levy shall forthwith be properly certified, under the seal of the district, attested by the president and secretary of the board, to the board or bureau of assessors, board of revision of taxes or other proper authority, authorized to prepare tax duplicates, to be entered thereon, and by said authority properly certified to the receiver of taxes, city treasurer, or other proper authority or authorities collecting the municipal taxes in such district, which school taxes shall then be collected as herein provided, at the same time, in the same manner, and with like authority, and subject to the same discounts and penalties as other taxes are therein collected.

Note:

1. This is Section 527 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 566.

Section 807. Receiver of Taxes to Furnish Bond or Security.—[1]Every properly authorized and designated receiver of taxes, city treasurer, or other authority in a school district of the first class, who is by this act authorized to receive the school taxes for such school district shall, before entering upon the duties of his office as collector or receiver of school taxes, furnish to the school district a bond in such amount and with such corporate or individual surety or sureties as the board of school directors may require and approve conditioned upon the faithful performance of his duty in the office of collector or receiver of school taxes. The cost of such bond shall be paid by the school district. If individual surety is offered for approval, no one person may qualify for more than one-fourth (1/4) of the total amount of the bond required; such persons who are offered as individual sureties shall qualify, in an aggregate over and above their individual liabilities, to three (3) times the amount of the bond. However, in lieu of the surety bond of corporations or individuals, the person authorized to receive the school taxes in such districts of the first class may deposit with the school district or with any bank or trust company within the Commonwealth which may be agreed upon, United States, municipal, or county bonds in an amount to be approved by the board of school directors. Such bonds shall be accompanied by a proper assignment or power of attorney for their transfer. Such trust deposit of securities shall be maintained, on request, at the amount required by the board of school directors.

Note:

1. The first sentence of this section is based upon the first paragraph of Section 528 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 567.
The remainder of the section has been drawn from Section 505 of The Fiscal Code of 1929 P. L. 343, 72 PS Sec. 505, which relates to the furnishing of bonds or security by the depositories of State funds. For a further discussion of the substitution of collateral security for surety bonds see the note to Section 623 of this draft.

Section 808. Refusal of Tax Receiver to Furnish Bond or Security.—[1]If any person herein authorized to be receiver or collector of school taxes in any school district of the first class shall refuse or neglect to furnish a proper bond or security as herein provided within fifteen (15) days after he shall have been notified by the board of school directors to do so, the board of school directors may elect any other proper person as receiver of the school taxes.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the last paragraph of Section 528 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 567.
The portion of that paragraph of Section 528, supra, dealing with the school treasurer, has been placed in a separate section of this draft. See Section 630, et seq.

Section 809. Reports of Tax Receivers.—[1]Every properly authorized and designated receiver or collector of school taxes in school districts of the first class shall, at the end of each month, report to the board of school directors, and to the school controller, the total amount of school taxes collected during the month, setting forth the years for which he collected. He shall pay the same when and as colected to the school treasurer, and shall file with the school controller a duplicate receipt therefor, and shall at the end of each month also report the total amount collected during the current fiscal year, and the unexonerated balance remaining uncollected on the tax duplicate for each year.

Note:

1. This is Section 529 of the School Iaw of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 568.

Section 810. Annual Settlements by Tax Receivers.—[1]Every properly authorized and designated receiver or collector of school taxes on school districts of the first class shall, annually, on the first Monday of February of each year, settle his accounts for the school taxes for the preceding fiscal year, and shall at the same time furnish the board of school directors with a statement of the total amount of school taxes standing unpaid upon the tax duplicates.

Note:

1. This is Section 530 of the School Law of 1911, 14 PS Sec. 569.

Section 811. Unpaid Taxes as Liens; Enforcement of Liens.—[1]In each school district of the first class, all unpaid school taxes assessed upon any real property shall be liens thereon in like manner, and subject to like provisions and restrictions, as exist and shall exist in the cases of all other taxes assessed in this Commonwealth; such taxes shall be enforced, and collected, and the liens shall be filed by the properly authorized and designated receiver of school taxes in districts of the first class in the manner and under and in accordance with the provisions which are and shall be applicable in the cases of other taxes assessed in this Commonwealth.

Note:

1. This is Section 531 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 570.

C. Districts of the Second, Third and Fourth Classes.

Section 812. Fiscal Year.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, the fiscal year shall begin on the first Monday of July in each year.

Note:

1. This is Section 536 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 591.

Section 813. Budget; Diversion of Funds from Designated Purposes.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes the board of school directors shall, annually, before levying the annual school taxes, prepare a budget for the amount of funds that will be required by the school district in its several departments for the following fiscal year. Such budget shall be apportioned to the several classes of expenditures of the district as the board of school directors thereof may determine. Thereafter no moneys apportioned for any class of expenditures shall be used for purposes other than those designated for that class in the budget until after a resolution in favor of such a diversion of funds shall have been passed by the affirmative vote of two-thirds (2-3) of all of the then qualified members of the board of school directors. The total amount of such budget shall not exceed the amount of funds, including the proposed annual tax levy and State appropriation, available for school purposes in that district.

Upon request the board shall furnish a copy of such budget to any freeholder of the district.

Note:

1. This is Section 563 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 610.
The provision requiring a two-thirds (2-3) vote of the entire board before any funds can be diverted from the purposes established in the budget is new. Section 563 of the School Law of 1911, supra, requires "affirmative action by the board"; Section 513 of the School Law of 1911, however, requires the affirmative vote of two-thirds (2-3) of all the members.

Section 814. Rate of Taxation.—[1]In all school districts of the second class, all school taxes shall annually be levied by the board of school directors before the first day of June for the following fiscal year;[2] in all school districts of the third and fourth classes, all school taxes shall annually be levied and assessed by the board of school directors therein, during the month of April or May, for the following fiscal year. In school districts of the second class such taxes shall not exceed twenty (20) mills on the dollar, and in school districts of the third and fourth classes shall not exceed twenty-five (25) mills on the dollar, on the total amount of the assessed valuation of all property taxable for school purposes. When the directors of any school district shall fix the rate of taxation for any year at a mill rate, the resolution shall also state the rate of taxation in dollars and cents on each one hundred dollars of assessed valuation of taxable property. Each school district of the second, third or fourth class may also collect a per capita tax of not less than one nor more than five dollars on each resident or inhabitant of such district over twenty-one (21) years of age, as herein provided.

In no school district shall more than one (1) mill of such tax on the dollar of the assessed valuation of taxable property in such district be allotted for the operating and maintaining of parks, playgrounds, playfields, gymnasiums, public baths, swimming pools, and recreation centers.[3]

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 537 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 508, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 592.

The sentence relating to the per capita tax is a restatement of a portion of Section 542 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 508, Section 4, 24 PS Sec. 631.

2. The provision permitting districts of the second class to levy their taxes any time prior to the first day of June is new; under the present law, they are governed by the same provisions as are third and fourth class districts. The change has been made in order to permit tax collectors in city districts to send out all tax notices at one time, thus saving the amount required for postage. It is estimated that in some cities this saving will amount to eighteen hundred dollars ($1800.00) per year.

3. The last paragraph has been drawn from the Act of 1919, P. L. 784, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 484; and 1927, P. L. 56 PS Sec. 1504. That act, however, permits a levy of two mills.

Section 815. Library Tax.—[1]In each school district of the second class, the board of school directors may, in addition to the further taxes provided herein, annually levy a special library tax, not exceeding one (1) mill on the dollar of the assessed valuation of taxable property in the district, and may pay the receipts from such tax to the board of library trustees for the purpose of assisting in the support, maintenance, and operation, according to the terms of any agreement which shall have been authorized by law, of any free, public, nonsectarian library which shall have been established and maintained in the municipal subdivision in which such district, or the greater part thereof, shall be located. Such levy shall not be invalided because it will increase the total levy in a school district of the second class above the limit provided herein.

Note:

1. This is Section 2519 of the School Law of 1911. It was added to the School Law of 1911 by the Act of 1929, P. L. 1630, 24 PS Sec. 2178. That amendment provides that the board may annually levy a special library tax, not exceeding one mill on the dollar of the assessed valuation. Inasmuch as this amendment was adopted after Section 537 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 592, which places a maximum on the millage. Section 2519 must be construed as raising the maximum. It has been thus written in this new section.

Section 816. Taxation to Meet Minimum Salaries and Increments.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, the board of school directors is hereby authorized and required to levy annually a tax on each dollar of the total assessment of all property assessed and certified for taxation therein to pay, with the aid of the appropriations of the Commonwealth,[2] the minimum salaries and increments of the teaching and supervisory staff provided for herein. This tax shall not be invalidated or affected by reason of the fact that it may increase the total annual school tax levy of any school district beyond the millage otherwise fixed or limited by this act. In districts of the fourth class, however, the tax herein authorized, together with all other school taxes levied in the district, shall not exceed thirty-five (35) mills on each dollar of the assessed valuation thereof.

Note:

1. This is Subsection 24 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1923, P. L. 328, 24 PS Sec. 1186.

2. The phrase relating to the State appropriations is new, it is designed to prevent any ambiguity.

Section 817. Tax Duplicates.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes as soon as the school tax shall be assessed and levied by the board of school directors, the secretary shall compute and enter the amount of the school tax to be collected on the duplicate herein required to be furnished to the school district. A certified copy of the duplicate shall then be furnished by the board of school directors to the tax collector or collectors in each district on or before the first Monday in July in each year, together with a proper warrant signed by the president and attested by the secretary of the board of school directors with the corporate seal of the district, if any, attached, authorizing and directing him to collect according to law the taxes set forth in his duplicate. In any school district where the collector of school taxes is also the collector of county taxes, the secretary of the board of school directors may compute and add the amount of the school taxes to the duplicate furnished by the county commissioners to such tax collector for county purposes.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Sections 546 and 549 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 597—598.

Section 818. Tax Collectors in One Thousand Nine Hundred Thirty-three.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, the school taxes shall, for the school year which shall begin on the first Monday of July, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three, be collected by the collector or collectors of the city, borough, incorporated town, or township taxes within the school district. Each such collector shall collect the school taxes in that portion of the school district covered by the borough, incorporated town, or township of which he is tax collector.

Note:

1. This is a new section. The School Law of 1911 contains no express statement as to who should serve as collectors of school taxes on school districts of the second, third and fourth classes. That the collectors of local taxes were to perform these duties for the school districts had to be drawn by impdication from the whole article on school finances. A definite statement as to who shall collect the school taxes has here been made.

Inasmuch as this proposed act will not become effective until the first Monday of July, 1933, the tax duplicates will have previously been given to the tax collectors. The new system of central collection cannot be put into effect until the next school year.

Section 819. Local Tax Collectors.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes which shall have the whole or the greater portion of its territory located in one city, borough, incorporated town, or township, which shall have a population of ten thousand (10,000) or more, the collector or collectors of city, borough, incorporated town or township taxes within such district shall continue to collect the school taxes. Each such collector shall collect the school taxes within such school district.

Note:

1. This section is new. It covers those districts which have the whole or the greater portion of their territory within one subdivision. For other districts see Section 820 of this draft.

Section 820. Appointment of Tax Collectors.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, which shall not have the whole or the greater portion of its territory located in one city, borough, incorporated town, or township, which shall have a population of ten thousand (10,000) or more, the board of school directors shall on or before the second Monday of May, one thousand nine hundred thirty-four, and annually thereafter, appoint a tax collector. The person thus appointed shall collect the school taxes within such district for the school year which shall begin on the first Monday of the next following July.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It provides for a centralized tax collection system. The plan, here set forth, has the benefits flowing from the discontinuance of the collection by a collector in each municipal subdivision, and at the same time does not have the disadvantages which may result where the tax collector is too far away from the persons taxed. This section will reduce the number of collectors from approximately two thousand, five hundred eighty-seven to five hundred.

There is no constitutional bar to the discontinuance of the duties of the local tax collectors for they all come up for election in the municipal election to be held in the fall of 1933. This proposed draft, if enacted, would be in effect before such election. Cornman v. Haggenbotham, 227 Pa. 594 (1910).

Section 821. Ineligibility of Delinquent Tax Collectors.—[1]Any tax collector in a school district of the second, third or fourth class who shall fail, on or before the first day of June of each year, to settle in full his duplicate for the preceding year, shall be ineligible for the office of tax collector until one (1) year after the duplicate has been settled in full.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 560 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 607. The specific mention of the date is new.

Section 822. Appointment of Tax Collectors to Fill Vacancies.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, the board of school directors, when there shall be any vacancy in any office the holder of which is herein authorized to collect the school taxes, when the incumbent of any such office shall have failed to settle in full his duplicate for the preceding year as herein provided, or when any tax collector shall have refused to qualify or furnish a bond as herein provided, shall, on or before the second Monday of June[2] in each year, appoint one (1) or more suitable persons as tax collectors, in the school district. Each such person who shall thus be appointed shall collect the school taxes which should have been collected by the person who would have filled the office in which there shall be a vacancy, or who shall have failed to settle his duplicate, refused to qualify, or failed to furnish a bond.

Note:

1. This is based upon Sections 547 and 560 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 600, 607.

The phrase relating to a settlement of the tax duplicate has been drawn from Section 560 of the School Law of 1911, supra. Under the Act of 1911 it was held in Black v. Duquesne Borough School District, 239 Pa. 96, (1913), that the tax collector of local taxes who is elected by the voters, could continue to serve year after year although he had not settled his duplicate for the preceding years, and that only those appointed by the board of school directors were subject to the restrictions as to the settlement of the duplicates for the preceding year. This new section, includes within its provisions, all collectors of school taxes.

2. The date for the appointment has been changed from the first day of June to the second Monday of June because the duplicate may be settled until the first day of June.

Section 547, supra, contained a provision permitting the board to appoint one person who should collect for more than one ward or subdivision of a district. That provision has been omitted, for as stated in the footnote to Section 820 of this draft, it is desirable to eliminate the unnecessarily large number of tax collectors.

Section 823. Appointment of Deputy Tax Collector.—[1]The tax collector elected or appointed in any school district of the second, third and fourth classes may deputize in writing one (1) or more suitable deputy tax collectors, who, when so deputized shall be authorized to collect the school taxes in like manner and with like authority as the tax collector appointing them. Each tax collector appointing any one (1) or more deputy collectors shall be responsible for, and account to the board of school directors for all taxes collected by said deputy or deputies.

Note:

1. This is Section 548 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 601.

Section 824. Bonds or Security of Tax Collector.—[1]Every person who shall become a collector of school taxes in any school district of the second, third and fourth classes, in addition to any other bonds that he may be required by law to give, and before receiving his tax duplicate and warrant to collect the school taxes, shall furnish to the school district a proper bond, in an amount to be fixed by the board of school directors with such corporate or individual surety or sureties as the board may require and approve, conditioned upon the faithful performance of his duties as such collector of school taxes. If individual surety is offered for approval, no one person may qualify for more than one-fourth (¼) of the total amount of the bond required; such persons shall qualify in an aggregate over and above their individual liabilities to an amount equal to three (3) times the amount of the bond. The cost of the bond may be paid by the board of school directors. Each such collector of school taxes, except those appointed by the board of school directors as provided herein, shall furnish such bond on or before the first day of May in each year. Each collector of school taxes who has been appointed by the board of school directors shall furnish such bond within fifteen (15) days after notification of his appointment and of the security required. However, in lieu of a surety bond of corporations or individuals, the tax collector may deposit with the school district or with any bank or trust company within the Commonwealth which may be agreed upon, United States, municipal or county bonds in an amount to be approved by the board of school directors.[2] Such bonds shall be accompanied by a proper assignment or power of attorney for their transfer. Such trust deposit of securities shall be maintained on request in the amount required by the board of school directors.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Section 550 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 602, provides that: " * * * In case any person elected or appointed tax collector shall fail to furnish a proper bond within fifteen days after his appointment, or notice so to do, * * * the board of school directors shall appoint another suitable person." Inasmuch as normally collectors of school taxes are not appointed or elected as such, but become collectors of school taxes automatically due to their being collectors of township and borough taxes this provision has very little meaning. It has therefore been changed to meet the situations where the regular tax collectors shall serve and where the board has appointed a tax collector.

2. This sentence is new. See note to Section 623 of this draft.

Section 825. Notice to Taxables.—[1]Every school tax collector in any school district of the second, third or fourth class shall, within thirty (30) days after receiving his tax duplicate, send or deliver by mail, or otherwise, a printed or written notice, to each taxable on his duplicate. Such notice shall contain the following: the rate of taxation, the valuation of the property assessed, the amount of school taxes for the current year, a statement that the same are due and payable, a request for their payment, a designated place in said district, and a stated time or times, where and when the same may be paid, the dates on which any discounts will be allowed and the amounts of the discounts, the dates on which any penalties will be imposed and the amounts of the penalties and, if payment by installments has been authorized, the dates when the several installments shall become due and delinquent. The expenses of postage and printing of such notices shall be paid by the district.

Note:

1. This is based upon Section 551 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 599.

Section 826. Collection and Disposition of Taxes by Tax Collectors; Settlement of Duplicates.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, every collector of school taxes shall proceed to collect the taxes set forth in the duplicate furnished to him, and pay the same over at least once every month, as herein required. Each such collector shall annually, on or before the first day of June, fully account for the total amount of school taxes appearing upon the tax duplicates furnished to him, less such amount as he may be exonerated from by the board of school directors, and also less such amount of unpaid taxes as shall be assessed and levied upon real property in such school district upon which there is no personal property out of which such school taxes might have been or could have been collected.

Note:

1. This is Section 559 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 606.

Section 827. Reports and Payments by Tax Collectors.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, every collector of school taxes shall make a written report to the secretary of the board of school directors at the end of every month of the amount of taxes collected by him during such month, furnishing the names of the taxables from whom the same have been collected. Such tax collector shall at the end of each month pay the full amount of school taxes collected during the month to the school treasurer of the district, and exhibit to the secretary, to be countersigned by him at the time of making such report, the receipt of the school treasurer showing that such amount of taxes as reported has been paid to the school treasurer.

Note:

1. This is Section 553 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 604.

Section 828. List of Employes.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, each collector of school taxes may send a written request to each person, firm, association, or corporation, which shall employ any one or more persons, and which is located in the school district the taxes of which shall be collected by such collector, for a list of all of the persons and their addresses, who shall be employed by such person, firm, association, or corporation and who shall reside in such school district.

Upon the receipt of such a request, each such person, firm, association, or corporation shall, within fifteen (15) days thereafter, prepare and send such tax collector a complete list of such employes and their addresses.

Each person, firm, association, or corporation which shall violate the provisions of this section shall forfeit and pay to such district the sum of five dollars ($5.00) for each such employe whose name and address shall not be thus sent to the collector.

Note:

1. This is a new section.

Sections 829 and 830 of this draft provide for the collection of a per capita tax from the employers of residents of the various school districts. In order that the tax collector may know where the various residents are employed this section has been written.

Section 829. Collection of Per Capita Tax from Employers.—[1]In case any resident or inhabitant of any school district of the second, third or fourth class neglects or refuses to pay his or her per capita tax as herein provided, after having received ten days' notice or demand for its payment, the collector of such school taxes shall notify any person, firm, association, or corporation, where such delinquent taxpayer is employed, that such taxpayer has failed or neglected to pay his or her per capita tax as required. The collectors of school taxes may thereupon request the payment of such per capita tax by the employer, out of any money then due and owing, or thereafter to become due and owing, to such delinquent taxpayer; thereupon, every such person, firm, association, or corporation, employing any such delinquent taxpayer, shall[2] deduct from any wages that are then or may thereafter become due and owing to him the amount of the delinquent per capita tax, and pay the same over to the collector of school taxes, and the proper receipt for such taxes paid to the tax collector by any employer shall for that amount be a good and sufficient voucher to offset any claim that the delinquent taxpayer may have against such employer for any wages to the amount thereof.

Note:

1. This is Section 557 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 508, Section 8, 24 PS Sec. 636.
2. In lieu of the word "shall," Section 557 used the word "may." Since this step should be compulsory, the word "shall" has been used in this section.

Section 830. Procedure upon Default by Employers.—[1]If any person, firm, association, or corporation, receiving a notice from any school tax collector requesting the payment of the per capita tax of any employe, shall fail or refuse to deduct from any wages then due or that may thereafter become due and owing to such employe the amount of such tax, or if such person, firm, association, or corporation deducts the amount of such per capita tax and fails to pay the same over to the collector of school taxes in any district within thirty (30) days after making such deduction or deductions, such person, firm, association, or corporation shall forfeit and pay to such school district a sum equal to he amount of such per capita tax owed by[2] such employe or employes as aforesaid. Such sum, together with costs, may be recovered by the said school district in any action of assumpsit against such person, firm, association, or corporation failing to deduct and pay over such tax, as debts of like amount are now recoverable. In the collection of any judgment recovered by any such delinquent per capita tax against any person, firm, association, or corporation, the defendant therein shall not be entitled to the benefit of any exemption, appraisement law, or stay of execution.

Note:

1. This is Section 558 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 637.
2. In lieu of the words "owed by," Section 558 used the words "collected from." The change precludes an interpretation that the district could only collect from the employes if the employer had collected from the employes.

Section 831. Return of Unpaid Taxes.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, all unpaid school taxes assessed and levied upon real property upon which there is no personal property out of which such tax can be collected, shall be certified annually on or before the first Monday of May, by the tax collector to the secretary of the board of school directors, together with a proper description of the property upon which such taxes have been levied. All delinquent school taxes due the board of school directors, shall be collected by the board as provided by law. The right, as to the return of the taxes, as herein provided, shall be in addition to any further rights, as to the return of such taxes, which are or may be provided by law.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 562 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 609.
No mention has been made in this section of the privilege which was granted by the Act of 1931, P. L. 280, 72 PS Sec. 5971a et seq. to make a return to the county commissioners of school taxes which were assessed and levied upon seated lands and for which no liens had been filed. The Act of 1931 relates to the return of such taxes by any municipal subdivision. In an opinion dated August 24, 1931, Deputy Attorney General Harris C. Arnold, held that, under that Act, the collectors of school taxes shall return, to the county commissioners, unpaid taxes on seated lands regardless of the existence of personal property which would be sufficient to pay the tax. No returns, however, may be made if the school directors, acting under Section 21 of the Act of 1931, notify the collector not to make such return.

Section 832. Advertisement of Persons Exonerated.—[1]The board of school directors of any school district of the second, third or fourth class may, at the expense of the district, advertise once a week, for not longer than three weeks, in a newspaper of general circulation in the school district, the names of all persons from the collection of whose taxes the collector shall have been exonerated by the board.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 545 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 633, Section 545, supra, provides that the board of school directors may advertise the case of all persons who have been exonerated by the board from the payment of their school taxes. In Carver v. Hanover Township School District, 17 D. & C. 116, it was held that the board had no power to grant any exonerations to owners of real estate for the taxes assessed upon such realty.

D. Tax Levies

Section 833. Number of Annual Tax Levies; Uniformity.—[1]Except as otherwise provided herein, there shall be but one levy of school taxes made in each school district in each year; such tax shall be assessed, levied, and collected for all the purposes provided in this act, and shall be uniform throughout the territorial limit of each district.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the first sentence of Section 502 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 546, Section 3, 24 PS Sec. 382.

Section 834. Taxation to Meet Indebtedness.—[1]Each school district shall, at or before the incurring of any indebtedness, other than the temporary indebtedness provided herein to meet current expenses, provide for the collection of an annual tax sufficient to pay the principal and interest thereof within the term of such indebtedness which shall not exceed thirty (30) years. Such tax shall annually thereafter be included in the annual tax levy.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
It is based upon Article IX, Section 10 of the Constitution of 1874 which provides:
"Any county, township, school district or other municipality incurring any indebtedness shall, at or before the time of so doing, provide for the collection of an annual tax sufficient to pay the interest and also the principal thereof within thirty years."
This section of the Constitution has been construed as not applying to incidental and ordinary expenses: Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company Appeal, 112 Pa. 360 (1886); Spangler v. Gallagher, 182 Pa. 277 (1897). In accordance with the construction of Article IX, Section 10 of the Constitution, the exception relating to debts incurred to meet current expenses, as provided in Section 902 of this draft has been inserted.

Section 835. Extraordinary Tax Levies After Partition of a District.—[1]In addition to the levies provided herein, when it is shown to the court of common pleas of the county in which a school district or the largest part thereof is located that, by reason of the partition of any school district and the apportionment of the debts of the original district, the debts of such district exceed the amount which the board of directors may collect in any year by taxation, the court, after ascertaining the amount of indebtedness of any such school district, may, by a decree or a writ of mandamus, direct the board of school directors by special taxation to collect an amount sufficient to pay the same. If the amount of such indebtedness is so large as to render it inadvisable to collect the same in any one year, taking into consideration other necessary taxation, the court may direct the same to be levied and collected by annual installments, and may order such special taxes to be levied and collected during such successive years as may be required for the payment of the same. The special tax shall be subject to the same penalties for non-payment and shall be computed and collected in the same manner as the taxes provided for in the preceding sections.

Note:

1. This is Section 567 which was added to the School Law of 1911 by the amendment of 1931, P. L. 243, Section 14, 24 PS Sec. 482.
The jurisdiction has been transferred from the court of quarter sessions to the court of common pleas to achieve greater uniformity.

Section 836. Tax Levies Upon Annexations With Districts of the First Class.—[1]When the whole or a portion of one (1) or more districts of the second, third and fourth classes shall be consolidated or annexed for school or municipal purposes with a school district of the first class, the board of school directors of such new or enlarged school district shall, in determining the amount of the tax levy for the first school year for each portion of the territory of such school district which prior to the annexation was the whole or portion of a school district of the second, third or fourth class, subtract from the rate of the levy for the whole school district the number of mills which will reduce the amount of the tax for each such portion of the school district an amount equal to one-half (½) of the last tax levied for school purposes in such portion of the enlarged or new school district prior to the consolidation.

Note:

1. This is a new section. The School Law of 1911 in Section 127 (a) as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 546, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 101 and in the proviso to Section 502 of the School Law of 1911, supra, provides that when a school district of the second, third or fourth class shall be consolidated with a school district of the first class, the smaller school district shall immediately be merged into the larger. The board of school directors of the school district of the first class has power to levy a special tax upon the new territory in order to defray expenses incurred between the close of the school year in school districts of the second, third and fourth classes and the beginning of the school year in school districts of the first class.

In this draft, it is provided that any such consolidation of school districts shall only become effective upon the beginning of the school year of districts of the first class. Inasmuch as the school taxes will have been levied and become due in these smaller school districts six months prior to this effective date of the enlarged school district, the taxpayers should be given credit for their taxes paid or owing to the old school district. In addition, however, they should aid in the payment of the expenses of the enlarged school district of the first class, to which they now belong. The School Law of 1911 has no provision on this subject.

The school year in school districts of the first class begins on the first day of January; in school districts of the second, third and fourth classes it begins on the first Monday of July. Taxes are levied in school districts of the first class between the first Monday of November and the first Monday of December; in school districts of the second, third and fourth classes taxes are levied during April and May.

Section 837. Tax Levies Upon Annexation of Districts of the Second, Third and Fourth Classes.—[1]When hereafter the whole or a portion of two or more school districts all being of the second, third and fourth classes or any of them, shall be annexed or consolidated into a school district of the first class, the board of school directors of the new or enlarged school district of the first class shall compute the amount of the tax levy for the first school year by fixing a millage for the entire new or enlarged school district and then for each portion of such district which was a separate school district or a portion thereof, deduct from such levy the number of mills which shall reduce the amount of the tax for each such portion of the new or enlarged school district an amount equal to one-half (½) of the last tax levied for school purposes in such portion of the new or enlarged district prior to the consolidation or annexation.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to the preceding section of this draft.

Section 838. Extension of Time For Levy and Collection of Taxes in Districts of the First Class.—[1]When any consolidation or annexation for school or municipal purposes of the whole or a portion of two (2) or more school districts into a new or enlarged school district of the first class shall become effective between the first Monday of November and the first day of the following January, and when a new school district of the first class shall be formed by the creation, between such dates, of a new city or of a borough, incorporated town, or township having a population of ten thousand (10,000) or more, or by a borough's, incorporated town's or township's having attained such a population, the dates provided in this act for the filing of the duplicates of the valuation of the taxable property and the taxable residents within such new or enlarged district, the certification of the levy and filing of the duplicates with the tax collector or receiver, the dates for the return of the tax duplicates, the dates for the discounts and penalties, and all other dates connected with the assessment, levy, and collection of the taxes of such new or enlarged school district shall be postponed such period, not to exceed two (2)months, as the board of school directors of such new or enlarged district shall determine.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
The general tax system provided by this draft is based upon the theory that the tax will be levied in school districts of the first class in the month of November.

This section has been written to enable the boards of new or enlarged school districts to levy and collect their taxes in the event that the district has not been formed at an early enough date to come under the regular tax schedule.

Section 839. Extension of Time For Levy and Collection of Taxes in Districts of the Second, Third and Fourth Classes.—[1]When any consolidation or annexation, for school or municipal purposes, of the whole or a portion of two (2) or more school districts into a new or enlarged school district of the second, third or fourth class shall become effective between the first day of May and the first Monday of the following July, and when a new school district of one (1) of those classes shall be formed by the creation, between such dates, of a new city, or of a borough, incorporated town, or township, having a population of ten thousand (10,000) or more, or by a borough's, incorporated town's, or township's having attained such a population, the dates provided in this act for the filing of the duplicates of the valuation of the taxable property and of the taxable residents within such new or enlarged district, the certification of the levy and filing of the duplicates with the tax collector or receiver, the dates for the return of the tax duplicates, the dates for the discounts and penalties, and all other dates connected with the assessment, levy, and collection of the taxes of such new or enlarged school district shall be postponed such period, not to exceed two (2) months, as the board of school directors of such new or enlarged district shall determine.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
The general tax system provided by this draft is based upon the theory that the tax will be levied in school districts of the second, third, and fourth classes in April or May.

This section has been written to enable the boards of new or enlarged school districts to levy and collect their taxes in the event that the district has not been formed at an early enough date to come under the regular tax schedule.

Section 840. Restrictions During Pendency of Proceedings for Annexation for School Purposes.—[1]After a preliminary resolution for the annexation for school purposes of the whole or parts of two (2) or more school districts has been adopted by any board of school directors, no board of school directors in any school district to be affected by such proposed annexation or consolidation shall levy or assess a tax or incur debts for the purpose of purchasing ground, or building; or enlarging a school building.

The pendency of any other proceedings in court for the changing of any boundary lines of any city, incorporated town, borough, or township, or the creation of any new city, borough, or township shall not prevent or restrict the levying and assessing of school taxes and the incurring of debts by any school district.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
Section 515 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 363, as originally enacted, contained a prohibition against the levying of a school tax or the incurring of indebtedness for the purpose of purchasing ground or the erection or enlargement of a school building pending any change of boundary proceedings.

The Act of 1929, P. L. 30, Section 1, amended Section 515, supra, and provided that the pendency of these proceedings should not affect the taxing and borrowing power. Such a provision is desirable. Each proceeding for a changing of boundaries should not preclude the proper adoption and execution by the school districts of their building programs, for in many instances there is no connection between the location of schools and the changing of boundary lines. Such proceedings could be used to harass unnecessarily a board of school directors.

The consolidation of school districts is generally undertaken for the specific purpose of arranging school facilities. No change in school locations should be permitted during the pendency of consolidation proceedings.

E. Collection of Taxes

Section 841. Taxable Property.—[1]In each school district, the school taxes shall be levied and assessed upon all of the property within the school district upon which the county taxes of such county are levied and assessed.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
Section 525 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 564, provides that in each school district of the first class, school taxes shall be levied and assessed upon the same property as that upon which the municipal taxes are levied and assessed; Section 538 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 593, provides that in each school district of the second class, the school taxes shall be levied and assessed upon the property contained in the assessment made for city tax purposes; Section 540 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1923, P. L. 102, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 595, provides that in each school district of the third class which is coterminous with any city of the third class, the school taxes shall be levied and assessed on the property contained in the assessment for city tax purposes; the same section provides as to each school district of the third class which is not coterminous with a city of the third class and as to each school district of the fourth class, the school taxes should be levied and assessed upon the same property and assessments as those used for county purposes.

Inasmuch as this draft makes possible extensive consolidation of school districts, many instances will arise where a small school district will be consolidated with a larger school district of the first, second or third class. When a small district is thus consolidated with a larger one, school taxes should, throughout the entire school district, be levied upon the same property and based upon the same assessments. This uniformity can best be accomplished by basing all school taxes upon property taxed for county purposes and upon county assessments as the School Law of 1911 provides as to school districts of the fourth class and school districts of the third class which are not coterminous with a city of the third class.

Section 842. Duplicate of Valuation of Taxable Property to be Supplied to Districts.—[1]The county commissioners in each county, shall annually, on or before the second Monday of November in school districts of the first class, and on or before the first day of April in school districts of the second, third, and fourth clases furnish, at the expense of the county, to each school district located wholly or partially within the county, a proper certified duplicate of the last adjusted valuation of all real estate and personal property taxable for county purposes in such school district. Each such duplicate shall state the name of each taxable, and the valuation, description, and kind of property, and a list of the residents and inhabitants assessed. All such real estate and personal property is hereby made taxable for school purposes in each such school district. Where any such school district shall comprise two (2) or more municipal subdivisions, such duplicate shall state separately the taxable property in each city, borough, incorporated town and township in such district.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 841 of this draft.

Section 843. Description of Tax Duplicate.—[1]The certified duplicates, herein required to be furnished to each school district, shall consist of a bound book or books printed and indexed according to the form to be submitted by the secretary of the board of school directors of each school district on or before the first day of March of each year in school districts of the second, third and fourth classes, and before the first day of October in each school district of the first class.

Note:

1. The subject-matter of this section has been drawn from the last sentence of Section 541 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 508, Section 3; and 1923, P. L. 102, Section 2; 24 PS Sec. 596.
Also, see note to Section 841 of this draft.

Section 844. Preparation of a List of Adult Residents.—[1]It shall be the duty of the proper assessors in each school district of the second, third and fourth classes to prepare a list of residents or inhabitants in such school district who are over twenty-one (21) years of age, and return such list with the return of taxable property in the school district as is provided by law. In each school district all such lists of residents or inhabitants shall be included and certified in the list of taxable property to be certified to the board of school directors in each such school district.

Each assessor whose assessment district includes the whole or parts of more than one school district shall return separate lists of the residents and inhabitants of each such school district.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 543 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1929, P. L. 497, Section 4, 24 PS Sec. 632.

Section 845. Duplicate of List of All Residents to be Supplied to School Districts.—[1]The county commissioners in each county shall, on or before the first day of April in each year, furnish, at the expense of the county, to each school district of the second, third and fourth classes located wholly or partially within the county, a proper certified duplicate of the residents or inhabitants of such school district who are twenty-one (21) or more, years of age.

Where any such school district shall comprise the whole or a portion of two or more municipal subdivisions, such list shall state separately the residents or inhabitants of each city, borough, incorporated town, and township in such district.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Its purpose is to furnish each school district of the second, third and fourth classes with a list of those persons subject to the per capita tax.

Section 846. Reporting and Taxing Persons Not Originally Assessed.—[1]In case the collector of school taxes in any school district of the second, third or fourth class, or any deputy thereof, shall at any time find within the district in which he is collector of school taxes or deputy thereof, any resident or inhabitant above the age of twenty-one (21) years, whose name does not appear upon the duplicate of the district, he shall report the name of such person forthwith to the proper assessor or assessors in the school district.

Such assessor or assessors, shall promptly certify such name to the county commissioners, who shall then promptly certify the name to the secretary of the board of school directors of the school district in which the party so assessed resides. The secretary shall add the name and assessment of such person to the duplicate of the collector of school taxes in such district, who shall thereupon proceed to collect the tax assessed against such person as herein provided. In no event, however, shall less than one dollar be collected from each person.

Note:

1. This is a consolidation of Section 555 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1927, P. L. 111, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 634, and Section 556 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 508, Section 7, 24 PS Sec. 635. Inasmuch as both of these sections relate to the procedure to be followed upon the discovery of unassessed persons, their provisions have been combined into one section in this draft.
All reference to city assessments has been eliminated.

Section 847. Powers of Collector in Districts Composed of One City, Borough, Incorporated Town, or Township.—[1]In each school district, which shall have the whole or the greater portion of its territory located within the boundaries of one (1) city, borough, incorporated town, or township, each collector of city, borough, incorporated town, or township taxes shall have and exercise in the collection of school taxes, subject to the same restrictions, all of the powers vested by law in such person for the collection of city, borough, incorporated town, or township taxes. If for any reason the collector of the city, borough, incorporated town, or township taxes shall not be the collector of school taxes, the person selected as herein provided to collect the school taxes shall, subject to the same restrictions, have and exercise all the powers and remedies which such other collector would have had in respect to the school taxes if he had served.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
As to who shall collect the taxes in school districts of the first class, see Section 806 of this draft; as to other districts, see Sections 819 and 820.
Section 527 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 566, provides that in each school district of the first class the school taxes should "be collected as herein provided, at the same time, in the same manner, and with like authority, and subject to the same discounts and penalties as other taxes are therein collected."
Section 552 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 603, provided "every tax collector appointed by the board of school directors in any school district of the second, third or fourth class, as herein provided, shall, in addition to the authority hereby given him, have the same power and authority to collect the school taxes therein as is or may be given by law to any tax collector."

Section 848. Powers of Collectors in Districts Not Comprised of One City, Borough, Incorporated Town or Township.—[1]In each school district which shall not have the whole or the greater portion of its territory located within the boundaries of one city, borough, incorporated town or township, the collector of school taxes shall have and exercise in the collection of such taxes all of the powers vested by law in the collector or collectors of county taxes within such district.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
The section describes the powers granted to collectors in county school districts.

Section 849. Levy and Distress.—[1]Each collector of school taxes, for the collection of delinquent taxes, shall have the power and authority, after five (5) days' notice, to seize by levy and distress, any personal property on the premises assessed, which shall belong to tenants, purchasers or others without regard to the date of assessment or levy of the tax, and to sell the same giving ten (10) days' public notice of such sale by printed or written advertisement; and to levy upon any personal property of the delinquent, that may be found within the county, for the collection of said taxes, and, after notice of sale, to sell the same for the payment of said taxes. The several warrants of such collectors shall be effectual to authorize such persons to collect the said taxes during two (2) years from the date of the respective warrants.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
This section is similar to the following sections of other acts: The latter portion of Section 2559 of the Third Class City Law of 1931, 1931 P. L. 932, 53 PS Sec. 12198-2559; Section 35 of the Act of 1834, P. L. 509, 53 PS Sec. 18819; Section 21 of the Act of 1834, P. L. 509, as amended by the Act of 1927, P. L. 712, Section 1, 72 PS Sec. 5641.

Section 850. Occupants of Land; Recovery of Taxes Paid.—[1]Each person who shall occupy the real estate on which school taxes shall be assessed shall be liable to pay all such taxes becoming due and payable thereon, and the goods and chattels of such person shall be liable to distress and sale for the nonpayment of any such taxes assessed upon such real estate during his possession and occupancy, in like manner as if such goods and chattels belonged to the owner of such real estate. Each occupant who shall have thus paid any taxes may by action of debt or otherwise recover the amount thereof from his landlord or person liable therefor, or may, at his election, defalcate the amount thereof in the payment of the rent due such landlord, unless such defalcation or recovery would impair any contract or agreement between such parties.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 2560 of the Third Class City Law of 1931, 53 PS Sec. 12198-2560.

Section 851. Imprisonment.—[1]If goods and chattels sufficient to satisfy the school taxes of any person, with costs, cannot be found, the collector of school taxes, or a person deputized by him, may take any such person whose taxes have become delinquent, except an infant or a person who shall have been legally determined to be insane or weak-minded, and convey him to the prison of the proper county, there to remain until the amount of such tax together with the costs and charges of such arrest, which shall be the same as allowed constables for similar services, shall be paid or secured to be paid, or until the debtor shall be otherwise discharged by due course of law.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 2561 of the Third Class City Law of 1931, 53 PS Sec. 12198-2561.
See also the sections of the acts cited in the note to Section 849 of this draft.

Section 852. Collection of Taxes by Suit.—[1]Every board of school directors may, in addition to the present manner and remedies provided by law for the collection of school taxes, maintain an action in assumpsit before any magistrate, justice of the peace, alderman, or in any court of record for the collection of any school taxes which have been returned to it as provided by law. Any judgment obtained for such taxes shall include a penalty of ten per centum (10%). Execution for the amount of the judgment and costs of suit may be issued without any stay of execution and no defendant in any such judgment shall have the right to any exemption.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 503 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 384.
The clause, "which have been returned to it as provided by law," is new. It has been added to prevent the imposition of the extra ten per centum (10%) penalty before the date herein provided for the return of such taxes.

Section 853. Compensation of Collector of Taxes—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall annually at the time of levying the taxes, determine the compensation of the receiver or collector of school taxes for the following school year. Such compensation shall not exceed one and one-half per centum (1½%) on the taxes which he shall collect before such taxes shall have become delinquent, and shall not exceed two per centum (2%) on taxes which he shall collect after they have become delinquent. No compensation may be allowed to any such receiver or collector of taxes for taxes which he shall have returned to the county commissioners as provided by law.

Each such district shall furnish such collector with the necessary stationery and books required by him in the performance of his duties as collector.

In each school district of the first class, the board may also appoint such clerks as it may deem necessary to assist the receiver of taxes.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
Sections 528 and 554 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 567 and 605 provides that the boards shall determine what compensation should be paid to the tax collector. No limit is established.
Section 2556 of the Third Class City Law of 1931, 53 PS Sec. 12198-2556, provides that the compensation of tax collectors shall not be less than one-fourth of one per centum on all taxes paid before any penalty has been incurred and five per centum (5%) on all taxes paid after penalty has been incurred.
In Section 1308 of the Borough Code of 1927, 1927 P. L. 519, 53 PS Sec. 13399, it is provided that the compensation of the tax collector shall be fixed by the corporate authorities and shall not exceed five per centum (5%) of the amount collected.

Section 854. Defaulting Tax Collectors.—[1]If any tax collector shall convert to his own use in any way whatever, or shall use by way of investment, any portion of the school funds collected by him, or shall prove to be a defaulter, or shall fail to pay the proper school treasurer at such times as are specified in this act, then every such act shall be deemed and adjudged to be an embezzlement of so much of such money as shall thus be taken, converted, invested, collected, and not paid over as specified by this act, and is hereby declared to be a misdemeanor. Every such tax collector, and every person aiding or abetting, or being in any way an accessory to such acts or any of them, and being duly convicted thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine, for the use of the school district, of not less than twenty-five dollars ($25.00) or more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00), or be sentenced to imprisonment for not less than thirty days or more than five years, or both, at the discretion of the court, and any such person so convicted shall forfeit his office.

Note:

1. This is Section 566 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 613.

Section 855. Tax Rebates and Penalties.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the same discounts shall be allowed and the same penalties added in the collection of such taxes as are allowed or added in the collection of the municipal taxes in such school district.

On all school taxes assessed and levied in each district of the second class, a rebate of one per centum (1%) shall be allowed if paid before the first day of August in the year in which they are assessed and levied. To all such taxes in school district of the second class which are not paid before the first day of October of the year in which they are assessed and levied there shall be added a penalty of five per centum (5%), and on the first day of January of the year following and on the first day of each month thereafter during which the taxes remain unpaid, an additional penalty of one-half of one per centum (½%) shall be added, which penalty shall be collected at the same time and in addition to the school taxes of which it is made a part. To all school taxes assessed and levied in all school districts of the third and fourth classes which are not paid on or before the first day of October in the year in which they are assessed and levied, there shall be added a penalty of five per centum (5%), which shall be collected at the same time as and in addition to the school taxes of which it is made a part. No discounts or rebates shall be allowed on the payment of any school taxes assessed and levied in any school district of the third or fourth class.

Note:

1. This is based upon Section 561 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 608. The first sentence has been drawn from Section 527 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 536.

Section 856. Payment of Taxes by Installments.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors may provide, by resolution adopted by the affirmative vote of two-thirds (2-3) of all of the then qualified members, for the collection and payment of the school taxes in monthly or other periodic installments. Each such method of collection and payment shall, if adopted, be in addition to any method now or hereafter prescribed by law.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Its policy has been drawn from the Act of 1932, P. L. 10, Section 1, 53 PS Sec. 4875.

Section 857. Installments; Penalties.—[1]Each such resolution shall set forth the number of installments in which the taxes, if paid by installments, shall be paid, and the dates when the respective installments shall become due and delinquent. To each installment, on the date when it shall become delinquent, a penalty of five per centum (5%) shall be added, which shall be collected in the same manner and with like power and authority as other school taxes shall be collected. No further penalties shall apply to or be added to any installments unless one or more installments shall remain unpaid and the lands upon which such installments shall be due are returned, as provided by law, to the county commissioners or to the board of school directors for non-payment, or unless a lien for such unpaid installment or installments shall be filed in the office of the prothonotary, in which cases the additional penalty or interest, provided by law to apply upon the return of taxes or the filing of liens, shall apply. No discounts or rebates shall be allowed to any taxpayer who shall make any payment of his taxes under an installment plan.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It is based upon Section 2 of the Act of 1932, P. L. 10, 53 PS Sec. 4876.

Section 858. Intention to Pay by Installments.—[1]The payment of the first installment by a taxpayer, before such installment shall become delinquent, shall be conclusive evidence of an intention to pay his taxes on the installment plan as provided by such resolution.

Where a taxpayer shall fail to evidence such intention, his taxes shall become due and payable, shall be collected, and shall be subject to the discounts, penalties, and interest herein provided, as though the board had not adopted a resolution permitting payment by installments.

Note:

1. This is a new section. The first paragraph has been drawn from Section 3 of the Act of 1932, P. L. 10, 53 PS Sec. 4877.

The Act of 1932, supra, contains the following clause: "but if a taxpayer shall thereafter permit one-half (½) or more of the total number of instalments of taxes to become delinquent, an additional penalty of three per centum (3%) shall be added to each such delinquent instalment." This provision has been omitted from this draft. Its meaning, considered with the remainder of the Act of 1932, supra, is ambiguous. Inasmuch as there appears no necessity for the imposition of the additional three per centum (3%) penalty, no substitute for the clause has been placed in this draft.

INDEBTEDNESS

Section 900. Limitation of Indebtedness.—[1]The total indebtedness incurred or created by any school district of the first class shall not exceed two per centum (2%) upon the total assessed value of the taxable property in such school district; [2]no school district of the second, third or fourth class shall incur any new debt or increase its indebtedness beyond such two per centum (2%), without the consent of the electors thereof at public election.

Note:

1. This is Section 535 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 535.
2. The remainder of the section is new; it has been drawn from Article IX, Section 8 of the Constitution of 1874.

Section 901. Increase of Indebtedness over Two Per Centum (2%).—[1]When a board of school directors, in districts of the second, third and fourth classes, shall desire to increase its indebtedness to an amount which shall exceed two per centum (2%) upon the last preceding assessed valuation of the taxable property therein, it shall give notice, by advertisement conducted in the manner provided herein, that an election will be held at the places in which municipal elections shall be held on a stated day, for the purpose of obtaining the assent of the electors to such an increase of indebtedness. Such notice shall contain a statement of the amount of the last assesed valuation, of the amount of the existing debt, the percentage of the proposed increase, and the purpose for which the indebtedness is to be increased. Such election shall be held at the place, time, and under the same regulations as is provided by law for the holding of municipal elections, and it shall be the duty of the inspectors of such elections to receive tickets and to deposit said tickets in a box provided for that purpose, as is provided by law in regard to other tickets received at such election. The tickets so received shall be counted and return thereof made to the clerk of the court of quarter sessions of the proper county duly certified as shall be required by law, together with a certified copy of the resolution of the board and the advertisement. The clerk of such court shall make a record of the same and shall furnish a certified copy thereof, under seal, showing the result of the election, to the board of school directors, and the same shall be placed upon the minutes of such board. Such board of school directors shall, in all cases, fix the time of holding such election on the day of the municipal or general election, unless more than ninety (90) days shall elapse between the date of the resolution in favor of such increase and the day for the holding of such municipal or general election. If any other day shall be fixed for such election, the expenses of holding the same shall be paid by the school district. In receiving and counting, and in making returns of the votes cast, the inspectors, judges, and clerks of the election shall be governed by the laws of this Commonwealth which shall relate to municipal elections, and the vote shall be counted by the court of quarter sessions in the manner now provided by general laws governing municipal elections; all the penalties of such election laws for the violation of such election laws are hereby extended to, and shall apply to the voters, inspectors, judges, and clerks who shall vote at or be in attendance upon elections held under the provisions of this section. When a board of school directors in any district which shall not be coterminous with a city, borough, incorporated town, or township, shall have signified by resolution its desire to make such an increase of indebtedness, the county commissioners of the county or counties, within which such district is located shall furnish to the election officials a list of the qualified voters in such district, and only the qualified voters of such district shall be permitted to vote at such election.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the Act of 1929, P. L. 1661, 53 PS Sec. 1873. That act relates to counties, cities, boroughs, townships, and school districts.

Section 902. Creation of Temporary Indebtedness.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors, in addition to any bonds herein authorized, may, subject to the restrictions provided herein, in anticipation of current revenues and to meet current expenses of the district, incur a temporary indebtedness payable within one year and bearing interest at not more than six per centum (6%) per annum. Current revenues which may be so anticipated shall consist of, (1) not over ninety per centum (90%) of the taxes levied at or before the time of incurring such indebtedness and which will become due during a period of one year from the date of such indebtedness; (2) not over seventy per centum (70%) of all other collectible taxes past due; (3) appropriations from the Commonwealth payable during such period of one year; and (4) all other moneys due from solvent debtors. In school districts of the first and second classes, this temporary indebtedness shall not exceed four-tenths of one per centum (.4%), and in school districts of the third and fourth classes shall not exceed one per centum (1%) of the total amount of taxable property in such school district. The board of school directors may issue an obligation or obligations therefor under the seal of the district, if any, properly attested by the president and secretary of the board, payable within one (1) year from the date of issue. No such obligation shall be sold for less than par. No such indebtedness shall be incurred unless it shall have been authorized by a resolution adopted by the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds (2-3) of all of the then qualified members of such board.

Each school district which shall incur any such temporary debt, in the manner herein provided, shall provide from its current revenue for the payment of the same, except such debt as may have been refunded by an issue of bonds as provided herein.

No current or temporary indebtedness shall be incurred except as expressly permitted by this section.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 508 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 174, Section 11

The current revenues which may be anticipated by the creation of a temporary indebtedness have been ennumerated for the purpose of achieving clarity and definiteness.

In place of the exception found in the second paragraph of this new section the Legislatures in 1921, 1925, 1927, 1929, and 1931, provided that the exception should apply only to temporary indebtedness which existed on a specified date near the close of each such Legislature. It was, therefore, necessary to amend Section 508 at each session of the Legislature in order to biennially advance such date two (2) years. In this new section, any indebtedness which has been refunded by an issue of bonds is within the provisions of the exception. This will remove the necessity for the biennial amending.

The provision as to the two-thirds (2-3) vote is new.

Section 903. Issuance of Bonds.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors, in order to purchase or acquire proper sites or grounds for school buildings, or any lands additional to any present school sites or grounds, or to erect, enlarge, equip, or furnish any school building, or to repair or rebuild any new or old building, or in order to pay or refund any existing indebtedness of the school district, or to pay or refund any existing indebtedness of the school district, or to pay or refund obligations or certificates of indebtedness issued under the provisions of section five hundred eight of an act entitled, "An act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, together with the provisions by which it shall be administered, and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof; providing revenue to establish and maintain the same, and the method of collecting such revenue; and repealing all laws, general, special or local, or any parts thereof, that are or may be inconsistent therewith," its amendments and supplements may, subject to the restrictions provided in this act, create, increase, or fund the indebtedness against such school district and issue bonds to secure the same, for any and all such purposes, to any amount that the total indebtedness of such school district shall never exceed seven per centum (7%) upon the assessed value of taxable property for school purposes therein. There shall be no such creation, increase, or funding of indebtedness and issuance of bonds unless a resolution in favor of such action shall have been passed by the affirmative vote of two-thirds (2-3) of all of the then qualified members of the board of school directors.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 506 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 954 Section 1; 1925, P. L. 495, Section 1; 1927, P. L. 682, Section 1, 1929, P. L. 497, Section 2, and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 11; 24 PS Sec. 421.

The requirement that such an increase of indebtedness or creation of a new debt should be undertaken only after the adoption of a resolution in favor of such action has been passed by the affirmative vote of two-thirds (2-3) of all of the members of the board of school directors is new.

Section 904. Time and Means for the Payment of Bonds.—[1]All bonds issued by any school district shall be made payable and become due at stated periods, not exceeding thirty (30) years after date thereof. However, nothing herein shall be construed as prohibiting any school district from reserving in such bonds the privilege of anticipating payment thereof at such times as shall be therein stated.

Note:

1. This is a statement of the subject-matter of Section 507 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 422.

Section 507 of the School Law of 1911, supra, includes the clause "and the school district issuing the same shall, in the annual levy, provided, in such manner and at such times as it may determine, for the payment thereof within thirty (30) years with interest." This provision has been transferred to Section 834 of this draft.

Section 905. Report of Issuance of Securities.—[1]When any school district shall prepare to incur or increase its indebtedness, except by the issuance of notes in anticipation of revenue for not more than one (1) year, the president of the board of school directors shall, before any bonds or evidences of indebtedness are actually issued and sold, certify to the Department of Internal Affairs a complete and accurate copy of the proceedings had for such incurring or increasing of indebtedness, together with the assessed valuation of the property subject to taxation within the school district, the total amount of the existing indebtedness, and the several amounts claimed as permitted deductions in ascertaining the real indebtedness of such school district.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It has been drawn from Section 3 of the Act of 1927, P. L. 91, 53 PS Sec. 1953, which provides for the approval of bond issues by the Department of Internal Affairs.

Section 906. Sale of Bonds.—[1]When any school district shall borrow money and issue bonds therefor, the board of school directors shall sell such bonds to the highest responsible bidder, after having given public notice by advertisement once a week for three (3) weeks, in at least one (1) newspaper of general circulation published in the county in which such school district or the greater part thereof in area shall be located; if no such paper shall be published within the school district, the advertisement shall be made in the newspaper most generally circulated within the school district. No bid for such bonds or securities at less than their par value shall be accepted. Where bonds and securities shall have been advertised for sale, and no bids shall have been received, it shall be lawful for such school district to sell such bonds or securities at private sale for not less than par and accrued interest.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It has been drawn from the Act of 1917, P. L. 747, as amended by the Act of 1929, P. L. 1929, P. L. 518, 53 PS Sec. 1884.

Section 907. Sinking Fund.—[1]In each school district, all money received from the levy of the tax which has been or shall be levied for the payment of any indebtedness of the school district, other than an indebtedness which has been incurred to meet current expenses, shall be paid into a separate fund to be known as the "sinking fund." The moneys in any such sinking fund, whether heretofore or hereafter created, shall be used for no purpose other than the payment of the interest and principal of the debt for which the taxes producing them have been levied, or for the purchase for cancellation of bonds representing such debt, at prices not in excess of par and accrued interest.

Note:

1. This is a new section.

It adopts the policy of Section 11 of Article IX of the Constitution of 1874, which provides:

"To provide for the payment of the present State debt, and any additional debt contracted as aforesaid, the General Assembly shall continue and maintain the sinking fund, sufficient to pay the accruing interest on such debt, and annually to reduce the principal thereof by a sum not less than two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; * * * and unless in case of war, invasion or insurrection, no part of the said sinking fund shall be used or applied otherwise than in the extinguishment of the public debt."

Section 518 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 501, provides that a board of school directors could, if it desired, establish a sinking fund to provide for payment of indebtedness which a school district assumed upon the adoption of the School Law of 1911.

Section 908. Sinking Fund Committee; Depository; Use of Funds.—[1]In each school district, the sinking fund, if any, shall be under the supervision and control of a sinking fund committee, composed of the president, treasurer, and one additional member of the board of school directors to be elected by such board. All funds appropriated to such sinking fund shall be deposited in a depository, herein required to be provided for the deposit of school funds, and shall be protected by the surety bond or securities required to be furnished to the school district for the protection of school funds deposited in such depository. Such funds shall be kept in a special account, entitled "Sinking Fund Account," and shall be used only to pay the principal and interest of the debt or debts for which the taxes providing them were levied.

All disbursements from such funds shall be made on proper school orders which shall first be approved by a majority of the members of the sinking fund committee.

Note:

1. This is a new section.

Section 519 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 502, provides that a similar committee should care for the sinking fund which a school board could, if it so desired, establish. See note to Section 907 of this draft.

Section 909. Investment of Sinking Funds.—[1]The board of school directors in any school district establishing a sinking fund shall, upon the recommendation of the sinking fund committee, invest any money of the sinking fund in any bonds issued by the United States, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, or any county, city, borough, township, or school district of the Commonwealth, or in any bonds in which savings banks of Pennsylvania are authorized by law to invest their deposits, and not otherwise.

Note:

1. This is Section 520 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 503.

Section 910. Custody of Bonds.—[1]All bonds purchased by any school district with its sinking fund shall be, until disposed of by the board, in the joint custody of the sinking fund committee and the board of school directors.

Note:

1. This is Section 521 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 504.

Section 911. Report of Sinking Fund Committee.—[1]In each school district, the sinking fund committee shall make quarterly reports to the board of school directors as to the balance in the account at the beginning of the quarter, the disbursements and additions during the quarter, and shall furnish an itemized list of all securities in which any moneys of the fund shall be invested. The committee shall also make any recommendations concerning the sinking fund which it may deem expedient.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It provides for reports on the condition of the sinking fund which has been described in the preceding sections of this draft.

Section 912. Diversion of Funds Borrowed For Impracticable or Impossible Purposes.—[1]Each school district which has increased its indebtedness, with the assent of the electors, in accordance with the provisions of an act, approved the twentieth day of April, one thousand eight hundred seventy-four (Pamphlet Laws sixty-five), entitled "An act to regulate the manner of increasing the indebtedness of municipalities, to provide for the redemption of same, and to impose penalties for the illegal increase thereof," its amendments and supplements, and the purpose for which such increase was asked and assent obtained shall have proved to be impracticable or impossible, the board of school directors may, by a resolution, signify its desire to use the money so borrowed or authorized to be borrowed for any other lawful purpose of the school district. Such moneys thus borrowed, or authorized to be borrowed, may be used for such other purpose, if the assent of the electors thereto shall be obtained as herein provided.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 1 of the Act of 1931, P. L. 125, 53 PS Sec. 1887.

Section 913. Time of Election.—[1]In each such school district, the board of school directors shall in all cases fix the time for the holding of any such election on the day of the municipal or general or other special election, unless no such election shall be scheduled to be held within ninety (90) days after the date of the adoption of the hereinbefore mentioned resolution. If no election shall be scheduled within such ninety (90) days, the board of school directors may conduct an election to secure the assent of the electors, the expense of which election shall be paid by the school district.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 3 of the Act of 1931, P. L. 125, 53 PS Sec. 1889.

Section 914. Advertisement.—[1]In each such district, the board of school directors shall give notice by advertisement in the manner herein provided, of an election to be held at the place or places of holding the municipal election on a day to be by them fixed. Such notice shall concisely state: (a) the date of such election; (b) the amount of money theretofore borrowed or authorized to be borrowed; (c) the purpose for which such money was originally authorized; (d) the reason why such money may not be used for the purpose for which it was borrowed or authorized to be borrowed; (e) the new purpose for which the board shall desire to use such money. A certified copy of the resolution hereinbefore required and of the above notice shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the court of quarter sessions.

Note:

1. This Section has been drawn from Section 2 of the Act of 1931, P. L. 125, 53 PS Sec. 1888.

Section 915. Place and Manner of Election.—[1]Each such election shall be held at the place, time, and under the same regulations as shall be provided by law for the holding of municipal elections; the question to be submitted to the electors shall be in the following form:

Shall the sum of ..... Dollars ($), heretofore borrowed or authorized to be borrowed by the school district of ....., for the purpose of ..... be used by the school district for the purpose of.....
.....?

The ballot shall be prepared in the manner provided by the general election law for the submission of similar questions.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 4 of the Act of 1931, P. L. 125, 53 PS Sec. 1890.

Section 916. Conduct of Election.—[1]Each such election shall be conducted by the regular election officers. Such officers shall count the tickets cast at such election and shall make a return thereof to the clerk of the court of quarter sessions of the county, duly certified as required by law. In receiving and counting, and in making return of the votes cast, the inspectors, clerks, and judges of the election shall be governed by the laws of this Commonwealth at such municipal elections, and the vote shall be counted by the court as is now provided by laws governing municipal elections. All penalties of such election laws for violation thereof are hereby extended to and shall apply to the voters, inspectors, judges, and clerks, who shall vote at and be in attendance upon elections held under the provisions of this act. The clerk of the court shall make a return of the vote cast upon such question, as filed in his office, to the board of school directors of the school district. The secretary of such board shall place such report upon the minutes.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Sections 5 and 6 of the Act of 1931, P. L. 125, 53 PS Sec. 1891 and 1892.

Section 917. Use for New Purpose.—[1]If at such election a majority of the electors shall vote in favor of using such money which has been borrowed or authorized to be borrowed, for the purpose other than that for which it was originally authorized, such money shall thereafter be used for such new purpose in the same manner as if it had originally been authorized and borrowed for such purpose.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 7 of the Act of 1931, P. L. 125, 53 PS Sec. 1893.

FINANCES

Section 1000. School Depositories; Surety Bonds; Collateral Security.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall designate one (1) or more banks or trust companies as a depository or depositories for its school funds. The same bank or trust company may be elected treasurer and depository. Before receiving any of the school funds each such depository shall furnish a proper bond, with corporate or individual sureties, as may be required, to be approved by the board of school directors and conditioned upon the faithful keeping, paying out, and accounting for all of the school funds and property of the school district that may come into its hands, as well as for the payment of all interest on money deposited in such depository in accordance with any contract made by it with the school district. If individual surety is offered for approval, no one person may qualify for more than one-fourth (¼) of the total amount of the bond required; such persons who shall be offered as sureties shall qualify in an aggregate over and above their individual liabilities to an amount equal to three (3) times the amount of the deposit. However, in lieu of the surety bonds of corporations or individuals, the deposit of school funds may be secured by the deposit with the board of school directors, or with any bank or trust company within the Commonwealth which may be agreed upon, of United States, municipal, or county bonds in an amount, measured by their actual market value, which shall be equal to the amount of the deposit secured and twenty per centum (20%) in addition. Such bonds shall be accompanied by a proper assignment or power of attorney for their transfer. Such trust deposit, in the event of any depreciation in value, shall be maintained, on request, at the amount provided herein.

Note:

1. The first sentence of this section is based upon the first portion of Section 509 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 461. Section 509 of the School Law, supra, however, makes the designation of a depository optional. This has been made compulsory in order to provide a greater guarantee of protection for school property.

The remainder of the section has been drawn from Section 505 of The Fiscal Code of 1929, 53 PS Sec. 505, which relates to the furnishing of bonds or security by a depository of State funds. In an opinion by Deputy Attorney General Harris C. Arnold, dated October 6, 1931, it was held that, under Sections 326 and 509 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 303, 461, individual sureties could be accepted for the securing of the deposit of school funds. This ruling has been expressly stated in this new section. The alternative of posting certain collateral security has also been given to school depositories; this will enable adequate security to be had without the payment of exorbitant fees for surety bonds.

Section 1001. Duties of Depository.—[1]Every bank or trust company designated as a depository for school funds in any school district shall at the end of every month make a report to the school treasurer, to the board of school directors, and to the school controller, if any, stating the amount of school funds deposited with it during the month, the balance on hand at the beginning of the month, the amount of school funds disbursed by it during the month, the accrued interest paid or due, and the balance remaining on hand at the time of making the report.

Note:

1. This is Section 510 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 462.

Section 1002. School Orders.—[1]All payments made by the board of school directors of any school district from the school funds shall be made by proper school orders drawn on the treasurer. Each school order shall state on its face the particular class of expenditure of the annual school budget or estimate upon which it is drawn. All school orders drawn on the school treasurer for any funds shall be endorsed by the treasurer and made "Payable at .....depository of the School District of ....." No school order shall be authorized by the board, or signed by the president or secretary of any board of school directors, unless there are sufficient funds in the treasury of the district to pay the same, and no school order shall be made payable at any time in the future, or draw interest. A separate school order shall be drawn for each account or payment, except that the monthly payroll of teachers, janitors or other employes may be included in one or more orders, which may be made payable to the order of such person or persons, and distributed in such manner as the board of school directors in any school district may determine.

Note:

1. This section with the exception of the second and third sentences is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 511 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 481.

The second sentence is drawn from Section 564 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 91, Section 2. This section of the School Law of 1911, however, limited its provisions to the school districts of the second, third and fourth classes, although Section 533 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 573 provides, "In all school districts of the first class each school order shall state on its face the particular item of the annual school estimate upon which it is drawn." These provisions are desirable for all scholl districts and therefore have been extended to school districts of the first class.

The third sentence has been drawn from Section 509 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 461.

Section 1003. Approval of Orders in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the school controller shall approve all proper school orders drawn on the school treasurer, before the same are paid. He shall not approve any school order issued in violation of any of the provisions of this act.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 2214 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1971.

Section 1004. Legal Payment of School Funds.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall have the right to use and pay out in the manner herein provided, the funds of the school district for any and all of the purposes herein provided, subject to all the provisions of this act, The use or payment of any public school funds of any school district, in any manner or for any purposes not provided in this act, shall be illegal.

Note:

1. This is Section 516 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 364.

Section 1005. Liability for Illegal Payments.—[1]Each school director who shall vote for and each officer who shall approve a school order for the payment of school funds for any other purpose, or drawn in any other manner, than that provided in this act, together with the surety or sureties on his bond, shall be individually liable to the school district for the amount of such order. Such liability shall be in addition to any penalty provided herein. On appeal from an auditor's report, however, it shall be within the discretion of the court having jurisdiction of the matter to sustain or not to sustain a surcharge where it appears that the appellant or appellants acted honestly and in good faith for the best interests of the school district and no loss or damage to the school district has resulted from the action of such appellant or appellants.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 517 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1931, P. L. 243, Section 13, 24 PS Sec. 482.

Section 517 of the School Law of 1911, supra, provides that the court may relieve a school director "* * * where it appears that the appellant or appellants acted honestly and in good faith for the best interests of the school district, and where no loss or damage to the school district resulted from the action of such appellant or appellants." The change has been made in order to remove the possibility of any ambiguity in the construction of this section.

Section 1006. Bribery.—[1]Any school director in this Commonwealth who shall, directly or indirectly, accept or receive any money or other valuable thing for voting for or against, or for withholding his vote for or against any appointment or matter or action that is before or may come before the board or any committee thereof, or before any convention of school directors or executive committee of which he is a member, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall forfeit his office, and shall not be eligible again to hold office of any kind provided for in this act, and shall be liable to pay a fine of not less than five dollars ($5.00) or more than five hundred dollars ($500.00), or be sentenced to the county jail for a term of not less than thirty (30) days or more than one (1) year, or both, as the court may determine.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 225 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 186.

Section 211 of the School Law of 1911 does not contain the clause "or may come before" found in line five of this section. In Commonwealth v. Jackson, 248 Pa. 530 (1915) it was held that the word "shall" should be interpreted as though it were "may."

This is a desirable correction and has, therefore, been written into this new section.

Section 1007. Investigation of Financial Records by the Department.—[1]The Department may investigate the financial records of any school district including the sinking fund and its investments. For the purpose of such investigation, the same duties are imposed upon all school boards and members, officers, agents, and employes, as are now imposed by law with respect to the audit of the accounts of school districts and their officers. For the purposes of this section, the same powers are conferred upon the Department and its authorized representaives as are now conferred by law upon school auditors in auditing the finances of school districts.

Note:

1. These are Sections 1019 and 1020 of the School Law of 1911. They were added to the School Law by the Act of 1931, P. L. 243, Section 19, 24 PS Sec. 907a, 907b.

The power of inspection has been placed in the Department of Public Instruction rather than the Superintendent of Public Instruction in accordance with the policy outlined in Article II of this draft.

Section 1008. Inspection of Accounts and Records.—[1]Upon the written request of twenty-five (25) or more freeholders of any school district to examine the accounts and records of the proceedings of the board of school directors or of its officers, the secretary or other officer in possession of these accounts and records shall give those freeholders a proper opportunity to examine the accounts and records at a reasonable time and place.

Note:

1. The amendment of 1931, P. L. 243, Section 7, 24 PS Sec. 276, to Section 319 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 276, provides that the accounts and records of each board of school directors of the third and fourth class and its officers should be open to the inspection of any taxpayer who would make a written request for an examination.

This section of the draft has provided that the examination can be had only upon the written request of twenty-five (25) freeholders. This change has been made to prevent the inspecting of the records from becoming cumbersome. The secretary should not be compelled to disclose the books and records of the district to any single taxpayer who should desire to go over the records. The setting of the limit at twenty-five (25) however, enables any group of freeholders, when they feel that it is necessary to make a check upon the accounts, to secure the facts to protect their interests. The right of inspection has also been extended in this new section to school districts of the first and second classes.

Section 1009. Petition for Examination of Budget.—[1]In each school district, fifteen (15) or more freeholders may, within fifteen (15) days after the board of school directors shall have completed the formation of the budget and determined the amount of the tax levy for the district, petition the court of common pleas of the county in which such district, or the greater part thereof in area, is located, to examine into the necessity for and the reasonableness of the various items upon the budget of the district, and to reduce the proposed tax levy. Each such petition shall be accompanied by the following: An affidavit of five (5) of the petitioners that the proceedings have not been instituted for the purpose of delay; a specification of the grounds for the objections to the budget and the reasons for the reduction of the levy; and a bond in the amount of five hundred dollars ($500.00) conditioned upon the payment of the costs if the court should assess the costs upon the petitioners.

Immediately upon the filing of such a petition, the petitioners shall serve a copy of the petition and the specification of objections upon the president or secretary of the board of school directors.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Its purpose is to provide a statutory basis for the right of taxpayers or freeholders to secure the aid of the court in curbing unreasonable budgets and tax levies.

In Carver v. Hanover Twp. School Dist., 17 Pa. D. & C. 116 (1932) Judge Valentine of Luzerne County, held that a taxpayer's bill could be maintained to compel the elimination of unnecessary or excessive items from the budget and the reduction of the tax levy. The court held that the board had, in preparing the budget, not properly taken into consideration all of the assets of the district, that certain officers and employes were unnecessary, that some salaries and commissions were exorbitant, and that other miscellaneous items should be eliminated or reduced.

No appeal was taken from this decision.

This section has been written in order that there may be no doubt as to the power of the court to make an order such as was made in the Hanover Township case.

Section 1010. Hearing and Order by the Court.—[1]Upon the filing of such petition, the court shall fix a day for a hearing, not less than fifteen (15) nor more than thirty (30) days after such petition has been filed. Notice of such hearing shall be given to all interested parties, in such manner as the court shall direct. On such hearing, it shall be the duty of the court to examine into the necessity for and the reasonableness of the various items of the budget and the amount of the proposed levy. The court shall thereupon make an order approving the budget and levy, or reducing or eliminating any one or more of the items of the budget and reducing the levy.

If no appeal shall be taken from such order, as herein provided, the budget and levy shall remain as constituted by the court.

Note:

1. This is a new section. See note to Section 1009 of this draft.

Section 1011. Appeal.—[1]The board of school directors of such district or any ten (10) of the fifteen (15) freeholders who shall have filed the petition may appeal to the Supreme Court within thirty (30) days after the entry of the order by the court of common pleas. Such appeal shall be taken and prosecuted in the same manner and form and with the same effect as is provided in other cases of appeal to the Supreme Court. The record which shall be certified to the Supreme Court shall contain all that was before the court of common pleas.

Note:

1. This is a new section. See note to Section 1009 of this draft.

Section 1012. Supersedeas.—[1]Neither the filing of any such petition nor the taking of such appeal shall act as a supersedeas.

However any contract, agreement, or undertaking which relates to or is dependent upon an item of the budget which has been attacked in the petition and which shall be entered into by the board of school directors in such district during the pendency of such proceedings shall be subject to such reduction or cancellation as shall become necessary as the result of the order of the court of common pleas or the Supreme Court.

Each levy of taxes which shall be made during the pendency of such proceedings shall likewise be subject to revision in accordance with such order.

Note:

1. This section is new.

The proceedings have not been made to act as a supersedeas because if they were given that effect they would frequently block the regular levy of taxes and conduct of the business of the district. The section will, however, permit the final order to be put into effect when it shall be finally decreed.

Section 1013. Duty of the Board.—[1]The budget and tax levy as approved or revised by the court of common pleas, or if an appeal shall have been taken, by the Supreme Court, shall be the budget and tax levy for such district. Any contract, agreement, or undertaking which relates to an item of the budget which has been attacked in the petition, and which shall be entered into during the pendency of such proceedings, shall be cancelled or made to conform to such budget.

If such final order shall reduce the levy, the board shall revise the tax duplicates in conformity with such order.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
See note to Section 1012 of this draft.

ARTICLE XI

AUDITS

Section 1100. Extent of Audit.—[1]Each audit of the finances of a school district, required by the provisions of this act, shall cover the finances of the district in each of its departments, and shall include the accounts of the collector or collectors of school taxes, school treasurer, school depositories, teachers' retirement funds, sinking funds, and other funds which shall belong to or be controlled by such district.

Note:

1. This is a new section.

In Sections 2601 and 2602 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2201-2202, and in Section 2620 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1923, P. L. 949; 1927, P. L. 111; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 43; 24 PS Sec. 2251, these audits are separately described. This new section sets forth one definition or description of the audit as a substitute for the previous three.

Section 1101. Statements, Accounts, and Documents.—[1]In order that the audits provided herein may be thoroughly and properly conducted, it shall be the duty of each board and each director and their proper officers, school depositories, superintendents, treasurers of directors' associations, treasurers of teachers' retirement funds, and other proper person to furnish to the person or persons who shall make the audit, whenever required by them for auditing purposes, statements and accounts of all finances of the district, teachers' institutes or directors' associations, and other funds belonging to or controlled by the district, including assets and liabilities, and to provide access to all books, records, tax duplicates, vouchers, school orders, payrolls, letters, and other matters pertaining to the same.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 2608 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2208.

Section 1102. Issuance of Subpoenas.—[1]The several persons who, under the provisions of this act, shall conduct the audits of the school finances, shall have power, and are hereby authorized, to issue subpoenas to compel the attendance of school officers or other persons whom they may deem necessary to examine as witnesses, and to compel the production of all books, records, vouchers, letters, and papers relating to any accounts which shall be audited by them.

Such persons shall have power to administer oaths or affirmations to all persons appearing before them as witnesses.

Note:

1. This is Section 2609 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2209.

The last sentence of this section has been drawn from the first portion of Section 2610 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2210.

Section 1103. Failure to Obey Subpoena.—[1]If any person shall disobey a subpoena to appear and testify, or to produce any papers, books, records, vouchers, letters, or other written or printed matter as required by the provisions of this act, the person or persons herein authorized to conduct the audit may invoke the aid of the court of common pleas of the county within whose jurisdiction the hearing shall be held in order to compel compliance with the subpoena. Such court, in case of contumacy or refusal to obey a subpoena may issue its order to such person for failure to appear and testify, or to produce any papers, books, records, vouchers, letters or other written or printed matter, and may treat, as contempt of court, any failure to comply with such order.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 2611 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2211.

Section 1104. Perjury.—[1]Each person who shall testify falsely in any such examination shall be guilty of perjury and be liable for and be subject to all the penalties therefor.

Note:

1. This has been drawn from the latter portion of Section 2610 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2210.

Section 1105. Witness Fees.—[1]Each witness who shall attend any examination which shall be conducted by persons herein required to conduct an audit of school finances, shall receive, out of the funds of the district, the same witness fees and mileage as a witness shall be allowed in the court of common pleas of the county in which such district or the greater part thereof in area shall be located. Such fees and mileage shall be paid by a proper order drawn on the school treasurer.

Note:

1. This is Section 2612 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2212.

Section 1106. Employment of Certified Public Accountant.—[1]In each school district in which the annual expenditures, exclusive of moneys received from the sale of bonds, shall exceed the sum of five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000.00), the board of school directors may, when it shall deem it necessary, employ a certified public accountant to aid in the making of the audits herein required, or for the performance of other professional services.

Note:

1. Section 2603 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2203, provides that districts of the second class in which the annual expenditure exceeded five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000.00) exclusive of money received from the sale of bonds, may within sixty days of the close of the fiscal year employ the services of a certified public accountant.

This section extends the opportunity of securing those professional services to all districts in which the amount of the expenditures shall exceed the amount stated.

Section 1107. Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the controller of the city in which such district or the greater part thereof in area is located, shall properly audit the finances of the school district. At the end of each school year, such controller shall certify to the board of school directors that he has audited the accounts as required by the provisions of this act.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It replaces Section 2602 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2202.

Section 1108. School Controller.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the controller of the city which shall constitute the whole or the greater part of such school district shall be, subject to the restrictions herein provided, the controller of the school district.

Note:

1. Section 2209 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1961, contains a provision as follows: "In each school district of the first class in this Commonwealth, the board of education therein, at the beginning of each fiscal year, shall elect the controller of the city comprising such district as school controller for said district." Inasmuch as the board of school directors was compelled to elect the city controller as controller of the school district, the requirement as to the formal election was unnecessary. In this section of the draft, therefore, it is provided that the city controller shall automatically become controller of the school district.

Section 1109. Appointment of Controller in Districts of the First Class.—[1]If any person herein authorized to be school controller of any district of the first class shall fail, refuse, or neglect to furnish a proper bond or security as provided herein, for a period of fifteen (15) days after he shall have been notified to do so, or, if there shall be any continued vacancy in the office of a city controller, the board of school directors may elect any other proper person as school controller for such district to serve for such school year.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Section 2213 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1970, provides "in case there is a vacancy in the office of school controller, by reason of death, resignation, or otherwise, such vacancy shall be filled for the remainder of the year, by the election of the city controller by the Board of Public Education," inasmuch as Section 1108 of this draft precludes the necessity for such election, the provisions of that section have been omitted.

This new section has been written in order to care for the contingency of a failure to furnish a bond or of a prolonged vacancy in the office of city controller.

Section 1110. Assistants to the City Controller in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the board of school directors may annually appoint, from among persons who shall be nominated by the school controller, such clerks as it shall deem necessary to assist such school controller.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the first portion of Section 2212 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1969.

Section 1111. Salary of Controller.—[1]Each school district of the first class shall pay to the school controller an annual salary of four thousand dollars ($4,000.00) payable monthly. Each such school district shall also provide such controller with the necessary stationery and books which shall be required by him in the performance of his duties as school controller.

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of Section 2211 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1968, and of the latter portion of Section 2212 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1969.

Section 1112. Bond of the School Controller.—[1]In each school district of the first class the city controller shall, before entering upon the duties of his office as school controller, furnish to the board of school directors a proper bond in the amount of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00) and with such corporate or individual surety or sureties as the board of school directors may approve and require conditioned upon the faithful performance of his duty in the office of school controller. The cost of such bond may be paid by the board of school directors. If individual sureties are presented for approval, they shall qualify in an aggregate over and above their individual liabilities to three (3) times the amount of the bond. No one individual may qualify for more than one-fourth (¼) of the total amount of such bond. However, in lieu of such surety bonds of corporations or individuals, the controller may deposit with the board of school directors or with any bank or trust company within the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania which may be agreed upon, United States, municipal, or county bonds in an amount to be approved by the board of school directors. Such bonds shall be accompanied by a proper assignment or power of attorney for their transfer. In the event of any depreciation in the value of such bonds, the controller shall furnish additional similar bonds as the board of school directors shall require.

Note:

1. Section 2210 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1967, provides that the controller should furnish a bond to the board of school directors in the amount of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00). This section has been changed for the reasons stated in Section 623 of this draft.

Section 1113. Access to Accounts in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the school controller shall at all times have access to all accounts, books, records, and papers of the district so far as they relate to the school finances, and may require from the board or any person presenting any school order such evidence or information regarding its correctness as he may deem proper.

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of Section 2215, of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1972.

Section 1114. Record of Expenditures in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class the school controller shall, in a proper book or books kept for that purpose, keep an account with each item of expenditure included in the annual estimate or budget, or in such budget as thereafter changed in the manner herein provided. He shall charge up against each item of such estimate all school orders drawn against the same at the time they shall be approved by him, and he shall not permit any such estimate to be overdrawn. He shall furnish to the board of school directors a monthly statement which shall show the original amount of each item of such estimate, the amount paid out thereon, and the balance, if any. If any item shall be exhausted, he shall promptly notify the board of such fact.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the latter portion of Section 2218 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1975.

Section 1115. Annual Statement in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the school controller, shall, on or before the tenth day of January of each year, submit to the board of school directors an annual itemized statement of the finances of the school district for the preceding year. Such statement shall include all assets of the district, and the source from which they have been obtained, together with the amount of uncollected school taxes, and the amount of delinquent taxes of each year which remains unpaid. Such statement shall also set forth the disbursements named in the several items of the expenditures, the outstanding indebtedness of the district, the rate of interest on such indebtedness, and the date on which such indebtedness shall become due; it shall also include a statement of the sinking fund of the district, if any, including the securities therein held. Such further facts and information shall be contained in the statement as the controller may deem proper.

The board may publish such report or any parts thereof in two (2) newspapers in the manner herein provided.[2]

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of Sections 2219 and 2221 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1976 and 1978.
2. See Section 6 of this draft.

Section 1116. Certification of Contracts in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, it shall be the duty of the school controller to certify all proper contracts for the payment of which a sufficient sum shall have been provided in the annual school estimate as provided herein. No contract shall be certified by the school controller if the amount to become due thereon shall exceed the item of expenditure on which it is based as provided herein. Each such contract shall state on what item in the annual estimate of school expenditures it is based; no such contract shall become valid until it shall have been properly certified by the school controller who shall, at the time of so doing charge up the amount of any such contract against the item in the annual estimate on which it is based. When any such contract shall extend over a period of more than one (1) year, the school controller shall charge against the item in the annual estimate of school expenditures, on which the same shall be based, only so much as shall be due and payable on such contract for such year.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 2216 and of the first portion of Section 2217 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1973-1974.

Section 1117. Liability for Improper Certification of Contracts in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, if any school controller shall certify any contract which shall be in excess of the amount of the item of expenditure in the annual estimate made thereof, he together with his surety or sureties shall be individually liable therefor on his bond.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the latter portion of Section 2217 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1974.

Section 1118. Audits in Districts of the Second, Third and Fourth Classes.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, the controller or auditors of the city, borough, incorporated town, or township, in which the whole or the greater or greatest portion of the area of each such district shall be located shall, in the year one thousand nine hundred thirty-three (1933) and annually thereafter, audit the finances of the district for the school year which shall have closed on the first Monday of July of each such year. Such person or persons, who shall make the audit, shall begin the same on the first Monday of July, and complete the same within thirty (30) days.

Note:

1. This is a new section.

Section 2603 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1925, P. L. 382, and Section 2604 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2203-2204, provides that the proper city, borough or township controller or auditors should conduct the audit. Section 2605 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2205, provides that when an independent school district was composed of territory formerly belonging to two (2) or more school districts the auditors of the former district in which the building of the independent district were located should conduct the audit.

Since this proposed act would become effective upon the first Monday of July, 1933, which is the date provided by the School Law of 1911 for the beginning of the audits in school districts of the second, third and fourth classes, it is necessary to provide for the audits of each district existing prior to such first Monday of July, 1933.

This section will also provide for the audits in districts composed of the whole or parts of two or more municipal subdivisions. In Black et al. v. Reese et al., 554 September Term 1932, decided in the Court of Common Pleas of Cumberland County, it was held that under the School Law of 1911, the auditors of both subdivisions should be paid. Under this section, the auditors of only one subdivision will be entitled to compensation.

Section 1119. Inspection of Orders and Bonds.—[1]The persons herein authorized to conduct the audit of the finances of school districts of the second, third and fourth classes shall carefully inspect each school order which shall have been issued for the payment of money by the board of school directors, and the accounts of each person or corporation whose accounts are to be audited.

Each school order which shall have been issued in any other manner or for any other purpose than those herein authorized shall, if paid, be disallowed by the auditors, and charged against the one or more persons or corporations voting for or approving the same. All such orders which shall be disallowed shall be set forth in the report to be made, as herein provided, together with such other sum or sums as should be properly charged against any one or more persons or corporations. Such persons making the audit shall also examine and report to the proper board concerning the sufficiency and security of the bonds of the officers, employes, and appointees of the board and of the school depositories.

Note:

1. This is Section 2613 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS. Sec. 2213.

Section 1120. Notice of Surcharge.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, the persons conducting the audit as provided herein, shall, at or before the time of filing the report of the audit, notify each person or corporation who shall be charged in such report. Such notice shall state the date on which the report shall be filed and may be given by mail or otherwise.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 2614 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2214.

Section 1121. Report of Audit.—[1]Upon the completion of the audit as herein provided in each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, the person or persons who shall have conducted such audit shall make a correct report thereof. Such report shall contain an itemized statement of all receipts, expenditures, and credits of school officials, and the assets and liabilities of the district. Such report shall be filed with the prothonotary of the county in which such district or the greater part thereof in area is located. Such persons who shall have conducted the audit shall also file a copy of such report with the board of school directors and shall send a copy, by registered mail, with return receipt requested, to the Department.

The secretary of the board shall enter the report upon the minutes of the board.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 2620 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1923, P. L. 949; 1927, P. L. 111; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 43; 24 PS Sec. 2251.

Section 2620 relates only to districts of the second and third classes. This section has been made to include within its provisions districts of the second, third and fourth classes.

Section 1122. Advertisement of Report.—[1]The prothonotary with whom such report shall be filed shall, within a week thereafter, advertise a concise summary or statement of such report, including the assets and liabilities of the district, in one newspaper published or generally circulated in such district, once a week for three (3) weeks. Such statement shall set forth that the report has been filed on a stated date, and shall give notice that the report will be confirmed absolutely unless an appeal shall be taken from the report within thirty (30) days after the date on which the report has been filed.

Note:

1. This section has been based upon Section 2621 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2221.

Section 2621, supra, contains a provision "This section shall also apply to such districts of the fourth class as do not elect auditors, and such auditors as are appointed in school districts of the fourth class shall proceed to audit the school accounts in such districts as provided in this act for school districts of the fourth class". The subject-matter of this quotation is obsolete, and has therefore been entirely omitted from this draft.

Section 1123. Right to Appeal.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, the board of school directors, any taxpayer of the district, or any person or corporation which shall have been charged in any audit conducted as herein provided, may appeal from such audit to the court of common pleas of the county in which such district or the greater part thereof in area shall be located within thirty (30) days after the report of such audit shall have been filed with the prothonotary.

The Department may appeal from any such audit within ninety (90) days after having received a copy of the report of such audit.

Note:

1. This is a new section. A similar provision is contained in the first portion of Section 2622, as amended by the Acts of 1913, P. L. 288, Section 1; 1929, P. L. 497, Section 9; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 44; 24 PS Sec. 2253. A similar provision is found in the Borough Code of 1927, P. L. 519, Section 1038, 53 PS Sec. 12984.

Section 1124. Procedure on Appeals.—[1]Any party to the appeal may order such appeal upon the argument list. In any proceedings upon an appeal, the accounts and finances in question may be investigated de novo, and the burden shall be upon each person or corporation, accounts or charges against whom are involved in the appeal, of establishing, by evidence from original sources, his right to credits claimed by him; the opposing party in such appeal may, however, use any facts, figures, or findings of the report of the audit as prima facie evidence against any such person or corporation.

When more than one appeal from such an audit shall have been taken, the court shall, upon petition of any interested party, direct the several appeals to be disposed of in a single proceeding.

Note:

1. This is a new section. A similar provision is contained in the first portion of Section 2622 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1913, P. L. 288, Section 1; 1929, P. L. 497, Section 9; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 44; 24 PS Sec. 2253. A similar provision is found in the Borough Code of 1927, P. L. 519, Section 1041, 53 PS Sec. 12987.

Section 2622, supra, contains a provision relating to the taking of depositions. This has been omitted as the court possesses the power to permit the taking of such testimony without expressly stating it in this draft.

Section 1125. Bonds.—[1]No appeal by a taxpayer or by a person or corporation charged in such audit shall be allowed unless the appellant shall enter into a bond in the sum of five hundred dollars ($500.00), with sufficient surety, to prosecute the appeal with effect and to pay all costs accruing thereon in case, if the appellant be a taxpayer, he shall fail to obtain a final decision more favorable to the school district than that awarded by the auditors, or, in case the appellant be a person or corporation charged, he shall fail to obtain a final decision which shall be more favorable to him than that awarded by the auditors.

Note:

1. This is a new section. A similar provision is contained in the first portion of Section 2622, as amended by the Acts of 1913, P. L. 288, Section 1; 1929, P. L. 497; Section 9; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 44; 24 PS Sec. 2253. A similar provision is found in the Borough Code of 1927, P. L. 519, Section 1039, 53 PS Sec. 12985.

Section 1126. Intervention.—[1]When an appeal shall have been taken from the report of the auditors, any taxpayer or any party who could have filed the appeal may intervene in such appeal. No such party shall intervene, however, until he or it shall have filed such a bond as, under the provisions of this act, such party would have been required to file had he or it taken the appeal.

Note:

1. This is a new section. A similar provision is contained in the first portion of Section 2622 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1913, P. L. 288, Section 1; 1929, P. L. 497, Section 9; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 44; 24 PS Sec. 2253. A similar provision is found in the Borough Code of 1927, P. L. 519, Section 1040, 53 PS Sec. 12986.

Section 1127. Framed Issues.—[1]When, in any such appeal a matter of fact shall be in dispute, the court may frame an issue, if it shall deem it necessary, for the trial of such question of facts.

Note:

1. This is a new section. A similar provision is contained in the latter portion of Section 2622 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1913, P. L. 288, Section 1; 1929, P. L. 497, Section 9; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 44; 24 PS Sec. 2253. A similar provision is found in the Borough Code of 1927, P. L. 519, Section 1042, 53 PS Sec. 12988.

Section 1128. Finding of Fact and Law; Judgment.—[1]After the court shall have conducted a hearing or trial, it shall file its findings of fact and conclusions of law, and shall enter judgment in accordance therewith.

Note:

1. This is a new section. A similar provision is contained in the latter portion of Section 2622 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1913, P. L. 288, Section 1; 1929, P. L. 497, Section 9; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 44; 24 PS Sec. 2253. A similar provision is found in the Borough Code of 1927, P. L. 519, Section 1043, 53 PS Sec. 12989.

Section 1129. Exceptions and Appeals.—[1]Any party to the proceedings, conducted by the court of common pleas may except to the order of the court and may appeal therefrom to the Superior or Supreme Court as in other cases. Such appeal shall be taken and prosecuted in the same manner and form and with the same effect as is provided in other cases of appeal. The record on the appeal shall contain all that was before the court of common pleas and the final order of such court. Each such appeal shall act as a supersedeas.

Note:

1. This is a new section. A similar provision is contained in the latter portion of Section 2622 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1913, P. L. 288, Section 1; 1929, P. L. 497, Section 9; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 44; 24 PS Sec. 2253. A similar provision is found in the Borough Code of 1927, P. L. 519, Section 1044, 53 PS Sec. 12990.

Section 1130. Settlement Pending Appeal.—[1]When any such appeal to the court of common pleas or to an appellate court shall be taken and one or more taxpayers or the Department shall be a party or parties to the appeal, the board of school directors shall not make any settlement with any person or corporation charged with any sum or sums, or whose accounts shall be involved in the appeal without the consent of such one or more taxpayers, and, if the Department shall be a party, without the consent of the Department.

Note:

1. This is a new section.

It has been drawn from the middle portion of Section 2621 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1913, P. L. 288, Section 1; 1929, P. L. 497, Section 9; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 44; 24 PS Sec. 2253.

Section 1131. Counsel Fees.—[1]When any taxpayer shall have taken an appeal from a report of an audit, as herein provided, and the appeal results favorable to the appellants in such a manner that money is recovered for the school district, the court shall make an order for the payment of the counsel fees of such taxpayer. Such fees shall be just and reasonable, and shall be paid out of the funds so recovered for the district.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the Act of 1929, P. L. 630, 52 PS Sec. 351, et seq. That act relates to appeals from county auditor's reports or settlements of accounts of public officers.

Section 1132. Balances as Judgments.—[1]Any balance, in a report of an audit, against any person or corporation shall constitute a surcharge against such person or corporation as if expressly stated in such report to be a surcharge. If no appeal to the court of common pleas shall be taken within the time provided herein, each such balance shall be entered by the prothonotary as a judgment against such person or corporation and in favor of the district. If such an appeal shall be taken, each balance fixed by the final order of the court of common pleas or of the appellate court shall be entered by the prothonotary as a judgment against such person or corporation and in favor of the district. The board of school directors, or the Department, or any taxpayer of the district on behalf of the district, may enforce the collection of such judgment by action or execution. No such taxpayer shall, however, proceed to collect such judgment unless he shall first have filed a bond with sufficient surety or sureties conditioned to indemnify and save harmless such school district from any costs accruing by reason of such proceeding.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
It is a substitute for the latter portion of Section 2622 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1913, P. L. 288, Section 1; 1929, P. L. 497, Section 9; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 44; 24 PS Sec. 2253. It is also a substitute for a portion of Section 2624 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1913, P. L. 288, Section 2, 24 PS Sec. 2254.

Section 1133. Accounts of School Directors' Association.—[1]The accounts of the treasurer of each county school directors association, shall annually be propertly audited, by the controller or auditors of the county in which the greater number of the districts represented in such association shall be located, at the same time and in the same manner as the county treasurer's accounts are audited, and the report thereof shall be included in the report made by the county controller or auditors to the court. Such persons who shall conduct the audit shall have and exercise the same authority as is provided herein for persons who shall audit other school finances. Any necessary expenses, which shall be incurred in the conduct of such audit, shall be paid by the directors' association.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Section 2630 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2321 provides that an annual audit shall be made of the accounts of the treasurer of the school directors' association.

Section 1134. Compensation.—[1]In each school district of the second class, the board of school directors shall fix and pay suitable allowances to the person or persons who shall conduct the audit as herein provided; such allowances may include compensation for any necessary and qualified assistants, and for other necessary expenses. Such compensation and expenses shall be fixed and paid from time to time upon the presentation, by such person or persons who shall conduct the audit, of itemized statements of services, assistance, and expenses.

In each school district of the third and fourth classes, the board of school directors shall pay five dollars ($5.00) for each day necessarily spent by each such person, who shall conduct the audit, in the performance of such services. The total expenses of the audit, including such compensation, the cost of filing the report, of advertising, and of other necessary costs shall be paid by such district.

The compensation of any certified public accountant who shall be employed, as provided herein, shall be fixed and paid by the board of school directors from the funds of the district.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 2623 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1923, P. L. 949; 1925, P. L. 382; and 1927, P. L. 679; 24 PS Sec. 2341.

ARTICLE XII

GROUNDS AND BUILDINGS

Section 1200. Duty to Furnish Proper Grounds and Buildings.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall provide the necessary grounds and suitable school buildings to accommodate all the children between the ages of six (6) and twenty-one (21) years, in the district, who, under the provisions of this act, may attend school. Such buildings shall be constructed, furnished, equipped, and maintained in a proper manner as herein provided, suitable provisions being made for the heating, ventilating, and sanitary conditions so that every pupil in any such building may have proper and healthful accommodations.

Note:

1. This is Section 601 of the School Law of 1911, PS Sec. 67.

Section 1201. Power to Acquire and Dispose of Realty and Buildings, and to Erect Buildings.—[1]In order to provide suitable sites for school buildings, playgrounds, and vocational agricultural schools[2] for the district, or to enlarge the grounds or buildings of any school property of the district, the board of school directors of each school district is hereby vested with the necessary power and authority, subject to the provisions of this act, to acquire in the name of the district, by purchase, lease, gift, devise, agreement, condemnation or otherwise, for school or playground purposes, any real estate or buildings in the district, either vacant or occupied, including lands theretofore occupied by streets and alleys which have been vacated by municipal authorities and to erect thereon school buildings, and to sell, convey, transfer or abandon the same or any part thereof. In any case where a board of school directors of any school district of the second or third class has acquired in the name of the district prior to the passage of this act by purchase, lease, gift, devise, agreement, condemnation, or otherwise for school or playground purposes any building or real estate situated or lying in another school district and has or has not erected buildings thereon, such acquisition of buildings or lands or such erection of buildings is hereby declared to be valid and shall be held to be valid to all intents and purposes provided in this act. No new school buildings shall hereafter be erected without a proper playground being provided therefor.

Note:

1. This is based upon Section 602 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 970, Section 1; and 1925, P. L. 398, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 672.
The last sentence has been drawn from Section 604 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 674.
The portions of Section 602, supra, which related to the acquisition of land in another school district have been deleted. There is no reason why a district should acquire land in any district other than its own except when it has received it as a gift or devise; provision for the acceptance of such a gift has been made in Article IV of this draft.
2. The clause relating to vocational agricultural schools has been drawn from Section 1905 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1741.

Section 1202. Acquisition of Cemeteries.—[1]In each school district when the board of school directors shall desire to acquire for school purposes any land which shall have been used for a burial ground but which shall have ceased to be used for interments or shall have become so neglected as to have become a public nuisance or if the remains of the bodies interred in such neglected cemetery shall interfere with and hinder improvements, extensions, and general progressive interests, such board may petition the court of quarter sessions of the county in which such cemetery shall be located for the acquisition of such land for school purposes. Such court, after three (3) weeks of public advertisement conducted as it shall direct, and after the conduct of any hearing which it shall deem necessary, may authorize and direct the removal of the remains from such burial grounds. After the removal of all bodies from such burial grounds, such land shall cease to be a cemetery or burial ground for any purpose whatsoever, and may be acquired by the school district as other lands are acquired.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the Act of 1925, P. L. 300, 5 PS Sec. 43. That act relates to the removal of bodies from cemerteries by any municipal corporation or upon the petition of certain interested citizens.

Section 1203. Condemnation of Real Estate.—[1]Whenever the board of school directors of any district and the owner or owners of any real estate, which the board shall have selected for school purposes, cannot agree upon the terms of the sale and purchase of that real estate, whether it be vacant or occupied, the board of school directors, may, except as otherwise provided in this section, after a proper resolution to condemn, enter upon, take possession of, and occupy such real estate, and, after designating and marking the boundary lines, may use the same for school purposes according to the provisions of this act. However, no burial ground, or any land belonging to any incorporated institution of learning, incorporated hospital association, or unincorporated church, incorporated or unincorporated religious association, which land is actually used or held for the purpose for which such burial ground, institution of learning, hospital association, church, or religious association was established, may be taken by the school district by any means other than with the consent and agreement of the owner or owners.

Note:

1. This is a consolidation of the subject-matter of Sections 605 and 608 of the Schol Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 691 and 694.
The former of the sections provides the procedure for the condemnation; the latter provides the exemptions found in the last sentence of this section of the draft.

Section 1204. Security for Property Taken by a School District.—[1]The school funds which may be raised by taxation in any school district shall be pledged, and hereby are made security, to the owner or owners of any property taken by the school district for school purposes, for all damages such owner or owners may sustain on account of such taking.

Note:

1. This is Section 606 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 692.

Section 1205. Title to Property Taken by a School District.—[1]The title to all real estate acquired by any school district by condemnation proceedings, as herein provided, shall be vested in such school district in fee simple.

Note:

1. This is Section 607 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 693.

Section 1206. Petition for Appointment of Viewers; Time of View.—[1]When a board of school directors shall enter upon and occupy lands for school purposes, as herein provided, it or the owners of such premises, or any one of them in behalf of all of them, may present a petition to the court of common pleas of the county in which such land is siutated, setting forth the facts, giving a description of the premises taken by metes and bounds, and the names of all the owners thereof; whereupon, the court shall appoint a jury of viewers, consisting of three competent and disinterested residents of said county, and shall fix a time for a hearing when the jury shall view the premises. The time for such hearing shall not be less than ten (10) nor more than thirty (30) days after the appointment of the jury of viewers. Five (5) days' notice of the time and place of the hearing shall be given by the petitioners to said viewers and all other parties interested. If on account of non-residence, or of any other reason personal notice of the hearing cannot be given, notice shall be given by registered letter, or by advertisement, or otherwise, as the court may direct.

Note:

1. This is Section 609 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 695.

Section 1207. Duties of Viewers; Exceptions to the Report; Appeal.—[1]At the time and place fixed for the view, the viewers, having first been duly sworn or affirmed to perform their duties with fidelity and according to law, shall view and examine the premises so taken by the school district, and, after hearing such parties as may desire to be heard, shall decide and make a true report to the court concerning the matters set forth in such petition and submitted to them. The viewers after having taken into consideration the quality and location of, and the improvements upon, the land so taken and occupied for school purposes, the damages sustained, and the benefits accruing, shall estimate and state in their report what amount of damages, if any, have been sustained by the owner or owners of such premises by reason of the taking of the land by the school district, and, if they can be ascertained, shall name the legal owner or owners to whom the damages, if any, are payable. Such hearing may be adjourned from time to time as the viewers may direct. The viewers shall give to the school district and all interested parties at least five (5) days' notice, by mail, of their intention to file the report on a stated date. If the actual owner of such premises, or any part thereof, by reason of non-residence or otherwise, cannot be so notified, notice of the filing of such report shall be given as directed by the court. Exceptions may be filed to, or an appeal taken from such report within thirty (30) days by the board of school directors or the owner of any interest in the property which has been taken. If exceptions to the report are filed by any such interested party, or if an appeal is taken, the exceptions or appeal shall be disposed of according to law and the rules of the court. If exceptions are filed and an appeal is taken within such thirty (30) day period, by one or more parties, the exeeptions shall be finally disposed of before any trial shall be had on the appeal.

Note:

1. This is a consolidation and restatement of Sections 610 and 613 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 696 and 699.
All but the last two sentences have been drawn from Section 610 of the School Law of 1911, supra. The next to the last sentences is new. It expressly gives a right to file exceptions and to take an appeal. These rights under the School Law of 1911 exist only by implication. The last sentence is Section 613 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 699.

Section 1208. Confirmation of Report; Liability of School District.—[1]If no exceptions are filed to, or appeal taken from, the report of the jury of viewers, as herein provided, within thirty (30) days after the filing thereof, the court shall confirm the report absolutely and the amount awarded therein to any person shall be a valid debt and obligation of the school district, collectible as herein provided.

Note:

1. This is Section 611 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 697.

Section 1209. Payment of Fund into Court.—[1]If on account of any liens existing against such premises, or if the actual owners thereof cannot be found, or if the owners or any of them refuse the amount awarded by such report, or if, for any reason, the school district cannot pay the sum awarded for such damages to the persons legally entitled thereto, it may pay the same into court, and thereafter the owner or owners of such premises or its lien creditor or creditors shall look to that fund for all damages accruing due to the taking of the property.

Note:

1. This is Section 612 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 698.

Section 1210. Costs and Fees.—[1]All costs and witness fees together with a reasonable cost of any surveys necessary for the preparation of the petition for the appointment of viewers, in any such case shall, unless otherwise provided in this section, be paid by the school district. The court may also allow to the owner or owners a reasonable counsel fee for services of counsel in presenting the petition for viewers and in the proceedings before the viewers and court of common pleas on appeal or exceptions. In any case where an appeal shall be taken by any property owners from the award made by any board of viewers, and the appellant does not recover a verdict for a greater amount than the viewers awarded, the appellant shall pay all costs of such appeal and trial.

Note:

1. This is Section 614 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 700.
The provisions relating to the awarding of costs for the preparation of the petition, and for legal fees, are new. They are designed to protect the property owner.

Section 1211. Abandonment of Property.—[1]No property that has heretofore been acquired by, conveyed or granted to, any school district for school purposes, or which may hereafter be acquired by any school district for school purposes, shall be considered as abandoned until the board of school directors of such district shall pass, by the affirmative vote of a majority of all of the then qualified members of the board, a resolution declaring it to be the intention of such district to vacate and abandon the same, whereupon all right, title, and interest of the district in such premises shall be fully terminated.

Note:

1. This is Section 603 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 673.

Section 1212. Preparation of Plans by the State Council of Education.—[1]The State Council of Education shall cause to be prepared and published, and, upon application shall furnish without charge to boards of school directors, plans and specifications of different types of school buildings containing not more than four (4) classrooms suited to the needs of the public schools.

Note:

1. This is Section 616 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1931, P. L. 243, Section 15, 24 PS Sec. 762.
The proviso of Section 616 of the School Law of 1911, supra, has been added to Section 1213 of this draft.

Section 1213. Submission of Building Plans to the State Council of Education.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, no contracts for the construction or reconstruction of a public school building shall be made, and no such building shall be constructed, or reconstructed until the plans and specifications therefor have been submitted to the State Council of Education for suggestions, and until any suggestions made by the State Council of Education, within thirty (30)[2] days, after the receipt of such plans, shall have been considered by the board of school directors. This section shall not apply to schools built in accordance with plans and specifications furnished by the State Council of Education, as herein provided.

Note:

1. The provisions of this section have been based upon Section 615 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 761.
No section has been placed in this draft to cover the subject-matter of Section 621 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 767, relating to the establishment of heating and ventilation standards by the State Council of Education Likewise the provisions of Subsection (j) of Section 1301 of The Administrative Code of 1929, P. L. 177, 71 PS Sec. 352 relating to the condemnation of school property have been deleted. Economies can be effected in the Department of Public Instruction by means of these changes. At the same time, the local boards will be given powers which they alone should possess.
2. The thirty (30) day limitation is new. It is designed to prevent unnecessary delay.

Section 1214. Requirements as to Ventilation.—[1]No school room or recitation room shall be used in any public school which is not provided with ample means of ventilation, and whose windows, when they are the only means of ventilation, shall not admit of ready adjustment both at the top and bottom, and which does not have some device to protect pupils from currents of cold air. Every school room or recitation room shall be furnished with a thermometer.

Note:

1. This is Section 620 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 766.

Section 1215. Requirements as to Light Area and Floor Space.—[1]All school buildings hereafter built or rebuilt shall comply with the following conditions:

In each school room, the total light area must equal at least twenty per centum (20%) of the floor space, and the light shall not be admitted thereto from the front of the room.

Each school room shall have not less than fifteen (15) square feet of floor space, and not less than two hundred (200) cubic feet of air space per pupils.

Note:

1. This is Section 618 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 764.

Section 1216. Requirements for Stoves.—[1]No board of school directors shall use a common heating stove for the purpose of heating any school room, unless such stove is in part enclosed within a shield or jacket made of galvanized iron or other suitable material, and of sufficient height, and so placed, as to protect all pupils while seated at their desks from direct rays of heat.

Note:

1. This is Section 619 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 765.

Section 1217. Requirements as to Fireproof Construction.—[1]All school buildings, two or more stories high, hereafter erected or leased in any school district of the first class shall be of fireproof construction; in school districts of the second, third and fourth classes, all buildings more than two (2) stories high, hereafter built or leased for school purposes, shall be of fireproof construction.

Note:

1. This is Section 622 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 768.

Section 1218. Requirements as to Fire Escapes.—[1]Each school building shall be provided with the fire escapes and safety appliances required by law.

Note:

1. This is Section 625 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 771.

Section 1219. Requirements as to Doors.—[1]In each building hereafter erected, leased, or used for school purposes, all doors of entrance or exit, as well as all doors leading to or from all regular, special or general rooms shall be made to open outwardly.

Note:

1. This is Section 624 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1925, P. L. 251, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 770.

Section 1220. Requirements as to Grounds Surrounding School Buildings.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall cause the grounds about every school building to be placed and maintained in a neat, proper and sanitary condition, and shall provide and maintain a proper number of shade-trees.

Note:

1. This is Section 626 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 772.

Section 1221. Disinfection of Water-closets.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall keep all water-closets or outhouses, used in connection with any school building, in a clean and sanitary condition, and shall, not less than ten days prior to the opening of any term of school, and oftener if necessary, have them properly cleaned and disinfected by the use of fresh dry-slacked lime, or other proper disinfecting materials.

Note:

1. This is section 633 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 777.

Section 1222. Requirements for Outhouses.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall, with every building used for school purposes, provide and maintain in a proper manner, a suitable number of water-closets or outhouses, not less than two for each building, where both sexes are in attendance. Such water-closets or outhouses shall be suitably constructed for, and used separately by the sexes. When any water-closets or outhouses are outside and detached from the school building, the entrances thereto shall be properly screened, and the buildings shall have separate means of access thereto, and, if possible, for not less than twenty-five (25) feet from such water-closets or outhouses, such means of access or walks leading thereto shall be separated by a closed partition, wall, or fence, not less than seven (7) feet high.

Note:

1. This is Section 632 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 776.

Section 1223. Insurance of School Property.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall have full power and authority to make and enter into any contract or contracts it may deem proper with any person, firm or corporation, including any mutual fire insurance company duly authorized by law to transact business in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, for the purpose of insuring against loss or damage by fire, or otherwise, any or all of the school buildings or other property, real or personal,[2] of the school district.

Note:

1. This is Section 634 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 742, and Section 1 of the Act of 1925, P. L. 305, 53 PS Sec. 1761, providing that such insurance may be taken from any mutual insurance company authorized to transact business in Pennsylvania.
2. The phrase "real or personal" is new; its purpose is to remove any doubt as to the right of a board to insure its personal property, such as school buses.

Section 1224. Display of National Flags.—[1]In each school district the board of school directors, during all hours of school and at such other times as it may see fit, shall display a flag of the United States, at least three feet in length, within all school buildings.

Each such board shall also display during inclement weather such a flag upon or near each such school building. However, where two or more such buildings are adjacent and are located on the same tract of ground, only one flag need be displayed for that group of buildings.

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of Section 629 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1011, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 774.

Section 629, supra, contains provisions relating to the power to make rules and regulations for the display of the flags, and relating to the expenses incurred in such display. These provisions have been omitted for their subject-matter is covered in Article VII of this draft.

Section 1225. Letting of Contracts for Construction, Reconstruction, Heating, Ventilating, et cetera.—All construction, reconstruction, repairs, or work of any nature, including the introduction of heating, ventilating, or lighting systems, in or upon any school building or upon any school property, owned by any school district, where the entire cost, value, or amount of such construction, reconstruction, repairs, or work, including labor and material, shall exceed three hundred dollars ($300.00), in school districts other than those of the first class, and in school districts of the first class, where such entire cost shall exceed six hundred dollars ($600.00), shall, except as otherwise provided in this section be done under written contract or contracts to be entered into by such school district with the lowest responsible bidder, upon proper terms, after advertisement for competitive bids. Such advertisement shall be performed as provided herein.[2] If, however, due to an emergency, a school plant or any part of the same becomes unusuable during the school term, competitive bids for repairs or replacement may, without advertisement, be solicited from at least three (3) responsible bidders, and, upon the approval of any of these bids by the Department, the board of school directors may proceed at once to make the necessary repairs or replacements in accordance with the terms of said approval bid or bids.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 617 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1919, P. L. 889, Section 1; 1929, P. L. 1625, Section 1; 1929, P. L. 1626, Section 1; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 16; 24 PS Sec. 763.

2. The provisions relating to the manner of advertisement have been substituted for the phrase "after due public notice has been given". See Section 6 of this draft.

Section 1226. Bonds for the Protection of Labor and Materialmen.—[1]It shall be the duty of every school district to require each person, co-partnership, association, or corporation, entering into a contract with such district for the construction, erection, installation, completion, alteration, repair of or addition to any public work or improvement of any kind whatsoever, where the amount of such contract is in excess of five hundred dollars ($500.00)), before commencing work under such contract, to execute and deliver to such school district, in addition to any other bond which may now or hereafter be required by law to be given in connection with such contract, an additional bond for the use of any and every person, co-partnership, association, or corporation interested, in a sum not less than fifty per centum (50%) and not more than one hundred per centum (100%) of the contract price, as such school district may prescribe, having as surety thereon one or more surety companies legally authorized to do business in this Commonwealth, conditioned for the prompt payment of all material furnished and labor supplied or performed in the prosecution of the work whether or not such material or labor enter into and become component parts of the work or improvement contemplated. Such additional bond shall be deposited with and held by the school district for the use of any party interested therein. Every such additional bond shall provide that every person, co-partnership, association, or corporation, who, whether as sub-contractor or otherwise, has furnished material or supplied or performed labor in the prosecution of the work as above provided, and who has not been paid therefor may sue in assumpsit on said additional bond in the name of the school district for his, their, or its use, and prosecute the same to final judgment for such sum or sums as may be justly due him, them, or it, and have execution thereon. The school district shall not be liable for the payment of any costs or expenses of any such suit.

Note:

1. This is the amendment of 1931 to Section 617 of the School Law of 1911, 1931, P. L. 243, Section 16, 24 PS Sec. 763.

Section 1227. Intervention on Contractors' Bonds.—[1]In all cases where a surety bond shall be given to a school district, to secure performance by a contractor of any public contract for the construction, reconstruction, alteration, or repair of a building, or other structure, or for the completion of any project or performance of any other work whatsoever, or the supplying of any materials, and said bond shall include a condition for the payment of material furnished and labor supplied or performed in connection with such public work or improvement or similar provisions, irrespective of whether such bond or any provision therein shall have been required by statute, ordinance, or any other authority, and where no separate or additional bond conditioned for the payment of material furnished and labor supplied or performed in connection with such public contract has been taken, then and in such extent every person, co-partnership, association, or corporation, who, whether as subcontractor or otherwise, has furnished material or supplied or performed labor in connection with such public work or improvement, and who has not been paid therefor, shall have the right to intervene and be made a party to any action instituted on such bond by the school district named as obligee therein and have his, their or its rights and claims adjudicated in such action and judgment rendered thereon for any amount due him, them, or it for such labor or materials, subject, however, to the priority of the claim and judgment of the school district, if any. If the amount of the liability of the surety on said bond is insufficient to pay the full amount of said claims and demands, then, after paying the full amount due the school district, the remainder shall be distributed pro rata among said interveners.

Note:

1. This section and the two sections immediately following it have been drawn from the Act of 1931, P. L. 1181, 53 PS Sec. 16994. They make no changes in the prior law.

Section 1228. Action by Creditors.—[1]If no such suit shall be brought by the school district within six months from the completion of such contract and final settlement therefor, then the person or persons who have supplied the contractor with labor and materials shall, upon application therefor and furnishing affidavit to the school district that labor and materials for the prosecution of such work have been supplied by him, them, or it, and that payment for the same has not been made, be furnished with a certified copy of said contract and bond, upon which he, they, or it shall have a right of action, and shall be and are hereby authorized to bring suit, in the name of the school district, for his, their, or its use and benefit against said contractor and his sureties and to prosecute the same to final judgment and execution. Where such suit shall be instituted by any of such creditors on the bond of the contractor, it shall not be commenced until after the complete performance of said contract and final settlement thereof with the school district and shall be commenced within one year after the performance and the final settlement of such contract, and not later. Where such suit shall thus be instituted by a creditor or creditors, no other action shall be brought by any other creditor, but any other creditor may file his claim in the action first brought, and be made party thereto, within one year from the completion of the work under said contract, but not later. If two or more actions be brought on the same day, the action in which the largest claim is demanded shall be regarded as the first action.

Note:

1. See note to Section 1227 of this draft.

Section 1229. Intervention in Creditor's Suit.—[1]Any creditor who shall have brought an action within one year as aforesaid, but after suit brought by another creditor or on the same day, may intervene in the suit first brought within the year, notwithstanding the fact that the intervention in such case be after the expiration of the year, provided such intervention be made within thirty days after the expiration of the year. If the recovery on the bond should be inadequate to pay the amounts found due to all of said creditors, judgment shall be given to each creditor pro rata of the amount of the recovery. The surety on said bond may pay into court, for distribution among said claimants and creditors, the full amount of the surety's liability, to wit, the penalty named in the bond, less any amount which said surety may have had to pay to the school district by reason of the execution of said bond, and, upon so doing, the surety will be relieved from further liability. In all such suits such personal notice of their pendency informing them of their right to intervene, as the court may order, shall be given to all known creditors, and, in addition thereto, notice shall be given by publication in a newspaper of general circulation published in the county or town where the contract was performed once a week for at least three successive weeks. However, when such suit shall have been begun within three weeks of the end of the year within which suit may be brought, such notice by publication shall be only for the period intervening between the time of instituting such suit and the end of the year. Where, however, the principal contractor shall have, for any reason, failed to complete performance of his contract, and completion of the project is undertaken by the school district, or the surety, either by itself or by letting of new contracts, the six-month period before which suit may be brought and the one-year period within which such action must be commenced by sub-contractors, materialmen, and laborers, as above provided, shall date from the completion and acceptance of the project covered by the original contract and bond. For the purposes of such suits, the date of such completion shall be fixed by the officers of the school district. Written notice of the date of such completion shall be given to all persons who shall have therefore requested such notice.

Note:

1. See note to Section 1227 of this draft.

Section 1230. Lease of Premises, Buildings, and Equipment for Educational Purposes.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall have power and authority to lease any part of its respective school buildings, equipment, and premises to any university or college of the Commonwealth, approved by the State Council of Education, for the purpose of conducting and maintaining therein university or collegiate courses. Such leases shall be subject to the terms and regulations which may be adopted by the board of school directors.

Note:

1. This is the second paragraph of Section 627 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 958, Section 1; and the Act of 1927, P. L. 87, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 773.
That section requires the approval of the State Council of Education to any such lease. That requirement has been omitted.

Section 1231. Use of Grounds and Buildings.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors may permit the use of its school grounds and buildings for social, recreational and other proper purposes, under such rules and regulations as the board may adopt, and may make such arrangements as it may see proper with the authorities of any city, borough, incorporated town, or township for the improvement, care, protection, and maintenance of school buildings and grounds for school, park, play, or other recreational purposes. Each such board of school directors may make such arrangements as it may deem proper with any officials or individuals for the temporary use of school property for election, social, recreational or any other proper purpose.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the first paragraph of Section 627 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1927, P. L. 87, and the Act of 1921, P. L. 958, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 773.
The last sentence has been changed to permit, if the board of school directors thinks proper, a wider use of school property by the public. Section 627 of the School Law of 1911, supra, was construed to mean that outside groups could only use the school property for educational purposes: Hysong v. School District of Gallitzin Borough, 164 Pa. 629 (1894); Larson v. DuBois Borough School Directors, 24 Dist. 680 (1914). This restriction has unduly limited the use of school property for the best interests of the community. Frequently school auditoriums are the only available places in which to hold community events; their use should only be controlled by the sound discretion of the board of school directors.

Section 1232. Exemption of School Property from Taxation and Assessments.—[1]All school property owned by any school district, real and personal, that shall be occupied and used by any school district for public school, recreational, or any other purposes provided for by this act, shall be, and hereby is, made exempt from every kind of State, county, city, borough, township, or other tax, as well as from all costs or expense for paving, curbing, sidewalks, sewers, or other municipal improvements. A school district may, however, make any municipal improvement, in any street on which its school property abuts, or may contribute any sum toward the cost thereof.

No such exemption from assessments for the cost of municipal improvements shall be permitted to increase the amount which would have been chargeable against any other person or corporation therefor if such exemption did not exist.

Note:

1. This is Section 631 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 771.
Section 602 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1919, P. L. 298, Section 1; 1921, P. L. 970, Section 1; and 1925, P. L. 348, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 672, contained a sentence "* * * any such buildings or other real estate used for school or playground purposes acquired in any other district by any such district shall be exempt from taxation for any purpose whatever." Inasmuch as the above section covers the same subject-matter, the quoted portion from Section 602 has been omitted in this draft.
The last sentence is new. Its purpose is to prevent the exemption of the school district from placing an added burden on other neighboring property owners. The municipal subdivision must bear the burden.

Section 1233. Damaging or Defacing School Property; Penalties.—[1]If any person shall wilfully or maliciuosly break into, enter, deface, or write, mark, or place any obscene or improper matter upon any public school building, or other building used for school purposes, or other purposes provided for in this act or any outhouse used in connection therewith, or if any person shall wilfully or maliciously deface, injure, damage, or destroy any school furniture, books, papers, maps, charts, apparatus, or other property contained in any public school building, or other building used and occupied for school purposes, or other purposes provided for in this act, if any person shall wilfully or maliciously injure, damage or destroy any shade-tree, shrubbery, fences, or any other property of any kind, upon any public school grounds or upon any public school playground, such person shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not less than five dollars ($5.00) and not more than two hundred dollars ($200.00), or undergo an imprisonment in the county jail for a period not exceeding six (6) months, or both, at the discretion of the court.

Note:

1. This is Section 628 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2389.

ARTICLE XIII

SCHOOL SUPPLIES

Section 1300. Duty to Purchase School Supplies.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall purchase all necessary furniture, equipment, textbooks, school supplies, and other appliances for the use of the public schools, or any department threeof, in the district, and furnish the same free of cost for use in its schools, subject to such rules and regulations regarding the use and safe-keeping thereof as it may adopt. All such furniture, equipment, books, school supplies, and other appliances purchased by the board of school directors for the use of the public schools shall be purchased in the manner provided in this act.

Note:

1. This is Section 701 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 821.

Section 1301. Purchase of Supplies.—[1]When a board of school directors shall deem it necessary to purchase any supplies, including fuel, in an amount exceeding three hundred dollars ($300.00), it shall give public notice of such fact by advertisement, as provided herein,[2] except that such advertisement need be performed for only two (2) weeks. The board shall accept the bid of the lowest responsible bidder, kind, quality, and material being equal, but shall have the right to reject any and all bids or select a single item from any bid. The provisions of this section shall not apply to purchases, which shall be made from boards of inspectors of prisons in counties of the first class, of surplus printing or products of such prisons,[3] nor shall the provisions of this section apply to any purchases of textbooks.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
The School Law of 1911 provides, in Sections 706, 707 (a), and 708, 24 PS Sec. 828, 829, and 830, that school supplies shall be classified into two categories, namely, those of the first class, made up of furniture, and those of the second class, composed of school supplies other than textbooks. Supplies of the first class, costing over one hundred dollars ($100.00) may be purchased only after bids had been solicited from two or more firms or individuals; supplies of the second class costing over three hundred dollars ($300.00) may be purchased only after public advertisement for bids.
Experience has shown that the most economical buying does not result in the purchasing of supplies of the first class. The classification has, therefore been eliminated, and competitive bids required for both classes.
The word "fuel" has been added. In White v. Moore, 288

Pa.' 471 (1927), it was held that the purchase of fuel was not covered by the provisions of the School Law of 1911, which relate to the purchase of supplies.

2. See Section 6 of this draft.

3. The last sentence has been added to express the subject-matter of the Act of 1931, P. L. 138, 61 PS Sec. 255, et seq.

Section 1302. Adoption of Textbooks.—[1]School textbooks may be adopted by a board of school directors only at a regular or special meeting held between the first day of April and the first day of the following August, and after the adoption of such books has been recommended by the superintendent. Books which are supplementary to regularly adopted textbooks may, after having been recommended by the superintendent, be adopted at any meeting of the board.

Note:

1. This is based upon Section 703 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 823.

Section 703 of the School Law of 1911, supra, provides that without the recommendation of the superintendent or principal no change in textbooks may be made unless the board of school directors by the affirmative vote of two-thirds (2-3) of all of the members should pass a resolution in favor of the change. The new section provides, in accordance with the recommendation of the Committee on Local Unit of School Administration appointed by the Superintendent of Public Instruction to propose changes to the School Law, that no textbooks may be adopted unless they have been recommended by the Superintendent.

Section 1303. Period During Which Textbooks Are to Be Used.—[1]Textbooks, adopted, under the provisions of this act, by any school district of the second, third or fourth class, shall be continued in use for a period of not less than five (5) years.

Note:

1. This is Section 702 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 822.

Section 1304. Use of Textbooks During Vacation.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors may allow any pupil in such district the use of school books during vacations, under such rules and regulations as it may adopt.

Note:

1. This is section 704 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 824.

Section 1305. Contracts for Light, Heat and Water; Apportionment in Estimate of Expenses.—[1]In each school district the board of school directors may enter into a contract with any person, firm, association, or corporation, for the furnishing of light, heat, or water to such school district, for any term not exceeding five years. The amount to become due and payable thereon, under such contract, may be distributed equally during the years over which the same extends, and only so much thereof as becomes due and payable in any one year need be provided for in the annual estimate of school expenses for that school year, and be certified to by any school controller.

Note:

1. This is Section 630 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 775.

Section 1306. Duty to Sell Coal.—[1]It shall be the duty of the individual, owner, operator, president, director, general manager, superintendent, or other person in charge of or having supervision over any anthracite coal mine or mining operation, after having received notice and demand, to furnish and sell at reasonable prices such amount of anthracite fuel coal as shall be necessary for the proper heating of any school building which shall be located within the limits of the municipality in which such coal mine operation shall be conducted. Each such person who shall be required to sell such coal shall, however, have the right to demand that the district which shall purchase such coal shall pay therefor at the mine or coal pocket where such coal shall be furnished.

Any person who shall wilfully violate any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction therefor, shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not more than one thousand dollars ($1000.00), or undergo imprisonment for not more than one (1) year, or both, at the discretion of the court.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the Act of 1923, P. L. 453, 52 PS Sec 641. The Act of 1923 relates to fuel for the heating of any "hospital, poorhouse, or other charitable institution, school building, church, or place of religious worship or public building, municipal or quasi-municipal in character."

Section 1307. Employe of School District as Agent for School Books and Supplies.—[1]No person shall act as agent for school books or school supplies in any district by which he shall be, or, during the school year last preceding has been, employed.

Note:

1. This is Section 709 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 831.

Section 1308. Bribery to Secure Purchase of School Equipment and Supplies; Penalty.—[1]Every person, firm, association, or corporation that shall directly or indirectly, individually or through an agent or representative, give or promise to give to any school director, officer of any school board, superintendent, teacher, or any other person, any sum of money or other valuable thing, or shall make any promise of any appointment or position, in order to secure, procure, or influence the recommendation, adoption, rejection, or purchase of any books, school furniture, or supplies by any superintendent, teacher, or school district in this Commonwealth, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not less than five dollars ($5.00), or more than five hundred dollars ($500.00), or be sentenced to imprisonment in the county jail for not less than thirty (30) days or more than one year, or both, at the discretion of the court.

Note:

1. This is Section 710 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 832.

Section 1309. Acceptance or Request for Bribes; Penalty.—[1]Every school director, officer, superintendent, supervising principal, or teacher, who shall ask for or accept from any person, firm, association, or corporation, or any agent or representative thereof, any money or other valuable thing for his vote, recommendation, or influence in order to secure the recommendation, adoption, rejection or purchase of any school books, school furniture, or other school supplies, or the election of any officer, teacher, or employe of the school district, either directly or indirectly, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not less than twenty-five ($25.00) dollars, or more than five hundred ($500.00) dollars, or to undergo imprisonment in the county jail for not less than thirty (30) days, or more than one (1) year, or both, at the discretion of the court.

Note:

1. This section is based on Section 711 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 833.

The provision relating to the election of officers, teachers, and employes is new. It is designed to eliminate certain practices of directors who levy tribute for the election of teachers and officers of the school district.

ARTICLE XIV

STATE SUBSIDIES

A. General Provisions

Section 1400. Definition of District.—[1]The word "district" as used in this article shall, unless a different meaning shall clearly be required by the context, refer to a separate school district and to a union of school districts which shall maintain a joint class, school or department.

Note:

1. The purpose of this section is to remove the necessity of repeatedly making reference to appropriations to two (2) or more districts which maintain joint schools, classes or departments.

Section 1401. Apportionment and Distribution of Appropriations.—[1]The Department shall apportion and distribute all appropriations which shall be made for the maintenance and support of the public school system of this Commonwealth, as herein provided.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 2302 of the School Law of 1911, 72 PS Sec. 3512.

Section 1402. Payments to Treasurers.—[1]All funds which shall be apportioned and distributed by the Department for the school districts of this Commonwealth shall be paid to the treasurers of the respective districts, and shall be used by the districts for the purposes provided herein.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 2310 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1919, P. L. 997, Section 5, 72 PS Sec. 3520.

Section 1403. Balances.—[1]Each balance of a State appropriation which shall remain on hand through forfeiture or otherwise shall be added to the appropriation for the following year.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 2309 of the School Law of 1911, 72 PS Sec. 3519.

Section 1404. Manner of Payment.—[1]The Department shall apportion and allot the amount of the State appropriation to be paid to each school district into equal semi-annual installments. The Commonwealth shall, during the months of February and August pay, in the manner provided by law, the amount owing to each school district of the fourth class, during the months of March and September to school districts of the second and third classes, and during the months of April and October to school districts of the first class.

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of the subject-matter of Subsection 23 of Section 1210, of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1925, P. L. 547, Section 3, 24 PS Sec. 1184.

Section 1405. Notice to School Districts.—[1]When the Department shall have ascertained the amount of the State appropriation which shall be payable semi-annually to each school district, it shall notify each such school district of the amount of such funds which it will receive.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
Its subject-matter has been drawn from a portion of Subsection 22 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1183.

B. Equalization Reimbursements

Section 1406. Information Relating to Rate of Assessment..—[1]Each board of school directors shall, on or before the first day of October in the year one thousand nine hundred thirty-four, and biennially thereafter, furnish to the State Council of Education such information and data relating to the valuation of the taxable property in such school district and the rate of assessment of such property as the State Council shall require.

If the State Council of Education shall be of the opinion that the material thus furnished shall not be sufficient or correct, it may make such independent investigation and institute such proceedings as it may deem necessary to determine the assessed valuation of taxable property of such school district and the average rate of assessment of such property.

Note:

1. The substance of this section has been drawn from Subsection 19 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1925, P. L. 374, Section 1; 1927, P. L. 392; 1929, P. L. 1622; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 28; 24 PS Sec. 1180. It sets forth the means by which the State Council of Education will be able to secure the data necessary for a correct determination of the assessed valuation for each school district, and the true rate of assessment.

Section 1407. Determination of True Valuation.—[1]From the data and information which shall be so obtained from each board of school directors, and from its independent investigation, the State Council of Education shall during the month of October, one thousand nine hundred thirty-four, and biennially thereafter, determine the true valuation of the taxable property of each school district by dividing the amount of the assessed valuation of the taxable property of such district by the average rate of assessment. The true valuation, thus determined, shall, except as herein otherwise provided, serve as the basis for all disbursements made by the Commonwealth to each such district during the biennium which shall begin on the first day of June next following such October.

Note:

1. The substance of this section has been drawn from Subsection 20 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1925, P. L. 374, Section 1; 1927, P. L. 392; 1929, P. L. 1622; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 28; 24 PS Sec. 1180. The preceding section of this draft requires that the various boards shall, on or before the first day of October of the year preceding each fiscal biennium, present to the State Council of Education the data necessary for the determination of the assessed valuation and rate of assessment. This section sets forth the formula by which the true valuation shall be estimated upon the basis of the information thus furnished.

Section 1408. Certificates for Biennial Payments.—[1]In each school district, the superintendent shall annually on or before the first day of November, file a certificate with the Department stating the number of full-time teachers, supervisors, principals, and other full-time members of the teaching and supervisory staffs, employed for the then current school year, the certificates held by each, the compensation paid to each, and the average number of pupils in daily attendance during the then current school term. Each such certificate shall also contain any information which the Department may require concerning any schools which have been permanently closed.

Note:

1. The substance of this section has been drawn from Subsection 20 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1925, P. L. 547, Section 2; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 29; 24 PS Sec. 1181.
This section of the draft requires that the certificates state the average number of pupils in daily attendance in each district. This is necessary in order for the computation of the amount which will be due the district under the equalization plan of State disbursements.
Subsection 20, supra, also includes a statement which requires the certificates to state the number of full-time teachers and supervisors in extension schools. Inasmuch as those teachers and supervisors are included in the phrase "full-time teachers, supervisors, principals, and all other full-time members of the teaching and supervisory staffs," it has been unnecessary to repeat the requirement as to this class of persons.

Section 1409. Error in Certificates.—[1]If any error shall be made in the certificates herein required to be furnished by the superintendent stating the number of full-time members of the teaching and supervisory staffs, the certificates held by each, the compensation paid each, and the number of pupils in daily attendance, the superintendent shall immediately forward to the Department a correct certificate. The Department shall make such certificate the basis of the appropriation due such district.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 2308 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1927, P. L. 111, 72 PS Sec. 3518.

Section 1410. Estimate of Amounts for the Year 1933-1934.—[1]Upon the true valuation of each district which shall have been determined as herein provided in the month of October in the year one thousand nine hundred thirty-two, and upon the information contained in the certificates which shall have been filed on or before the first day of November of such year, the Department shall ascertain the amount of funds which will be required to meet each of the two (2) payments to school districts which shall become due and payable within the fiscal year beginning on the first day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three, and ending on May thirty-first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-four.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It sets forth the manner for the computing of the amounts of State disbursements to the various school districts for the fiscal year 1933-1934. The formula, as used in this section is the same as that herein provided for the ascertainment of these amounts for the various years. For the sake of clarity, however, the provisions as to this first year under the new equalization plan have been set forth in a separate section.

Section 1411. Estimate of Amount; Amount Payable in First Year of Biennium.—[1]Upon a true valuation of each district which shall have been determined as herein puovided in the month of October in the year one thorsand nine hundred thirty-four, and biennially thereafter, and upon the information contained in the certificate which shall have been filed on or before the first day of November of such year, the Department shall ascertain the amount which shall, except as herein otherwise provided, became due and payable within the biennium which will begin on the first day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-five, and biennially thereafter. The Commonwealth shall pay, for the first year of each of such bienniums, one-half (1-2) of the amounts which shall have been thus determined.

Note:

1. This section sets forth the manner in which the Department shall, in each November of the year which precedes a fiscal biennium, estimate the amount which each district shall receive for each year of the biennium which will begin in the following June. The amount, which the Department will thus have estimated for the first year of such biennium will be the amount which the Department will pay for that year. The amount which will be payable during the second year of the biennium will vary from the amount payable during the first year for the reason that the number of teachers and the average daily attendance will vary between the sending of the certificates for these calculations and the sending of the report one (1) year later. The next section of this draft sets forth the manner for computing the amount which shall be payable during the second year of each biennium.

Section 1412. Amount for Second Year of Biennium.—[1]Upon the data and information contained in the certificates which shall be furnished to the Department on or before the first day of November in the year one thousand nine hundred thirty-three, and biennially thereafter, the Department shall determine whether or not any district shall be entitled to receive, for the second year of any binnium, an amount which shall be greater or less than that which shall have been determined upon the basis of the certificate furnished in the November preceding the biennium.

If it shall appear that any district shall be entitled to a smaller amount, the Commonwealth shall pay such smaller amount for the second year of the biennium. If it shall appear that any district shall be entitled to a larger amount, the Commonwealth shall pay such increase at the time of the payment of the last quarterly payment of the biennium.

Note:

1. The substance of this section has been drawn from Subsections 19 and 21 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, as amended, 24 PS Sec. 1180-1182. It provides that the disbursements to the various district for the second year of the biennium shall be based upon the certificate stating the number of teachers employed and the number of pupils in attendance during the year preceding the first November of each biennium; it permits a readjustment of the payments by the Commonwealth in order to have them conform to conditions which have changed since the estimate for the payments for the biennium year were calculated.

Section 1413. Computation of Amount.—[1]The Commonwealth shall pay for the fiscal year beginning on the first day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three, and each fiscal year thereafter, to each school district a sum which, when added to the amount which will result from multiplying the true valuation of all property assessable for school purposes in such school district by six (6) mills, will annually provide one thousand one hundred dollars ($1,100.00) for each full-time member of the teaching and supervisory staff, who shall be properly certificated and who shall be paid a salary equal to or greater than the amount required by this act to be paid to such person. No district of the first class shall, however, receive less than two hundred fifty dollars ($250.00) for each such member of such staff; nor shall any district of the second, third and fourth classes receive less than three hundred dollars ($300.00) for each such member of such staff.

In no district, however, shall the number on the teaching and supervisory staff, used as the basis for such payment exceed the number of members on such staff to which the district would be entitled under the following schedule: for each district, one member of the staff shall be allowed for each thirty (30) elementary pupils, except in one-teacher schools now in existence or in approved special classes for physically or mentally handicapped children where one member of the teaching and supervisory staff shall be allowed for each of such schools or classes; for each district which shall maintain an approved high school, one member of such staff shall be allowed for each twenty-five (25) pupils of such one or more high schools.

Note:

1. This is a new section.

The formula, here set forth, has been adopted to replace the method of distribution of State aid which is provided in Subsection 19 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1925, P. L. 374, Section 1; 1927, P. L. 392; 1929, P. L. 1622; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 28; 24 PS Sec. 1180. Subsection 19, supra, provides that the Commonwealth shall reimburse the districts for certain stated percentages of the minimum salaries. It did not, to any appreciable extent, base the amount of State reimbursement upon the ability of the school district to pay the minimum salaries.

The great variance in the abilities of the various districts to support a proper school system by local taxation is illustrated by the following facts. The poorest fourth class district now has a four thousand dollar ($4,000.00) true and assessed valuation per teacher; the richest fourth class district has a two million, four hundred seventeen thousand dollar ($2,417,000) true, and a seven hundred twenty-five thousand dollar ($725,000) assessed valuation per teacher. This means that the wealthiest fourth class district has an ability to pay equal to six hundred (600) times that of the poorest district.

This new section is based upon the principle that State aid should be granted to the school districts in inverse proportion to the ability of each district to pay its necessary expenses by local taxation.

The amounts set forth in this section are based upon an estimated appropriation of fifty-three milion dollars ($53,000,000) for this purpose. If the Edmonds Act remains as it now is, an appropriation of fifty-eight million dollars ($58,000,000) would be necessary.

If the plan for the granting of State subsidies here set forth should not be adopted, and if there will be but fifty-three million dollars ($53,000,000) available for this purpose for the coming biennium, there would be two possible alternatives, either of which could be adopted.

The first alternative would be to reduce the amount of the reimbursement fifty dollars ($50.00) per teacher for all districts. This would require approximately fifty-one million dollars ($51,000,000) for the biennium; the two million dollars ($2,000,000) remaining would be available for the relieving of districts which would require extra aid.

The second alternative would be a flat twelve per centum (12%) cut in the amount paid for each teacher to each district.

Inasmuch as neither of these two plans would result in a distribution which would be based upon the comparative needs of the districts, the equalization plan, as set forth in this section of the draft, has been presented.

C. Reimbursements for Closed Schools

Section 1414. Closed Schools.—[1]The Commonwealth shall annually pay to each district of the fourth class the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00), for each school which shall have been permanently closed or discontinued in such district since the year one thousand nine hundred eleven, or which shall have been permanently closed or discontinued under the provisions of the Act approved the twenty-fifth day of April, one thousand nine hundred one (Pamphlet Laws one hundred five), entitled, "An act to provide for the centralization of township schools, and to provide high schools for townships."

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Subsection 19 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, as amended, 24 PS Sec. 1180. That section, however, provides that the annual payment for each closed school shall be two hundred dollars ($200.00). The reduction has been made because many districts have been receiving this two hundred dollar ($200.00) bonus for a sufficient number of years to have enabled them to pay a proportionate cost of any new building which would have been made necessary by the closing of any such school. The increased amount of State disbursements which will be payable under the equalization plan, as set forth in this draft, will provide larger sums for the rural districts of the Commonwealth, so that they will no longer require the aid of this two hundred dollar ($200) annual bonus for each closed school.

D. Reimbursements for Special Education

Section 1415. Reports as to Special Education.—[1]On or before the first day of October of each year, the secretary of the board of school directors in each district in which special education for physically or mentally handicapped children shall be provided, shall make such reports relating to such special education maintained during the previous school year, and that for which the approval of the State Council of Education for the current year shall be desired, as may be required by the State Council of Education.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the sixth paragraph of Section 1413 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1919, P. L. 1090; and 1925, P. L. 70, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 1401-5.

Section 1416. Special Classes.—[1]The Commonwealth shall annually pay, for each full-time teacher of a special class, and for each full-time supervisor or principal of special schools or classes, which shall have been organized by any school district and approved by the State Council of Education, and which shall provide for the special education of physically or mentally handicapped pupils, in addition to any other payments herein provided, the following sums: To districts of the first class, twelve per centum (12%), and to second, third and fourth class districts, fifteen per centum (15%), of the basic minimum salary prescribed herein for elementary teachers in such districts respectively. For each part-time teacher, supervisor, or principal who shall be employed in any such special class or school, the Commonwealth shall annually pay a fraction of such amount proportional to the time for which such person shall be employed.

Note:

1. Subsection 19 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, as amended, 24 PS Sec. 1180, sets forth a similar schedule for payments for special classes. The percentage under the Act of 1911, however, are twice those stated in this section of the draft. The reduction has been made in order to economize in the special or extra features of the educational system, so that the general appropriations to school districts will not be materially reduced.

E. Reimbursements for Vocational and Continuation Education

Section 1417. Expenditures for Vocational and Continuation Schools.—[1]In each school district, the superintendent shall, on or before the tenth day of July of each year, present to the Department a statement of the amount which shall have been expended during the year which closed on the first Monday of such July, for instruction in approved vocational industrial, vocational home economics, vocational agricultural and continuation schools or departments which shall have been conducted by such district.

Note:

1. The provisions of this section have been drawn from Section 11 of the Act of 1913, P. L. 138, as amended by the Act of 1925, P. L. 418, Section 11, 72 PS Sec. 4283.

Section 1418. Vocational Education.—[1]The Commonwealth shall annually pay to each school district which shall maintain an approved vocational industrial, vocational home economics, or vocational agricultural school or department, in addition to any other amounts provided herein, the following percentages of the sums which shall have been expended for salaries during the previous school year by each district for approved instruction in practical and related technical subjects in day vocational schools or departments, and for approved instruction in practical, related technical and academic subjects in part-time co-operative schools or departments: In districts of the first class, twelve per centum (12%); in districts of the second, third and fourth class, thirty per centum (30%).

The Commonwealth shall also pay to each school district of the fourth class ten per centum (10%) of the sum which each such district shall have expended for salaries during the previous school year for approved instruction in academic subjects in approved rural community vocational schools.

The Commonwealth, in order to aid in the maintenance of approved evening vocational industrial, evening vocational home economics, and evening vocational agricultural schools, departments, or part-time vocational courses, shall pay, as provided in this act, annually to each school district which shall maintain such evening schools or departments an amount equal to one-third (1-3) of the sum which shall have been expended for salaries of part-time and evening school teachers and supervisors during the previous school year by such district for approved instruction in practical and approved related technical subjects.

Note:

1. The first paragraph of this section has been drawn from the first three paragraphs of Section 9 of the Act of 1913, P. L. 138; 72 PS Sec. 4281. That section provides that each school district of the first class shall receive twenty-five per centum (25%) of the sum expended for the types of instruction enumerated in the first paragraph of this section. Under the existing law the second, third and fourth classes receive forty (40), forty-five (45), fifty-five (55) per centum of such amounts dependent upon the amount of the assessed valuation of the district. This section therefore reduces the amount which will be expended by the Commonwealth for aid in vocational subjects approximately one-third (1-3). Although this does reduce the amount which districts will receive from the State, it is felt that the local districts can make up the loss by effecting economies or curtailment of activities in the field of vocational education without materially affecting the general efficiency of the public schools as a whole. Even with the subsidies provided by this section, the school districts will be receiving considerably more for salaries of teachers of vocational and other special subjects than they receive for teachers of the basic school subjects. The propriety of making any discrimination at all against the basic school subjects has been seriously questioned.

The second paragraph of this section has been drawn from the last proviso of the third paragraph of the same section. The proviso as it now stands in the Act of 1913, as amended, provides for a payment of twenty per centum (20%). This amount has been reduced to ten per centum (10%), for the reasons stated above.

The third paragraph of this section has been drawn from the fourth paragraph of the same section of the Act of 1913, supra. It provides for a fifty per centum (50%) cut in the amount of the State contributions for the support of vocational education.

Section 9 of the Act of 1913, P. L. 138, as amended by the Act of 1925, P. L. 418, Section 9, contains a provision that when two (2) or more districts of the fourth class should unite by joint agreement for the purpose of maintaining vocational instruction, the Commonwealth should annually pay five hundred dollars ($500.00) to such district. Inasmuch as under the new system of school districts, as set forth in this draft, there will be no need for such union educational projects, this draft contains no corresponding provision.

Section 1419. Continuation Schools.—[1]The Commonwealth shall annually pay to each school district which shall maintain compulsory general continuation schools for minors from fourteen (14) to sixteen (16) years of age, ten per centum (10%) of the sum which shall have been expended for salaries of full-time teachers during the previous school year by the district for approved instruction in such schools. The Commonwealth shall annually reimburse each such district to the extent of twenty per centum (20%) of the sum which shall have been expended during the previous school year for the salaries of teachers of general continuation schools who shall have been employed on part-time basis.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the last paragraph of the Act of 1913, P. L. 138, Section 9, as amended by the Act of 1925, P. L. 418, Section 9, 72 PS Sec. 4281. That section provided that the percentages should be twenty (20) and forty (40) per centum instead of ten (10) and twenty (20) per centum as set forth in this section of the draft. The reduction has been made in order to bring the estimated expenditures for school purposes for the coming biennium within the proposed budget.

F. Reimbursements For Extension Education

Section 1420. Extension Schools.—[1]The Commonwealth shall annually pay to each school district for each part-time member of the teaching and supervisory staff which shall be employed by such district in such extension schools and classes which shall have been approved by the Department and which shall have been established for the education of adults and legally employed minors and not designated as continuation or other vocational schools or clases, the following percentages of the basic minimum salary herein required to be paid to each part-time teacher in such extension schools and classes: In districts of the first class twenty-five per centum (25%); in districts of the second and third classes thirty-five per centum (35%); and in districts of the fourth class fifty per centum (50%).

Note:

1. This is a new section. Subsection 19 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, as amended, 24 PS Sec. 1180, provides that the Commonwealth shall pay, toward the salaries of these teachers, the same per centum of the minimum salary provided by law as is paid to such districts of the minimum salary for the full-time teacher. Under the School Law of 1911 and its amendments, the amount paid in districts of the first class is twenty-five per centum (25%); in districts of the second class, thirty-five per centum (35%); in districts of the third class, a percentage which varies from thirty-five (35) to seventy-five (75); and in districts of the fourth class a percentage which varies from fifty (50) to seventy-five (75).

G. Reimbursements For the Education of the Deaf and Blind

Section 1421. Period of State Payments.—[1]The Department shall determine the length of time during which the Commonwealth shall pay the whole or any portion of the expenses incident to the instruction of blind or deaf students, as provided in this act, in institutions for such persons.

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of Section 1 of the Act of 1919, P. L. 198, as amended by the Act of 1925, P. L. 76, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 2604.

Section 1422. Statements by Institutions.—[1]Each school or institution for the deaf or blind in which there are enrolled students for whom, by the provisions of this act, one or more school districts or the Commonwealth shall be liable for a portion or all of the cost of tuition and maintenance, shall furnish to the Department at such times and in such form as the Department shall prescribe, sworn statements setting forth the names, ages, and residences of all such pupils, the school districts liable for a portion of the tuition and maintenance of any of such pupils, and any other information which the Department may require. Each of such institutions shall send a statement to each school district which shall be liable, under the provisions of this act, for any such tuition, setting forth the amount of the district's share of such tuition.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the last sentence of Section 1413 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1919, P. L. 1090; 1925, P. L. 70, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 1405.

Section 1423. Payment of Tuition of Blind or Deaf Children.—[1]When any child between the ages of six (6) and twenty-one (21), resident in this Commonwealth, who is blind or deaf, is enrolled, with the approval of the Department, as a pupil in any of the schools or institutions for the blind or deaf, under the supervision of and approved by the Department, the school district in which such child is resident shall pay twenty-five per cent. (25%) of the cost of tuition and maintenance of such child in such school or institution; for the tuition and maintenance of such children the Commonwealth shall pay, out of funds appropriated to the Department for special education, seventy-five per cent (75%) of the cost of his tuition and maintenance. The cost of such tuition and maintenance shall be determined by the Department.

Note:

1. This is the central portion of the sixth paragraph of Section 1413 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1919, P. L. 1090; and 1925, P. L. 70, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 1401-1405.

Section 1424. Education of Blind or Deaf Persons Less Than Six (6) and Over Twenty-one (21).—[1]When any person less than six (6) years, or more than twenty-one (21) years of age, resident in this Commonwealth, who is blind or deaf, is enrolled with the approval of the Department as a pupil in any of the schools or institutions for the blind or deaf, under the supervision of and approved by the Department, the Commonwealth shall pay to such school or institution, out of moneys appropriated to the Department for special education, the cost of tuition and maintenance of such person. The cost of such tuition and maintenance shall be determined by the Department.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the third sentence of the sixth paragraph of Section 1413 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1919, P. L. 1090; and 1925, P. L. 70, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 1405.

Section 1425. Manner of Payment of Tuition.—[1]When any school district shall be liable, by the provisions of this act, for a portion of the cost of the tuition and maintenance of any of its students in a school or institution for the deaf or blind, the Department shall withhold from any moneys due to such school district out of any State appropriation for the assistance of school districts, the amount which shall be due by such school district to such institution or institutions. All amounts so withheld shall be paid by the Commonwealth to such schools or institutions in the manner provided by law.

All payments of the Commonwealth's portion of the cost of tuition and maintenance of blind and deaf pupils shall be made quarterly out of money appropriated regularly to the Department for special education and shall be paid in the manner provided by law.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the fourth sentence of the sixth paragraph of Section 1413 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1919, P. L. 1090; and 1925, P. L. 70, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 1405.

H. Reimbursements For Compulsory Transportation

Section 1426. Report of Amount Expended For Compulsory Transportation.—[1]In each school district of the third and fourth classes which shall be required to transport or pay for the board and lodging of its pupils, the secretary of the board of school directors shall annually, on or before the first day of July, present to the Department, in such form as it may prescribe and on blanks furnished by it, a sworn statement of the amount expended during the previous school year for such transportation, boarding and lodging.

In September of each year, the Commonwealth shall pay to each such school district such amount which it has thus expended during the preceding school year.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of the last paragraph of Section 1406 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1923, P. L. 910; 1925, P. L. 628, Section 2; 1929, P. L. 497, Section 5; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 34; 24 PS Sec. 1378.

Section 1427. Compulsory Transportation.—[1]Upon the approval by the Department of the method and means of transportation and the contracts under which such transportation shall be performed, the Commonwealth shall annually pay to each school district fifty per centum (50%) of the sum which such district shall have expended during the previous school year in the transportation and payment of board and lodging of pupils which such district shall have been required to provide by the provisions of this act, or by the provisions of the Act approved the eighteenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred eleven (Pamphlet Laws three hundred nine), entitled, "An act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, together with the provisions by which it shall be administered, and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof; providing revenue to establish and maintain the same, and the method of collecting such revenue; and repealing all laws, general, special or local, or any parts thereof, that are or may be inconsistent therewith," its amendments and supplements.

Such cost of transportation shall, for each school district which has purchased or may hereafter purchase an approved school conveyance which is used exclusively for such transportation, include a reasonable charge for depreciation and repairs; such charge shall not exceed fifteen per centum (15%) of the cost of such approved vehicle, nor shall it exceed the sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00) per vehicle per year. In no case shall the Commonwealth's share for transportation exceed one dollar ($1.00) per day per pupil for the actual number of days such pupil shall be transported; the Commonwealth's share for the cost of board and lodging shall not exceed the sum of one dollar ($1.00) per day for the actual number of days such pupil shall be in attendance in school, not exceeding five (5) days in any one week.

Note:

1. This section is a substitute for the subject-matter of the last seven (7) provisos of Section 1406 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1923, P. L. 910; 1925, P. L. 628; 1929, P. L. 497; and 1931, P. L. 243; 24 PS Sec. 1378. That section instead of providing that the district should receive a flat fifty per centum (50%) of the amount expended for compulsory transportation sets forth a schedule which gives seventy-five per centum (75%) to districts having a true valuation per teacher of assessable property of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) or less; of sixty per centum (60%) to districts where the valuation is between fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) and one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000); and of fifty per centum (50%) where the valuation is more than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000). Inasmuch as under the new system of school districts as set forth under the provisions of this draft, economies can be effected in the transportation of pupils, a small reduction in the percentage which will be paid to these districts has been made. Furthermore, under the equalization plan of State disbursements these rural areas will receive a far greater proportion of the total appropriation for school purposes.

Section 1428. Reimbursement for Transportation Costs.—[1]If any school district of the fourth class shall furnish proper free transportation to and from school to any child who is under sixteen (16) years of age and whose residence is two (2) miles or more by the public highway from the nearest public school which he shall attend, the Commonwealth shall reimburse such school district in the same amount and manner as is provided herein for the transportation of pupils from closed schools.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the proviso of Section 1413 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1925, P. L. 628, Section 5; and 1927, P. L. 75; 24 PS Sec. 1425.

1. Reimbursement for Transportation from Consolidated Schools

Section 1429. Report as to Transportation to and from Consolidated Schools.—[1]On or before the first day of July of each year, each school district which shall transport pupils to and from any form of an approved consolidated school shall present to the Department in such form as it may prescribe and on blanks to be furnished by it, a sworn statement of the amount expended during the previous school year for the transporting of pupils to and from such school as herein provided. On the basis of such statement, the Department shall, in the manner provided by law, pay during the month of September to each such district or districts, the reimbursements herein provided, for the previous year.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 4 of the Act of 1919, P. L. 498, as amended by the Acts of 1923, P. L. 463, Section 4; and 1925, P. L. 634, Section 4; 72 PS Sec. 4261.
See note to the following section of this draft.

Section 1430. Transportation to and from Consolidated Schools.—[1]Consolidated schools shall, as long as they shall be approved by the State Council of Education as to organization, control, location, equipment, course of study, qualification of teachers, methods of instruction, conditions of administration, expenditures of money, methods and means of transportation, and the contracts providing therefor, constitute approved consolidated schools. The Commonwealth shall annually pay to each district which shall maintain or transport pupils to and from such school or schools fifty per centum (50%) of the sum which shall have been expended during the previous school year by such district for transporting pupils to and from such schools. Such cost of transportation shall, for each school district which shall have purchased an approved school conveyance which shall be used exclusively for such transportation, include a reasonable charge for depreciation and repairs; such charge shall not exceed fifteen per centum (15%) of the cost of such approved vehicle nor shall it exceed one hundred dollars ($100.00) per vehicle per year. In no case shall the Commonwealth's share for transportation exceed one dollar ($1.00) per day per pupil for the actual number of days such pupil shall be transported.

Note:

1. This section is a substitute for the subject-matter of the first three paragraphs of Section 4 of the Act of 1919, P. L. 498, as amended by the Acts of 1923, P. L. 463, Section 4; and 1925, P. L. 634, Section 4; 72 PS Sec. 4261. That section instead of providing that the district should receive a flat rate of fifty per centum (50%) of the amount expended for this type of transportation set forth a schedule which gives seventy-five per centum (75%) of such amount to districts having a true valuation per teacher of assessable property of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) or less; of sixty per centum (60%) to each school where the valuation is between fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) and one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000); and of fifty per centum (50%) where the valuation is more than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000). Inasmuch as under the new system of school districts, as set forth under the provisions of this draft, economies can be effected in the transportation of pupils a small reduction in the percentage which shall be paid to these districts has been made. Furthermore, under the equalization plan of State disbursements these rural areas will receive a greater proportion of the total appropriation made for school purposes.

J. Miscellaneous Reimbursements

Section 1431. Tuition of Children Placed in Home by Court or Institution.—[1]When a non-resident child shall have been placed in the home of a resident of any school district by order of court or by arrangement with any association, agency, or institution having the care of neglected and dependent children, and such resident shall be compensated for keeping such one or more children, the Commonwealth shall reimburse the district for the education of each of such children to an amount equal to the per capita cost of tuition of pupils in the schools which such pupil shall attend. Such cost of tuition shall be determined in the manner herein provided for the ascertainment of the per capita cost of tuition of pupils attending a school in a district other than the one in which they shall reside.

Note:

1. The provisions of this section have been drawn from the second paragraph of Section 1402 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1032; and 1925, P. L. 378, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 1372.

Section 1432. Minimum Salaries of County and Assistant County Superintendents.—The minimum salary, herein provided for each county and assistant county superintendent, required under the provisions of this act, shall be paid by the Commonwealth from appropriations made for such purpose or from appropriations for the public schools.

Note:

The portion of this section relating to county superintendents is based upon a portion of Section 1121 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1919, P. L. 300, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 1002. That section provides a minimum schedule of salaries for county superintendents.

The protion relating to assistant county superintendents has been drawn from Section 1130 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1045.

Section 1433. Payment of Expenses.—In addition to the salary provided herein, each county and assistant county superintendent required under the provisions of this act shall be entitled to receive annually from the Commonwealth a sum not to exceed five hundred dollars ($500.00) for the payment of the necessary expenses actually incurred in visiting schools within his district, attending educational meetings, and performing such other official duties as may be required of him by law. Each such county and assistant county superintendent incurring any such expenses shall monthly present itemized vouchers to the Department.

Note:

Provisions of this section have been drawn from the third paragraph of Section 1130, as amended by the Act of 1919, P. L. 300, Section 2, 24 PS Sec. 1045, and from Section 1121 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1919, P. L. 300, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 1002.

K. Reduction, Withholding, and Forfeiture of of Reimbursements

Section 1434. Compulsory Attendance.—[1]When the Department shall learn that a school district is refusing or neglecting properly to enforce the provisions of this act relating to compulsory attendance, it shall send a notice, by mail, to the secretary of the board of school directors of such school district directing that such school district shall enforce such provisions. If, after receipt of such notice, the board of school directors shall refuse or neglect to take the action necessary to secure the proper enforcement of such provisions, the Department may withhold and declare forfeited the whole or any portion of the State appropriation to such school district. However, before making any such forfeiture, the Department shall conduct a hearing at which such board of school directors shall have the right to appear and be heard in person or by counsel. The Department shall cause a statement of the alleged violations and a notice of the time and place of hearing to be mailed to such board of school directors at least fifteen (15) days prior to the hearing.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 1431 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1034, Section 2, 24 PS Sec. 1457. That section merely provides that "the Superintendent of Public Instruction upon due hearing, after two weeks written notice" may forfeit the appropriation. The new section more fully states the proceedings which must be followed before the very serious step of forfeiture may be taken.

Section 1435. Failure to Provide Competent Teachers.—[1]If in any school district the board of school directors shall fail to provide properly certificated teachers to teach the several branches required by this act, it shall be the duty of the superintendent to notify the board of school directors, in writing, of its neglect; if provision is not made forthwith for the proper teaching of such branches, it shall be the duty of such superintendent to report such fact to the Department. Upon receipt of such information, it shall be the duty of the Department to withhold any order for such school district's share of the State appropriations until such superintendent shall notify him that competent teachers of such branches have been employed. If the board of school directors shall fail to employ such competent teachers, for one month after having received notice from the superintendent that such teachers have not been provided, the Department may forfeit absolutely the whole share of the State appropriation allotted to such district for that year.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 1150 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1097.

Section 1436. Disbursements When Schools Have Been Closed.—[1]If any board of school directors shall fail to keep its schools open during the minimum term required by this act, unless prevented from doing so by reason of any contagious disease, destruction of building by fire or other cause beyond its control, the Department may reduce the share of the annual State appropriation allotted to such district to an amount which shall be equal to the percentage of the minimum term during which such school or schools shall have been open.

Note:

1. This section is a substitute for Section 2311 of the School Law of 1911, 72 PS Sec. 351. That section provides that when a school or schools were closed for a portion of the term, and for that reason the pupils could not attend for the minimum term, the superintendent could, if he deemed it proper, withhold any or all of the district's share of the State appropriation. The amount which may be withheld should be proportionate to the amount of the minimum term during which the school or schools were open.

Section 1437. Restrictions Relating to Withholding or Reducing State Disbursements.—[1]The Department shall not withhold, reduce, or forfeit any district's share of any State appropriation except, as expressly provided in this article, upon a failure of the district to provide properly certificated teachers, to enforce the provisions of this act relating to compulsory attendance, or to keep the schools open during the minimum term.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It is the intent of this section to specifically enumerate the instances in which the Department may withhold or reduce State appropriations.

ARTICLE XV

LIBRARIES

Section 1500. Management and Supervision.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes in which there now is or may hereafter be one or more public school libraries, the board of school directors may conduct such library or libraries under its own management and supervision, or under the management and supervision of a board of seven (7) library trustees, as herein provided, as the board of school directors may determine.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 2501 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2161.

Section 1501. Library Trustees.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes where the one or more public school libraries shall have been placed under the management and supervision of a board of trustees, such board shall be composed of the president of the board of school directors, the superintendent, and five (5) library trustees, not members of the board of school directors, who shall be elected, from among the residents of the district, by a majority vote of the then qualified members of the board of school directors.

When two (2) or more school districts shall have joined in the establishment or maintenance of a school library, either the joint board of school directors or the joint school committee may appoint the library trustees.[2]

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 2502 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2162. That section, however, provides that when a district does not have a district superintendent, the vice-president of the board should serve as a library trustee. This provision has been changed in order to place a person of professional training upon the board of trustees.
2. The second paragraph has been drawn from Section 2517 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2176.

Section 1502. Transfer from Board of School Directors.—[1]In each school district in which one or more public school libraries shall be under the management and supervision of the board of school directors, such board may, at any time, place such library or libraries under the management and supervision of a board of seven (7) library trustees, as provided herein, by a resolution of the board of school directors, adopted by a majority vote of all of the then qualified members.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 2503 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2163.

Section 1503. Terms of Office.—[1]When any such transfer shall be made, the board shall appoint, as provided herein, the library trustees, one (1) for a term of one (1) year, one (1) for a term of two (2) years, one (1) for a term of three (3) years, one (1) for a term of four (4) years, and one (1) for a term of five (5) years, to begin from the first day of the following July. Annually thereafter, during the month of June, the board shall appoint one (1) member for a term of five (5) years; the terms of office of such appointees shall begin on the first day of July following their appointment.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 2504 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2164.

Section 1504. Organization of Board of Library Trustees.—[1]Each board of library trustees shall organize annually on the first Monday in July, by the election of a president. The secretary of the board of school directors shall be, ex officio, secretary of the board of library trustees but shall not be a member of such board of trustees.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 2505 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2165.

Section 1505. Consolidated Library Board.—[1]When, on the effective date of this act, two (2) or more school districts shall be formed into one (1) school district, or shall thereafter be consolidated or annexed for municipal or school purposes, and each of such districts shall maintain one (1) or more public school libraries under the management and supervision of a board of library trustees, all such boards shall, on the effective date of the change, be merged into one library board. The members of such consolidated board shall continue in office until the expiration of their respective terms, and shall have the management and supervision of the libraries of all of such consolidated districts. When, on the first Monday of July of any year, the number of trustees on any such board would be less than the number herein required for such board, the board of school directors shall appoint, during the preceding June, and annually thereafter, a proper number of persons as library trustees to retain the number on each such board at the number herein required. After the merging of any such boards of library trustees, the board of library trustees of the new district may discontinue any one or more of the libraries under its supervision.

When, on the effective date of this act, two (2) or more school districts shall be formed into one (1) school district or shall thereafter be consolidated or annexed for school or municipal purposes, and all of such districts shall not have been maintaining their library or libraries under the management and supervision of a board of library trustees, the terms of office of all of such trustees in all such districts shall expire on the effective date of the change.[2]

Note:

1. This is Section 2518 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1915, P. L. 627, Section 7, 24 PS. Sec. 2179.
2. The second paragraph is new. The situations for which it provides, were not covered in the School Law of 1911.

Section 1506. Rules and Regulations.—[1]Each board of library trustees may, subject to the approval of the board of school directors, make and enforce such reasonable rules and regulations for its own meetings and for the management and supervision of the one or more public school libraries as it may deem proper, and shall have general charge, supervision, and management of the one or more public school libraries in such district. It shall purchase the books, maps, or other matter, appoint the librarian and other employes, and do all other things necessary for the government, preservation and maintenance of the library or libraries.

Note:

1. This is Section 2506 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2166.

Section 1507. Appropriations.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors may annually appropriate for the support and maintenance of the public school library or libraries in its district, out of the receipts from its annual school taxes, such sums as it may deem proper, not exceeding a sum which will be equivalent to the receipts of a tax of one (1) mill on the dollar of the total valuation of taxable property in the district. Each such board may, however, provide for the building, establishing, or enlarging of such one or more public library buildings, in like manner as any public school building may be built or enlarged.

Note:

1. This is Section 2507 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2167.

Section 1508. Orders.—[1]All money paid out on account of any public school library shall be paid by regular school orders, after approval by the board of library trustees, if any, in like manner as other school funds are paid.

Note:

1. This is Section 2508 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2168.

Section 1509. Compensation of Library Trustees; Vacancies.—[1]The library trustees shall serve without compensation; any vacancy in the board of library trustees shall be filled by the board of school directors for the remainder of the unexpired term.

Note:

1. This is Section 2509 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2169.

Section 1510. Branch Libraries.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors or the library trustees, with the consent of the board of school directors, may circulate part or all of the books and other collections of the public school library among the several schools, or may establish branch libraries.

Note:
1. This section has been drawn from Section 2511 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2170.

Section 1511. Collection of Books.—[1]Whenever by subscription or otherwise, a collection of books or funds to purchase the same shall have been obtained for a public school library in any school district, or for any school therein, it shall be the duty of the board of school directors of such district to provide a suitable place and case or cases for such library. But no books or other matter shall be put into any school library, by gift or otherwise, without the approval of the library trustees, or, in lieu thereof, the board of school directors.

Note:
1. This is Section 2512 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2171.

Section 1512. Hours.—[1]For the use and convenience of the residents of the district, the board of school directors or the library trustees shall provide for keeping public school libraries open at such hours and times throughout the year as it may deem proper. Any such board of school directors or of library trustees may permit the use of such library by the residents of other school districts under such conditions as it may prescribe.

Note:
1. This is Section 2513 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2172.

Section 1513. Audits.—[1]All receipts and expenditures for any libraries which shall be established, maintained or assisted as herein provided, and all appropriations which shall be made by any school district for the establishment, maintenance, or assistance of any library shall be regularly audited by the auditors of the proper school district, and reports of the same shall be included in the reports of such auditors.

Note:
1. This is Section 2514 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2173.

Section 1514. Reports.—[1]The librarians or trustees of all public school libraries, established, maintained, or assisted under the provisions of this act, shall make to the State Librarian and to the Department such reports as may be requested by the Department or State Librarian.

Note:
1. This is Section 2515 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2174.

Section 1515. Discontinuance of Boards of Library Trustees.—[1]When in any district which shall have its school libraries under the jurisdiction of the board of library trustees, the board of school directors shall desire to directly supervise and manage such libraries, it may discontinue the board of library trustees by the passage of a resolution in favor of such action by the affirmative vote of a majority of all of the then qualified members of such board of school directors.

Note:
1. This is a new section. The School Law of 1911 and its amendments set forth the manner in which the transfer from the board of school directors to the board of library trustees could be made but contained no procedure whereby the reverse could be performed.

Section 1516. Free, Public Non-sectarian Libraries.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors may, by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of all of the then qualified members, join with or aid any individual or association in the establishment or maintenance of a free public non-sectarian library, under such written agreement as it may determine; such agreement shall be entered in full upon the minutes of the board, and shall specify the manner, terms and conditions agreed upon for the aiding, establishing, maintaining, or managing of such joint library.

Note:
1. This is Section 2510 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2177.

Section 1517. Contracts With County Commissioners.—[1]In each school district which shall maintain a public school library, the board of school directors may enter into a contract with the county commissioners to provide for the placing of any library or libraries of the school district, in a county library organization. Under the terms of such agreement or contract, the board of school directors may transfer, if legally possible, the title to the books in such library or libraries to the county organization.

Note:
1. This is a new section. It has been drawn from the Act of 1931, P. L. 127, 53 PS Sec. 1702, et seq., which provide the means for the consolidating of the library facilities of the various municipal subdivisions.

ARTICLE XVI

HIGH SCHOOLS

Section 1600. High Schools; Junior High Schools; Designation.—[1]A complete high school course shall consist of a four-year program of studies beyond an elementary course of eight (8) years, or a six-year program beyond an elementary course of six (6) years.

Each high school which shall give work for the seventh, eighth, ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth years of not less than one hundred eighty (180) days in each year, which shall conform to the minimum regulations established by the Department and which shall have properly qualified teachers, shall be designated a six-year high school.

Each high school which shall give work for the ninth, tenth and eleventh years of not less than one hundred eighty (180) days in each year, and which shall conform to the minimum regulations established by the Department, and which shall employ at least two properly qualified teachers shall be designated a three-year high school.

Each high school which shall give work for the ninth and tenth years of not less than one hundred eighty (180) days in each year and which shall conform to the minimum regulations established by the Department of Public Instruction and which shall employ one or more properly qualified teachers shall be designated a two-year high school.

Each school which shall give work for the seventh, eighth and ninth years, or for the seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth years of not less than one hundred eighty (180) days in each year, and which shall conform to the minimum regulations established by the Department, and which shall have properly qualified teachers shall be designated a junior high school.

Each school which shall give work for the tenth, eleventh and twelfth year of not less than one hundred eighty (180) days in each year and which shall conform to the minimum regulations established by the Department, and which shall have properly qualified teachers shall be designated a senior high school.[2]

Note:
1. This section is based upon all but the second sentence in the last paragraph of Section 1701 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1036, Section 1; and 1925, P. L. 166, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 1581.
The second sentence of that section vests in the Department of Public Instruction the duty to make any regulations necessary to insure uniform standards in the various grades. The last paragraph of that section provides the means for the establishment of a new high or junior high school or the adding of one or more years to the course of such a school. Neither of these subjects is relevant to the present section. As to the former, see Section 1601 of this draft. As to the latter, see Section 1602 of this draft.

2. The last paragraph is new. It has been drawn to conform with the classification of high schools as now arranged by the Department.

Section 1601. Standardization of Grades.—[1]The Department shall make such minimum regulations as may be necessary to insure proper standards for the various grades of the twelve (12) years of the public school program of studies.

Note:
1. This section is based upon the second sentence of Section 1701 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1036, Section 1; and 1925, P. L. 166, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 1581.

Section 1602. Establishment of a New High School; Adding to Length of Course in Junior and Senior High Schools.—[1]Before establishing a new high school or adding one (1) or more years' work to the program of a high school or junior high school, in a school district of the fourth class, the board of school directors shall secure the approval of the Department and of the superintendent.

Note:
1. This section is a restatement of the last paragraph of Section 1701 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1036, Section 1; and 1925, P. L. 166, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 1581.

Section 1603. Admission of Pupils.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall, except as otherwise provided in this act, and subject to such rules and regulations as the Department shall prescribe, admit to the public high schools, if any therein, all children under twenty-one (21) years of age who shall reside within the school district and who shall be found qualified for admission, after having undergone such an examination as shall be prescribed by the board of school directors; each such board of school directors shall admit such additional pupils from other school districts as is provided herein.

Note:
1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1703 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1582.

Section 1604. Courses Which May Be Taught.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall employ for the teaching of any course or courses in its high school, only persons who shall have such subject or subjects enumerated on their teacher's certificates.

Note:
1. This section is based upon the last sentence of Section 1704 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1036, Section 2, 24 PS Sec. 1583.

Section 1605. Application for Courses; Employment of Necessary Teachers.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, the pupils of each high school, if any, in such school district, may petition the board of school directors of such school district for the presentation of a course in any one or more non-vocational subjects included in the program of studies established by the State Council of Education.

The board of school directors, in each such school district, shall cause a course to be given in each of such subjects, which have been thus requested by fifteen (15) or more of such pupils who, in the judgment of the principal of such high school, are entitled and qualified to take such subject in the curricula which they are pursuing. Each such board shall employ for the entire school term a sufficient number of teachers for the conduct of such course or courses. Each such board may, however, require that any such petitions shall be presented a specified length of time, not exceeding ninety (90) days, prior to the opening of the school term during which the pupils wish to have the additional subjects taught.

Note:
1. This is a new section. Section 1704 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1036, Section 2, contains a provision that the board of school directors should employ a sufficient number of teachers to conduct any courses which were requested by fifteen or more pupils. That section does not expressly confer the right to request or petition for such courses. This section expressly grants the rights to the pupils to request the presentation of certain courses; in addition it places the duty upon the board of school directors to prepare the facilities for the conduct of such courses.

Section 1606. Reports Concerning High Schools.—[1]The board of school directors of each school district, which shall maintain one or more high schools, shall furnish to the Department such sworn sworn statements concerning such one or more high schools as the Department may require.

Note:
1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1705 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1036, Section 3, 24 PS Sec. 1584.

Section 1607. Supervision of Superintendents over High Schools.—[1]Each public high school shall be under the supervision of the superintendent.

Note:
1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1706 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1585.
Under the provisions of Article I of this draft, the word "superintendent" shall mean either the county or the district superintendent, dependent upon whether or not the district has a district superintedent.

Section 1608. Adoption of Course of Study.—[1]The board of school directors, in each district in which there shall be one or more high schools, shall, after having made any changes which it may deem expedient, and subject to the provisions of this act, adopt the courses of study which shall have been recommended by the superintendent[2] for such one or more schools.

Note:
1. This section is based upon the latter portion of Section 1712 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1591.
2. See the note to the preceding section of this draft.

Section 1609. Power to Confer Degrees.—[1]The power to confer academic degrees, honorary or otherwise, heretofore possessed by any board of school directors on the day preceding the effective date of this act is hereby vested in the board of school directors, created under the provisions of this act which shall continue the powers and duties of such board or boards. Any public high school, existing on the day preceding the effective date of this act, with a course of study of not less than four (4) years, and upon whose students of the full course of prescribed study such academic or other degrees have heretofore been conferred, shall be continued by the board of school directors of the district in which each such high school shall be located, under such name or title, with such regulations, as such board may deem proper.

Note:
1. The subject-matter of this section has been drawn from Section 1715 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1594.

Section 1610. Attendance at High Schools in Another School District; Pupils Who Have Completed the Program of Their Districts.—[1]Each pupil who shall reside in a school district which shall have no public high school or only a vocational[2] high school or one whose program of studies shall terminate before the end of the twelfth year, and who shall have successfully completed in his school district the program of studies there available in other than vocational schools, may attend, at the expense of his school district, for the purpose of pursuing academic studies of a higher grade, the nearest or most available approved high school in another school district which shall provide the facilities for such work. Each such pupil shall, however, before attending such school, obtain the consent of the board of school directors of the school district in which shall be located the high school which he shall desire to attend, and shall satisfy the superintendent having supervision of the district in which he shall reside and the superintendent or principal of such high school, of his fitness to enter such school. The cost of the tuition of each such pupil, computed as herein provided, shall be paid in monthly installments by the district in which he shall reside to the district in which he shall attend school.

Note:
1. This section, with the exception of the last four lines, is based upon the first two sentences and the first proviso of Section 1707 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1915, P. L. 672; 1925, P. L. 166, Section 2; and 1927, P. L. 687; 24 PS Sec. 1586. As to the remainder of Section 1707 of the School Law of 1911, supra, see Section 1611 of this draft.
The next to the last sentence of this section has been drawn from Section 1710 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1588.
2. The provision which permits a student to attend a high school in another district although his own district has a vocational high school is new. No pupils should be restricted to attendance at a vocational high school.

Section 1611. Attendance at High Schools in Another District; Pupils Who Have Attended Schools Other Than Those of the District in Which They Reside.—[1]Any pupil who shall reside in a school district which has no high school, or only a vocational high school or one whose program of studies terminates before the end of the twelfth year, and who has sucessfully completed in schools other than the public schools of his district, a course equivalent to the program of studies available in other than vocational schools in the school district in which he shall reside, may, except as herein otherwise provided, upon the successful passing of an examination, covering such program of studies, given by the superintendent of such school district, be entitled to attend a high school of another school district in the manner and subject to the same restrictions provided herein for pupils who have completed the program of studies made available in their school districts. Each such pupil shall present to the board of school directors of the district in which he shall reside, and of the district in which he shall desire to attend, a certificate from such superintendent certifying that such pupil has satisfactorily passed the examination. The board of school directors of the district in which such pupil shall reside may, however, with the approval of the district superintendent, by agreement in writing with the board of school directors of the district in which such pupil shall desire to attend school, provide for the attendance and tuition of such pupil, subject to the provisions of this act, without the necessity of such pupil taking the examination. The cost of the tuition of each such pupil, computed as herein provided, shall be paid in monthly installments by the district in which he shall reside to the district in which he shall attend school.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of the second proviso of Section 1707 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1915, P. L. 672; 1925, P. L. 166, Section 2; and 1927, P. L. 687; 24 PS Sec. 1586.

The vesting of the power in the superintendents to conduct examinations has been transferred to the Article on Superintendents. See Section 2725 of this draft.

Section 1612. Pupils Residing Three Miles from Nearest High School.—[1]Each child who shall have completed the elementary course of study in the public schools of the district in which he shall reside and shall reside three (3) or more miles, by the public road, from the nearest high school in such district, may, unless proper free transportation shall be furnished, attend any more convenient high school in another district, without the consent of the board of school directors of the district, in which he shall reside. Each such pupil shall, however, first satisfy the superintendent of the school district in which such pupil shall reside, and the superintendent or principal of such high school, of his fitness to enter such school. The school district in which he shall reside shall be liable to the district, whose high school he shall attend, for the cost of his tuition, computed as herein provided; such payment shall be paid in monthly installments.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Sections 1709 and 1710 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1587 and 1588.

Section 1613. Certificate of Non-resident Pupils.—[1]In each school district which shall maintain a high school which shall be attended by pupils of another district, the board of school directors shall, upon the admission of any such pupils, certify to the respective districts in which such pupils shall reside, the names of such pupils and an itemized statement of the per capita cost of tuition in such high school.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 1708 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1923, P. L. 455, and 1925, P. L. 435, Section 3, 24 PS Sec. 1589. Together with the following section of the draft, this section sets forth the manner in which the tuition of non-resident students shall be paid.

Section 1614. Per Capita Cost of Tuition.—[1]The per capita cost of tuition to be paid by a district for its pupils who shall attend a high school in another district for each school year, shall be computed in the following manner:

(a) To the total amount expended by the district maintaining the school, during the preceding term, for the salaries of the teaching and supervisory staff, textbooks, school supplies, fuel, light, water, and janitor service, there shall be added ten per centum (10%) thereof to cover capital outlay.

(b) The sum thus expended shall be divided by the avearge daily attendance for the entire preceding school term in such high school.

(c) The total amount of the reimbursement for the then current school year received by this district, maintaining such high school, from the Commonwealth under the equalization plan of State subsidies, shall be divided by the average daily attendance in all of the schools in such district.

(d) The per capita cost of tuition shall equal the difference between the amounts determined under the provisions of paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section.

Note:

1. This section together with the preceding section of this draft has been drawn from Section 1708 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1923, P. L. 455; and 1925, P. L. 435; 24 P. S. Sec. 1589; and from the Act of 1925, P. L. 435, Section 2, which added Section 1716 to the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1595. Section 1716 includes in the costs to be added in finding the per capita cost of tuition the amount which should be paid to teachers in attendance at teachers' institutes. Such an amount has been omitted in this proposed act because the teachers will receive no extra compensation for attendance at teachers' meetings or institutes. The ten per centum item is intended to approximate the expenditures of the district for capital outlay.

ARTICLE XVII

EXTENSION EDUCATION

Section 1700. Extension Education; Definition.—[1]The following words and phrases as used in this article shall, unless a different meaning is plainly required by the context, have the following meaning:

"Extension education" shall designate any instruction provided and administered by the board of school directors of any school district primarily for boys and girls who are employed and for adults whose earlier educational opportunity has been restricted, but shall not include the school work of continuation and other vocational schools.

"Curricular course of study" shall designate any subject of study included in the programs of study of the regular elementary and secondary public day schools of the district.

"Extra-curricular course of study" shall designate any elementary or secondary course of study not so included:

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 1 of the Act of 1925, P. L. 492, 24 PS Sec. 1751.

Section 1902 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1772 requires the board of school directors in each district of the second and third classes, when requested by seventy-five or more taxpayers, to establish and equip an evening manual training school. The provisions of that section have not been written into this proposed act for the reason that the general provisions relating to vocational and extension courses sufficiently meet any requirements for such type of education. It is felt that it is unwise to require local boards to establish these extra courses and schools, but that it is preferable to permit them to establish such schools or classes as they see fit.

Section 1701. Establishing Extension Schools.—[1]In each school district, the board may, and upon written application signed by twenty (20) or more residents of such district who shall be above the age of sixteen (16), who are not in attendance at any public or private day school, and who shall not be graduates of any high school, shall, except as herein otherwise provided, provide free extension education for the instruction of such applicants in any curricular course of study so requested, or in English citizenship for immigrants and native illiterates, or in citizenship for adults and in such other extra-curricular courses of study as the board may deem advisable. In any district in which there shall be any such courses in extension education, the board may permit any persons, whom it shall deem suitable, to attend such courses. No such board shall be required to admit to its extension courses, if any, any person who shall be in actual full-time attendance at any public or private school during the day. Attendance at any such courses of extension education by part-time pupils shall not be accepted in lieu of the compulsory full-time attendance required of such pupils.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the subject-matter of Sections 2 and 3 of the Act of 1925, P. L. 492, 24 PS Sec. 1752-1753.

Section 6 of the Act of 1925, P. L. 492, 24 PS Sec. 1756, provides that the schools and classes for extension education should be a part of the public schools of the Commonwealth and should be under the supervision of the county or district superintendent. Inasmuch as this draft treats such education as a mere constituent part of the general school system, there is no necessity for an express statement of the subject-matter of that section.

This section covers the subject-matter of Section 1006 of the School Law of 1911, PS Sec. 1657, which provides that a board may admit persons who shall be of less than six years of age or more than twenty-one years of age.

This section also covers the provisions of Section 1901 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1721, other than those found in Section 1702 of this draft.

Section 1702. Discontinuance of Courses.—[1]Each board which, under the provisions of this act, shall be required to conduct a course or courses in extension education may refuse to provide or continue such education when less than twenty (20) of its applicants are fitted to pursue with reasonable profit the courses of study requested. Each such board may also close any class in such courses when the average attendance for any month shall fall below ten (10).

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the subject-matter of Sections 2 and 3 of the Act of 1925, P. L. 492, 24 PS Sec. 1752-1753.

Section 1703. Time and Place of Extension Courses.—[1]Each such board which shall conduct courses in extension education may use the school buildings for that purpose during any hours which do not conflict with regular day school activities, or, such board may conduct its courses elsewhere at any hour during any day except Sunday or legal holidays.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the subject-matter of Section 3 of the Act of 1925, P. L. 492, 24 PS Sec. 1753.

Section 1704. Deposit Fee.—[1]In each school district in which there shall be a course in extension education, the board may require a deposit fee not to exceed five dollars ($5.00), from each person who shall enroll in such extension schools or classes, and may further require that such deposit fees accompany the written applications for such extension instruction. Each such board which shall have collected a deposit fee shall return it at the close of the term of instruction to each person so enrolled who shall have attended seventy-five per centum (75%) or more of the class sessions of such term; each such board may likewise return a deposit fee when, because of death, sickness, or other cause, the board shall deem such return to be equitable.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 4 of the Act of 1925, P. L. 492, 24 PS Sec. 1754.

Section 1705. School Credits.—[1]In each school district, the school authorities shall accept all school credits which shall be derived from any curricular course of study in approved extension courses of such district toward fulfilment of the requirements for graduation from any curriculum of any day school of corresponding grade of such district. Each person who shall satisfactorily complete, in extension classes, the curricular courses of study which shall be required for graduation from any curriculum of a school district, shall be awarded the appropriate school certificate or diploma at the close of the then current school term.

ARTICLE XVIII

VOCATIONAL AND CONTINUATION EDUCATION

Section 1800. Vocational Education; Definition.—[1]The following words and phrases as used in this article shall, unless a different meaning is plainly required by the context, have the following meaning:

"Vocational Education" shall mean any form of education of less than college grade, which shall be given in school or elsewhere, the purpose of which shall be to fit an individual to pursue effectively a recognized profitable employment, whether pursued for wages or otherwise.

"Vocational Industrial Education" shall mean those forms of vocational education the purpose of which shall be to fit an individual for industrial pursuits. It shall include occupational training for women and girls other than training for the vocation of home-making.

"Technical Industrial Education" shall mean that form of vocational industrial education, the purpose of which shall be to prepare an individual for occupations of a semiprofessional character.

"Vocational Agricultural Education" shall mean that form of vocational educational the purposes of which shall be to fit an individual for the occupations connected with the tillage of the soil, the care of domestic animals, forestry, or other wage-earning or productive work on the farm.

"Vocational Commercial Education" shall mean those forms of vocational education the direct purpose of each of which shall be to fit an individual for some recognized commercial calling.

"Vocational Home Economics Education" shall mean that form of vocational education which shall have for its controlling purpose the preparation of girls and women for useful employment as house daughters and home-makers engaged in the occupation and the management of the home.

"Vocational Industrial, Vocational Agricultural, or Vocational Home Economics school or department," or "Vocational School or Department," shall mean a distinctive organization of courses, pupils, and teachers approved by the State Council of Education, which shall be designed to give either vocational industrial, vocational agricultural, or vocational home economics education as defined herein.

"Vocational Evening Class" shall mean a class which shall give such training as can be taken by persons employed during the working-day, and which must in its instruction deal with the subject-matter of and be so conducted as to relate to, the day employment.

"Vocational Evening Class in Vocational Home Economics" shall mean a class which shall give training in home-making to girls or women, over fourteen (14) years of age, however they may be employed or engaged during the day.

"Employed Minors" shall mean those children between fourteen (14) and sixteen (16) years of age who shall be employed for compensation; it shall not include children who shall be employed on farms or in domestic services in private homes.[2]

"Continuation School or Class" shall mean the school or class which shall be conducted, as herein provided, for employed minors, between fourteen (14) and sixteen (16) years of age who shall be required, under the provisions of the Child Labor Act to attend school for eight (8) hours each week.

"Part-time Co-operative Vocational Education" shall mean that form of vocational instruction which shall involve attendance on alternate, equal periods of school and work at the vocation during the school year, given in accordance with an agreement by which the school and industry shall co-operate and co-ordinate in making available the combined educational and training facilities of both.

"Practical" shall mean the manipulative or "practice of the trade" aspects of a vocation. It shall include the work which shall be given in shops, laboratories, mines, drafting rooms, and other places, and is used to distinguish such work from academic or non-vocational education.[3]

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 1 of the Act of 1913, P. L. 138, as amended by the Acts of 1925, P. L. 418, Section 1; and 1931, P. L. 176, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 1651.
2. The definition of "Employed Minors" has drawn from Section 1 of the Act of 1915, P. L. 286, 43 PS Sec. 41.
3. The definitions, found in this section, have been inserted in order that there may be certainty in the distribution of the Commonwealth's disbursements for these various types of vocational education. In the article of this draft on State subsidies, the schedule for such disbursements will be found.

Section 1801. Establishment of Vocational and Continuation Schools.—[1]In each school district, the board may establish and maintain vocational industrial, vocational agricultural, vocational home economics, vocational commercial, technical industrial, vocational evening, part-time co-operative vocational and continuation schools or departments. Each such board may receive any donation which shall be made to the school district for the conduct of any vocational or continuation school or department, and which such board shall choose to accept. Such donation shall be administered by or under the direction of the board of school directors in accordance with the terms and conditions of the gift.

Such schools and departments may be conducted on a day-time, evening, or part-time schedule. Attendance at any such classes shall be restricted to persons over fourteen (14) years of age.

Note:

It also includes the provisions of Section 3 of the Act of 1913, P. L. 138, as amended by the Act of 1925, P. L. 418, Section 3, 24 PS Sec. 1656.

Section 1802. Establishment and Maintenance of Continuation Schools.—[1]In each school district in which there shall be fifty (50) or more employed minors, the board shall, except as herein otherwise provided, establish and maintain one or more continuation schools. Such continuation schools shall provide for the education of such employed minors during the period of their employment, for a period or periods, equivalent to not less than eight (8) hours each week. Each such board shall provide the necessary teachers, supplies and equipment for the conduct of the courses which it shall deem desirable for such students and which have been approved by the Department. Each such board may conduct such school or schools in the establishment where the minors shall be employed, in a public school building, or in such other places it shall designate. No continuation schools shall be conducted on Saturdays or Sundays, nor before eight (8) o'clock in the morning nor after five (5) o'clock in the afternoon of any day.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Neither the School Law of 1911 nor the Child Labor Law of 1915, P. L. 286, 43 PS Sec. 41 et seq. contain any express statement as to the duty of a board of school directors to establish and maintain one or more continuation schools. A fair construction of the Act of 1915, supra, requires each school board of a district in which there shall be any employed minors to provide continuation schools. The Department of Public Instruction has promulgated a series of standards and requirements for these continuation schools. Under these rulings of Department, no district which has less than twenty employed minors shall be required to conduct such a school. The Act of 1915 contains no such limit. As will be noted, this new section places the requirement at fifty.

As in the Act of 1915, supra, the power has been placed in the Department of Public Instruction to approve or reject the course of instruction in these continuation schools. Inasmuch as the students in these schools vary greatly in the number of grades which they have completed in the public schools, the spread being generally from the sixth grade to the second year in high school, it is necessary to make the requirements for these courses very flexible; it is impossible to set forth the specific courses which should be taught because the variance in the classes is too great.

Section 1803. Attendance in Another District.—[1]In lieu of establishing and maintaining a continuation school, as herein required, a board of school directors may enter into an agreement which shall first have been approved by the Department, with another school district which shall be conducting a continuation school, for the attendance of some or all of the pupils of such former district in the schools of the latter district. No such agreement shall be made, however, which will necessitate such pupils to travel an unreasonable distance to such school or schools.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Its subject-matter has been drawn from Section 3 of the Act of 1915, P. L. 286 ,43 PS Sec. 43.

Section 1804. Non-resident Students.—[1]Any resident of a school district which shall not maintain an approved vocational industrial, vocational agricultural, vocational home economics, or vocational commercial school or department, which shall offer the type of training which he shall desire may make application to the board of school directors of any other district for admission to such a school or department which shall be maintained by such district. If the board of such district shall refuse him admission, he may apply to the State Council of Education for admission to such school or department. Upon the receipt of such an application, the State Council of Education shall take into consideration the opportunities for free vocational training in the community in which the applicant shall reside, the financial status of such community, the age, sex, preparation, aptitude, and previous record of the applicant and all other relevant circumstances and shall make an order granting or refusing admission to such person; each such order shall be final.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 7 of the Act of 1913, P. L. 138, as amended by the Acts of 1925, P. L. 418, Section 7; and 1931, P. L. 670, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 1681-1682.

Section 1805. Payment of Tuition.—[1]The School district in which such person shall reside who shall have been admitted to and shall attend an approved vocational industrial, vocational agricultural, vocational home economics, vocational high, or vocational commercial school or department, which shall be maintained by another school district shall pay a tution fee to be determined in the manner herein provided for the ascertainment of tuition of pupils who shall attend high schools in another school district except that from the item representing the salaries of the teachers of such schools or departments there shall be subtracted the amount paid by the Commonwealth, as herein provided, for such salaries. If any such school district shall neglect or refuse to pay for such tuition, it shall be liable therefor in an action of assumpsit to the school district or school districts which shall maintain the school which the pupil shall have attended.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 7 of the Act of 1913, P. L. 138, as amended by the Acts of 1925, P. L. 418, Section 7; and 1931, P. L. 670, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 1681-1682.

Section 1806. Attendance of Schools in Another State.—[1]When any child of school age in any school district shall reside three (3) miles or more by the nearest traveled road from the nearest vocational high school in any district in this Commonwealth, such child, unless proper free transportation shall be furnished to a suitable school, may, on the request of his parents or legal guardian be assigned by the board of school directors to a more convenient vocational high[2] school in another state. No such assignment shall be made, however, unless the proper consent of the authorities in charge of such school in another state shall first have been secured. The cost of the tuition of each such student shall be paid in the manner provided herein for the payment of such tuition where pupils of one district shall attend a high school in another district of this Commonwealth.

Note:

1. This is an amendment added by the Act of 1931, P. L. 670, Section 1, to the Act of 1913, P. L. 138, 24 PS Sec. 1651.
2. The limitation as to "vocational high" schools in the other state is new. A district of this Commonwealth should not be required to pay the tuition of the pupil if he attends an academic school in another state, regardless of the existence of such a school in his district.

Section 1807. Pupils from Other States.—[1]In each school district which shall be situated adjacent to another state, the board of school directors may admit to the vocational high school in such district pupils who shall be residents of such other state, and may receive tuition for such pupils as in the case of pupils who shall be admitted from other districts in this Commonwealth.

Note:

1. This is the amendment added by the Act of 1931, P. L. 670, Section 1,to the Act of 1913, P. L. 138, 24 PS Sec. 1681-1682.

Section 1808. Deposit Fees.—[1]In each school district in which there shall be conducted any courses in vocational industrial, vocational agricultural, vocational home economics, or vocational commercial schools or departments, the board of school directors may require a deposit fee not to exceed ten dollars ($10.00) from each person who shall enroll in such extension schools or classes. Each such board which shall have collected a deposit fee shall return it at the close of each term of instruction to each person so enrolled who shall have attended seventy-five per centum (75%) or more of the class sessions of such term; each such board may return a deposit fee when, because of death, sickness, or other cause, the board shall deem such return to be equitable.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 4 of the Act of 1913, P. L. 138, as amended by the Acts of 1925, P. L. 418, Section 5; and 1931, P. L. 176, Section 4; 24 PS Sec. 1654.

Section 1809. Advisory Committee.—[1]In each school district in which there shall be courses in vocational education, the board of school directors may appoint an advisory committee composed of members who shall represent local trades industries, and occupations. It shall be the duty of such committee to counsel with and advise the board of school directors and other school officials who shall have supervision over such vocational schools.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 6 of the Act of 1913, P. L. 138, as amended by the Act of 1925, P. L. 418, Section 6, 24 PS Sec. 1655.

Section 1810. Financing of Schools in Institutions.—[1]All schools and classes in vocational or other special subjects which shall have been established by the Department in wholly State-owned institutions, as provided herein, shall be financed by the department of the State government which shall have jurisdiction and control of each such institution. Each teacher in such school or class organized and supervised by the Department in an institution wholly or partly supported by the Commonwealth shall enjoy the same privileges and be subject to the same laws as are teachers in the public schools.

Note:

1. This is Section 1906 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1657.

ARTICLE XIX

SPECIAL EDUCATION

Section 1900. Special Education.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall, except as herein otherwise provided, either provide or maintain special classes or schools for the education of the children who shall require special education and training, unless approved provision for the education of such children shall be made by the parents or guardian, or, if it shall not be feasible to form such special class, to secure such proper education and training outside of the public schools of the district, or in special institutions, or by providing for the teaching of such children in their homes, in accordance with the rules and regulations which shall be prescribed by the State Council of Education.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the third paragraph of Section 1413 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1919, P. L. 1090, and 1925, P. L. 70, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 1402.

As to the establishment of these special classes by the joint action of several districts, see the article on "Joint Schools Classes or Departments."

The provision relating to the rules and regulations of the State Council of Education is new. It is designed to guarantee adequate educational opportunities to those pupils who shall require special education due to their lack of average physical or mental capacities.

Section 1901. Selection of Children Needing Special Education.—[1]In each school district, it shall be the duty of the secretary of the board of school directors, teachers, school enumerators, home and school visitors, and attendance officers, in accordance with the rules of procedure prescribed by the Department to secure information and report to the medical inspector of the school district and to the superintendent, on or before the fifteenth day of October of each year, each child within such district between the ages of eight (8) and sixteen (16) years, who is gravely retarded in his or her work, and any child between the ages of six (6) and sixteen (16) years who, because of an apparent exceptional physical or mental condition is not properly educated and trained. The medical inspector shall promptly examine each such child in accordance with the rules of procedure prescribed by the Secretary of Health, and shall report whether such child is a fit subject for special education and training.

Mental clinics, approved by the State Council of Education, and psychologists and psychological examiners who shall have been certified by the Department and who are employed by the school district may also designate one or more pupils as requiring special education.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of the first two paragraphs of Section 1413 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1919, P. L. 1090; and 1925, P. L. 70, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 1401.

Section 1902. Education of Feebleminded Children.—[1]If, in any district in which there shall be ten (10) or less feebleminded children between the ages of eight (8) and sixteen, (16), the board of school directors shall be of the opinion that it is not feasible to establish a special class for such children, such board shall report such feebleminded children to the State Department of Welfare for enrollment in a school for feebleminded children; after any such board shall have thus reported any children, it shall be relieved of the obligation of providing education for such children. The State Department of Welfare shall thereupon provide adequate facilities for the education of such children.

Note:

1. This is a new section. The expenses incidental to the conduct of special classes for feebleminded children are so great that it is undesirable to place the burden of providing special classes for these students upon the local districts when the number of such children in any district is less than ten. Under this section these pupils will be cared for under the supervision of the Department of Welfare. When a district shall, however, have more than ten such feebleminded children it will be the duty of the board to provide adequate educational facilities for the instruction of these feebleminded pupils.

Section 1903. Plans for Special Classes or Schools.—[1]Each superintendent shall submit to the board of school directors plans for the establishing and maintaining of special classes in the public schools or special public schools for the proper education and training of all school children reported to him as fit subjects for special education.

Note:

This is a new section. It has been drawn from the first portion of the third paragraph of Section 1413 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1919, P. L. 1090; and 1925, P. L. 70, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 1402.

Section 1904. Supervision of and Report Concerning Special Classes and Special Education.—[1]The Department shall superintend the organization of such special classes or other arrangements for special education.

On or before the first day of October of each year the secretary of the board of school directors in each school district in which special education for physically or mentally handicapped children shall be provided, shall make such reports in regard to such special education as may be required by the Department.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of the fifth paragraph and the first portion of the sixth paragraph of Section 1413 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1919, P. L. 1090, and 1925, P. L. 70, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 1404 and 1405.

For provisions relating to the percentage of the cost of conducting these special classes which shall be paid by the Commonwealth see the article of this draft on State subsidies.

Section 1905. Education of Blind or Deaf Students.—[1]The Department, after having made a careful investigation of all of the circumstances surrounding the case, may make provision for the education of any blind or deaf students, residents of this Commonwealth, in any course of study, profession, art or science in any university, college, conservatory of music, professional or vocational school. The Department may expend the necessary amount, out of the general sum appropriated for this purpose, not to exceed five hundred dollars ($500.00) per year for each such blind or deaf student.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 1440 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1917, P. L. 206, Section 2; and 1925, P. L. 74, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 1479.

ARTICLE XX

JOINT SCHOOLS, CLASSES, AND DEPARTMENTS

Section 2000. Power to Establish and Maintain.—[1]The boards of school directors of any two or more school districts are hereby authorized to establish, construct, equip, furnish, and maintain joint elementary public schools, high schools, or any other kinds of schools, classes, or departments provided for in this act.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the first sentence of Section 1801 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1929, P. L. 497, Section 8, 24 PS Sec. 1611.

It is a preliminary statement concerning the power to establish and maintain joint schools; for further provisions as to the establishment and maintenance of such schools see the subsequent sections of this article.

The provisions of Section 5 of the Act of 1913, P. L. 138, as amended by the Act of 1925, P. L. 418, Section 5, 24 PS Sec. 1658, set forth that school districts may join in the conduct of joint vocational schools. Section 3 of the Act of 1919, P. L. 498, as amended by the Act of 1925, P. L. 634, 24 PS Sec. 1634-1635, contains a similar provision concerning joint consolidated schools. A similar provision is also found in the Child Labor Act of 1915, P. L. 286, 43 PS 41, et seq. The provisions of those three acts have not been repeated in this proposed act, for the above section covers the subject-matter of all. Section 2517 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2176, provides for the establishment and maintenance of joint libraries; that section, for the same reason, has been omitted.

Section 2001. Manner of Establishment and Maintenance.—[1]The boards of school directors of two or more school districts may unite in the establishment, construction, equipment, and maintenance of such joint schools, classes, or departments by entering into a written agreement, which shall set forth the terms upon which such joint project shall be conducted and the proportion of the costs which shall be paid by each district. No board of school directors may, however, enter into such agreement without first having adopted by the affirmative vote of a majority of all of its then qualified members, a resolution in favor of such action, and having recorded such resolution upon its minutes.

The cost of establishing, constructing, equipping and maintaining such joint schools, classes, or departments shall be paid by the several districts establishing the same, in such manner and in such proportion as they shall have thus determined.

Note:

1. This is a new section. The subject-mater of this section has been drawn from the last sentence of Section 1802, from Section 1803, and from the second sentence of Section 1801, as amended by the Act of 1929, P. L. 497, Section 8 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1613, 1612 and 1611.

It is desirable to include in one section the provisions relating to the manner for the establishment and maintenance of joint schools and departments.

Section 2002. Contents of Agreement.—[1]Each such agreement shall state whether the boards of school directors which shall establish and maintain such joint school, class, or department, shall supervise and direct its affairs at joint meetings of the boards of school directors in the same manner as the affairs of a school district are managed, or whether the direction of the affairs, except the purchasing of a necessary site and the employing and the fixing of the salary of the teacher or teachers and treasurer, of such one or more schools, classes, or departments, shall be delegated to a joint school committees, composed of one or more members from each of such boards.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the first portion of Section 1805 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1616.

Section 2003. Change in Terms of Agreement.—[1]No change shall be made in the agreement which shall have been entered into between the boards of school directors of two or more school districts for the establishment and maintenance of one or more joint schools, classes, or departments, without the consent of each school district first obtained by the affirmative vote of a majority of all of the then qualified members of the board of school directors of such school district.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It is based upon the last portion of Section 1803 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1612.

Section 2004. Joint Meeings; Authority over Joint Schools, Classes, or Departments.—[1]The several boards of school directors, of the school districts which shall have established and maintained one or more joint schools, classes, or departments, are hereby authorized by means of joint meetings or by means of a joint committee to exercise the same power and authority over such one or more schools, classes, or departments as the several boards shall exercise over the schools and departments in their respective districts.

1. This is a restatement of the first sentence of Section 1802 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1613.

Section 2005. Organization of Joint Boards and Joint School Committees; Payment of Expenses.—[1]Each joint board of school directors, and each joint school committee shall organize annually by the election of a president and secretary.

The expenses of maintaining a joint school, class or department shall be paid by warrant, drawn on the treasurer of such joint school, class or department by the president and secretary of such joint board or school committee.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the last sentence of Section 1805 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1616.

Section 2006. Necessity for a Majority Vote.—[1]The affirmative vote of a majority or of two-thirds of all of the then qualified members of the joint committee, or of the boards of school directors of the school districts which shall have established or maintained a joint school, class, or department, duly recorded, showing how each member voted, shall be required in order to take action on any of the subjects which would have required such vote had but one board been taking such action.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It is based upon the last proviso of Section 1804 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1614.

That section contains the following: "Provided, That whatever matter is required by law to be decided by a vote of the majority vote of all the directors in each district".

The affirmative vote of a majority, or of two-thirds, as the case may be, of all the then qualified members of each board comprising a joint board shall be required for action by such joint board on any subject for which a similar majority would be required if but one board were involved. If the joint school, department or class shall be in charge of a joint committee similar majorities of all the members of the committee shall be necessary for action on such subjects. All such action must be by resolution duly recorded showing how each member voted thereon.

Section 2007. Annual Meeting; Election and Compensation of Treasurer; School Funds.—[1]The several boards of school directors of the school districts which shall have established one or more such joint schools, classes, or departments, shall meet in joint session at least once each year, for the purpose of employing and setting the salaries of the necessary teacher or teachers for each such joint school, class, or department.

At each such joint session, the school directors shall elect, from the treasurers of their respective districts one who shall act as the treasurer of the one or more joint schools, classes, or departments; they shall fix the compensation of such treasurer at a stated salary; which shall not be in the form of a commission. The treasurers of each of the several school districts which shall have established and maintained such schools, classes, or departments, shall pay the amount agreed to be contributed by each such district for the support of such joint school, class, or department to the treasurer thus elected.

Note:

1. This section is based upon all but the last proviso of Section 1804 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1614.

Section 2008. Joint Committees; Powers.—[1]Where the management of a joint school, class, or department shall be confessed upon a joint school committee, each board of school directors of the several districts shall, annually, during the month of June, select one or more of its members, who, with the members chosen in like manner in the other districts, shall be known as the joint school committee of such districts. Such committee shall have all the powers and duties, and be subject to all the liabilities, with reference to the supervision, maintenance, and regulation of such joint schools, classes, or departments, as shall have been conferred or imposed by law upon school boards generally, excepting such duties as are herein reserved to be exercised by the several boards meeting in joint session.

No joint school committee shall have power to create any indebtedness that shall be binding upon the several school districts.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1807 of the portion of Section 1805 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1616.

Section 2009. Power to Raise Funds for Joint Schools and Departments.—[1]Each school district which shall join in the establishment of a joint school, class, or department, as herein provided, shall have the same power to raise the necessary funds to pay its share of establishing and maintaining such joint project as it shall have to raise funds to establish and maintain any public school.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1807 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1617.

Section 2010. Title to Real Estate Acquired for Joint Schools, Classes, or Departments.—[1]The title to any real estate, which shall have been acquired for the purpose of any joint school class, or department, shall be held in the name of one or more of the school districts which shall have established such joint project, as the boards of school directors of such districts shall determine.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the third sentence of Section 1802 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1613.

It is also similar to Section 120 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 31.

Section 2011. Bond of Treasurer; Audit.—[1]The treasurer of each one or more joint schools, classes, or departments shall give such bond to the several districts which shall have established such one or more schools, classes, or departments as the boards of such districts shall require. Such bond shall be filed with the president of any one of the boards of such directors of such districts.

The accounts of such treasurer shall be audited in the same manner and by the same auditors as his accounts as treasurer of the school district shall be audited. Each such treasurer shall be subject to all the provisions of this act relating to the treasurer of a school district, as far as they can be applicable to him.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-mater of Section 1808 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1615.

Section 2012. Discontinuance of Joint Schools, Classes, or Departments; Disposition of Property.—[1]The several school districts which shall have established and maintained any joint school, class, or department may, at any time, by the affirmative vote of a majority of all of the then qualified members of the board of school directors of each of the respective districts, discntinue any such joint project. All property used in connection with such school, class, or department which shall belong to such school districts, shall, unless otherwise agreed upon by the boards of school directors of the several districts, be disposed of and distributed to and among them in the same proportion as it was originally contributed.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 1808 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1618.

ARTICLE XXI

PUPILS AND ATTENDANCE

Section 2100. School Attendance of Resident Pupils.—[1]Each child, between the ages of six and twenty-one who shall be a resident of any school district in this Commonwealth, may attend the public sshools in his district subject to the provisions of this act.

Note:

1. This is the first sentence of Section 1401 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1931, P. L. 243, 24 PS Sec. 1371.

Section 2101. Compulsory Attendance.—[1]Each child between the ages of eight (8) and sixteen (16) who shall have a legal residence in this Commonwealth, and each child between such ages who shall be temporarily domiciled in any school district for the purpose of seasonal employment, but who does not acquire a residence therein, and each child accompanying his parent or guardian who shall be so temporarily domiciled, shall attend a day school in which the common English branches provided for in this act shall be taught in the English language; each such resident child shall attend such school continuously through the entire term during which the public elementary schools shall be in session. Each such child who is not a resident shall be required to attend such school only during the time the schools are in session in the school district in which such child shall be temporarily domiciled.

Attendance at any private school or institution for the education of children in which the common English branches are taught in the English language and in which the work covered by the students is in compliance with the provisions of this act shall constitute a sufficient compliance with the provisions of this section.

Regular daily instruction in the English language, for the time herein required, by a properly qualified private tutor, approved by the superintendent, shall constitute a sufficient compliance with the provisions of this section.

The board of school directors may charge tuition for the education of any non-resident child temporarily residing in the district.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from those portions of Section 1414 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1919, P. L. 1084; 1925, P. L. 131, Section 1, and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 35; 24 PS Sec. 1421; which relate to the duties placed upon pupils to attend school; the remaining portions of Section 1414 of the School Law of 1911 place corresponding duties upon the parents or guardians. See the following section of this draft.

Section 2102. Residents; Non-resident Children Supported by Residents without Compensation.—[1]Each child shall be considered a resident of the school district in which his parents or the guardian of his person shall reside. When a resident of any school district shall have custody of a child of school age, not his own, and shall support the child gratis as if it were his own, such child shall, except as in this section otherwise provided, be entitled to all free school privileges accorded to all resident school children of the school district, including the right to attend the public high school maintained in such district or in other dstricts in the same manner as though such child were in fact a resident of the district. Such child shall be subject to all the requirements placed upon resident school children of the district. Before accepting such child as a pupil, the board of school directors of such district may, however, require such resident to file with the secretary of the board of school directors a sworn statement that he is a resident of the district, that he is supporting the child gratis, that he will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements, and that he intends to so keep and support the child continuously and in like manner through the school term.

Note:

1. This is the first paragraph of Section 1402 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1032; and 1925, P. L. 378, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 1372.

Section 2103. Non-residents Supported for Compensation.—[1]Any school district may refuse to accept into its schools any non-resident child or children of whom a resident of such school district shall have custody for compenstion, by order of court or an agreement with an association, agency, or institution having the care of dependent or neglected children, for either of the following reasons: 1. that the acceptance of the child or children would require additional provisions for transportation by the school district, or 2. that such acceptance would require the school district to provide an additional teacher or room at an expense greater than the amount of reimbursement from the Commonwealth.

Before any resident of a school district shall accept the custody of a non-resident child of school age, for compensation, by order of court or agreement with an association, agency, or institution, such resident shall make a written request to the superintendent, supervising principal, or board of school directors, for the admission of such child to the public schools of such district. If a written refusal of such petition shall not be received by such pettiioner within two weeks, the child shall be admitted as a pupil in the public schools of such district. If such supervising principal, superintendent or board of school directors shall send a written refusal to the petitioner, the petitioner or the association, agency or institution having the care of such child may appeal to the Department by filing with it a statement of all the relevant facts. Upon receipt of such an appeal, the Department shall have power to determine and decree whether, under the provisions of this section, the board of school directors, supervising principal or superintendent of schools was justified in rejecting the pupil. If the Department shall find that the rejection was justified, the pupil shall not be admitted to such schools; if it shall find that the rejection was not justified, the child shall be admitted. Such decision of the Department shall be final and conclusive.

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1402 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1032; and 1925, P. L. 378, Section 1; 24 PS Sec. 1372. Section 1402 of the School Law of 1911 does not expressly grant power to the Department to make a decision when appeals are taken to it, nor does that section expressly grant the power to take an appeal. These matters have been expressly stated in this section of the draft.

Section 2104. School Attendance of Non-resident Pupils.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors may assign to the schools of such district, with or without the payment of tuition, any non-resident child temporarily residing in such district, and may require the attendance of such non-resident child in the same manner and on the same conditions as it requires the attendance of a resident child.

Note:

1. This is the second sentence of Section 1401 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1931, P. L. 243, Section 32, 24 PS Sec. 1371.

Section 2105. Duty of Parents.—[1]Each parent, guardian, or other person having control or charge of any child or children between the ages of eight (8) and sixteen (16) years, shall, except as herein otherwise provided, send such child or children to a day school in which the common English branches are taught in the English language.

Each parent, guardian, or other person having control or charge of any child between the ages of six (6) and sixteen (16) years, who shall be deaf or blind, or so crippled, or whose hearing or vision is so defective as to make it impracticable to have such child educated in the public schools in the district in which he shall be a resident, shall allow such child to be sent to a school where proper provision is made for the education of the deaf or of the blind or of crippled children, or shall provide for the tuition of such child by a legally certificated private tutor.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the portions of Section 1414 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1919, P. L. 1084; 1925, P. L. 131, Section 1, and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 35, 24 PS Sec. 1421, which relate to the duties imposed upon parents in relation to the compulsory attendance of their children.

Section 2106. Failure of Parents to Compel Attendance.—[1]Whenever any superintendent, supervising principal, attendance officer, or board of school directors shall be of the opinion that any parent, guardian, or other person who shall be in parental relation to or have control or charge of any child between the ages of eight (8) and sixteen (16), is violating the provisions of this act relating to compulsory attendance, such superintendent, supervising principal, attendance officer, or the secretary of the board of school directors shall cause written notice of the alleged violations to be mailed to such parent, guardian, or other person, calling upon him to cease, within three (3) days thereafter, from any further violations. If such parent, guardian, or other person shall not then cease such violations, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof before any alderman, magistrate, or justice of the peace shall be sentenced to pay a fine, for the benefit of the school district in which such offending person resides, not exceeding two dollars ($2.00) for the first offense, and not exceeding five dollars ($5.00) for each succeeding offense, together with costs, and, in default of the payment of such fine and costs by the person so offending, shall be sentenced to the county jail for a period not exceeding five (5) days.

Any person sentenced to pay any such fine may, at any time within five (5) days thereafter, appeal to the court of quarter sessions of the proper county, upon entering into a recognizance, with one or more proper sureties, in double the amount of the penalty and costs.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 1423 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1430.

Section 1423 of the School Law of 1911, supra, provides that parents who violate the compulsory attendance laws shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. In the proviso to the section there is a statement that no criminal proceedings may be instituted unless notice of such person's violation has been given three days prior to the institution of such proceeding. Inasmuch as it is undesirable to have a section define certain acts as constituting a crime and then prohibit any prosecution thereunder unless certain preliminary matters had been accomplished, this new section has been written to include the notice phase as a part of the definition of the crime.

Section 2107. Reasons for Exemption for Compulsory Attendance.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors upon sastifactory evidence which shall show that a child shall be prevented from attending school or from application to study on account of any mental, physical, or any other urgent reason, may excuse such child from attending school as required by the provisions of this act; the term "urgent reason" shall be strictly construed and shall not permit of irregular attendance. Each principal or teacher may, for reasonable cause, excuse for nonattendance during temporary periods, any child or children who shall be enrolled in a class or school under his jurisdiction.[2]

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1415 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1422.
2. Section 1415, supra, provides that a principal or teacher may excuse a pupil only for "any of the reasons enumerated above." This section makes for greater flexibility.

Section 2108. Children between the Ages of Fourteen (14) and Sixteen (16).—[1]The provisions of this act requiring regular attendance shall not apply to any child between the ages of fourteen (14) and sixteen (16) years who has completed a course of study equivalent to six (6) yearly grades of the public school and who shall be regularly engaged in any useful and lawful employment or service during the time the public schools are in session, and who shall hold an employed certificate issued according to law; nor shall such provisions apply to any child between the ages of fourteen (14) and sixteen (16) years engaged in farm work, or in domestic service in a private home on a permit issued by the board of school directors or the designated school official of the school district of the child's residence, in accordance with the regulations issued by the Department.

Note:

1. This is Section 1416 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1034, Section 1.

Section 2109. Distance from School.—[1]If there shall be no public school in session within two (2) miles by the nearest public highway from the residence of any child, such child shall be exempt from the provisions of this act relating to compulsory attendance, unless proper free transportation be furnished to such child to and from school.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the first sentence of Section 1418 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1925, P. L. 628, Section 5; and 1927, P. L. 75; 24 PS Sec. 1425.

Section 2110. Health and Sanitation Laws.—[1]Each pupil who shall be prevented from attending school on account of the health or sanitation laws of this Commonwealth, or by the sanitary regulations of the local board of health or board of school directors, is hereby relieved from complying with the provisions of this act concerning compulsory attendance, during such time as he is thereby prevented from attending school.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1510 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1510.

Section 2111. Enumeration of School Children and Employers.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall, between April 1 and September 1 of each year, cause to be made by the attendance officers, teachers, or other persons employed for this purpose, a careful, correct and accurate enumeration in a substantial book or books provided by the Department at the expense of the Commonwealth, of all children between the ages of six (6) and sixteen (16) years within such school district. Such enumeration shall include the full name, date of birth, age, sex, nationality, place of residence, name and address of parents or persons in parental relation, name and location of school where the child is enrolled or belongs, and the name and address of the employer of any children under sixteen (16) years of age who are engaged in any regular employment or service. Such enumeration shall be made by careful inquiry at the reisdence of each family in the district. Each person making any part of such enumeration shall, upon completion thereof make a proper oath or affirmation as to its correctness. Such persons making such enumeration shall also make a list of the names and addresses of all persons, firms, or corporations employing or accepting service from children under sixten (16) years of age. The attendance officers, superintendent, supervising principal, or the secretary of the board of school directors shall have the power to add to this enumeration the names of any children between the ages of six (6) and sixteen (16) years residing in the district whose names did not appear thereon, together with the other information required by the provisions of this section.

Upon the application of the board of school directors or the superintendent, the Department may authorize a different method of obtaining, recording, and reporting the required facts, or may permit omission of such enumeration in any year.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the first paragraph of Section 1425 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1915, P. L. 238, 24 PS Sec. 1451, and of the proviso to Section 1427 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1453.

The last paragraph is new; its purpose is to promote flexibility.

Section 2112. Hindering School Enumeration; Penalty.—[1]Any person who shall hinder or prevent or attempt to hinder or prevent any attendance officer, teacher, or other person from preparing a proper enumeration of school children or employers as provided in this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof before any alderman or justice of the peace of the county be sentenced to pay a fine not to exceed five dollars ($5.00) or to undergo an imprisonment not to exceed five (5) days.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the second paragraph of Section 1425 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1915, P. L. 238, 24 PS Sec. 1451.

A statement has been inserted to provide that any person who shall so hinder one making a school enumeration shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Section 1425 of the School Law of 1911, supra, merely states that upon conviction, such person shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding five dollars ($5.00), or be imprisoned not exceeding five days.

Section 2113. Cost of Enumeration.—[1]The cost and expense of making the enumeration of the school children and employers, as required by this act, shall be paid on a per diem basis, or by name, or in such other manner as the board of school directors may see proper. Such payment shall be made out of the funds of the school district.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the first sentence of Section 1427 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1453.

Section 2114. Subdivision of School Districts; Assignment of Pupils.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall, for the purpose of designating the schools to be attended by the pupils in such school district, subdivide the district in such manner that every pupil shall be assigned to and reasonably accommodated in one of the public schools of such school district. Each such board may, however, upon cause shown, assign any pupil to a school in such district other than the one to which such pupil has thus been originally assigned.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter contained in the first sentence and first proviso of Section 1405 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1925, P. L. 628, 24 PS Sec. 1377.

Section 2115. List of Pupils Assigned to Schools.—[1]The secretary of each board of school directors, or such other person as shall be directed by the board shall, at or before the opening of the school term, furnish to the principal or teacher of each school a correct list of the names and addresses of all children, assigned to such school who are subject to the provisions of this act. Such secretary or other person shall also forward, on or before the first day of October of each year to the superintendent, to be by him forwarded on or before the first day of November of each year to the Department, a summary[2] of the totals as shown by the enumerations, hereinbefore provided for, separating, if requested to do so, those under fourteen (14) years of age, from those over that age, and separating races and sexes. Such reports shall be on blanks furnished by the Department.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 1426 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1452.
2. The section, from this point to the end, is new. It makes more explicit the types of reports.

Section 2116. Admission of Beginners.—[1]Pupils shall be admitted to the lowest grade of the primary schools and to the lowest primary classes of the public schools during the first two (2) weeks of the annual school term, or during the first two (2) weeks of school following the first day of January. Children who will become six (6) years of age after the beginning of the school term, but before the first day of January of any year shall be admitted during the first two (2) weeks of such school term, and children who will become six (6) years of age between the first day of January and the close of the term, shall be admitted during the first two (2) weeks of school following such first day of January. The board of school directors, in any school district, may fix such additional periods for the admission of beginners as it may deem proper.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 1403 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1373.
The definition of "beginners" found in the second paragraph of Section 1403, of the School Law of 1911, supra, has been inserted as a descriptive clause in the first two lines of this new section.

Section 2117. Report of Absence; Notice to Parents.—[1]It shall be the duty of every principal or teacher of a public school to report immediately to the attendance officer, superintendent, supervising principal, or secretary of the board of school directors, the names of all children in the list furnished to him who have not appeared for enrollment. He shall also report the names of all children who have been absent three (3) days, or their equivalent, during the term of compulsory attendance, without lawful excuse. Each such person, who shall be thus notified, shall thereuopn serve upon the parent, guardian, or other person in parental relation to such child or children, the written notice hereinbefore provided. If, within three (3) days thereafter, any child, parent, guardian, or other person in parental relation shall have failed to comply with the provisions of this act, such superintendent, supervising principal, attendance officer, or secretary of the board of school directors shall, in the name of the school district, proceed against the person so offending, in accordance with the provisions of this act.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1428, of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1451.

Section 2118. Reports by Private Teachers and Private Institutions.—[1]Each principal in every private school and institution for the education of children, and every private teacher shall, immediately after the opening of the public schools in the fall of each year, and at such other times as the superintendent, supervising principal or secretary of the board of school directors wherein the parents or guardians of the pupils of such school or person shall reside may require furnish to such superintendent, principal or secretary, a list of the names and residences of all children between the ages of eight (8) and sixteen (16) years enrolled in such school or institution or taught by such private teacher. Each such principal or teacher shall report to such superintendent, principal or secretary, the name and date of withdrawal of any pupil withdrawing from any such private school or institution or from such private instruction if such withdrawal shall occur during the period of compulsory attendance in such school district. Each such principal or teacher in a private school and each such private teacher shall also immediately report to the superintendent, supervising principal, or secretary of the board of school directors, any pupil who shall have been absent three (3) days or its equivalent during the term of compulsory attendance, without lawful excuse.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 1714 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1424.

Section 2119. Employers' Report of Children Employed.—[1]Each person, firm, association, or corporation, who shall accept service from or employ a child or children between the ages of fourteen (14) and sixteen (16) years, during the hours when the public schools are in session, shall, on or before the first day of September in each year, and quarterly thereafter, during the period of compulsory attendance, furnish to the superintendent, supervising principal, or secretary of the board of school directors of the district in which such child shall reside, the name, age, place of residence, and the name of the parent or guardian of every such child in his or its employ. Such report shall be made upon blanks to be furnished by the Department at the expense of the Commonwealth.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 1419 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1426.

Section 2120. Employers of Children to Post List.—[1]Each person, firm, association, or corporation, who shall accept service from or employ a child or children between the ages of fourteen (14) and sixteen (16) years, during the hours when the public schools are in session and during the period of compulsory attendance in each school district, shall prepare a list of all such children, giving their names, ages, places of residence, names of parents or guardians, dates of and names of persons issuing the employment certificates, and the hours of employment. Each such list shall be clearly written or printed and kept properly posted in the place of employment of such child or children, where it may be inspected by any member or officer of the board of school directors, superintendent, supervising principal, or attendance officer of any school district, at any time during the business hours.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1420 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1427.

Section 2121. Attendance Officers and Visitors; Certification.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall employ one or more persons who shall be known as attendance officers, or home and school visitors, whose duty shall be the enforcement of the provisions of this act regarding compulsory attendance. Such officers or visitors shall have full police power without warrant to arrest or apprehend any child who fails to attend school in compliance with the provisions of this act, or who is incorrigible, insubordinate, or disorderly during attendance at school or on his way to or from school. No person shall, however, be selected as attendance officer, or home and school visitor, or shall perform the duties or possess the powers of such officer or visitor until he shall be legally certificated as such by the Department, upon meeting such requirements as shall be prescribed by the State Council of Education.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1432 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1929 P. L. 497, Section 6, 24 PS Sec. 1471.

Section 2122. Term of Office and Compensation of Attendance Officers.—[1]Each attendance officer and home and school visitor may be employed for the full calendar year. He shall be paid such amount and in such manner as the board of school directors appointing him shall determine. He shall at all times perform the duties of his position as directed by the board of school directors.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of all but the last sentence of Section 1436 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1087, 24 PS Sec. 1475. That section contains a provision stating that in districts of the first class each attendance officer shall receive at least twelve hundred dollars ($1200.00) annually. The amount of the salary of such officers should be left to the discretion of the board of school directors, and has therefore been omitted from this draft.

Section 2123. Appointment of Attendance Officer by Two or More Districts.—[1]Any two (2) or more school districts may join in the appointment of one (1) or more attendance officers, school nurses or visitors upon such terms as they may mutually determine.

Note:

1. This is Section 1437 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1476.

Section 2124. Power to Enter Place of Employment.—[1]Each attendance officer and home and school visitor shall have full power and authority to enter, during business hours, any place where any child or children are employed, to ascertain whether or not any child is engaged therein who should attend school as provided herein. Such attendance officer or home and school visitor shall have the right to demand and inspect the employment certificate of each child engaged therein.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 1434 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1473.
The provisions of this section have been extended to include home and school visitors.

Section 2125. Interference with Attendance Officers; Penalty:—[1]Any officer, director, superintendent, manager, employer, or other person, at any place where any child between the ages of fourteen (14) and sixteen (16) years is employed, who shall refuse to permit or shall in any way interfere with the entrance therein of an attendance officer, home and school visitor, member or officer of the board of school directors, superintendent, or supervising principal of the school district, as provided in this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof before any magistrate, alderman, or justice of the peace, shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not less than five dollars ($5.00), nor more than twenty-five ($25.00), and in default of payment he may be sentenced to imprisonment not to exceed thirty (30) days. Any person sentenced to pay any such fine may, however, upon giving proper security, in double the amount of penalty and costs, appeal within five (5) days thereafter, to the court of quarter sessions of the proper county.

Note:

1. This a restatement of Section 1435 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1474.

Section 2126. Notice to Parents; Power to Place Child in School.—[1]Each attendance officer, and home and school visitor who shall arrest or apprehend any child who shall fail to attend school as required by the provisions of this act, shall promptly notify the parents, guardian, or other person in parental relation to such child, if such person can be found in the school district. Unless requested by such parent, guardian, or person in parental relation to place the child in a school other than a public school, he shall place the child in the public school in which the child is or should be enrolled.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 1433 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1472.
The provisions of this section have been extended to include home and school visitors.

Section 2127. Reports Relating to Compulsory Attendance.—[1]Each board of school directors shall make such reports to the Department relating to the enforcement of the provisions of this act regarding compulsory attendance and the cast of the enforcement of such provisions as the Department shall require.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the last sentence of Section 1436 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1087, 24 PS Sec. 1475.

Section 2128. Offenses by Superintendent, Principal, Secretary, Attendance Officer, Home and School Visitor, or Teacher.—[1]Any superintendent, supervising principal, secretary of the board of school directors, attendance officer, home and school visitor, teacher of any public or private school, private teacher, or principal or teacher in any institution for children, who shall wilfully refuse or neglect to comply with the provisions of this act relating to compulsory attendance, shall be liable for and pay a penalty for the use of the school district, not exceeding twenty-five dollars ($25.00) and costs, and in default of the payment thereof, may be committed to the county jail for a period not exceeding thirty (30) days. Such penalty may be recovered by and in the name of, any school district affected by such violation, as like penalties are now collected by law. Any such person upon whom a fine shall be imposed may, however, at any time within five (5) days thereafter appeal to the court of quarter sessions of the county, on furnishing proper bail with one (1) surety, and double the amount of such penalty and costs.

Note:

1.This is a restatement of Section 1430 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1456.
Section 1430 of the School Law of 1911, supra, provides that any one of such persons "who wilfully refuses or neglects to comply with the provisions of this act, shall be liable." Inasmuch as the purpose of this section is only to provide a penalty for the violation of the provisions of the school law relating to compulsory attendance, an express limitation has been stated in the new section.

Section 2129. Costs of Proceedings.—[1]If at any time after proceedings have been instituted against any person under the provisions of this act relating to compulsory attendance, sufficient cause be shown by such offending person for noncompliance with such provisions, or if the costs of such proceedings cannot be collected from such offending person, such costs may be paid out of the funds of the school district, upon a proper voucher approved by the board of school directors.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1429 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1455.
Section 1429 of the School Law of 1911, supra, provides: "If at any time after proceedings have been instituted against any person under the provisions of this act * * *." Inasmuch as this section is under the title of compulsory attendance it apparently was the intention of the Legislature that this section should apply only to proceedings brought under the compulsory attendance provisions of the School Law of 1911. Such a restriction has been placed in the new section.

Section 2130. Reporting of Children Unable to Attend School Due to Lack of Clothing and Food.—[1]Each board of school directors, attendance officer, school nurse, home and school vistor, superintendent, supervising principal, and secretary of any board of school directors who shall ascertain that any child between the ages of eight (8) and sixteen (16) years who shall by the provisions of this act be required to attend the public schools shall be unable to do so on account of lack of necessary clothing or foods, shall promptly report such case to any suitable relief agency operating in such school district, or if there be no such relief agency, to the proper directors or overseers of the poor, for investigation and relief.

Note.

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1424 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1431.
School nurses and home and school visitors have been added to the provisions of Section 1424.

Section 2131. Proceedings Against Incorrigible Children.—[1]If any child between the ages of eight (8) and sixteen (16) years cannot be kept in school in compliance with the provisions of this act, on account of incorrigibility, truancy, insubordination, or other bad conduct, or if the presence of any child attending school is detrimental to the welfare of such school for any of such reasons, the board of school directors of such district, may by its superintendent, supervising principal, secretary, attendance officer, or home and school visitor, under such rules and regulations as such board may adopt, proceed against such child before the juvenile court, or otherwise, as is or shall be provided by law.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1438 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1477.

Section 2132. Employment of Children between the Ages of Eight (8) and Fourteen (14) Years.—[1]No person, either for himself or for any firm, association, or corporation, shall, during the terms of compulsory attendance as fixed by the board of school directors in any school district and during the hours the public schools are in session, accept service from, engage, or employ any child or children between the ages of eight (8) and fourteen (14) years; nor shall he accept service from, engage or employ any child or children between the ages of fourteen (14) and sixteen (16) years, during such periods, unless each such child shall first furnish and deliver to such employer an employment certificate issued according to law.

If any such child between the ages of fourteen (14) and sixteen (16) years shall leave such employment, or be absent from such employment five (5) days, the employer shall immediately send written notice of such fact to the official who issued the certificate.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1421 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1915, P. L. 174, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 1428.

Section 2133. Illegal Employment of Children.—[1]Any person who shall accept service from, or engage or employ any child between the ages of eight (8) and fourteen (14) years, during the term of compulsory attendance, and while the public schools are in session, or who shall accept service from, engage or employ any child during the same period of time, between the ages of fourteen (14) and sixteen (16) years, without first being furnished by such child with an employment certificate or farm or domestic service permit, or who shall fail to furnish to the superintendent, supervising principal, attendance officer, or secretary of the board of school directors, the information required by this act concerning the children employed by him or them, or shall fail to post and inspect, at the place of employment of such children, the list of children engaged by him or them as required by the provisions of this act, or who shall fail to notify the proper school official as required by the last preceding section of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished for a first offense by a fine of not less than ten dollars ($10.00) or more than twenty-five dollars ($25.00) or ten (10) days' imprisonment in the county jail, or either or both, at the discretion of the court, and for a subsequent offense shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty dollars ($20.00), or more than fifty dollars ($50.00), or ninety (90) days' imprisonment in the county jail, or both, at the discretion of the court.

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1422 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1915, P. L. 174, Section 1; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 36.

ARTICLE XXII

TERMS AND COURSES OF STUDY

Section 2200. Length of School Terms.—[1]In each school district of the first, second, and third classes, the educational program, as herein established, shall be pursued in each public elementary and high school for at least one hundred eighty (180) days in each school year.

In each school district of the fourth class, such educational program shall be pursued in each public elementary and high school for at least one hundred sixty (160) days in each school year.

No day, during the whole of which a school has been closed, due to the observance of a holiday or other reason, shall count in the computation of the days required by the provisions of this section.

In each school district, the board of school directors may, unless otherwise provided in this act, conduct such other schools and departments during such time as it may deem proper.

Note:

1. Section 1601 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 893, 24 PS Sec. 1531, provides "For the school year beginning the first Monday of July, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one, and each school year thereafter, one hundred eighty (180) days. All the public elementary and high schools of school districts of the fourth class in this Commonwealth shall be kept open each year as follows: For the school year beginning the first Monday in July, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one, not less than one hundred fifty (150) days; for the school year beginning the first Monday of July, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-two, and each school year thereafter, not less than one hundred sixty (160) days." The obsolete portions of this section have been deleted and the section rewrittn.

The third paragraph is based upon the proviso of Section 1604 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1535, which provides that "Provided, That no days on which the schools are closed shall be counted as days taught."

Section 2201. School Month.—[1]Twenty (20) days of actual teaching shall constitute a school month.

Note:

1. This is Section 1602 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1532

Section 2202. Special School Days.—[1]Each teacher, together with his pupils, shall devote, to the observance of Arbor Day or Bird Day, if his school be in session, a portion of each day which shall have been designated as such by the Governor.

The board of school directors in each school district may designate that a portion of the twenty-eigth day of September in each year shall be set apart for a study of the life and principles advocated by Frances Willard.

Each such board of school directors shall conduct appropriate exercises relating to the life of William Penn on such day as may be designated by the Governor for the observance of the birthday of such person.

Note:

1. The subject-matter of this section has been drawn from the Act of 1915, P. L. 634, 44 PS Sec. 20; from the Act of 1919, P. L. 288, 24 PS Sec. 1536; and from the Act of 1931, P. L. 660, 44 PS Sec. 22.

Section 2203. Observance and Designation of Holidays; Vacations.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors may, by the adoption of a resolution by the affirmative vote of a majority of all of the then qualified members of such board, determine which holidays shall be observed by special exercises, and on which holidays the schools shall be closed for the whole or a part of the day; in like manner, each such board of school directors may provide for such periods of vacation for the public schools as it shall deem proper.

No school shall be kept open on any Saturday for the purpose of ordinary instruction except when Monday is fixed by the board of school directors as the weekly holiday, or on Sunday, Fourth of July, or Christmas, nor shall any school be kept open in any district during the time of holding the teachers' institue for such district.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 1604 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1535.

The contents of the proviso of that section will be found in Section 2200 of this draft.

Section 2204. Opening and Closing of Term; School Hours.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall fix the date of the opening and closing of the school term. Unless otherwise determined by such board, the daily session of school shall open at the nine ante meridian and close at four post meridian, with an intermission of one hour at noon and an intermission of fifteen minutes in the forenoon and in the afternoon.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 1605 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1533.

Section 2205. School Commencement.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors may determine on what date the school commencement or promotion exercises shall be held, and shall pay such of the expenses in connection therewith as it may deem proper.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 1606 of the School Law of 1911. 24 PS Sec. 1537.

Section 2206. Courses of Study.—[1]In each elementary public and private school, the following subjects shall, subject to the provisions of this act be taught: English, including spelling, reading, and writing, arithmetic, geography, history of the United States and of Pennsylvania, civics, includng loyalty to the State and National Government, safety education, humane treatment of birds and animals, health, including physcial education and physiology, hygiene, music and art.

In each such school, instruction in the Constitution of the United States shall be given beginning not later than in the eighth grade.

In each public elementary school, such other subjects shall be taught as may be designated by the State Council of Education.

In each such district, the board of school directors may require the teaching, in public schools, of any subjects in addition to those herein enumerated, which may be approved by the State Council of Education.

All subjects except foreign languages which shall be taught in the public and private schools, shall be taught in the English language and from English texts.

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1607 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 930; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 37; 24 PS Sec. 1551.

The provision of that section relating to high schools has been transferred to the article of this draft entitled "High Schools."

Section 2207. Arrangement of Courses of Study.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall, with the advice, assistance, and approval of the proper superintendent, arrange a course or courses of study adapted to the age, development, and needs of the pupils. Such courses of study shall conform to any general course of study arranged by the Department so far as the local conditions in the respective districts shall permit.

Note:

1. This is Section 1608 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1552.

Section 2208. Instruction Concerning Stimulants, Narcotics, and Tuberculosis.—[1]The courses in physiology and hygiene which are by the provisions of this act required to be taught in the public schools, shall include special reference to the effect of alcoholic drink, stimulants, and narcotics upon the human system; they shall also include special reference to tuberculosis and its prevention.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-mater of Section 1609 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1553.

The provision relating to high schools will be found in the article of this draft entitled "High Schools."

Section 2209. Instruction in Humane Education.—[1]The course in humane treatment of birds and animals shall be given to all pupils up to and including the fourth grade; such course need not exceed half an hour each week during the whole school term.

No cruel experiment on any living creature shall be permitted in any public school.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 1610 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1554.

The term "humane treatment of birds and animals" has been substituted for the term "humane education" in order to bring the provisions of this section into conformity with Section 2206 of this draft.

Section 2210. Reading of the Bible.—[1]In each school district, the teacher in charge of each class shall daily read without comment, at least ten (10) verses from the Holy Bible, except that a teacher who shall have other teachers under and subject to his direction may cause it to be read by such other teacher or teachers.

Each teacher who shall violate the provisions of this section shall, if charges of such violation shall have been preferred and established to the satisfaction of the board of school directors, be discharged by such board.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the Act of 1913, P. L. 226, 24 PS Sec. 1555-1556.

Section 2211. Grading and Classifying Pupils.—[1]The teachers in the public elementary schools shall, under the direction of the proper superintendent, grade and clasisfy the pupils in their schools so that such pupils may pursue the courses of study provided herein.

All pupils found proficient may be promoted twice each year.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1611 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1559.

Section 2212. Records.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, each teacher in the public elementary or high schools shall make and keep a proper record of the work and progress of each pupil and at the end of each term shall include in the last monthly report herein required from such teacher, the grade of proficiency of each pupil and his standing in the several branches pursued by him in such school, the conduct of such pupil and such recommendations for a promotion or retention for additional preparation as such teacher shall deem just and proper.

Until the record and report herein required shall have been examined and approved by the superintendent, the supervising principal, or secretary of the board of school directors, no teacher shall be paid any salary for the last month of his term.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1612 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1560.

Section 2213. Monthly Reports.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, each teacher employed in the public schools shall, at the end of each school month or within five (5) days thereafter, make a report for the past month to the board of school directors. Such report shall state the number of days during which he conducted his school, and the reasons for which the school was closed during any of the days of such month. Such report shall also state the number, age, and sex of all pupils, and the number of days attended by each; they shall be made on blank forms to be furnished to the teachers by the board of school directors. No teacher shall be paid more than one-half of his salary for the current month until such report shall be made. All such reports shall be filed with the secretary of the board and shall at all times be open to inspection by the public. However, any school principal may make such report for the entire school.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1614 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1929, P. L. 497, Section 7, 24 PS Sec. 1562.

Section 2214. Record of Preceding Year's York.—[1]In each school district the superintendent, supervising principal, or secretary of the board of school directors shall, on or before the opening day of school in each term, furnish to each teacher or principal in each school a true statement of the standing of each pupil in such school, together with the recommendation made thereon by the principal or teacher of such pupil at the close of the preceding term.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1613 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1561.

ARTICLE XXIII

MEDICAL INSPECTION AND HYGIENE

Section 2300. Medical Inspection of Pupils; Inspectors; Compensation.—[1]In each school district of the first, second and third classes, the board of school directors shall annually provide medical inspection of all of the pupils of its public schools by proper medical inspectors, whom it shall appoint in sufficient number to conduct the required inspection in conformity with the standard requirements prescribed by the Secretary of Health for the medical inspection of the schools in such district. Such medical inspection shall be made in the presence of the parent or guardian of the pupil, when so requested by such parent or guardian. All such medical inspectors shall be physicians legally qualified to practice medicine in this Commonwealth who have at least two (2) years' experience in the practice of their profession, and shall be paid such amounts as the board of school directors may determine. Health officers in municipalities may, however, be appointed as medical inspectors in the school districts.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1501 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 939, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 1501.

Section 2301. Inspection in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, where the Department or Board of Health therein is providing a medical inspection of the public schools which meets the requirements of the inspection provided for in this act, such department or board of health may, if it so elects, continue ot provide such medical inspection, and appoint such inspectors and set such salaries as shall be satisfactory to the board of school diretcors of the school district. Such medical inspection shall be deemed a compliance with the requirements of this act and shall be paid for by the school district.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1502 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1502.

Section 2302. Inspection in Districts of the Fourth Class.—[1]In each school district of the fourth class, the State Department of Health shall provide, in such manner as it may determine, medical inspection for all pupils in the public schools by proper medical inspectors who shall be appointed by the Secretary of Health, and whose salary shall be paid by such Department. All such medical inspectors shall be legally qualified physicians, who have had not less than (2) years' experience in the practice of their profession. Such medical inspection shall be made in the presence of the parent or guardian, of the pupil, when so requested by such parent or guardian.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1503 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1919, P. L. 997, Section 3, 24 PS Sec. 1503.

Section 2303. Vaccination of Students.—[1]It shall be the duty of each board of school directors, superintendent, principal, teacher, or other person who shall be in charge of any public school to refuse admission of any child to any school which shall be under his or its charge or supervision, except upon a certificate signed by a physician, setting forth that such child has been vaccinated and that a subsequent examination revealed a resulting cicatrix indicating successful vaccination, or that vaccination has been performed according to the rules and regulations which shall have been promulgated by the Secretary of Health with the sanction and advice of the Department of Health, or that such child has previously had smallpox. All certificates of vaccination shall be issued in accordance with the rules and regulations which shall have been promulgated by the Secretary of Health with the sanction and advice of the Department of Health.

Any person who shall violate, neglect, or refuse to comply with, or who shall violate any of the provisions or requirements of this section shall, for every such offense, upon conviction thereof before any mayor, burgess, justice of the peace, or police magistrate, be liable to a fine or penalty therefor of not less than five dollars ($5.00) nor more than one hundred dollars ($100.00); such fines or penalties to be paid into the school fund of the district in which the offense was committed; and in default of payment thereof such person, so convcited, shall undergo an imprisonment in a jail of the proper county for a period not exceeding sixty (60) days.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Sections 12 and 21 of the Act of 1895, P. L. 203, as amended by the Act of 1919, P. L. 399, Sections 1—2, 53 PS Sec. 2181—2182.

Section 2304. Names of Inspectors; Appointment.—[1]In each school district which is required by the provisions of this act to provide medical inspection for its public schools, the secretary of the board of school directors or the superintendent shall, on or before the first day of September of each year, report to the Secretary of Health the names of the medical inspectors or the name of the first medical inspector, with the number of assistants or additional inspectors appointed for the ensuing term. If in any such school district, the medical inspection as herein required shall not be furnished, within thirty (30) days after the beginning of the school term, the Secretary of Health shall mail a written notice to the secretary of the board of school directors of such school district stating that the school district shall immediately proceed with such inspection. If such board of school directors shall neglect or refuse for two weeks following the receipt of such notice to conduct a medical inspection as herein required, the Secretary of Health shall appoint a properly qualified medical inspector or inspectors for the remainder of the school term, and shall fix the compensation for such inspector or inspectors. Such compensation shall be paid by the school district.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1504 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1919, P. L. 511, 24 PS Sec. 1504.

Section 2305. Annual Physical Inspection; Reports.—[1]The medical inspectors provided herein shall, at least once each year, inspect and carefully test and examine all pupils in the public schools of their districts, giving special attention to defective sight, hearing, teeth or other disabilities and defects specified by the Secretary of Health. Such inspectors shall make such additional examinations as shall be required by the Secretary of Health, the principal, or superintendent of schools. Each medical inspector shall make to the teacher, or if the board of school directors so directs, to the principal or superintendent, a written report concerning all pupils to be found needing medical or surgical attention, and shall give careful directions concerning the care of each pupil who is in need of special care while in school. Such teacher, principal, or superintendent, shall promptly send a copy of the medical inspector's report upon each child requiring treatment to the parents or guardian thereof, and shall keep the report concerning the pupils found to need medical or surgical attention until the last month of the school term, carrying out as carefully as possible the medical inspector's directions concerning the special care of pupils while in school, and noting any corrections of defects which have been reported. Each such teacher, principal, or superintendent shall, in school districts of the fourth class return the report to the Secretary of Health, and in school districts of the first, second and third classes to the superintendent, or to the principal of schools, who shall make such report to the Secretary of Health as he may require.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1505 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 939, Section 2, 24 PS Sec. 1505.

Section 2306. Annual Inspection of Buildings.—[1]Each medical inspector provided herein shall, at least once each year, and as early in the school term as possible, make careful examination of all privies, water-closets, urinals, cellars, water supply, and drinking-vessels and utensils and shall make such additional examinations of the buildings and grounds as he shall deem necessary or as shall be required by the State Department of Health, the State Council of Education, the board of school directors and the local board of health. Each such inspector shall see that the laws of the Commonwealth and all such rules and regulations relating to the health and sanitation of the public schools shall be enforced.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1506 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1506.

Section 2307. Reports; Miscellaneous Duties.—[1]Each such medical inspector shall promptly make such reports to the Secretary of Health as shall be required by such Secretary or by the rules and regulations of the Department of Health, and such reports to the local boards of school directors as he shall deem necessary, or as are required by the Secretary of Health or by the board of school directors. He shall perform such other duties as may be required by the health and sanitation laws of this Commonwealth or by the board of school directors.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1507 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1507.

Section 2308. School Nurses.—[1]Any board of school directors may employ and define the duties of one (1) or more school nurses, who shall be graduates of reputable training schools for nurses. Such duties may include any or all of those prescribed herein for attendance officers.[2] Any two (2) or more school districts may jointly employ one (1) or more of such nurses.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1508 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1929, P. L. 73, 24 PS Sec. 1508.
2. The second sentence of this section is new. Its purpose is to permit districts to secure the most efficient and economical services from its employes.

Section 2309. Persons Having Tuberculosis.—[1]No person who shall have tuberculosis of the lungs shall be a pupil, teacher, janitor, or other employe in any public school, unless it be a special school carried on under the regulations prescribed for such schools by the Secretary of Health.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1509 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1509.

Section 2310. Care of Eyes and Teeth of Pupils.—[1]In any school district, the board of school directors may provide for the care and treatment of defective eyes and teeth of all pupils of its public schools.

Note:

1. This is Section 1511 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1511. It was added to the School Law of 1911 by the Act of 1917, P. L. 1032.

Section 2311. Schools for Tubercular Children.—[1]In each school district, the board of school director smay establish a special school for pupils having tuberculosis of the lungs, and may provide such pupils with food, clothing, and transportation necessary for attendance at such school.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Section 1512 of the School Law of 1911, which was added by the Act of 1919, P. L. 209, 24 PS Sec. 1512 provides that if a school district conducts a special school for tubercular pupils it may pay for food, clothing and transportation. It did not grant the power to conduct such a school. This new section expressly bestows such power.

ARTICLE XXIV

TRANSPORTATION

Section 2400. Free Transportation of Pupils.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors may, out of the funds of such school district, provide for the free transportation of any pupils to and from the public schools, except that free transportation may not be provided for any pupil who resides in any city, borough, or incorporated town, and attends a school located therein, nor for any high school pupil who shall live one (1) mile or less from the nearest high school in his district. Nothing in this section, however, shall be construed as preventing a district from transporting crippled or physically handicapped children.[2]

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the second paragraph of Section 1404 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1375.
2. The portion of this section which restricts the right of boards to transport pupils is new. It is designed to prevent the expending of unnecessary amounts for transportation which is not required by the pupils.

Section 2401. Compulsory Transportation.—[1]In each school district of the fourth class, the board of school directors shall furnish at the expense of the school district proper transportation to and from school to any of the following elementary pupils who shall reside one and one-half (1½) miles or more from the school to which they shall have been assigned:

1. All pupils who shall reside in any one of such districts which shall have closed all of its elementary schools;
2. All pupils who shall live in an area which was last served by an elementary school closed since the first Monday of July, one thousand nine hundred seven;
3. All pupils who shall have been assigned to a training school of a State teachers college.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of the second proviso of the third paragraph of Section 1406 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1923, P. L. 910; 1925, P. L. 628, Section 2; 1929, P. L. 497, Section 5; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 34; 24 PS Sec. 1377.

Section 1406 relates to all districts of the fourth class and townships which were districts of the third class. Under the Act of 1911, fourth class districts has a maximum population of 5000. Principles of classification require that all units within the same class be governed by the same provisions of the law. This section, therefore, has been written to apply only to districts of the fourth class.

Section 2402. Board and Lodging in Lieu of Transportation.—[1]Each school district of the fourth class, which shall have agreed to or shall be required to provide transportation for any pupils, may upon petition of the parent, guardian, or person in parental relationship to any such pupils, in lieu of providing such transportation, pay for suitable board and lodging for such pupils, if such board and lodging may be secured in the home of a near relative of the pupil or in a proper school or home approved by the person making the petition.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of the first sentence of the fifth paragraph of Section 1406 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1923, P. L. 910; 1925, P. L. 628, Section 2; 1929, P. L. 497, Section 5; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 34; 24 PS Sec. 1378.

Section 2403. Extent of Transportation.—[1]In each school district which, by the provisions of this act shall be required to furnish free transportation to pupils in such district, the board of school directors shall so arrange the facilities for such transportation that no pupils for whom transportation must be provided shall be compelled to travel by the public highway, to or from school, in addition to such transportation, a distance which shall exceed one and one-half (1½) miles.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the last portion of the proviso to Section 1408 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1038, Section 4; and 1925, P. L. 328, Section 4; 24 PS Sec. 1380.

Section 2404. Mode of Transportation.—[1]In each school district which, by the provisions of this act, shall be required to furnish free transportation to pupils in such district, the board of school directors may furnish such transportation by using either school conveyances, private conveyances, electric railways, or other common carriers. Each such board of school directors shall furnish, for the pupils, proper shelter wherever it shall be needed.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the first portion of the proviso of Section 1408 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1038, Section 4; and 1925, P. L. 328, Section 4; 24 PS Sec. 1380.

Section 2405. Computation of Distance.—[1]Where, by the terms of this act, a distance, between the residence of a pupil and a public school, is specified, such distance shall be computed by the public highway from the nearest point where a private way or private road connects the dwelling house of the pupil with such highway to the school grounds of the school to which such pupil shall have been assigned. No allowance shall be made for the distance between the dwelling house and the public highway.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of the first two sentences of Section 1408 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1038, Section 4; and 1925, P. L. 328, Section 4; 24 PS Sec. 1380.

ARTICLE XXV.

ATTENDANCE IN ANOTHER DISTRICT.

Section 2500. General Provisions.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors may, on account of convenience of access, or other reasons, permit any pupils to attend the schools of another school district. The school district in which any such pupils shall have their residence shall pay the cost of tuition of such pupils to the school district in which such pupils shall attend school. Such cost of tuition shall be computed as herein provided.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the second sentence of Section 1404 of the School Law of 1911,. 24 PS Sec. 1375.

Section 2501. Power to Permit Attendance of Non-resident Pupils.—[1]In each school district the board of school directors may permit any non-resident pupil to attend the public schools in its district, upon such terms as it may determine, subject to the provisions of this act.

Note:

1. This is Section 1409 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1734.

Section 2502. Attendance in Another School District When a Pupil Resides One and One-half (1½) Miles from the Nearest School.—[1]Each pupil, in any school district, who shall reside one and one-half (1½) miles or more by the nearest public road from the nearest public elementary school in the district, may, unless proper free transportation be furnished to a suitable school in the district, attend any public elementary school in another school district more convenient of access, upon obtaining the consent of the board of school directors of such other school district. Each pupil need not obtain the consent of the board of the school district in which such pupil shall reside shall promptly pay to the school district in which such pupil shall attend school, the cost of his tuition, computed as herein provided, unless otherwise provided by an agreement between the boards of such districts.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of the first sentence of Section 1404 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1375.

The portion of Section 1404 which provides that the cost of tuition should not exceed that of other students of the district has been omitted for, under the method of determining the cost of tuition, it is not necessary.

Section 2503. Assignment of Children Residing More Than Two (2) Miles from School.—[1]When any child of compulsory school age shall reside more than two (2) miles by the nearest public highway from the school to which he shall have been assigned within the district, and free transportation for such child shall not have been provided, the board of school directors of such district shall, if there shall be a school within such distance under the jurisdiction of another board of school directors who shall consent to have such child attend its school, reassign such child to such school located in the other school district.

The board of school directors of the district of which the child is a resident shall pay to the board of school directors of the district in which the child shall attend school, the cost of tuition, computed as herein provided, unless otherwise provided by an agreement between the boards of such districts.

The provisions of this section shall incluide assignment to high schools in a case of a pupil under sixteen (16) years of age who is qualified to be enrolled in such high school.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of the second proviso of Section 1405 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1925, P. L. 628, 24 PS Sec. 1377.

Section 2504. Attendance in an Adjoining State.—[1]Where any child or children of school age in a school district in this Commonwealth shall reside one and one-half (1½) miles or more by the nearest traveled road from the nearest public elementary school, or three (3) miles or more from the nearest high school, located in any school district in this Commonwealth, such child unless proper free transportation shall be furnished to a suitable school in this Commonwealth may, except as otherwise provided in this section, on request of his parents, legal guardian or person in parental relation, be assigned by the board of school directors to a more convenient school located in another state. Before any child shall be so assigned, however, the consent of the proper school officials in charge of such school in another state shall be secured.

The tuition of any such child or children attending a school in another state may be paid by the board of school directors of the district in which he is a resident, as in the case of a pupil attending a public school in this Commonwealth in a district in which he is not a resident.

The board of school directors in any school district in this Commonwealth situated adjacent to another state, may admit to the public schools in such school district, pupils resident in such other state and may receive tuition for such pupils, as in the case of pupils admitted from other districts in this Commonwealth.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1442 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1481. That section was added to the School Law of 1911 by the Act of 1925, P. L. 413, Section 1.

Section 2505. Cost of Tuition in Elementary Schools.—[1]The cost of tuition to be paid by any district for pupils in the elementary schools shall be determined in the manner provided herein for the determination of the costs of tuition to be paid for high school pupils,[2] except that the items upon which such charges shall be based be those for the elementary school in question in lieu of those of a high school.

All payments of such tuition costs shall be paid in monthly installments.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Section 1441 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1925, P. L. 435, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 1480, sets forth the manner of computing cuch per capita tuition. Inasmuch as the formula is the same as that used in the calculating of the per capita cost of tuition in high schools, it is unnecessary to again set forth the whole procedure.
2. See Section 1614 of this draft.

Section 2506. Attendance by Children in Institutions.—[1]The board of school directors in each school district in which there shall be located an orphan asylum, home for the friendless, children's home, or other institution for the care or training of orphans or other children, shall permit any children who are inmates of such homes, but not legal residents in such school district, to attend the public schools in such district, either with or without charge for tuition, textbooks, or school supplies, as the board of school directors of such district may determine.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the first sentence of Section 1412 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 987, and 1925, P. L. 438, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 1381.

Section 2507. Cost of Tuition for Children in Institutions.—[1]If a charge shall be made by any such school district, the institution shall send by registered mail, to the board of school directors of each school district in which a child of such institution shall have his residence, a statement that the institution is of the opinion that such child is a resident of such school district. The institution shall send, with such statement, a notice that the school district shall disclaim or acknowledge the existence of such residence within fifteen (15) days following receipt of the notice. If the school district to which such notice shall have been sent shall fail to reply to such notice within fifteen (15) days, the institution shall send by mail a second notice to such school district stating that it has failed to answer the first notice. If such school district shall fail to comply with such notice within fifteen (15) days following the receipt of the second notice, the child shall be considered a resident of such school district.

If any such school district shall disclaim the residence of such pupil, the institution may petition the Department for a determination of the location of the residence of such pupil. Such decision of the Department shall be final.

Note:

1. This and the following sections are based upon the subject-matter of the last portion of the first paragraph of Section 1412 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 987; and 1925, P. L. 438, 24 PS Sec. 138.

Section 2508. Statements of Residence; Payment of Tuition.—[1]Each such institution shall file with the Department and the board of school directors in which the institution shall be located a statement signed and sworn to by two (2) officials of the institution setting forth the name, address, and residence of each of such pupils, together with a statement of which of the measures set forth in this article for the determination of the residence of such pupil has been utilized.

The Department shall cause an amount equal to the cost of tuition of each of such pupils whose residence shall have been determined to be in a school district other than the one in which the institution shall be located, to be withheld from any moneys due to the school district of the pupil's residence. The Department shall cause all money which has been thus withheld to be paid to the school district in which the child of such institution shall attend school. Each such institution shall, however, pay the tuition of any of such children who have been received from places outside of the Commonwealth or as to whose residence the institution cannot certify as herein provided.

Note:

1. This is a statement of the matter covered in the latter portion of the first paragraph of Section 1412 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 987; and 1925, P. L. 438; 24 PS Sec. 1381.

Section 2509. Computation of Cost of Tuition.—[1]The cost of tuition in each such case shall be fixed as is provided herein for tuition costs in other cases, except where, for the accommodation of such children it shall be necessary to provide a separate school or to erect additional school buildings, in which case the charge for tuition for such children may include a proportionate cost of the operating expenses, rental, and interest on any investment required to be made in the erection of such additional buildings. The tuition herein provided for shall be paid annually by the Commonwealth or the institution as the case may be.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of the last paragraph of Section 1412 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 987; and 1925, P. L. 438; 24 PS Sec. 1381.

ARTICLE XXVI

TEACHERS

Section 2600. Employment.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall employ such number of qualified teachers of good moral character who shall be at least eighteen (18) years of age, as shall be necessary in order to conduct efficiently the public schools in such school district in compliance with the provisions of this act. Such employment shall be by written contract as hereinafter provided.

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of the subject-matter of Sections 1201—1202—1203 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1121—1122—1123.

Section 1203 of the School Law of 1911 provides:

"The board of school directors in every school district in this Commonwealth may employ such special teachers, qualified as herein provided, as they may deem necessary for any of the public schools or departments thereof in the district."

Inasmuch as the term "teachers" in this section of the draft includes "special teachers", no express statement as to the power "special teachers" has been included.

Section 2601. Joint Employment of Special Teachers.—[1]The boards of school directors of two (2) or more school districts may join in the employment of a supervisor or teacher of drawing, music, or other special subjects, for part or all of the schools of such districts. Such boards of school directors shall prescribe their duties and determine the amount of and shall pay the compensation of each such supervisor or teacher.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 1215 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1201-1202.

Section 2602. Contracts.—[1]In each school district of the second, third and fourth classes, each contract which shall be entered into between the board of school directors and a teacher, supervisor, supervising principal or principal, shall be in writing, executed in duplicate by the teacher, supervisor, supervising principal or principal and by the president and secretary of the board of school directors on behalf of such board.

Each such contract shall contain the following provisions: that the contract shall, unless terminated as hereinafter provided, continue in force from year to year; that the contract shall be subject to the provisions of this act, its amendments and supplements; and that the contract may be terminated by the teacher, supervisor, supervising principal or principal at the close of the school term by written resignation presented forty-five (45) days before the close of the school term, or by the board of school directors by official written notice given to the teacher, supervisor, supervising principal or principal at least forty-five (45) days before the close of the school term.

Note:

1. This section is a substitute for Section 1205 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 92; 1929, P. L. 1576; and 1931, P. L. 243; 24 PS Sec. 1126. That section sets forth form paragraphs for the contracts to be entered into between the district and its employes. Although such contracts were inteded to apply to teachers, supervisors, supervising principals and principals their terms covered only "teachers".

The period within which notice of the termination of the contract is required to be given has been reduced from sixty days to forty-five days for two reasons: 1. A requirement that notice of the termination of the contract shall be given at least sixty days prior to the close of the school term means that unless a board of school directors has cancelled all contracts, it cannot, when it comes to prepare its budget in April or May reduce the number of its employes or their salaries. This condition has caused some school districts annually to cancel all contracts before the sixty day period, and then, upon the completion of the budget enter into new contracts. Such a procedure is undesirable both from the viewpoint of the teachers and of the boards. A forty-five day limitation will enable a board to prepare its budget, determine the number of employes it will employ and then give notice to any employes it does not wish to re-employ. 2. After a teacher has received a notice that his contract will terminate at the close of the school term, it is natural that he will lose considerable interest in his work. The period, after the giving of his notice, should not be any longer than is necessary to enable the teacher to search for a new school district.

Section 1206 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1162, provides the circumstances under which a teacher should be paid in the event that the school was closed or if sickness or other unpreventable causes prevented the teacher from performing his ordinary duties. It also contains a provision requiring that all contracts entered into between the board of school directors and teachers should contain "a covenant providing for their payment in cases arising under the circumstances described in this section, and at the same rate as is specified for the time actually engaged in teaching". Inasmuch as Sections 2610-2611 of this draft provide as to when teachers should be paid under the circumstances set out in Section 1206 of the School Law of 1911, supra, the provision requiring the inclusion of such matter in the contracts with the teacher has been omitted. As long as such matter is covered in this provision of this act, it seems useless to require a repetition of it in the contract entered into between the teacher and the board of school directors.

Section 1205, supra, requires that each contract should contain a provision permitting the board, "to change said salary subject to the provisions of law without invalidating any other provision of this contract". That provision has been omitted because a literal construction of it would permit the board to change the salary during the period of the contract.

Section 2603. Provisions of Contracts.—[1]Any portion of a contract between a teacher and a school district which shall violate any of the provisions of this act shall be null and void.

Note:

1. This is Section 2101 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1914.

Section 2604. Qualifications in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the board of school directors shall prescribe the mode or modes of determining the qualifications of applicants for positions as principals or teachers in the schools of the district, and shall designate the kinds or grades of teachers' certificates which may or shall be used in the district, together with the scholastic, professional, and personal qualifications required for each kind or grade of certificate.

No certificate shall be granted to any person who is not of good moral character, or to any person who shall not first have presented a certificate from a physician recognized by the board of school directors as competent for the purpose, setting forth that the applicant is neither mentally nor physically disqualified by reason of tuberculosis or any other chronic or acute defect from successfully performing the duties of a teacher or principal.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the subject-matter of Section 2225-2226 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2031-2032.

Section 2605. Eligibility for Appointment, Promotion, or Transfer in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, no person shall be appointed, promoted or trasnferred to an educational position in the public school system whose name shall not appear among the three (3) highest names upon the proper eligibility list.

The provisions of this section shall not apply to any appointment, promotion or transfer of any person as superintendent of schools, associate or assistant district superintendent, director of a sepcial branch, or as principal of a high school, normal school or manual training school.[2]

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 2229 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1915, P. L. 824, 24 PS Sec. 2035.

Section 2606. Eligible Lists in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the superintendent of schools shall prepare and keep in his office eligible lists, properly classified, containing the names of persons who shall have received certificates of qualification to teach in the district, arranged, as nearly as possible, in the order of their rank or standing. Such lists shall be open to inspection by members of the board of school directors, associate and assistant superintendents, principals and school visitors.

Note:

1. This is a restatment of Section 2228 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2034. The duty of keeping these lists has been expressly placed upon the superintendent of schools. Under the School Law of 1911, this duty was not placed upon any person or board.

Section 2607. Board of Examiners in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the board of school directors may, establish and maintain a board of examiners whose duty it shall be to examine all applicants for places upon any of the lists of persons eligible to appointment by such board. The board of school directors shall determine the number of members which shall constitute any such board of examiners and upon the nomination of the superintendent of schools, shall appoint the members of such examining board.

The superintendent of schools shall act as chairman of the board of examiners and shall prescribe such examinations subject to the approval of the board of school directors.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 2227 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2033.

Section 2608. Increase in Salary.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors, may at any time during the school year, when it shall deem is necessary or advisable, increase the salary of any teacher, principal, supervising principal, supervisor, district superintendent, or assistant or associate district superintendent.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1205 (a) of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 92; 1929, P. L. 1576; and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 26; 24 PS Sec. 1161.

Section 2609. Breach of Contract.—[1]Any teacher, supervisor, supervising principal or principal who, unless released by the board of school directors, shall refuse or neglect to teach throughout the term for which he shall have been engaged, except when prevented by personal illness, shall be disqualified from teaching in any public school in this Commonwealth during the then current yearly term of such contract.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1209 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1128.

Section 2610. Salaries; Closed Schools.—[1]If a teacher, principal, supervising principal or supervisor shall be prevetned from performing his duties during the whole or any portion of a school term for which he shall have been employed, because of the closing of a school or schools by the board of school directors on account of contagious disease, destruction or damage of the school building by fire, or other causes, the school district shall be liable for the salary of each such person who shall be willing and able to perform such duties[2] during such period in the same manner as though he had performed all of his duties to such school district. If, however, the board of school directors shall determine to keep the school or schools open beyond the regular school term but not beyond the fourth Monday of June then next ensuing, such teacher, principal, supervising principal or supervisor shall serve during such make-up period without further compensation.[3]

Note:

1. This is a new section. The first paragraph of Section 1205 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1012, 24 PS Sec. 1162 provides:

"When a board of school directors is compelled to close any school or schools on account of contagious disease, the destruction or damage of the school building by fire or other causes, the school district shall be liable for the salaries of the teachers of said school or schools for the terms for which they were engaged. Whenever a teacher is prevented from following his or her occupation as a teacher, during any period of the school term, for any of the reasons in this section specified, the school district shall be liable for the salary of such teacher for such period, at the rate of compensation stipulated in the contract between the district and the teacher, in addition to the time actually occupied in teaching by such teacher.

The meaning of this paragraph is indefinite; the new section of this draft has therefore been written.

2. The clause which begins with the word "who", is new. It is inteneded to preclude the board of school directors being compelled to continue paying the salary if the employe should, during the period during which the school is closed, become ill or die. See Section 2611 of this draft.

Section 1206 of the School Law of 1911, supra, relates only to "teachers". Principals, supervising principals and supervisors have been added.

3. The last sentence of the section is new. It requires the school employes to serve without extra compensation if the board shall desire to make up a reasonable amount of lost time.

Section 2611. Salaries; Illness.—[1]If a teacher, supervising principal, principal, or supervisor, shall be prevented by sickness or other unavoidable circumstances on his part from performing his duties to the district by which he shall have been employed, the board of school directors may pay to him such compensation, during the period of absence from duty, as the exigencies of the case may warrant. No such payments shall, however, be made when the disability shall have been due to illness unless such teacher, principal, supervising principal or supervisor shall furnish to the board of school directors a certificate from a physician stating the nature of the sickness and certifying that he was unable to perform his proper duties for the school district.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of the second paragraph of Section 1206 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1012, 24 PS Sec. 1162.

Section 1206, supra, relates only to "teachers"; this new section includes within its terms principals, supervising principals and supervisors.

Section 2612. Minimum Salaries.—[1]In each school district, the board of school directors shall, except as herein otherwise provided, pay to each teacher, supervisor and principal a salary which shall not be less than the minimum salary as set forth in the following schedules:

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of the subject-matter of the first paragraph of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1164.

Section 2613. School Districts of the First Class.—[1]Elementary teacher, minimum annual salary one thousand two hundred dollars ($1,200.00), minimum annual increment one hundred dollars ($100.00), minimum number of increments ten (10); assistant high school teachers, minimum annual salary one thousand five hundred dollars ($1,500.00), minimum annual increment one hundred dollars ($100.00), minimum number of increments three (3); junior high school teachers and city normal school training teachers, minimum and annual salary one thousand eight hundred dollars ($1,800.00). minimum annual increment one hundred twenty-five dollars ($125.00), minimum number of increments eight (8); or, minimum annual salary one thousand eight hundred dollars ($1,800.00), minimum annual increment one hundred seventy-five dollars $175.00), minimum number of increments six (6); high school teachers and city normal school teachers, minimum annual salary one thousanl eight hundred dollars ($1,800.00), minimum annual increment one hundred seventy-five dollars ($175.00), minimum number of increments eight (8); the minimum maximum salary for high school teachers shall, however, subject to regulations prescribed by the State Council of Education and such additional regulations as the board of school directors may prescribe, be advanced to at least three thousand six hundred dollars ($3,600.00); supervisors, minimum annual salary one thousand eight hundred dollars ($1,800.00), minimum annual increment one hundred twenty-five dollars ($125.00), minimum number of increments eight (8); elementary school principals, minimum annual salary two thousand one hundred dollars ($2,100.00), minimum annual increment two hundred thirty-seven dollars and fifty cents ($237.50), minimum number of increments eight (8); junior high school, high school, city normal school principals, minimum annual salary four thousand dollars ($4,000.00), minimum annual increment two hundred fifty dollars ($250.00), minimum number of increments four (4).

Vocational, industrial, manual training, continuation schools, industrial art, and similar teachers if classified in the elementary schools, shall be entitled to the salary and increments prescribed in the schedule for elementary teachers, or, if classified in junior high schools, they shall be entitled to the salary and increments prescribed in the schedule for junior high school teachers.

The principalships in elementary, continuation, industrial trade, junior high, and high schools, in districts of the first class, shall be classified by the board of school directors on the basis of the number of teachers or rooms in the school or such other facts and conditions as determine the relative importance and value of the service which shall have been rendered by such principals. The board shall fix the number of increments, the amount thereof, and the maximum salary of each of such principals, but no principal shall receive less than the minimum salary prescribed. The increments provided in the foregoing schedule for principals shall apply to those principals only who shall serve in the schools of the highest classification, which classification shall be determined by the board of school directors.

Note:

1. This material is a restatement of the second and third paragraphs of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1929, P. L. 18, 24 PS Sec. 1165-1166.

The fourth paragraph of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1167 has been omitted. It provides:

"Each person on the teaching or supervisory staff in a school district of the first class on the first Monday of July, one thousand nine hundred twenty-one, shall be entitled to receive the minimum salary provided for herein, and, in addition thereto, to one annual increment for each year of accredited service or experience, not exceeding the number of increments authorized by this act."

It was intended to regulate the minimum salaries and increments upon the adoption of the first minimum salary schedule. Inasmuch as this proposed act will merely continue the former schedule, it has not been necessary to write such a provision into the present draft.

For the same reason, the sentence providing that all teachers in districts of the first class, who on the effective date of this act were holding valid certificates should be entitled to participate in the schedule.

Section 2614. School Districts of the Second Class.—[1]Elementary teachers, and elementary principals who shall devote less than one-half their time to supervision and administration, minimum annual salary one thousand ($1,000.00), minimum annual increment one hundred dollars ($100.00), minimum number of increments eight (8); high school teachers, and high school principals who shall devote less than one-half their time to supervision and administration, minimum annual salary one thousand four hundred dollars ($1,400.00), minimum annual increment one hundred dollars ($100.00), minimum number of increments eight (8); supervisors, minimum annual salary one thousand four hundred dollars ($1,400.00), minimum annual increment one hundred dollars ($100.00), minimum number of increments eight (8); elementary principals who shall devote one-half or more of their time to supervision and administration, minimum annual salary one thousand and six hundred dollars ($1,600.00), minimum annual increment one hundred dollars ($100.00), minimum number of increments eight (8); high school principals who shall devote one-half or more of their time to supervision and administration, minimum annual salary three thousand dollars ($3,000.00), minimum annual increment one hundred twenty-five dollars ($125,000), minimum number of increments eight (8); superintendents minimum annual salary five thousand dollars ($5,000.00).

Teachers in junior high schools who shall have the qualifications required by the board of school directors for teachers of the senior high school, shall be placed upon the high school schedule, otherwise they shall be placed upon the elementary school schedule. Continuation school teachers who shall be required to have qualifications equivalent to high school teachers, shall be entitled to the salary and increments prescribed in the schedule for high school teachers, or, if qualifications equivalent to elementary school teachers, they shall be entitled to the salary and increments prescribed in the schedule for elementary school teachers. All approved vocational agricultural, vocational home economics, or vocational industrial schools, when organized as separate schools or departments shall be classified as secondary schools and the teachers of these schools shall be entitled to the salaries and increments prescribed in the schedule for high school teachers.

Note:

1. This is Subsection 5 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1168.

Section 2615. School Districts of the Third Class.—[1]Elementary teachers, and elementary principals who shall devote less than one-half of their time to supervision and administration, minimum annual salary one thousand dollars ($1,000.00), minimum annual increment one hundred dollars ($100.00), minimum number of increments four (4); high school teachers, and high school principals who shall devote less than one-half of their time to supervision and administration, minimum annual salary one thousand two hundred dollars ($1,200.00), minimum annual increment one hundred dollars ($100.00), minimum number of increments four (4); supervisors, minimum salary one thousand two hundred dollars ($1,200.00), minimum annual increment one hundred dollars ($100.00), minimum number of increments four (4); elementary principals who shall devote one-half or more of their time to supervision and administration, minimum annual salary one thousand four hundred dollars ($1,400.00), minimum annual increment one hundred dollars ($100.00), minimum number of increments (4); high school principals who shall devote one-half or more of their time to supervision and administration, minimum annual salary two thousand dollars ($2,000.00), minimum annual increment one hundred twenty-five dollars ($125.00), minimum number of increments four (4); superintendents, minimum annual salary three thousand five hundred dollars ($3,500.00).

Teachers in junior high schools who shall have the qualifications required by the board of school directors for teachers of the senior high school shall be placed upon the high school schedule, otherwise they shall be placed upon the elementary school schedule.

Continuation school teachers who shall be required to have qualifications equivalent to high school teachers, shall be entitled to the salary and increments prescribed in the schedule for high school teachers, or, if the qualifications shall be equivalent to elementary school teachers, they shall be entitled to the salary and increments prescribed in the schedule for elementary school teachers. All approved vocational agricultural, vocational home economics, or vocational industrial schools, when organized as separate schools or departments shall be classified as secondary schools and the teachers of these schools shall be entitled to the salaries and increments prescribed in the schedule for high school teachers.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Subsection 6 and 7a of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1169 and 1170a.

Section 2616. School Districts of the Fourth Class.—[1]Elementary teachers, minimum monthly salary one hundred dollars ($100.00); high school teachers, minimum monthly salary one hundred thirty dollars ($130.00).

Continuation school teachers who shall be required to have qualifications equivalent to high school teachers, shall be entitled to the salary for high school teachers, or, if the qualifications shall be equivalent to elementary school teachers, they shall be entitled to the salary for elementary school teachers. All approved vocational agricultural, vocational home economics, or vocational, industrial schools, when organized as separate schools or departments shall be classified as secondary schools and the teachers of these schools shall be entitled to the salaries for high school teachers.

Note:

This section has been drawn from Subsections 7 and 7a of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS 1170 and 1170a.

Section 2617. Minimum Salaries in Extension Schools.—[1]In each school district, the minimum salary of part-time teachers, supervisors and principals employed in the extension schools and classes, established for the education of adults and legally employed minors, and not designated as continuation or other vocational schools or classes, shall be one dollar ($1.00) per hour; the minimum annual increment in salary in such extension schools and classes shall be twenty-five cents ($.25) per hour; the minimum number of such annual increments shall be two (2).

Note:

1. This is the fifth proviso of Subsection 19 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1180.

Section 2618. Eligibility.—[1]The foregoing schedules shall apply only to those teachers and members of the supervisory staff in the public schools who shall have met the requirements of this act as to certification and who, in addition, shall have fulfilled any further qualifications required by the board of school directors by which they shall have been employed. The holding of an emergency certificate shall not, of itself, however, be sufficient compliance with the provisions of this act as to certification to entitled the holder to the benefits of such schedules.

Note:

1. This section has been substituted for the third sentence of Subsection 9 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, supra, and the first sentence of Subsections 13 and 14 of the same section, 24 PS Sec. 1176-1177.

Section 2619. Applicability of Increments.—[1]The increments provided herein are applicable only when the beneficiary thereof shall remain in the service of the same school district. Where such person shall enter a new district, he shall enter at a point in the schedule to be agreed upon between him and the employing board of school directors, which agreement shall be made a part of the contract between them.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Subsection 10 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1173.

Section 2620. Salaries in Excess of Minimum Schedule.—[1]The foregoing schedules prescribe a minimum salary in each instance; where an increment is prescribed it is also a minimum. Each board of school directors may increase, for any person or group of persons included in this schedule, the initial salary or the amount or number of increments or the minimum qualifications set forth in this act.

Nothing contained in this act shall be construed to interfere with or discontinue any salary schedule now in force in any school district so long as such schedule shall meet the requirements of this section, nor to prevent the adoption of any salary schedule not inconsistent with the provisions of this act.

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of the first two sentences and the last paragraph of Subsection 9 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1172.

The third sentence of Subsection 9 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, supra, relates to the qualifications of teachers which should be necessary to enable them to receive the benefits of the minimum salary schedule; for the similar provisions in this draft see Section 2618.

Section 2621. Compensation For Extra Work.—[1]Each teacher, included within the foregoing schedules, who shall be required, because of additional work, to devote more than the usual number of periods per day to his duties shall be entitled to a fair increase in compensation, to be determined by the board of school directors. Each teacher who may be employed in giving instruction for only a part of the day shall render such further service, for such period of time per day, as the board of school directors may direct, but if such service cannot be assigned to such teacher, the salary paid to such teacher shall be proportioned to the number of hours of service actually rendered.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Subsection 11 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1174.

Section 2622. Teachers Not Included in the Salary Schedule.—[1]Each teacher, who shall not be entitled to the benefits of the foregoing salary schedule, shall become entitled to such benefits by meeting the qualifications for certification prescribed in this act. Each such teacher, until so qualified, shall receive at least seventy-five dollars ($75.00) per month.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the second sentence of Subsection 13 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1176.

Subsection 13 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, supra, contains a proviso to the effect that a teacher holding a professional certificate or a certificate of equivalent value shall receive a salary of eighty-five dollars ($85.00). Inasmuch as professional certificates are no longer issued, this proviso has been omitted. It is the intent of this proposed act to provide that any teacher who meets the qualifications provided herein and those set up by the local board of school directors shall be qualified to participate in the minimum salary schedules.

Section 2623. Local Salary Schedule.—[1]In each school district the board of school directors shall establish a salary schedule, with increments, for all members of the teaching and supervisory staff who shall not be included in the schedule provided herein.

Note:

1. This is Subsection 16 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1178.

Section 2624. Continuance of Schedule.—[1]The provisions of this article shall, except as herein otherwise expressly provided, be construed as a continuation of all salary schedules, whether provided by law or by a board of school directors, in force on the day preceding the effective date of this act, and as not affecting the position or rights of any person in relation to such schedules.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Its purpose is to prevent this act from interfering with any rights which the present teachers, supervisors, or principals now have under these salary schedules.

Section 2625. Power of Teachers Over Pupils.—[1]Each teacher, in the public schools, shall have the right to exercise the same authority as to conduct and behavior over the pupils who shall attend his school, during the time that they are in attendance and during the time required in going to and coming from their homes, as the child's parents, guardians or persons in parental relation to such pupils may exercise over them.

Note:

1. This is Section 1410 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1382.

Section 2626. Religious Dress or Emblem.—[1]No teacher in any public school shall wear in such school or while engaged in the performance of his duty as such teacher, any dress, mark, emblem, or insignia, which shall indicate any religious order, sect or denomination.

Each board of school directors which, after having conducted a fair hearing, shall find that any teacher shall have violated the provisions of this section, may[2] suspend such teacher for one (1) year; if a teacher shall twice be found guilty of such an offense, it shall be the duty of such board to disqualify permanently such teacher from teaching in the schools of the district.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Sections 1 and 2 of the Act of 1895, P. L. 395, 24 PS Sec. 1129-1130. The Act of 1895 provides that if any director, after having received notice that the teacher of his district has violated the provisions of the act, should fail to suepend or remove such teacher, he would be guilty of a misdemeanor. This section has omitted such a provision because this draft provides that any director who fails to comply with the requirements of this draft shall be subject to removal by proceedings herein outlined.

2. The Act of 1895, supra, makes the removal mandatory; this draft makes it optional.

Section 2627. Suspension of Pupils.—[1]Each principal and teacher in charge of a public school may temporarily suspend any pupil on account of disobedience or misconduct; each such principal or teacher who shall suspend any pupil, shall promptly notify the district superintendent, supervising principal or secretary of the board of school directors of such suspension. The board of school directors of such school district or any duly authorized committee of the board, after a proper hearing of which due notice shall be given, may suspend such child for such time as it may determine, or may permanently expel him.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1411 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1383.

Section 2628. Removal of Teachers and Principals.—[1]Each board of school directors may, by a majority vote of all the then qualified members of such board, after having conducted a hearing of which it shall have given the notice hereinafter prescribed, dismiss, at any time, a principal supervising principal, supervisor or teacher on account of immorality, incompetency, intemperance, cruelty, negligence or violation of any of the provisions of this act. At such hearing such employe shall have the right to appear and be heard personally or by counsel. The secretary of each such board of school directors shall send by mail, at least fifteen (15) days prior to the hearing, to such employe and to each member of the board of school directors a notice of the time, place and purpose of such hearing.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1208 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1127.

ARTICLE XXVII

SUPERINTENDENTS AND SUPERVISING PRINCIPALS

A. General Provisions

Section 2700. Superintendents.—[1]For the superintendence and supervision of the public schools of this Commonwealth, there shall be elected or appointed, in the manner herein provided, county, district, assistant county, assistant district and associate superintendents.

Note:

1. This is Section 1101 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1931, P. L. 243, Section 20.

Section 2701. Qualification of Superintendents.—[1]In order that any person may be eligible for the office of county, district, associate, assistant county, or assistant district superintendent, he must possess the following qualifications:

1. He shall be of good moral character.
2. He shall hold a diploma from a college, university, or other institution of learning approved by the State Council of Education.
3. He shall have had at least six (6) years' successful teaching experience, not less than three (3) years of which shall have been in a supervisory or administrative capacity.
4. He shall have completed, in a college or university, a graduate course in education approved by the State Council of Education.

Subparagraphs 2, 3 and 4 of this section shall not, however, apply upon any further re-election or appointment of any such county, district, assistant county, assistant district, or associate superintendent who holds any one of such offices upon the effective date of this act.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
It is based upon the subject-matter of Sections 1102-1103 of the School Law of 1911. Section 1102 was amended by the Act of 1931, P. L., 243, Section 21, 24 PS Sec. 951; Section 1103 was amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 328, Section 2, and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 22, 24 PS Sec. 952.
The new section contains no substantive change in the present law.

Section 2702. Oath of Office.—[1]Each person who shall be elected or appointed as county, district, associate, assistant county, or assistant district superintendent shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, subscribe to and take before the Superintendent of Public Instruction, or before any judge of a court of common pleas in this Commonwealth, the same oath or affirmation as is herein prescribed to be taken by persons elected to the office of school director.

The Superintendent of Public Instruction or judge administering such oath or affirmation shall file with the Department a statement that such oath has been administered.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 1146 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1091.

Section 2703. Extra Compensation.—[1]No county, district, associate, assistant county, or assistant district superintendent shall receive any compensation for engaging in the profession of teaching or for services rendered in connection with the schools under his jurisdiction, other than the compensation herein provided to be paid to him for the performance of his duties as superintendent or assistant superintendent. However, any such superintendent or assistant superintendent may receive compensation for services in a summer school, maintained in a State teachers' college or other university or college, devoted to the training of teachers, if he shall be released for such service by the board of school directors or executive committee of the school directors' association.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Section 1145 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1038, Section 3, 24 PS Sec. 1095.

Section 2704. Agent for Books and Supplies.—[1]No county, district, associate, assistant county or assistant district superintendent or any person who shall be an applicant for any of such positions shall be an agent for, or be in any way financially interested in the sale or adoption of any book or books or supplies in the county or district in which he shall be employed, or be an applicant.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the latter sentence of Section 1147 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1093. The first sentence of Section 1147 has been omitted for the subject-matter has been expressed in Section 2703 of this draft.

Section 2705. Reports.—[1]Each county and district superintendent shall annually, on or before the first Monday of August, forward to the Department the reports of the one or more school districts under his supervision, together with such extended report of the public schools under his supervision as he may think proper, suggesting such improvements in the public school system as he may see fit to suggest. Each such superintendent shall furnish to the Department such additional reports and information as it may require.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1151 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1098.

Section 2706. Recommendation of Courses of Study.—[1]Each superintendent having supervision over any high school shall prepare and recommend to the boards of school directors, maintaining such school, suitable courses of study which should be pursued in such school.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the first portion of Section 1712 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1591.

Section 2707. Bribery in the Election of Superintendents.—[1]Each person who shall, either directly or indirectly, pay or give to a school director any sum of money or other thing of value, for his vote or support in the election of a county district, associate, assistant county, or assistant district superintendent, or who shall pay or give to a school director any or all of his expenses incurred in or about the election of such superintendent, or assistant superintendent shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined not less than five dollars ($5.00), nor more than five hundred dollars ($500.00), or be sentenced to imprisonment for not less than (30) days nor more than one (1) year, or both, at the discretion of the court, and shall forever thereafter be disqualified from holding the office of county, district, associate, assistant county, or assistant district superintendent, school director, or any other office in the public school system.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1152 of the School Law of 1911, 18 PS Sec. 9.

B. County Superintendents

Section 2708. County Superintendents.—[1]In each county in which there shall be one (1) or more school districts of the third and fourth classes, which do not have a district superintendent, there shall be a county superintendent.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
Section 1104 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 971, provides that there should be a county superintendent in every county. Inasmuch as county superintendents exercise supervision only over school districts of the third and fourth classes which do not have a district superintendent, there is no necessity for the existence of a county superintendent in any other county than those having school districts of the third and fourth classes which have no district superintendent.

Section 2709. Evidences of Qualifications.—[1]No person shall be elected county superintendent by a school directors' association until he shall have filed with the president of such school directors' association, proper evidence that he possesses all of the qualifications herein required.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 1108 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 975.

Section 2710. Notice of Election.—[1]When sending notices to the members of the school directors' association of an annual convention, at which a county superintendent shall be elected, each county superintendent shall include with such notice an announcement that an election of a county superintendent will be held at such convention.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
Section 1106 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 973, provides for the publication once a week for three weeks in two newspapers of a notice of the election of a county superintendent. Inasmuch as the directors will be sufficiently informed by the mailed notice, the publication has been omitted.

Section 2711. Election of County Superintendents.—[1]Each school directors' association, at its annual convention which shall be held on the second Tuesday in April one thousand nine hundred thirty-four and every fourth annual convention thereafter, shall elect as herein provided a county superintendent to serve for four (4) years from the first Monday of the following July.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
Section 1105 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1923, P. L. 349, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 972, provides that the school directors of each county shall be called together in April every four years for the election of a county superintendent who should serve until the first Monday of July.
The election, at the convention of the school directors' association, will remove the necessity for the extra meeting and expenses incidental to such meeting.

Section 2712. List of Directors; Manner of Election.—[1]At each convention of a school directors' association at which a county superintendent is to be elected, the county superintendent shall furnish to the president of such convention a correct list arranged in alphabetical order, of the school directors of all of the school districts under his jurisdiction. In taking the vote of the election of the new county superintendent, the president or secretary shall call in alphabetical order, the names on the list thus furnished. Each director present shall, when his name is called, rise and state the name of the candidate for whom he desires to vote. Tellers appointed by the president shall keep a correct count of the votes as cast, and report the results to the president.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 1109 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 976.

Section 2713. Salary of County Superintendents.—[1]Each such school directors' association after the election of a county superintendent may, by the affirmative vote of a majority of all of the members of the association, present at such convention, set the salary of such county superintendent at an amount greater than the minimum salary herein provided for such superintendent. Such increase shall be paid by the school districts under the jurisdiction of the county superintendent. The Department shall deduct from the annual State appropriation to be paid to each of such school districts a percentage of such excess which shall be equal to the percentage which the true valuation of all of the assessable property in such school district is of the true valuation of all of the assessable property in all of the districts under the jurisdiction of the county superintendent. Such true valuation shall be determined as provided herein. The salaries of county superintendents shall be paid monthly.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It is somewhat similar to Section 1121 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1919, P. L. 300, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 1002. That section does not set forth the manner in which the excess was to be apportioned. The only statement was, "such increase to be paid * * * out of the school fund apportioned to the school districts over which such county superintendent has supervision."

Section 2714. Certificate to the Department.—[1]It shall be the duty of the president and secretary of each school directors' association, which shall have elected a county superintendent, to certify to the Department the name and address of the person elected as county superintendent for the ensuing term, together with the number of votes received by him, the names and addresses of and the number of votes received by the other candidates for the office, the number of directors in attendance at the convention, the amount of salary to be received by the county superintendent, and the number of votes cast for and against such salary.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 1110 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 977.

Section 2715. Exceptions to the Election.—[1]At any time within the fifteen (15) days immediately following such election, any one or more of the boards of school directors of the school districts, under the jurisdiction of the county superintendent, may file with the Department an objection or objections to the election. Each such objection shall be signed by at least a majority of the members of such board of school directors, and shall be verified by the oath or affirmation of at least two (2) of the school directors.

Note:

1. This section and the next section of this draft are based upon Section 1112 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 979. This section expressly grants the privilege to file objections to the election; such privilege had to be drawn by implication from the law of 1911.

Section 2716. Hearing; Notice.—[1]If one or more objections shall be filed by one-fifth (1-5) or more of the boards of school directors entitled to participate in such election, the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall conduct a hearing in order to determine the validity of the election. He shall give reasonable notice of the time and place of the hearing to all objectors and to the person who has been certified as elected to the office of county superintendent; the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall send a copy of all objections which have been filed with him to the person certified as elected to the office of county superintendent.

Note:

1. This section, together with the section immediately preceding, and the section immediately following had been based upon Sections 1112 and 1113 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 979 and 983.

Section 2717. Bond of the Objectors.—[1]The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall have the power, before proceeding with any such hearing, to require that the objectors file a proper bond in favor of the Commonwealth, in such amount and with such corporate or individual surety or sureties as may be approved by him, conditioned that if the objector or objectors shall fail to substantiate the objections filed by them, they shall pay all necessary costs and expenses incurred on account of the filing of the objections and the holding of the hearing.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 1116 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 981.

Section 2718. Witnesses.—[1]The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall have power to issue subpoenas requiring witnesses to attend and testify at any such hearing. Each person, so subpoenaed, who shall neglect or refuse to attend and give evidence at any such hearing, shall be liable to the same fines and penalties as if he had refused to appear and testify in the court of common pleas of the county in which such hearing shall be held.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 1114 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 980.

Section 2719. Hearing; Decree; Appointment of County Superintendent.—[1]At such hearing, the Superintendent of Public Instruction may require, under oath or affirmation, such evidence as he may deem necessary and proper. After the holding of such a hearing and any necessary adjournments thereof, the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall make a decree either declaring that the election was valid, or that it was not valid. If he shall decree that the election was not valid, the election of the county superintendent shall be void, and the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall not issue a commission to such person. Within ten (10) days after the making of such a decree declaring the election void, the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall, after having given careful consideration to any recommendations of the executive committee of the school director's association of the affected county, appoint for the full term or the remainder thereof, a properly qualified person as county superintendent.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Sections 1113 and 1114 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 983 and 980.

Section 2720. Costs.—[1]The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall have the power to place the whole or any part of the costs, incurred due to the filing of and holding of such hearing, upon the boards of school directors filing the objections, the candidate for the office of county superintendent, or the Commonwealth. If any such costs shall be placed upon the Commonwealth, they shall be paid from funds appropriated for such purpose.

Note:

1. Section 1115 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 982 provides that the Superintendent of Public Instruction "may direct that so much of the cost and expense incurred on account of such hearing, as he may approve, shall be paid by the Commonwealth, by an order drawn on the treasurer thereof, out of any appropriation made for such purpose." Section 1115 of the School Law of 1911, supra, does not expressly state who should pay the portion of the cost which was not placed upon the Commonwealth. This new section expressly provides upon whom the costs may be assessed.

Section 2721. Issuance of Commission.—[1]If objections to the election of a county superintendent shall not have been filed with the Department as herein provided within fifteen (15) days after the election, the Department shall immediately, under its seal, issue a proper commission for the ensuing term to the person so elected; if proper objections have been filed as herein provided, and the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall have entered his decree stating that the election was valid, the Department shall immediately issue, under its seal, a proper commission for the ensuing term to the person so elected.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
Section 1111 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 978, provides that "If no valid objections * * * be filed * * * a proper commission shall be issued * * *." It made no reference to the number of objectors which were necessary in order to give the Superintendent of Public Instruction authority to conduct a hearing and inquire into the merits of the election; likewise it has no provision relating to the issuance of a commission in the event the Superintendent of Public Instruction does conduct a hearing and finds that the election has been properly conducted.

Section 2722. Preservation of Election Records.—[1]After the election of a county superintendent the tellers shall seal the talley sheet, the list of directors furnished to the president of the school directors' association, and all other papers used in connection with the election, and deliver them to the prothonotary of the county in which the school districts under the jurisdiction of the county superintendent or the greater part thereof in area is located. The prothonotary shall retain such records for at least thirty (30) days. If any objections shall be filed to the election, the prothonotary shall immediately transmit all such records to the Department.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Sections 1118 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 985.

Section 2723. Jurisdiction of County Superintendent.—[1]In each county in which there shall be a county superintendent, such superintendent shall have supervision over all of the public schools of each school district which has the whole or the greater portion of its territory within such county and which does not have a district superintendent.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It expressly defines the jurisdiction of the county superintendent; it makes no changes in the law.

Section 2724. Powers and Duties.—[1]In addition to the powers and duties provided herein, the county superintendent shall possess the following power and his duty shall be:

1. To visit personally, as often as possible, each school under his supervision, to note the curricula and methods of instruction, to give directions in the art and method of teaching, and to report to the proper board of school directors any inefficiency which he shall find.[2]

2. To inspect the school grounds and buildings visited by him, and to report to the board of school directors of the proper school district any violation of the provisions of this act relating to the sanitary and other conditions of school buildings.[3]

3. To require that in each school district under his supervision, there shall be taught the branches of study required by this act and the board of school directors of such school district.[4]

Note:

1. This is a new section.
2. Paragraph 1 has been based upon Section 1123 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1021.
3. Paragraph 2 has been based upon Section 1124 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1022.
4. Paragraph 3 has been drawn from Section 1149 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1096.

Section 2725. Examination by County Superintendents.—[1]Each county superintendent is hereby authorized, and, where the board of school directors have not agreed to waive the examination as provided herein, shall be required to examine each pupil who shall desire to attend a high school in a school district other than the one in which he shall reside and who has completed in schools other than the school district in which he shall reside, a course of studies equivalent to the program of studies provided in other than vocational schools in the school district in which such pupil shall reside.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the last sentence of Section 1708 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1915, P. L. 672, P. L. 166, Section 2; and 1927, P. L. 687, 24 PS Sec. 1586.

Section 2726. Files and Records of Reports.—[1]Each county superintendent shall keep on file in his office, for not less than one year, all records and reports filed by any assistant county superintendent; he shall furnish to each board of school directors such portion of such reports and records and other suggestions as he shall deem proper.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 1132 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1047.

Section 2727. Office; Supplies; Stenographer.—[1]The county commissioners of each county, in which by the provisions of this act there shall be a county superintendent, shall, at the expense of the county, provide, furnish, and maintain fit and suitable office rooms at the county seat for the use of the county superintendent of schools and his assistants, and for the suitable storage and preservation of school records and documents pertaining to the office of county superintendent; they shall also provide a telephone, typewriter, stenographer, and all necessary stationery, printing, blanks, and postage. However, in none of such counties shall the stenographer be employed for less than two (2) days per week or the equivalent of such time per year; and the county superintendent may select such stenographer.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
It includes the subject-matter which was contained in Section 1125 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1913, P. L. 129, 24 PS Sec. 1023, and in the Act of 1915, P. L. 706, as amended by the Act of 1927, P. L. 463, 52 PS Sec. 732. The Act of 1915, as amended, provides that the county commissioners may, if they desire, supply a telephone, typewriter and stenographer, except that in counties having less than three hundred teachers the stenographer should be employed at least two days a week. In addition to the requirements provided for by the Act of 1911 and the Act of 1915, supra, this new section requires that a telephone and typewriter be supplied at the cost of the county.

Section 2728. Minimum Salaries for County Superintendents.—[1]The minimum annual salaries of all county superintendens shall be, in counties having a population of less than twenty thousand (20,000), three thousand dollars ($3,000); in counties having a population of between twenty thousand (20,000) and forty-five thousand (45,000), three thousand five hundred dollars ($3,500); in counties having a population between forty-five thousand (45,000) and one hundred fifty thousand (150,000), four thousand dollars ($4,000); in counties having a population of one hundred fifty thousand (150,000) or more, four thousand five hundred dollars ($4,500).

Note:

1. The provisions of this section have been drawn from the first part of Subsection 8 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1929, P. L. 1587, 24 PS Sec. 1171.

Section 2729. Removal of County Superintendents.—[1]The Superintendent of Public Instruction, after having conducted a hearing as herein provided, shall have the power to remove a county superintendent for neglect of duty, incompetency, intemperance, immorality, improper conduct, or the violation of any of the provisions of this act. At such hearing, the county superintendent shall have the right to appear and be heard personally or by counsel. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall cause a copy of the charges and a notice of the time and place of the hearing to be mailed to the county superintendent at least fifteen (15) days prior to the date of the hearing.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 1119 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1003.

Section 2730. Vacancies.—[1]When any vacancy shall occur in the office of county superintendent, the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall appoint a properly qualified person to serve the remainder of the unexpired term. In the making of such appointment the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall give careful consideration to any recommendations submitted by the executive committee of the school directors' association of the county in which such county superintendent shall serve.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 1120 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1004.

C. Assistant County Superintendents

Section 2731. Assistant County Superintendent.—[1]Each county superintendent having more than one hundred fifty (150) and not more than three hundred fifty (350) teachers under his supervision shall have an assistant superintendent; each county superintendent having more than three hundred fifty (350) and not more than six hundred (600) teachers under his supervision shall have two assistant superintendents; each county superintendent having more than six hundred (600) and not more than eight hundred (800) teachers under his supervision shall have three assistant superintendents; for each additional four hundred (400) teachers, or fraction thereof under his supervision, each county superintendent shall have an additional assistant superintendent.

Note:

1. This is Section 1126 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1078, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 1041.

Section 2732. Nomination of Assistant County Superintendents.—[1]Each county superintendent, entitled to one (1) or more assistant superintendents shall, within fifteen (15) days after receiving his commission, nominate to the executive committee of the school directors' association of such county the proper number of persons qualified for the office of assistant county superintendent. Before any candidate for the office of assistant county superintendent shall be elected to such office, he shall furnish to the president of the executive committee proper evidence that he possess all of the qualifications herein required.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the first portion of Section 1127 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1042.

Section 2733. Election of Assistant County Superintendent; Term of Office.—[1]Each such executive committee shall, from among the candidates who have been nominated by the county superintendent and who have filed the proper evidence of eligibility as is required herein, elect, by the affirmative vote of a majority of all of then qualified members of such committee, the number of assistant county superintendents required by the provisions of this act. The term of office of each person so elected shall extend to the end of the term of office of the county superintendent. If in any county in which the county superintendent shall be entitled to one or more assistant county superintendents, the proper number of assistant county superintendents shall not have been elected within the thirty (30) days immediately following the date on which the county superintendent shall receive his commission, the Superintendent of Public Instruction may appoint the proper number of qualified persons to the office or offices of assistant county superintendent. Each such appointee shall serve until the end of the term of office of the county superintendent.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the subject-matter of the latter portion of Section 1127 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1042. However, this section merely gives the Superintendent of Public Instruction the authority to make the appointments; he is not required to exercise the power.

Section 2734. Additional Assistant County Superintendents; Increased Salaries.—[1]Each school directors' association, at each convention herein provided for the election of a county superintendent, may set the number of assistant county superintendents which shall be employed in such county, at a number higher than that required by the provisions of this act. Such school directors' association may also set the salary of any one (1) or more assistant county superintendents of that county at an amount which shall be greater than the minimum salary herein required, in the same manner as is provided herein for the increase of the salary of a county superintendent above the minimum schedule herein contained. Each such portion of the salary of an assistant county superintendent which shall be in excess of the minimum requirements, and the entire salary of each assistant county superintendent who shall be in addition to the assistant county superintendents herein required, shall be apportioned and deducted as provided herein for the apportionment and deduction of that portion of the salary of a county superintendent which shall be in addition to the minimum salary herein provided.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
Section 1127 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1042, contains the clause "the president * * * shall certify * * * the names * * * of the assistant county superintendents * * * and their salaries as fixed by the directors' convention * * *." The inference to be drawn from this section is that such salaries are to be determined as are salaries of county superintendents. This interpretation has been expressly stated in the new section. Th minimum salary schedule for assistant county superintendents will be found in Section 2737 of this draft.

Section 2735. Certificate of Election; Objections to the Election.—[1]The president and secretary of each executive committee of a school directors' association shall, within fifteen (15) days immediately following the election of one (1) or more assistant county superintendents, certify to the Department the name, address, and salary of each person so elected. Objections to any such election may be filed in the same manner as herein provided for the filing of objections to the election of a county superintendent. If objections shall be filed by one-fifth (1-5) or more of the boards of school directors entitled to participate in such election, the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall proceed in the same manner and possess the same powers as is provided herein upon the filing of objections to the election of a county superintendent. Each person thus selected as assistant county superintendent shall be commissioned by the Department in the manner herein provided for the commissioning of county superintendents.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
It is based upon a portion of the subject-matter of Section 1127 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1042.

Section 2736. Powers and Duties.—[1]Each assistant county superintendent shall have the following power and his duty shall be:

1. To diligently visit the schools assigned to him by the county superintendent.
2. To supervise and direct, under the supervision of the county superintendent, the work of such schools.
3. To establish, as far as practicable, uniformity in the courses of study of the several grades in such schools.
4. To provide that each such school shall be equal to the grade for which it was established.
5. To direct or conduct, when directed by the county superintendent, the Department, or a State inspector of high schools, examinations for promotions or graduation.
6. To inspect school property and require compliance with the law relating to school buildings, grounds and equipment.
7. To perform such duties, during the school year and vacations, as the county superintendent may require.
8. To meet with each board of school directors whenever he or such board shall deem it necessary.
9. To make, to his county superintendent, monthly report concerning the condition and progress of the schools which he has visited.
10. To make, to his county superintendent, recommendations for the improvement of the schools which he shall have visited.

Note:

1. With the exceptions of the paragraphs numbered eight, nine and ten, the provisions of this section have been drawn from Section 1131, of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1046. The paragraphs numbered eight, nine and ten, have been drawn from the first sentence of Section 1132 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1047.

Section 2737. Minimum Salaries for Assistant County Superintendents.—[1]The minimum annual salary for each assistant county superintendent shall be three thousand dollars ($3,000.00).

Note:

1. The provisions of this section have been drawn from the latter portion of Subsection 8 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1929, P. L. 1587, 24 PS Sec. 1171.

Section 2738. Removal of Assistant County Superintendents.—[1]If a board of school directors under the jurisdiction of a county superintendent shall be of the opinion that an assistant to such county superintendent shall be guilty of neglect of duty, incompetency, intemperance, immorality, improper conduct or violation of any of the provisions of this act, and shall pass a resolution expressing such opinion, it may file with the Superintendent of Public Instruction a copy of such resolution and a statement of the charges against such assistant county superintendent. Upon the receipt of such a resolution, from three (3) or more boards of school directors under the jurisdiction of such county superintendent, or upon receipt of a statement by such county superintendent charging any such breach of duty or misconduct, the Superintendent of Public Instruction may conduct a hearing to examine into the charges. At such hearing, the assistant county superintendent shall have a right to appear and be heard personally or by counsel. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall cause a copy of the charges and a notice of the time and place of the hearing to be mailed to the assistant county superintendent at least fifteen (15) days prior to the hearing. If the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall find the accused guilty of neglect of duty, incompetency, intemperance, immorality, improper conduct or violation of any of the provisions of this act, he may remove such person from the office of assistant county superintendent.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the subject-matter of Section 1129 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1044.

Section 2739. Vacancies in the Office of Assistant County Superintendent.—[1]Any vacancy or vacancies occurring in the office of assistant county superintendent shall be filled for the unexpired term of the county superintendent by the executive committee of the school directors' association in the manner provided herein for the nomination and appointment of such officers at the beginning of the term of such office. If a vacancy shall not thus be filled with thirty (30) days after it has occurred, the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall fill such vacancy or vacancies by the appointment of a properly qualified person or persons. The term of each such appointee shall extend until the end of the term of the county superintendent.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the first sentence of Section 1128 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1043.
The latter portion of Section 1128 of the School Law of 1911, supra, relates to the first term of county superintendents under the Act of 1911.

D. District and Assistant District Superintendents

Section 2740. District and Assistant District Superintendents.—[1]In each school district of the first and second classes, the board of school directors shall and in each school district of the third and fourth classes the board of school directors may, by a majority vote of all of the then qualified members of such board, elect a properly qualified person as district superintendent. Each such board of school directors may, if it deems it expedient, elect one or more properly qualified persons as assistant district superintendents.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It is based upon the subject-matter of Section 1133 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1061.

Section 2741. Jurisdiction of District Superintendents.—[1]Each district superintendent shall have supervision over all of the public schools within the school district by which he shall be employed.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Its subject-matter is similar to a portion of the last sentence of Section 1133 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1061.

Section 2742. Superintendent in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the district superintendent shall be designated and known as the Superintendent of Schools. Each reference in this act to district superintendents in districts of the first class shall apply to such superintendent of schools. The term of such superintendent shall not exceed six (6) years; each such superintendent may upon the termination of a term of office, be re-elected. Each such board shall, at the time of electing such superintendent, determine the amount of his salary, the duration of his term, and prescribe his duties.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the first portion of Section 2223 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1927, P. L. 677, 24 PS Sec. 2011.

Section 2743. Notice of Election.—[1]The secretary of each board of school directors which shall or may elect a district superintendent shall, at least five (5) days before the meeting provided herein for the election of such superintendent, send notices by mail informing the members of such board of school directors of the election.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 1134 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1062, as amended by the Acts of 1919, P. L. 260, Section 1, and 1921, P. L. 1012, Section 1.

Section 2744. Election of District Superintendents.—[1]Each board of school directors of a school district of the second class shall, and each board of school directors of a school district of the third and fourth classes may, at the regular meeting of such board which shall be held nearest to the second Tuesday of April, nineteen hundred thirty-four and every four (4) years thereafter, elect by a majority vote of all of the then qualified members of the board a district superintendent. If no such person shall be elected at such meeting or a properly called meeting held before the first Monday of the following July, the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall appoint for each such school district of the second class a properly qualified person as district superintendent. The term of office of such superintendent thus elected shall begin on such first Monday of July or as soon thereafter as he shall be appointed, and shall be of four (4) years' duration. Each such board, at the time of electing a district superintendent, shall determine the amount of the salary to be paid such superintendent; such salary shall be paid out of the funds of the school district. Any board of school directors of a school district of the third or fourth class which does not employ a district superintendent may, before the regular time fixed for the election of a district superintendent may, before the regular time fixed for the election of a district superintendent, elect in the manner herein provided, a district superintendent and determine his salary.[2] The term of office of such district superintendent shall extend until the date herein provided for the closing of the terms of all district superintendents. No term of office of a district superintendent shall be shortened due to the fact that the school district which he serves has entered a class of school districts in which a district superintendent is not required.

Note:

1. Section 1134 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1062, provides that each board of school directors, which shall or may elect a district superintendent, shall so elect at a convention of the board of school directors to be held on the second Tuesday of April; the person so elected cannot assume his duties until the first Monday of July.
This new section provides that the election shall take place at any regular meeting. There appears to be no reason why it should be necessary to call a special "convention" of the school directors of any district in order simply to elect a district superintendent.
The placing of the power in the Superintendent of Public Instruction to appoint a district superintendent in school districts of the second class has been done to guarantee that such districts shall have a superintendent. The School Law of 1911 in Section 1113, 24 PS Sec. 983, provides that if the Superintendent of Public Instruction should decide that an election of a county superintendent was invalid, he could appoint a person to such office to serve for the remainder of the term.
2. This sentence has been drawn from Section 1140 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1069.

Section 2745. Commissions.—[1]The Department shall commission district superintendents, associate superintendents and assistant district superintendents in the same manner and under the same conditions as are herein provided for the commissioning of county superintendents.

Note:

1. This section is based upon the first portion of Section 1141 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1931, P. L. 243, Section 24, 24 PS Sec. 1070.
The latter portion of Section 1141 of the School Law of 1911 has been omitted from this draft. It provides that objections to the election of a district, assistant district or associate superintendent may be sent to the Superintendent of Public Instruction who is vested with the power to hold a hearing, subpoena witnesses, and pass upon the validity of the election. If he finds that the election was invalid, he has the power to make an appointment for the unexpired term. The election of a district, assistant district or associate superintendent is a matter of local concern; the salaries of these superintendents are paid by the local school district; the salaries of the county and assistant county superintendents are paid by the State, and it is therefore proper to have the power of examining into the validity of their election resting in the Superintendent of Public Instruction. As to the election of district, assistant district and associate superintendents, however, no reason appears for the intrevention of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Section 2746. Assistant District Superintendent.—[1]Each board of school directors may, upon the nomination of the district superintendent, elect, by a majority vote of all the then qualified members of such board, one (1) or more assistant superintendents. No such election shall, however, be held unless the secretary of such board shall have mailed a written notice of the election to each member of such board at least five (5) days prior thereto. At the time of making any such election, the board shall fix the salary of the one (1) or more persons elected; each such assistant district superintendent shall serve until the end of the term of the district superintendent.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Sections 1136 and 1137 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1065 and 1066.

Section 2747. Duties and Reports of Superintendents in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the superintendent of schools and if there shall be any, the superintendent of buildings and the superintendent of supplies shall be responsible to the board for the condition of their respective departments and shall make annual reports thereof to the board; such superintendents shall, from time to time, submit such plans and suggestions for the improvement of the schools and school system as they shall deem expedient or as the board of school directors may require.

Note:

1. This has been drawn from Section 2223 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1927, P. L. 677, 24 PS Sec. 2011.

Section 2748. Powers and Duties of District Superintendents.—[1]Each district superintendent shall have the same powers and duties with respect to the public schools within the school district, as is provided herein for a county superintendent in relation to the schools under his supervision; in addition, each such district superintendent shall possess such powers and perform such duties in relation to such schools as the board of school directors of the school district shall provide. Each such district superintendent shall have the right to attend all meetings of the board of school directors, and to speak on all matters before such board; he shall not, however, have the right to vote at any such meeting.

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of Section 1142 of the School Law of 1911, Section 24, 24 PS Sec. 1071.

Section 2749. Reports Concerning Incompetent Teachers.—[1]If any board of school directors shall fail to provide properly certificated teachers to teach the several branches herein required, it shall be the duty of the superintendent of such district to notify the board of school directors, in writing, of its neglect, and if provision shall not forthwith be made for the employment of properly certificated teachers, to report such fact to the Department. If such board shall subsequently employ proper teachers, as herein required, such superintendent shall notify the Department of such fact.

Note:

1. The subject-matter of this section has been drawn from Section 1150 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1097. That Section used the word "competent" in lieu of the phrase "properly certificated" as found in this new section. Any question as to the competency of teachers is too indeffinate to permit the forefiture of the whole or any part of the appropriation of a district due to its failure to provide such teachers. The qualifications for proper certification are, however, definite and possible of exact ascertainment.

The duties of the Department upon receipt of any information forwarded under the provisions of this section are set forth in the Article on State Subsidies.

Section 2750. Fire Drills.—[1]It shall be the duty of each superintendent to see that the provisions of this act relating to fire drills are faithfully executed in the schools over which he shall have supervision.

Any person who shall violate or fail to comply with the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof be sentenced to pay a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars ($25.00), nor more than five hundred dollars ($500.00), and to undergo imprisonment in the county jail for not less than ten (10) days nor more than sixty (60) days, or both.

Note:

1. The provisions of this section have been drawn from Sections 2 and 3 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1514-1515.

Section 2751. Powers and Duties of Assistant District Superintendent.—[1]Each assistant district superintendent shall possess such power and perform such duties as the board of school directors and the district superintendent may assign to him.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 1143 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1072.

Section 2752. Duties of Assistant District Superintendent in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the district superintendent shall assign the assistant district superintendents to administrative districts. Such assistant district superintendents shall, in conjunction with the school principals, inquire into and supervise all matters relating to the government, courses of study, methods of teaching, discipline, and condition of all schools in their respective districts, and shall report the same when required by the district superintendent.

Note:

1. The subject-matter of this section has been drawn from Section 2224 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2012.

Section 2753. Superintendents upon Effective Date of Act, and upon the Consolidation of Districts.—[1]If two (2) or more school districts, two (2) or more of which have district superintendents, shall be formed, on the effective date of this act into one (1) school district, or shall thereafter be consolidated or annexed for school or municipal purposes, the district supeintendent of that one (1) of such school districts which shall have the greater or greatest population shall, upon the effective date of the change, become the district superintendent of the new school district. The remaining district superintendents, if any, and the assistant district superintendents, of all of such school districts shall become assistant district superintendents of the new school district

If two (2) or more school districts, only one (1) of which shall have a district superintendent, shall be formed, on the effective date of this act into one (1) school district, or shall thereafter be consolidated, or annexed for school or municipal purposes, such district superintendent shall become the district superintendent of the new school district; the assistant district superintendents, if any, shall become assistant district superintendents of the new school district.

If two (2) or more school districts, none of which shall have a district superintendent, shall be formed on the effective date of this act into one (1) school district of the second class, or shall thereafter be consolidated into a school district of such class, the board of school directors of such new school district shall, within one (1) month after the effective date of the change, elect a qualified person as district superintendent and determine his salary. Each such new school district may elect one (1) or more properly qualified persons as assistant district superintendents and determine their salaries in the manner and subject to the restrictions herein provided for the election and determination of the salaries of district and assistant district superintendents in school districts of the second class. If such a board of school directors shall not so elect a district superintendent within one (1) month following such effective date, the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall appoint a properly qualified person as district superintendent.

If two (2) or more school districts, none of which shall have a district superintendent, shall be formed on the effective date of this act into a school district of the third or fourth class, or thereafter be consolidated or annexed for school or municipal purposes, into a school district of one of such classes, the board of school directors of such new school district may elect and determine the salaries of a district superintendent and one (1) or more assistant district superintendents in the manner and subject to the restrictions provided herein for the election and determination of the salaries of district and assitant district superintendents in school districts of the third and fourth classes.

The term of office of each district or assistant district superintendent elected or appointed according to the provisions of this section shall extend until the date provided herein for the ending of the term of office of all district and assistant district superintendents of the second, third, and fourth classes.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
The only provision of the School Law of 1911 dealing with any of the provisions of this section is Section 1144 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1931, P. L. 243, Section 25, 24 PS Sec. 1073. This section provides:
"When any school district, having a district superintendent, is, after this act goes into effect, annexed to and becomes a part of another school district, the district superintendent therein shall become an assistant district superintendent in the district to which such school district is annexed, for the remainder of his term; except when two school districts are consolidated as a result of the consolidation of two boroughs, then the district superintendent of the district having the largest public school enrollment shall become the district superintendent of the consolidated district. The superintendent representing the smaller school enrollment shall become assistant suprintendent in the consolidated district."
The provisions of Section 1144 do not cover all of the possible situations that may arise; the new section has therefore been written.

Section 2754. Removal of District, Associate, and Assistant District Superintendents.—[1]Each board of school directors of a school district which shall employ a district superintendent or one or more associate, or assistant district superintendents, may, by a majority vote of all of the then qualified members of such board, remove any such district, associate, or assistant district superintendent, on account of neglect of duty, incompetency, intemperance, immorality, or violation of any of the provisions of this act. Before making any such removal, however, such board of school directors shall conduct a hearing at which such district, associate, or assistant district superintendent shall have the right to appear and be heard personally or by counsel; each such board of school directors shall cause its secretary to send by mail, at least fifteen (15) days prior to the hearing, to such superintendent, associate, or assistant superintendent and to each member of the board of school directors, a notice of the time and place of such hearing.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 1138 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1067.
The provision permitting removal for the violation of the provisions of this act is new. Such a provision has, however, been in the law as a ground for the removal of a county or assistant county superintendent. Section 1119 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1003.

Section 2755. Vacancy in the Office of District or Assistant District Superintendent.—[1]Each vacancy in the position of district or assistant district superintendent shall be filled, for the remainder of the term, in the same manner as is provided herein for the nomination, and the election or appointment of such district or assistant district superintendent at the beginning of his term of office.

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of Section 1139 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1068.

E. Other Superintendents and Supervising Principals

Section 2756. Associate Superintendents.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the board of school directors may appoint, from among persons nominated by the superintendent of schools, one (1) or more persons as associate superintendents. Such superintendents shall receive such compensation as shall be determined by the board, and shall perform such duties, under the supervision and control of the superintendent of schools, as he may assign to them.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 2224 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1968.

Section 2757. Superintendent of Supplies in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the board of school directors may, annually on the first Monday of January, appoint a person as superintendent of supplies. At the time of making the appointment, the board shall prescribe the duties of such superintendent and fix his salary. The term of office of such appointee shall be one (1) year. Each such appointee shall give such security for the faithful performance of his duty as the board shall prescribe.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of Sections 2223 and 2233 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2011-2016.

Section 2758. Duties of the Superintendent of Supplies in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the superintendent of supplies, if any, shall be the executive agent of the board of school directors for the purchase, custody, and distribution of all supplies required by the schools, under such regulations as the board may prescribe. He may appoint such assistants as the board may authorize and approve. Such assistants shall receive such compensation as the board may determine, and shall perform their duties to the satisfaction of the superintendent of supplies.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of a portion of Section 2233 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2016.

Section 2759. Appointment of Superintendent of Buildings in Districts of the First Class.—[1]In each school district of the first class, the board of school directors may annually, on the first Monday of July, appoint a person who shall be an engineer or architect of good standing in his profession as superintendent of buildings. At the time of making such appointment, the board shall prescribe the duties of such superintendent and fix his salary. The term of office of each such appointee shall be one (1) year. Each such appointee shall give such security for the faithful performance of the duties of his office as the board may prescribe.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Sections 2223 and 2230 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2011, 2013.

Section 2760. Duties of the Superintendent of Buildings in Districts of the First Class; Assistants.—[1]In each school district of the first class the superintendent of buildings shall be responsible for the condition and care of all school buildings and premises. All plans for new school construction, additions or repairs shall be approved by the superintendent of buildings and shall be submitted to the superintendent of schools for criticism, before submission to the board of public education for adoption. Such superintendent may appoint such assistants as the board of school directors may authorize and approve; such assistants shall receive such compensation as such board shall determine, and shall perform their duties to the satisfaction of the superintendent of buildings. Such superintendent shall also have jurisdiction over the janitors employed by such district and shall have the right to recommend to the board of school directors the appointment of persons as janitors and the removal of janitors, for cause.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Sections 2231 and 2232 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 2014-2015.
The portion of Section 2232, supra, relating to ward districts is obsolete and has therefore not been included in this section.

Section 2761. Supervising Principals.—[1]In each school district of the third and fourth classes which shall not have a district superintendent the board of school directors may employ, for a term not exceeding three (3) years, a supervising principal who shall have supervision over all or a part of the public schools of such district. Only those persons who shall be properly certificated as supervising principals by the Department in accordance with such standards as the State Council of Education may establish, shall be eligible for any such employment.

Note:

1. The subject-matter of this section has been drawn from Section 1214 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1931, P. L. 243, Section 30, 24 PS Sec. 1201.

Section 2762. Supervising Principals Employed by Several Districts.—[1]Any two (2) or more school districts may join in the employment of a supervising principal for part or all of the schools of such districts; such districts shall determine the amount of compensation to be paid to each such supervising principal and the duties to be performed by him.

Note:

1. The subject-matter of this section has been drawn from Section 1215 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1202.

ARTICLE XXVIII

MEETINGS OF TEACHERS

Section 2800. Meeting of Teachers under Supervision of County Superintendent.—[1]Each county superintendent is hereby authorized to call the teachers of the public schools under his jurisdiction to assemble at such times and places as he may deem most convenient, for the purpose of receiving instruction in the science and art of teaching; each such superintendent may also invite members of the teaching and supervisory staffs of the other districts and of institutions of learning within the county to attend such meeting or meetings.

In no county, shall such convocations in one school year, exceed in the aggregate two (2) days.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Section 2101 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1841, requires each county superintendent to call a teachers' institute, to continue in session at least five days, including one-half a day for going and one-half a day for returning from such institute.

The need for economy requires the shortening of this period, and the making of the calling of such assembly optional with the county superintendent.

Improvements in the means of transportation have removed the necessity for allowing a day for travel.

Section 2801. Management; Expenses.—[1]Each county superintendent, who shall call a meeting of the teachers under his jurisdiction, shall exercise general management over such assembly, shall secure the necessary speakers, and shall incur the necessary expenses; such expenses for all such meetings in any one school year shall not exceed the amount of one hundred dollars ($100.00).[2]

Note:

1. The subject-matter of this section has been drawn from the last portion of Section 2101 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1841.

2. Section 2103 of the School Law of 1911 provides that the expenditures shall not exceed two hundred dollars ($200.00) nor be less than one hundred dollars ($100.00). Inasmuch as the period for the meetings has been reduced, the limit of expenditures has likewise been cut.

Section 2802. Report of Attendance; Statement of Expenses.—[1]Each such county superintendent shall keep a record of all the teachers, under his jurisdiction, who shall attend each such meeting, and the number of whole or part days during which such teacher was in attendance. At the close of each such meeting the superintendent shall send, to the board of school directors of each school district under his jurisdiction, a statement of the number of teachers of such school district who were in attendance at each such meeting, and the period during which each such teacher was in attendance.

Each such superintendent shall also, at the close of each such meeting, present to the treasurer of the county in which the school districts under the jurisdiction of the county superintendent or the greater part thereof shall be located, a sworn statement of the expenses incurred in the conduct of such meeting.

Note:

1. The subject-matter of this section has been drawn from Section 2102 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1842.

The last sentence is new. The School Law of 1911 provides that the county treasurer shall pay the expenses of the institute as they appear on the sworn statement of the county superintendent. It does not expressly place the duty upon the county superintendent of preparing such a statement.

Section 2803. Compensation of Teachers.—[1]In each school district under the jurisdiction of a county superintendent the board of school directors shall pay, from the funds of the school district, to each teacher employed in such school district who has been in attendance at a meeting of the teachers called by the county superintendent as herein provided, one dollar for each half of a day during which such teacher was in attendance at such meeting. Such payment shall be in addition to the compensation provided in the teacher's contract with the school district.

Such payments shall be based upon the official attendance record made by the county superintendent to the board of school directors.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Section 2108 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1919, P. L. 57, and 1925, P. L. 433, 24 PS Sec. 1892, provides for the payment of four dollars ($4.00) per day for each day's attendance at a teachers' institute. The second paragraph of this section has been drawn from the first sentence of Section 2109 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1893.

Section 2804. Time Spent at Teachers' Meeting.—The time spent by teachers at a teachers' meeting called by a county superintendent as herein provided, shall not be considered as days taught, nor lessen the number of days in the minimum school term as herein required.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It is based upon the last sentence of Section 2109 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1893.

Section 2805. Furnishing of Itemized Accounts and Vouchers to the Auditors.—[1]Within thirty (30) days after the closing of a meeting of teachers under the jurisdiction of a county superintendent which has been held as herein provided, the county superintendent shall prepare an itemized account of all of the receipts and disbursements received or made on account of such meeting, and submit the same, properly sworn to, together with the proper voucher therefor, to the auditors herein required to audit such accounts.

Note:

1. This is Section 2113 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1912.

Section 2806. Payment of Expenses.—[1]Upon the receipt, from a county superintendent, of duplicate vouchers and a statement of expenses incurred in the conduct of a teachers' meeting as herein provided, which has been sworn to by the county superintendent and approved by the auditors of such meeting, the county treasurer of the county in which the school districts under the jurisdiction of such county superintendent or the greater part thereof shall be located, shall pay, out the county treasury, to such county superintendent the amount of such expenses which shall not exceed one hundred dollars ($100.00).

Note:

1. This is a new section. Section 2103 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1891, provides that the county treasurer should pay one dollar ($1.00) for every three days spent by the teacher of the county in attendance at the institute. It also provides that the amount of expenses should not be more than two hundred dollars ($200.00) nor less than one hundred dollars ($100.00), "if it shall appear from the duplicate vouchers presented by the county superintendent that this sum has been actually expended for the purpose herein specified."

The meaning of that section is not clear for it establishes three means of measuring the expenses, namely, the two hundred-one hundred dollar limit, the one dollar ($1.00) for every three days spent by the teachers, and the expenses actually incurred. The requirement as to the auditor's approval of the statement of expenses is new. It places a check upon the county superintendent.

Section 2114 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1813, provides that any funds remaining in the hands of a superintendent after a teachers' institute should be retained and used in the next annual institute. That section has been deleted. The superintendent will receive only the funds necessary to cover the actual expenditures.

Section 2807. Election of Auditors; Audits.—[1]The teachers under the jurisdiction of a county superintendent shall at the first meeting in each school year, which may be called by the county superintendent as provided herein, elect two of their number as auditors. The person so elected, together with the auditor elected by the school directors' association of such county, shall audit the accounts of each such meeting which shall be held during the school year.

Note:

1. This is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 2104 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1843.

Section 2808. Absentees; Forfeitures.—[1]Each teacher who shall not attend a meeting of teachers called by a county superintendent as herein provided, shall forfeit to the school district employing him a sum equal to that which he would have received for attendance at such meeting. The board fo school directors of the district of which he shall be employed shall deduct this sum from his salary for the month next following the date of such meeting, unless satisfactory reason for such absence be given to the superintendent holding such institute.

Note:

1. This is Section 2110 of t[illegible] 24 PS Sec. 1894.

Section 2809. Reports to the Department.—[1]Each county superintendent, immediately after the adjournment of a meeting of teachers under his jurisdiction which has been held as herein provided, shall report to the Department on blanks furnished by it, the number of teachers in attendance, the names of instructors, the subjects upon which instruction was given, the degree of popular interest awakened by the proceeding and such further information as may be required.

Ncte:

1. This is Section 2102 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1911.

Section 2810. Teacher Training in School Districts of the First, Second and Third Classes.—[1]In each school district of the first and second classes, and in each school district of the third class, which has employed a district superintendent, the board of school directors may provide any form of teacher training or teacher improvement for the teachers of such district which it may deem proper.

All expenses incurred in such training and improvement shall be paid by such board of school directors as are other expenses of such school district.

Note:

1.This is a new section. Section 2105 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1923, P. L. 157, and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 42, 24 PS Sec. 1861, provides that the board of school directors of each of these school districts may authorize the holding of district teachers' institutes. The expenses of such institutes were to be paid by the county as are expenses of county teachers' institutes. Practice has revealed that teachers' institutes in school districts of the first, second and third classes are no longer necessary. The teachers are not isolated or widely separated, and can easily assemble upon the call of the superintendent or board of school directors. They should receive no compensation for attendance at these meetings. The expenses necessary for the conduct of any training can and should be borne by the school district.

ARTICLE XXIX

SCHOOL DIRECTORS' ASSOCIATIONS

Section 2900. Convention of School Directors.—[1]In each county in which a county superintendent shall be elected, there shall be a school directors' association. Each such association shall be composed of all of the school directors of all districts under the supervision of the county superintendent of that county, and shall annually hold a convention on the second Tuesday of April. It shall be the duty of each member of each such association to attend all such convention. It shall also be the duty of all school directors, superintendents, and assistant superintendents of every other school district which shall have the whole or the greater part of its area located in such county, to attend such annual convention, but they shall not be members of the association. The purpose of such annual meeting of the association shall be the consideration and discussion, by the school directors and others, by questions and subjects pertaining to the welfare and promotion of the public schools of that county, as well as such other business that may properly come before the convention.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 801 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 851.

Section 2901. Notice to Directors; Place of Meeting.—[1]In each county having a school directors' association, the county superintendent shall give to all school directors of each school district which has the whole or the greater part of its area located in such county at least two weeks' notice, by mail of the time, place, and hour of the meeting of the association. The county commissioners in every county where such convention is held shall furnish to the school directors of that county, free of charge, the courthouse or other suitable place, in proper condition, for the holding of such annual convention.

Note:

1. This section has been based upon Section 802 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 852.

Section 2902. Compensation.—[1]Each school director whose duty it shall be to attend and who does attend such an annual convention shall receive, for his necessary expenses, the sum of four dollars ($4.00) per day for each day's attendance, and mileage at the rate of four cents per mile for the distance necessary to be traveled in going to and from such convention. The amount shall be paid to each director by an order drawn on the treasurer of his school district. No school director shall, however, be paid for more than two days at any annual convention.

Note:

1. This section is based upon Section 803 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 71, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 853.

Section 2903. Convention Expenses.—[1]The county treasurer shall pay to the treasurer of such school directors' association, from the county funds, the necessary expenses incurred for the holding of each such annual convention, including the cost of sending out the notices herein required. The total sum thus to be paid by the treasurer of any county shall not exceed two hundred dollars ($200.00) for each annual convention. However, no payment shall be made to the treasurer of such school directors' association until he shall first have presented to the county treasurer an itemized verified statement of all the expenses connected with such convention, showing when and where the same was held, the number of directors present, and the speakers engaged. The treasurer of such school directors' association, within thirty (30) days after receiving such payment, shall file with the county treasurer proper vouchers for all such expenses.

Note:

1. This section is a restatement of the subject-matter of Section 803 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 853.

Section 2904. Election of Officers; Duties; Executive Committee.—[1]At its annual convention, each school directors' association shall elect from among its members, a president, two (2) vice-presidents, a secretary, and a treasurer; their terms of office shall continue until the end of the next annual convention, or until their successors shall be chosen. Each of such officers shall perform the duties usually devolving upon the holders of such offices.

Such officers, together with the county and assistant county superintendents shall constitute the executive committee. The county, and the one (1) or more assistant county superintendents shall, however, not have any vote in the selection of any superintendents or assistant superintendents.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 804 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 854. That section provides that every director in attendance at a school directors' association should have a vote, regardless of whether or not he came from a district under the supervision of the county superintendent. This section of the draft provides that only members of the association may vote. Only their districts will be affected by the officers of the association and therefore the vote should be restricted to the members.

Section 2905. Duties of the Executive Committee.—[1]The executive committee of each school directors' association shall annually prepare and publish, in advance, a suitable program and order of business for the next annual convention; it shall secure suitable speakers or lecturers and other means of instructing the directors who shall attend the convention; it shall also perform such further duties as may promote the success of the convention.

Note:

1. The provisions of this section have been drawn from Section 805 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 854.

Section 2906. Election of Auditor.—[1] At its annual convention, each school directors' association shall elect a proper person as auditor, who, with the two (2) auditors elected at the county teachers' meetings shall audit the accounts of such meetings, as herein provided.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 806 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 856.

ARTICLE XXX

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGES

Section 3000. Definition.—[1]The phrase "State Teachers College" as used in this article shall, unless the context clearly indicates otherwise, be construed to include the Cheyney Training School for Teachers.

Note:

1. This is a new section. The name of the Cheyney Training School for Teachers has never changed to correspond with the other State teachers colleges; it has therefore been necessary, in order to include it in this article, to set forth this definition.

Section 3001. Dissolution of Boards of Trustees.—[1]The boards of trustees of each State teachers college shall be dissolved and discontinued upon the effective date of this act.

All presidents, principals, superintendents, officers, teachers, and employes, engaged in the services of the various State teachers colleges on such effective date shall continue to perform the duties which they performed immediatly preceding such date until the respective colleges shall be discontined, or their respective employments shall otherwise terminate.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
It provides that the various teachers colleges shall continue to operate until discontinued by the State Council of Education. The board of trustees of all such colleges will, however, be dissolved upon the effective date of this proposed act.
See note to Section 3002 of this draft.

Section 3002. Maintenance and Operation.—[1]The State Council of Education shall have the power to maintain and operate such number of State teachers colleges, not exceeding ten (10), as it shall deem expedient. Such colleges shall be a part of the public school system of the Commonwealth; their purpose shall be the education and preparation of students of this Commonwealth for the profession of teaching.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
Under the School Law of 1911, Section 2001 to 2012 inclusive, 24 PS Sec. 1811-1822, and under Sections 202, 401, and 1311 (b) and (c) of The Administrative Code of 1929, as amended, 71 PS Sec. 62, 111, 361, the State teachers colleges are governed and managed by separate boards of trustees. There are fourteen of these colleges, including the Cheyney Training School for Teachers. The Commonwealth has been divided into thirteen districts, in each of which is located one of such colleges.
Under this draft these boards of trustees will be discontinued and their powers vested in the State Council of Education. The Council is also, under this draft, required to reduce the number of such colleges to a number not exceeding ten.

Section 3003. Powers of the State Council of Education.—[1]The State Council of Education, in the operation and maintenance of State teachers colleges, shall have the power and its duty shall be:

(a) To exercise general supervision and management over such colleges.[1]

(b) To appoint, subject to the approval of the Governor, a president, principal, or superintendent of each such institution, and, if it shall deem it advisable, appoint in like manner a business manager for any such college.

(c) To appoint from time to time, on the nomination of the president, principal, or superintendent, such officers and employes for each of such colleges as the State Council of Education shall deem necessary.

(d) To fix the salaries of the persons who shall be employed by it in the operation and maintenance of such colleges, in conformity with any requirements established by law.

(e) To make such by-laws, rules, and regulations for the management of such colleges as it may deem advisable.

(f) To determine what academic degrees shall be conferred by such colleges.[2]

(g) To provide, in each such college, practice teaching facilities which shall be so organized and administered that the students of such college shall acquire, under the instruction and supervision of their proper teachers, a practical knowledge of the art of teaching.[3]

(h) To prescribe and conduct such examinations of the students in such colleges as it shall deem necessary in order to determine and fix the standards of instruction in and of graduation from any of the curricula of any of such colleges.[4]

(i) To compute and fix the cost of boarding and tuition of the pupils of such colleges.[5]

(j) To establish the amount, if any, of the fees which shall be paid by each student in any such college, and bar from such college any student who shall fail to pay such fees.[6]

(k) to remove, at any time, with the approval of the Governor, any president, principal, superintendent, or manager, of any of such colleges.[7]

Note:

1. Subsections (a), (b), (c), (d), and (e), have been drawn from Section 1311 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 1929, P. L. 177, 71 PS Sec. 361, which places these powers in the respective boards of trustees.
2. Subsection (f) has been drawn from Sections 2006 and 2007 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1816, 1817, relating to certification.
3. Subsection (g) has been drawn from the first sentence of Section 2004 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1814.
4. Subsection (h) has been drawn from the first part of Section 2006 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1816. The portions of Section 2006 and of Section 2007, 24 PS Sec. 1817, which relate to certification have been omitted. Their subject-matter will be found covered in the article of this draft relating to certification.
5. Subsection (i) has been drawn from Section 2008 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1818.
6. Subsection (j) is a new provision. Section 2009 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1819, provides: "The tuition of all students at the State Teachers Colleges, who are residents of Pennsylvania, and who are not less than seventeen years of age, and who sign an agreement to teach in the public schools of this Commonwealth for not less than two years, and who are pursuing therein regular courses for the preparation of teachers, shall be paid by the Commonwealth, and sufficient appropriations shall be made for this purpose. * * *" This provision has been changed because it is felt that there is no duty or obligation upon this Commonwealth to provide a college education to any person other than those who definitely plan to teach, and that all students should pay reasonable fees.
7. Subsection (k) provides for the removal of the president, principal, superintendent, or manager of any of such colleges in the same manner as that in which he is appointed.

Section 3004. Practice Teaching Facilities.—[1]The State Council of Education and the board of school directors of any school district in or near which there shall be a State teachers college, may enter into an agreement upon terms mutually satisfactory, providing that all or a portion of the classes of such school district may be available for practice teaching facilities for the students of such college. Such action of the board of school directors and of the State Council of Education shall be entered upon the minutes of each of such bodies. The State Council of Education may provide for the transportation of students of the college to and from the place or places where such teaching facilities are available.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the third and fourth sentences of Section 2004 of the School Law of 1911, which was a new section enacted by the Act of 1929, P. L. 712, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 1814.

Section 3005. Training Schools.—[1]The State Council of Education and the board of school directors of any school district, in or near which a State teachers college shall be located, may enter into an agreement by which all or part of the pupils of such school district may be instructed in the training school in such college upon terms which shall be mutually agreeable. Such action of the board of school directors and of the State Council of Education shall be entered upon the minutes of each of such bodies.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the second sentence and next to the last sentence of Section 2004 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1814.

Section 3006. Admission Requirements.—[1]No student shall be admitted to any State teachers college who shall not fulfill the following requirements:

(a) He shall be a resident of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

(b) He shall sign an agreement to teach in the public schools of this Commonwealth for not less than two (2) years.

(c) He shall intend to pursue, in such college, the regular courses for the preparation of teachers.

(d) He shall meet such further qualifications as shall be prescribed by the State Council of Education.

Note:

1. This is a new section.
Section 2009 of the School Law of 1911, provides "The trustees of any State Teachers College, when it does not interfere with its purpose to educate and prepare teachers, may, with the approval of the Superintendent of Public Instruction admit other students than those preparing to teach; Provided, That all such students, except those in the practice school, shall pay regular tuition: And provided, That when there is insufficient room for all who apply, preference shall be given to residents of Pennsylvania and those preparing to teach."
This section restricts the persons who may enroll to those who under the Act of 1911, were entitled to free tuition.

Section 3007. Payment of Fees.—[1]Each student who shall attend a State teachers college shall pay such fees as the State Council of Education shall establish.

Note:

1. No obligation rests upon the Commonwealth to provide free educational facilities for those who expect to teach.
By means of this section, the State Council of Education may make the State teachers colleges self-supporting in whole or in part.

Section 3008. Expenses of Colleges.—[1]All funds which, in addition to the fees collected from students as herein provided, shall be necessary for the efficient conduct and management of such colleges shall be appropriated by the Commonwealth for such purposes.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It will be necessary for the Commonwealth to furnish any funds which shall be necessary for the conduct of the State teachers colleges, except those sums which shall be received from the students as tuition fees.

Section 3009. Board of Presidents.—[1]The presidents of the State teachers colleges and the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall constitute a board which shall be known as the Board of Presidents of the State Teachers Colleges.

It shall be the duty of such board to formulate recommendations concerning the educational policies of such colleges, and to present such recommendations to the State Council of Education.

Note:

1. This section is a substitute for Section 2005 of the School Law of 1911, which was added by the Act of 1929, P. L. 712, Section 1, and amended by the Act of 1931, P. L. 243, Section 40, 24 PS Sec. 1815. That section provides that any matter which shall have received the affirmative vote of a majority of all of the members of such board shall, upon the approval of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, be binding upon all of such colleges.

Section 3010. Officers of the Board of Presidents; Quorum; Place of Meeting.—The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be the chairman of the Board of Presidents of the State Teachers Colleges; the board shall elect a secretary who shall serve without compensation. Such board shall meet annually, and may meet more frequently and at other places by resolution of the board or upon the call of the Superintendent of Public Instruction. A majority of all the members shall constitute a quorum.

Note:

This is a restatement of a portion of Section 2005 of the School Law of 1911, which was added by the Act of 1929, P. L. 712, 24 PS Sec. 1815.

ARTICLE XXXI

CERTIFICATION

Section 3100. Necessity for Certification.—[1]In order for any person to be permitted to teach any subject or subjects in the public schools, it shall be necessary for him to hold a provisional college certificate, a permanent college certificate, or other certificate which shall have been issued or approved by the Department as herein provided. The holder of any such certificate shall be entitled to teach only the subjects which shall be designated thereon in the manner provided herein.

Note:

1. This section is a substitute for Paragraph 12 of Section 1210 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1175, and Section 1301 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1221.

Section 3101. Provisional College Certificates.—[1]The Department shall grant a provisional college certificate to each person who shall present to it satisfactory evidence of good moral character and of being a graduate of a college or university approved by the State Council of Education, and who shall have completed the minimum requirements hereinafter stated. The Department shall also issue such certificate to each person who shall present to it evidence of good moral character and of being a graduate in music, with the degree of Bachelor of Music of a college or university approved by the State Council of Education, and who shall have during such musical course completed the prescribed number of hours of professional studies.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 1316 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1041, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 1341.

Section 3102. Minimum Requirements for College Provisional Certificate.—[1]The minimum requirements for the issuance of a provisional college certificate shall be the successful completion of at least twelve (12) semester hours of work in professional courses and six (6) semester hours in practice teaching.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Section 1316 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1041, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 1341, provides that the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall issue to each person who has graduated from a college and who has "completed such work in education as may be approved by the State Council of Education" a provisional college certificate. Under the provisions of that section, the State Council of Education has promulgated certain rules and standards relating to the minimum educational requirements. Those standards are approximately the equivalent of those stated in this section of the draft.

Section 3103. Subjects Which May Be Taught.—[1]Each such provisional college certificate shall designate the subjects which the holder thereof may teach in the public schools. Successful completion of eighteen (18) semester hours of work of college grade in any subject shall entitle the holder to have that subject included in his certificate.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Under the standards as set forth by the State Council of Education it is now necessary for a person to have completed not less than eighteen semester hours in the subject in which he expects to teach.

Section 3104. Rights of Holders.—[1]Each provisional college certificate shall entitle the holder thereof to teach the subjects therein designated in the high schools and junior high schools of the Commonwealth for a period of three (3) years. It shall also entitle the holder to teach in the elementary schools for the same period where the holder theretofore held a certificate authorizing him to teach in the elementary schools, or where the credits which he shall present for the minimum requirements of the college provisional certificate shall include such courses as may be prescribed by the State Council of Education for the preparation of elementary teachers.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It, in general, enacts the provisions of Section 1316 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 1041, Section 1, 24 PS Sec. 1341.

Section 3105. Renewal of Provisional College Certificates.—[1]The Department shall renew a provisional college certificate for one (1) additional term of three (3) years when the holder thereof shall have attained, during the period of his teaching under such certificate a rating of "low" or better, and shall present satisfactory evidence of having completed six (6) additional semester hours of work of college grade, one-third (1-3) of which shall be in professional subjects and the remainder in subjects related to the field in which the person shall be certificated to teach, or in which he shall desire to be certificated.

Note:

1. This is a new section. The School Law of 1911 contains no express provision as to the requirements for renewal of provisional college certificates. Under the requirements of the State Council of Education, an applicant for renewal must have completed six semester hours of work of college grade, one-half of which must be in professional subjects. This requirement has here been reduced to one-third.

Section 3106. Permanent College Certificate.—[1]The Department shall issue a permanent college certificate to each person who shall have completed three (3) years of successful teaching in the appropriate field in the public schools of this Commonwealth, with a rating of "middle" or better, under a provisional college certificate, and who, subsequently to the obtaining of his baccalaureate degree shall have completed at least six (6) semester hours of work of college grade, one-third (1-3) of which shall have been in professional subjects and the remainder in subjects relating to the field in which the candidate shall be certificated to teach, or in which he shall desire to be certificated.

Note:

1. This is a new section. Section 1317 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1041, Section 2, and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 31, 24 PS Sec. 13, provides that the Superintendent of Public Instruction should issue a permanent college certificate to each person who had successfully completed three years, teaching under a provisional college certificate, was of good moral character, and had completed "such work in education as may be approved by the State Council of Education." Under the power thus granted the State Council of Education now requires six semester hours of graduate work, at least one-half of which shall be in professional subjects. Under this new section the number of semester hours remains the same but the percentage of work required to be done in professional subjects has been reduced from fifty per centum to thirty-three and one-third per centum. This change will make it possible for the student to acquire more content in the subjects which he shall subsequently teach.

Section 3107. Rights of Holders of Permanent College Certificates.—[1]A permanent college certificate shall entitle the holder thereof to teach for life the subjects and in the fields which shall be designated on his certificate. Additional subjects may be added to any provisional or permanent college certificate upon production to the Department of evidence that the applicant has successfully completed at least eighteen (18) semester hours of work of college grade in the subject which he shall desire to have added to his certificate.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It has been drawn from Section 1317 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Acts of 1921, P. L. 1041, Section 2, and 1931, P. L. 243, Section 31, 24 PS Sec. 1351.

The requirements of the State Council of Education as to the number of semester hours necessary to have subjects added to a certificate is now eighteen.

Section 3108. Further Certificates.—[1]In addition to the certificates, provided herein, the Department may issue such other certificates to persons who shall have completed such professional preparation for teaching or for supervisory work, and who shall possess such further qualifications as may be prescribed by the State Council of Education. The Department may also authorize superintendents to issue emergency certificates under such conditions as the Department may prescribe. The Department may also provide for the registration of the persons who shall receive such certificates, under such rules and regulations as the State Council of Education may promulgate.

Note:

1. This is a new section. The School Law of 1911, in Section 1319, 24 PS Sec. 1262, provides that the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall provide for special examinations and temporary or permanent certificates for teachers of kindergartens, drawing, vocal music, manual training, physical education, and other special subjects. In addition to the issuance of such certificates, the Department has provided for the general certification of teachers. This section will continue the power of the Department in such certification matters. Such power will, however, be subject to the express provisions of the preceding sections of this article.

Under the provisions of this section the Department will have general powers in the certification and registration of teachers. It has been necessary to make this power of the Department very flexible because the requirements for the certification of these teachers in special and vocational subjects vary to a great extent. It is almost impossible to set forth in the statute the minimum requirements for any such teachers.

This section also sets forth the power of the State Council to prescribe the requirements for the certification of persons in supervisory capacities.

Section 3109. Validation of Foreign Certificates.—[1]The Department may accept and endorse or approve for registration certificates to teach, or certificates of resignation to teach which shall have been issued by other states, countries, and bodies, whenever the State Council of Education shall deem the standards of such other state, country, or body, shall be equal to the standards of this Commonwealth.

The Department may at any time revoke any such validation.

Note:

1. This is a new section. It is somewhat similar to Section 1318 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1352.

Section 3110. Fees.—[1]The Department may fix and collect reasonable fees for services which shall be rendered by it in the conduct of examinations, in issuing, supplementing and validating certificates, and in registering persons who shall be qualified to teach in this Commonwealth. Such fees shall not exceed the actual cost of the services rendered, and shall be paid by the Department into the State Treasury as part of the General Fund.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the Act of 1925, P. L. 122, 71 PS Sec. 1011. Under this section, the Department may make self-supporting the bureau which supervises the issuance of these certificates.

Section 3111. Qualification of Applicants.—[1]The Department shall not grant any teacher's certificate to any person who shall not have submitted, upon a blank furnished by the Department, a certificate from a physician legally qualified to practice medicine in this Commonwealth, setting forth that the applicant is neither mentally nor physically disqualified, by reason of tuberculosis or any other chronic or acute defect, from successful performance of the duties of a teacher; nor to any person who does not have a good moral character, or who is in the habit of using opium or other narcotic drugs in any form, or any intoxicating drink as a beverage.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 1320 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1263.

Section 3112. Annulment of Certificates.—[1]The Department may suspend or annul any teacher's certificate for incompetency, cruelty, negligence, immorality, or intemperance, after a hearing of which reasonable notice in writing shall have been given to the parties interested.

From any order suspending or annulling a certificate, the holder thereof may appeal within thirty (30) days to the court of common pleas of the county in which he shall then be employed as a teacher. The court shall determine the reasonableness of the order of the Department, either on the record made in the proceedings before the Department or on testimony taken on the appeal, and shall affirm, modify, or reverse the order as it shall deem proper. The decision of the court shall be final. No such appeal shall act as a supersedeas.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 1322 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1269.

The provision as to suspension is new; it makes the powers of the Department more flexible.

The provision as to the appeal is also new; it is intended to furnish a means by which any abuse of discretion may be corrected.

Section 3113. Record of Certificates.—[1]Every superintendent shall keep a record of all valid certificates which shall be held by the teachers of the schools within his jurisdiction.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 1323 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1270.

Section 3114. Registration of Certificates.—[1]Before entering upon the work of teaching in any school district of the Commonwealth, the teacher shall present the certificate under which he will teach to the superintendent of the district for registration. The superintendent shall keep a record of the kind, number, and date of such certificate together with the subjects of instruction included therein. Whenever any new subject shall be added to a teacher's certificate, the certificate shall again be presented to the superintendent for registration of the added subject.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 1324 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1371.

Section 3115. Certificate to Continue in Force.—[1]All teachers' certificates, in force in this Commonwealth on the effective date of this act, shall continue in full force and effect, subject to all the terms and conditions under which they were issued, until they shall expire by virtue of their own limitations, unless they are sooner annulled for the reason and in the manner herein provided.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from Section 1321 of the School Law of 1911, 24 PS Sec. 1268.

ARTICLE XXXII

STATE SCHOOL FUND

Section 3200. Control and Management.—[1]All real and personal property belonging to the State School Fund shall be wholly under the control and management of the State Council of Education.

Note:

1. The School Law of 1911, in Section 2701, as amended by the Act of 1923, P. L. 143, set forth the sources of the moneys which should form the State School Fund. The subject-matter of that section was placed in Section 302, Subsection 25, of The Fiscal Code of 1929, 1929, P. L. 343, as amended by the Act of 1931, P. L. 318. Section 302 of The Fiscal Code as thus amended provides.

"The net receipts and proceeds derived in any way from, or on account of, the forest reservations, now or hereafter acquired by this Commonwealth, together with all water-powers and water-rights belonging to this Commonwealth in the streams, rivers, lakes, or other waters of this Commonwealth, and all real estate owned by this Commonwealth which is not used for State or other public purposes, all escheated estates in this Commonwealth, and all other property or money which shall in any way accrue to such fund, whether by Act of Assembly, devise, gift, or otherwise, shall belong to and constitute a fund, to be known and designated as 'The State School Fund of Pennsylvania,' which is to be maintained as herein provided: Provided, however, That the forest reservations shall continue to be wholly under the control of the State Forest Reservation Commission, as now provided by law."

The subject-matter of that section has not been repeated in this proposed act.

Section 2702 provides that the State Treasurer should deposit the moneys of the State School Fund in certain depositories. That provision has been omitted for Section 505 of The Fiscal Code of 1929, 1929, P. L. 343, 72 PS Sec. 505 covers all matters pertaining to the depositories of State funds.

Section 3201. Report.—[1]The Department of the State Treasurer shall make reports to the State Council of Education, at such times as such Council shall request, concerning the condition of the State School Fund.

Note:

1. The provisions of this section have been drawn from the first part of Section 2706 of the School Law of 1911, 72 PS Sec. 3756. The latter portion of that section required the State Council of Education annually to make a report to the Governor and the Auditor General concerning the condition of the fund. That provision of the section has been omitted because Section 504 of The Administrative Code of 1929, 1929, P. L. 177, 71 PS Sec. 184, requires each administrative board to make a biennial report to the Governor.

Section 3202. Investment.—[1]The State Council of Education shall, in the manner provided by law,[2] promptly invest and keep invested as constantly as possible all moneys constituting the principal of the State School Fund and all income thereof which by law shall be required to be invested. The State Council of Education may also lease, sell, or otherwise dispose of any of the real estate, securities, or other property belonging to the State School Fund, and invest the proceeds thereof in the manner provided by law.

Note:

1. This section has been drawn from the subject-matter of Section 2703 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1921, P. L. 252, 72 PS Sec. 3753. That section enumerated the various securities in which these funds could be invested.

2. The Act of 1929, P. L. 723, 72 PS Sec. 3603, sets forth the investments in which administrative boards, such as the State Council of Education, may invest the funds under its control.

Section 3203. Use of Income.—[1]All interests, rentals, and other income of the State School Fund are hereby appropriated to the State Council of Education, for the following purposes: to equalize the educational advantages of the different parts of the Commonwealth; to make advancements to school districts temporarily in need, and to deduct such advancements from any appropriations that shall be due such districts upon such terms as the districts and the State Council of Education shall determine; and to further and promote education in the conservation of natural resources and in forestry, agricultural and other industrial pursuits in the public schools of the Commonwealth. All of the income of the State School Fund, not thus used, shall annually be added to the principal of such fund.

Note:

1. The subject-matter of this section has been drawn from Section 2704 of the School Law of 1911, as amended by the Act of 1927, P. L. 749, 72 PS Sec. 3754. It restricts the State Council of Education to expenditures of the income of the State Fund; the principal is to remain intact.

Section 2705 of the School Law of 1911, 72 PS Sec. 3755, provides the manner in which the orders for the paying of any of these funds should be drawn. That provision has been omitted in this draft, because it has been covered in Section 1501 of The Fiscal Code of 1929, 1929, P. L. 343, 72 PS Sec. 1501 et seq.

. . . . . .

. . . . . .

Note:

A list of the acts partially or entirely repealed by this proposed act is being prepared and will be included in the draft at a later date.

Section 3301. General Repeal of Acts.—All other acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

PROPOSED DEPARTMENT OF BANKING CODE

TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA:

By the 1931 General Appropriation Act the Legislature directed this department to prepare for presentation at this session a revision of the banking and building and loan association laws.

Since October, 1930, 129 banks have been taken into possession by the Department of Banking. The assets of these banks totaled $381,777,507.74. After making due allowance for the unprecedented economic conditions which have existed since the fall of 1929, it is nevertheless self-evident that our banking laws are in need of a thorough-going revision. The handling and liquidation of the large number of closed institutions has enabled the Department of Banking to determine, with real assurance, what changes should be made in these laws.

We have prepared three separate acts, as follows: Department of Banking Code, Banking Code, and Building and Loan Association Code.

The draft of the first of these acts is herewith submitted. Drafts of the other two acts will be submitted very shortly.

This draft was prepared by Assistant Deputy Attorney General Bernard G. Segal, in consultation with Deputy Attorney General Harold D. Saylor and the Attorney General, and with the whole-hearted co-operation of Secretary of Banking William D. Gordon, Special Deputy Secretary of Banking E. J. Sitgreaves and the other officers of the Department of Banking. In addition we have received many helpful suggestions from judges and the lawyers of this department assigned to assist the Department of Banking in handling closed banks.

Respectfully submitted

WILLIAM A. SCHNADER,
Attorney General.

An Act relating to the powers and duties of the Department of Banking and the Secretary of Banking in exercising supervision over, and taking possession of and conducting or liquidating the business and property of, corporations, associations, and persons receiving deposits or otherwise transacting a banking business, corporations acting as fiduciaries, and building and loan associations; providing for the payment of the expenses of the Department of Banking by supervised corporations, associations, or persons and appropriating the Banking Department Fund; authorizing the Department of Banking, under certain circumstances, to examine corporations, associations, or persons affiliated, or having business transactions, with supervised corporations, associations or persons; prescribing and limiting the powers and duties of certain courts and their prothonotaries, registers of wills, recorders of deeds, and certain State departments, commissions, and officers; authorizing certain local public officers and State departments to collect fees for services rendered under this act; providing penalties; and repealing certain acts and parts of acts.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, as follows:

Comments:

It seems more logical to introduce the entire act by the enacting clause rather than to include this clause as part of the section on the short title. The entire act, and not any single section alone, is being enacted.

This is the procedure followed in "The Third Class City Law," except that there the enacting clause is "Section 1." It seems illogical, however, to have a "Section 1" before an "Article 1."

The above proposed form is the one used in many states.

ARTICLE I

SHORT TITLE AND PRELIMINARY PROVISIONS

Section 1. Short Title.—This act shall be known, and may be cited, as the "Department of Banking Code."

Comments:

The title "Department of Banking Code" has been selected for this proposed act, since it is planned to term the proposed act which deals with the formation, organization, internal structure, etc., of corporations and persons doing a banking, or a banking and a trust business the "Banking Code," and to call the proposed act which treats these subjects with reference to building and loan associations the "Building and Loan Code".

Section 2. Definitions.—A. The following terms shall be construed in this act to have the following meanings, except in those instances where the context clearly indicates otherwise:

"Department"—the Department of Banking of this Commonwealth.

"Secretary"—the Secretary of Banking of this Commonwealth, or his duly authorized deputy or other representative.

"Corporation"—a corporation or a joint stock association, organized under the laws of this Commonwealth, of the United States, or of any other state, territory, foreign country, or dependency.

"Person"—an individual, or an unincorporated association, including a partnership, a limited partnership, or any other form of unincorporated enterprise owned by two or more individuals.

"Institution"—a corporation or a person, as defined in this section, which is subject to the supervision of the Department.

"Court"—the court of common pleas of the county in which the corporation or person has its principal[1] or only place of business in this Commonwealth; or, where an institution of which the Secretary is receiver is concerned, the particular court in which the certificate of possession, as defined later in this act, is filed.

"Prothonotary"—the prothonotary of such court.

"Written"—this includes printed, typewritten, engraved, lithographed, telegraphed, cabled, radiogramed, photographed, photostated, telephotographed, or other form of recorded or transmitted message.[2]

B. Article and section headings shall not be construed to affect in any manner the scope or meaning of any article or section of this act.[3]

C. The singular shall be construed to include the plural. The masculine shall be construed to include the feminine and the neuter and conversely the neuter shall be construed to include the masculine and the feminine.

References:

Act of June 15, 1923, P. L. 809, Section 2, as amended by Act of May 5, 1927, P. L. 762, Section 1. (Hereafter the Act of June 15, 1923, P. L. 809, will be cited as "Banking Act of 1923," its short title.)

Comments:

1. The word "principal" is added, since certain corporations and persons under the supervision of the Department may have more than one place of business.
2. This definition is new. It seems clear that the word "written," as used in a statute, includes "typewritten," "printed," and any other form of record or recorded message. This definition enacts into law this customary interpretation.
3. Courts have uniformly held that article and section headings do not affect the meaning or scope of sections. This subsection codifies these decisions.

Section 3. Notices to Corporations and Persons.—Unless expressly provided otherwise, all written notices required by this act to be given to any corporation or person shall be (1) served in the manner now or hereafter established by law for the service of writs of summons, except that such service need not be made by the sheriff, or (2) mailed or sent by telegram, charges prepaid,[1] (a) in the case of an individual to his last known residence or place of business, (b) in the case of an unincorporated association, or a corporation formed under the laws of this Commonwealth, to its principal office, and (c) in the case of a corporation formed under the laws of some other state, to the office of its duly authorized agent in Pennsylvania, or, if there be no duly authorized agent in Pennsylvania, to its home office in the state of incorporation or in any other state.[2]

If a notice is sent by mail, or by telegraph, such notice shall be deemed to have been given to the corporation or person addressed, when it is deposited in the United States mail or with a telegraph office for transmission to such corporation or person.[3]

Comments:

1. The provision for the giving of notice by telegram is new. However, it seems clearly desirable.
2. The provision for the giving of notice outside the state is new. Notice to foreign corporations is provided for throughout this act. It is apparent, therefore, that provision should be made for the manner in which such notice should be given.
3. This paragraph is new. Considerable confusion exists under the Banking Act of 1923 as to the time intended by a provision that the last day for the performance of a certain act is a designated number of days after the "giving" or "serving" of notice. This proposed paragraph is intended to eliminate this confusion.

Section 4. Advertisements or Notices in Newspapers.—A. Unless expressly provided otherwise, any advertisement or notice in a newspaper, required by this act, shall be published once a week for three successive weeks (1) in a newspaper of general circulation in the county, as defined by the Newspapr Advertising Act, approved the sixteenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (Pamphlet Laws, one thousand seven hundred eighty-four) its supplements and amendments, published in the city, borough, or township in which the principal place of business of the insttitution is located; and (2) in first and second class counties, also in the legal newspaper,[1] if any, published within the county, as defined by the Newspaper Advertising Act.

If there is no newspaper of general circulation in the city, borough, or township, then the advertisement or notice shall be inserted in a newspaper of general circulation in the county, published at the county seat. If no newspaper of general circulation in the county is published at the county seat, then such advertisement or notice shall be inserted in the newspaper of general circulation published nearest to the city, borough, or township in which the principal place of business of such institution is located and within the county. If there is no newspaper of general circulation published within the county, then the advertisement or notice shall be inserted in the newspaper of general circulation published nearest to such city, borough, or township in an adjoining county.

B. Any proof of publication required by this act shall be in accordance with the requirements set forth in the definition of proof of publication contained in the Newspaper Advertising Act.[2]

Comments:

1. The requirement of the amendment of 1931 that the legal newspaper be one designated by the rules of court for legal advertisements and notices is omitted, as it is merely one of several provisions set forth in the Newspaper Advertising Act. To include any one in this draft would seem to necessitate the inclusion of all. A reference to the Newspaper Advertising Act seems sufficient.
2. The same reason applies to the omission of the provision of the amendment of 1931 that proof of advertisement be accompanied by an affidavit of the owner or a designated agent.

The amendment of 1931 provides also that abstract summaries of reports to the Secretary need be published only once. This provision is omitted in this proposed section of this draft, since it seems more properly to belong in the section dealing specifically with summaries of reports to the Secretary. It is therefore included as Section 404 in this draft.

Section 5. Waiver of Notice.—Any notice required by this act to be given to any corporation or person may be waived by such corporation or person, either before or after the day prescribed for the giving of such notice. Such waiver shall be in writing and signed by such corporation or person.

Comments:

It seems clear that where notice is required for the protection of certain corporations or persons, waiver of such notice by such corporations or persons should be permitted.

It is a general principle that where notice is required for the benefit of shareholders of a corporation, they may waive such notice, see 5 Fletcher, Cyclopdia Corporations (Permanent Edition), Section 2011, and cases there cited.

Article XVI, Section 7 of the Constitution of Pennsylvania provides, inter alia: "The stock and indebtedness of corporations should not be increased except in pursuance of general law, nor without the consent of persons holding the larger amount in value of the stock, first obtained at a meeting to be held after sixty days notice given in pursuance of law." In 1883, the Department of Justice advised that the sixty days' notice required by the Constitution and by the Enabling Act might be waived by consent of all the shareholders, see In re Bellefonte and Buffalo Run Railroad Company, 2 Chester 128 (1883).

The same has been held true of the provisions of the Constitution and statutes of Missouri, requiring sixty days' notice of a meeting called for the purpose of voting on the issuance of bonds or the increase of capital, State v. Cook, 178 Mo. 189, 77 S. W. 559; Reisterer v. Horton Land and Lumber Company, 160 Mo. 141, 61 S. W. 238.

Accordingly this draft permits the wavier of notice.

Section 6. Fees.—Except as otherwise specifically provided in this act,[1] any prothonotary or recorder of deeds, and any State department, board, commission, or officer, other than the Department of Banking or its employes, shall be entitled to receive for services performed as required by this act, such fees as it lawfully charges for such or similar services.[2]

References:

Banking Act of 1923, Section 3 (c).

Comments:

1. See, for example, Sections 8 and 404D in this draft.
2. Numerous acts establish the charges to be made by prothonotaries, recorders of deeds, the Secretary of the Commonwealth, or similar officials for the filing or recording of documents with them. This draft does not re-enact these fees specifically but merely declares the existing fees acts to be applicable.

Section 7. Certification of Copies and Affixing of Department Seal.[1]—All certifications by the Department of Copies of books, accounts, reports, or other papers filed with it, shall bear the official seal of the Department.[2]

Comments:

1. Section 10 of the Banking Act of 1923 provides: "The Department may adopt and use a seal." This section has been omitted in this draft since it is adequately covered by Section 505 of The Administrative Code.

2. This section is new. In view of the importance attached to copies by this Code, for example their admissibility into evidence, it seems advisable that every certification of a copy by the Department should bear the official seal of the Department.

Section 8. Fees for Copies and Certification by Department —The Department may, by general rule or regulation, prescribe and charge reasonable[1] fees for any copy of a book, account, report, or other paper filed in its offices, and for any certification thereof,[2] authorized or required by law.[3]

References:

Banking Act 1923, Section 11 (b).

Comments:

1. The New York Banking Law, Article 2, Section 18 which is apparently copied from the Banking Act of 1923 provides the exact rate to be charged i. e. ten cents per folio, and one dollar per certification thereof and affixture of the departmental seal thereto. This seems unnecessary but the addition of the word "reasonable" does seem desirable.

2. Section 11 (b) of the Banking Act 1923 excepts from the operation of this section any "copy or certification . . . made for the benefit of a corporation or person subject to the supervision of the Department." This draft makes no such exception. In certain cases, institutions request a large number of copies and certifications. There seems to be no reason why this cost should be apportioned to all institutions.

It should be noted also that this proposed section is permissive and not mandatory.

3. Throughout the Banking Act 1923, the words "under the provisions of this act" are used. This draft uses the words "provided by law." Thus certifications may be authorized or required in the proposed Banking Code, or in some other act. The general provisions of this and other proposed sections in this draft should, therefore, clearly refer not only to the provisions of this act but to those of any law.

Section 9. Admissibility of Copies into Evidence.—When duly certified by the Department, a copy of any book, paper, or document on file with it shall be evidence in any court of law or equity, or in any investigation or proceeding authorized by law, or for any other purpose, equally and with the same effect as the original, but in any proceeding, the court having jurisdiction may, on cause shown require the production of the original.

References:

Banking Act 1923, Section 11 (a), as amended by Act of May 5, 1927, P. L. 762, Section 3.

Comments:

Section 505 of The Administrative Code provides: "A Copy of any paper or document on file with any such department, board, or commission, authenticated by any such seal, shall be evidence equally and in like manner as the original." The question of whether this eliminates the need for the above section in this draft has been carefully considered.

It is possible that courts may hold that rules of evidence are not changed by The Administrative Code. Therefore it seems advisable to include in this act a specific statement concerning the admissibility of copies into evidence.

Section 10. Evidential Value of Results of Examinations.—The record of any examination or investigation of an institution by the Department, or the report by the examiner or employe of the Department who conducted such examination or investigation, or a copy of either when duly certified by the Department, shall be prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated, in any[1] action at law or in equity, in which one of the parties is the Department, or any officer or employe thereof, either in his official capacity or otherwise, where the basis of the action is an act performed by him in the name of the Department.[2]

References:

Banking Act 1923, Section 11 (c), amended by Act of May 5, 1927, P. L. 762, Section 3.

Comments:

1. The Banking Act 1923 provides that copies of examinations, etc., shall be prima facie evidence "in any proceedings under the provisions of this act." It does not seem wise to limit the prima facie effect of these reports to cases arising under this act.

2. The provision that a copy shall have this prima facie effect only where the Department, or an officer or employe thereof, is a party has been included, since it seems inadvisable for the Department of Banking Code to attempt to control private suits, such as actions of slander between two individuals in which the facts contained in an examination or investigation by the Department are introduced into evidence.

The provision concerning suits involving an officer or employe of the Department otherwise than in his official capacity is included primarily to cover suits the real purpose of which is to restrain the Department, but which for practical reasons are brought against individual officers or employes not in their official capacity. Examples of suits instituted in this manner are those brought in the Federal courts in which it is attempted to evade the prohibition of the eleventh amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

An incidental effect of this clause is to protect officers or employes in actions brought against them personally for acts performed under color of their authority.

Section 11. Appeals from Court Orders.[1]—Whenever, pursuant to the provisions of this act, any judgment, decree, or other order is entered by any court in this Commonwealth, either for or against the Department, or any relief requested, by or against the Department, is refused by such court, either the Department or any other party to such proceeding shall have a right of appeal to the Supreme Court in the manner provided by law for appeals to that court, regardless of the amount in controversy.[2]

Comments:

1. This entire section is new. There is at present, considerable doubt concerning the Department's right of appeal from court action provided for in this act. This proposed section attempts to clear up this uncertainty.

2. Since it is frequently difficult to determine the amount in controversy, and since also there is very often no amount at all in controversy, it seems desirable to designate a specific court for appeals.

Section 12. Construction of References.—A. Any reference in this act to any act by title or otherwise shall be construed to apply to and include any codification wherein the provisions of the act referred to are substantially re-enacted.[1]

B. Any reference in this act to the provisions of law on any subject shall apply to statutes and decisions becoming effective after the effective date of this act, as well as those then in existence.[2]

Comments:

1. This is merely a formal provision. However, it seems useful to cover, in general, the codifications of any laws which are referred to in this draft.

2. This is also merely a formal provision. Frequently, in this act, the words "as provided by law" are used. They refer to statutes and decisions enacted or handed down after, as well as before, the effective date of this act. This would seem to be a normal interpretation even without this subsection, and perhaps therefore Subsection B is unnecessary. However, it precludes any different interpretation.

Section 13. Saving Clause.—A. The provisions of this act, in so far as they are the same as those of existing acts, shall be construed as a continuation of such acts, and not as new enactments. The repeal by this act of any existing act or any part thereof shall not be construed to revive any act or part of any act heretofore repealed or superseded.

B. The provisions of this act shall not affect any act done, liability incurred, or right accrued, nor affect any suit or prosecution pending or to be instituted to enforce any right or penalty or to punish any offense under the authority of any act repealed or superseded by this act.

C. Any person holding office under any act repealed by this act shall continue to hold such office until the expiration of his term, subject to the conditions attached to such office prior to the passage of this act.

D. All resolutions, regulations, and rules made pursuant to any act repealed by this act shall, unless inconsistent with any provision of this act, continue with the same force as if such act had not been repealed.

Comments:

These provisions are formal ones. They are necessary to cover the many phases of transition between existing laws and this draft.

Section 14. Constitutional Construction.—It is hereby declared to be the legislative intent that if this act cannot take effect in its entirety because of the decision of any court holding unconstitutional any part hereof, the remaining provisions of the act shall be given full force and effect as completely as if the part held unconstitutional had not been included herein.

Section 15. Act Not Applicable to Small Loan Companies.—This act does not apply to, and does not affect any act relating to, corporations and persons licensed by the Department to make small loans as provided by the act approved the seventeenth day of June, one thousand nine hundred fifteen (Pamphlet Laws, one thousand twelve), entitled "An act regulating the business of loaning money in sums of three hundred ($300.00) dollars or less, either with or without security, to individuals pressed by lack of funds to meet immediate necessities; fixing the rates of interest and charges therefor; requiring the licensing of lenders; and prescribing penalties for the violation of this act," its amendments and supplements.

Comments:

The Act of June 17, 1915, P. L. 1012, fully covers the subject of "small loan companies." It is deemed inadvisable to attempt in this draft to cover the regulation of such companies. This proposed section is necessary to preclude any possibility of an interpretation that any provision of this act pertains to them.

ARTICLE II

JURISDICTION AND MAINTENANCE OF DEPARTMENT

Section 201. Corporations and Persons Subject to Supervision of Department.—The Department shall have the power to supervise

(1) All corporations and persons[1] which are authorized to receive or[2] which do receive in this Commonwealth money on deposit or for safe-keeping, or which are authorized to engage or which do engage in this Commonwealth in a banking business, and all corporations which are authorized to act or which do act in this Commonwealth, as trustees, guardians, executors, administrators, or in other fiduciary capacities, including banks, bank and trust companies, trust companies, private banks, mutual savings funds, and safe-deposit companies;[3] but not including hotels which receive money from guests for temporary safe-keeping; express, steamship, or telegraph companies which receive money for transmission; and brokers, licensed under the laws of this Commonwealth, holding membership, in a lawfully constituted[4] brokerage exchange, who do and have authority to do only such banking as is incidental to their brokerage business;[5]

(2) All building and loan associations authorized to transact or transacting business in this Commonwealth;

(3) All national banking associations incorporated under the laws of the United States which are authorized to act or which do act in this Commonwealth as trustees, guardians, executors, administrators, or in any other fiduciary capacities, to the extent to which supervision by state authorities is or may be permitted[6] under the laws of the United States.[7]

However, when any corporation subject to the supervision of the Department of Banking shall also engage in a title insurance business, a mortgage guarantee business, or any other business subject to the supervision of the Insurance Department, such branch of its business shall not be subject to the supervision of the Department of Banking.[8]

Banking Act 1923, Section 4; The Administrative Code of 1929, P. L. 177, Section 1602 (hereafter cited as The Administrative Code).

Comments:

1. The Banking Act 1923 uses only the word "corporations." This draft adds the word "persons." This is done in order to include private bankers. In addition, the term "private banks" is added in the list of examples of institutions under supervision of the Department.

The Act of June 19, 1911, P. L. 1060, as amended by the Act of April 5, 1927, P. L. 106, and the Act of April 26, 1929, P. L. 813, governs private banking in Pennsylvania.

Under this act and its amendments, private bankers fall into three classes:

(1) Private bankers licensed under Section 1 of the Act of 1911—there are at the present time nineteen such private bankers of which four are in the process of liquidation. This group is thoroughly examined and is subject to the supervision of the Department in accordance with the provisions of Section 1 of the Act of 1911 as amended.

(2) Private bankers exempted under Exemption 4 of Section 8 of the Act of 1911—there is at the present time one such private banker, the Union Savings and Beneficial Association, conducted by the United Gas Improvement Association, solely for its employes. By virtue of the Act of May 2, 1925, P. L. 502, the Department exercises complete supervision over this group.

(3) Private bankers exempted under Exemption 6 of Section 8 of the Act of 1911, i. e. those who had conducted the business of private banking for a period of seven years prior to the approval of the Act of 1911. This group is not subject to supervision of any kind by the Department.

As nearly as the Chief of the Private Bank Bureau of the Department can estimate, there are now fifty private banks being operated in Pennsylvania under Exemption 6. Of these, ten are listed in Polk's Bankers Encyclopedia, issued September, 1932, as doing solely a brokerage business. Therefore, these would not in any event be supervised by the Department even under this proposed act. Of the approximately forty remaining private banks in this group, nineteen are listed in Polk's as doing a banking business. It is probable that the twenty-one private bankers are individuals doing a small business among the foreing element in communities.

Mr. O. B. Lippman, Chief of the Private Bank Bureau of the Department, as a result of his experience with private banks, expresses the following opinion: "While this Department does not take in possession private banks operating under Exemption 6 of Section 8, we find that when this type of private banker fails there is usually very little or nothing in the way of assets to pay outstanding deposit liabilities. The private bankers may continue in business in an insolvent condition indefinitely . . . In some cases which have come to our attention, when private bankers not under state supervision have failed, there were no assets whatsoever to pay the depositors. There should be no question in the mind of anyone that all private banks should be properly supervised."

What is the status of private banking in other states? On May 25, 1932, Thomas B. Paton, Jr., Assistant General Counsel, American Bankers Association, issued a report on Private Banking in the United States, based on figures and expressions of opinion sent by the commissioner or other officer in charge of the respective banking departments of every state in the country and the District of Columbia. This report states that private banking is now forbidden in thirty-four states. In nine of these, private banks established prior to prohibitory legislation are permitted to continue, but in three of them, these few banks are likewise under state supervision. Of the fourteen states and the District of Columbia, in which, according to the report, private banking is permitted, only Georgia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia permit private bankers to go unsupervised. New York, according to the report has twenty-three private bankers; of these twenty-one are under complete and two under partial supervision. In Pennsylvania, of course, as stated above, only those organized prior to 1904 are unsupervised.

The heads of the Banking Departments of forty-six states and the District of Columbia expressed the opinion that where private banking is permitted it should be under state supervision. The Commissioners of Louisiana and Maine made no comment, but both of these states prohibit all private banking.

These statistics, gathered from every state in the country, clearly indicate the almost unanimous opinion among government officials close to the problem that where private banks are permitted to operate they should be supervised by the state. Likewise the opinion of state legislators throughout the country is conclusively demonstrated by the fact that in only two states in the country, besides Pennsylvania do private bankers go completely unsupervised. Fairness requires that they be supervised just as are all other banking institutions with which they compete. Likewise a proper fulfilment of the state's duty to its citizens and a just exercise of the police power of the state demand that the state protect the interest of the individuals dealing with these institutions. Many of these people are today under the misapprehension that there is no different protection accorded them as depositors or creditors or creditors of private banks than there is accorded individuals bearing similar relations to incorporated institutions.

There does not seem to be any possible argument to justify the exemption of any private bankers from careful supervision by proper authorities.

The word "person" is omitted in the reference to fiduciaries as the Department has the power to supervise only corporate fiduciaries.

2. The Banking Act 1923 uses the conjunction "and"; The Administrative Code of 1929 the conjunction "or." The word "or" is used in this draft.

This has two effects. It gives the Department full authority to examine any institution having authority to do a banking or trust business to determine whether it is exercising such authority. If it is not, no further duty would seem to devolve upon the Department.

Of greater importance is the power which the use of the word "or" gives to the Department over corporations and persons unauthorizedly engaging in banking or trust activities. It permits the Department not only to force such institutions to discontinue business and to enforce any penalties against them, but to supervise them in whatever manner will operate to the best interests of depositors and other interested therein.

3. The following terms have been omitted for the following reasons:

"Banking companies"—This word seems superfluous as its meaning is adequately covered by the other terms stated in the section;

"Cooperative banking associations"—According to the Department, there is none existent in Pennsylvania today. In addition, there seems to be no reason for their existence.

"Real estate company"—If there ever was a reason for including a provision as to such a company, it seems to have disappeared.

"Title insurance company"—In Formal Opinion No. 39, under date of February 8, 1932, Deputy Attorney General Saylor advised the Secretary that title insurance companies not receiving money on deposit or for safe-keeping, and not engaging in any trust activities are not subject to the supervision of the Department. It is planned, in the proposed Insurance Code, to place title insurance companies under the jurisdiction of the Insurance Department. Of course, if they also have authority to do a banking or trust business, they will likewise be subject to the supervision of the Department of Banking.

"Mortgage companies" or "mortgage guarantee companies"—According to the Department, there is none receiving money on deposit or for safekeeping today. In a formal opinion under date of June 25, 1930, Deputy Attorney General Saylor advised the Secretary that a mortgage guarantee company not receiving deposits is not under the supervision of the Department (Opinions of the Attorney General, 1929-30, page 55).

"Provident institutions"—This term seems to be without technical meaning.

However, the wording of this section is general enough to include any corporation or person receiving money on deposit, or for safe-keeping, or doing a banking business, or having authority to do so, or any corporation authorized to act or acting as a fiduciary even though the particular type of corporation or person is not specifically enumerated. The words "all corporations or persons receiving or having authority to receive" together with the word "including" preclude the interpretation that the list is an exclusive one.

Under the Act of May 5, 1921, P. L. 374, Section 1, corporations or persons which engage in the so-called "investment contract" business are subject to the supervision of the Department. However, they seem more appropriately to come under the jurisdiction of the Securities Commission, and it is planned to place them there. Therefore, such companies are not listed in this section.

4. Section 8 of the Act of June 9, 1911, P. L. 1060, as amended, excepts from the operation of the act (which regulate private bankers) brokers ". . . holding a membership in a lawfully incorporated brokerage exchange." This proposed section excepts brokers " . . . holding membership in a lawfully constituted brokerage exchange." This change is made in order to include members of unincorporated stock exchanges like the Philadelphia Stock Exchange. There is an appeal now pending before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania (In re Newhall, Assignees) growing out of the applicability of the language of the Act of 1911, as amended, to members of the Philadelphia Stock Exchange. The change in wording in this proposed section is intended to eliminate this doubt.

5. The specific statement excluding hotels, telegraph companies, and brokers, is necessitated by the inclusion of the words "persons" and "private banks" in this proposed section and by the omission of the words "otherwise than as bailee." The words "otherwise than as bailee" seem undesirable since they are too indefinite and since safe-deposit companies are frequently considered as bailees. It should be realized, however, that under this proposed section a corporation or person, not of the class specifically enumerated, but which receives money for safe-keeping, whether as bailee or not, will be subject to the supervision of the Department. This seems desirable.

6. The exact status of the power of the Department of Banking to examine a national bank authorized to act as a fiduciary in Pennsylvania, and the statutes applicable thereto, are carefully treated in the following somewhat lengthy quotation from the opinion of Mr. Justice (now Chief Justice) Frazer in In re Turner's Estate, 277 Pa. 110 (1923):

"The act of Congress approved December 23, 1913 (38 Statutes, 251, Section 11 [k]; 12 USCA Section 248 (k)), gave the Federal Reserve Board Power, inter alia, "to grant by special permit to national banks applying therefor, when not in contravention of State or local law, the right to act as trustee, executor, administrator or registrar of stocks and bonds under such rules and regulations as the said board may prescribe.' It was thus left to the courts to ascertain whether, in any given case, the exercise of the powers granted would be in contravention of state or local law. Difficulties arose in the construction of the act, resulting in its amendment in 1918 (Act Sept. 26, 1918, Section 2, 40 Statutes, 967; [12 USCA Section 248 (k)]) by permitting national banks to act as executor, administrator, trustee, guardian, etc., in all cases where state banks, trust companies, or other corporations 'which come into competition with national banks are permitted to act under the laws of the state in which the national bank is located,' and also providing that 'whenever the laws of such state authorize or permit the exercise of any or all of the foregoing powers by state banks, trust companies, or other corporations which compete with national banks, the granting to and the exercise of such powers by national banks shall not be deemed to be in contravention of state or local law within the meaning of this act.' The statute contained a further provision that banks exercising fiduciary powers should 'segregate all assets held in any fiduciary capacity from the general assets of the bank and shall keep a separate set of books and records showing in proper detail all transactions engaged in under authority of this subsection, * * * but nothing in this act shall be construed as authorizing the state authorities to examine the books, records, and assets of the national bank which are not held in trust under authority of this subsection.' It also required that 'funds deposited or held in trust by the bank awaiting investment shall be carried in a separate account and shall not be used by the bank in the conduct of its business unless it shall first set aside in the trust department United States bonds or other securites approved by the Federal Reserve Board.' Numerous other administrative provisions are found in the Federal act that need not be referred to here.

"The contention of the Commonwealth is that to permit a Federal bank to act in a fiduciary capacity in this state under the statutory provisions mentioned would amount to a violation of our laws. The Act of May 21, 1919 (P. L. 209; [repealed], provides, inter alia, that the banking department shall have supervision of all corporations or persons receiving money on deposit for safe-keeping, including banks incorporated under the laws of the United States, which shall, pursuant to Federal law or regulations, be permitted to act in any fiduciary capacity and makes all such corporations subject to inspection and examination by the banking commissioner. By act of May 20, 1921 (P. L. 991 [sections 345-347 of Title 20, Decedents' and Trust Estates]), it was provided that no person should have the right to appoint, in a fiduciary capacity, any corporation other than a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of Pennsylvania and subject to the supervision and examination of the banking department of the state, or a corporation organized under the laws of the United States and doing business in Pennsylvania by resolution of its board of directors agreeing to place itself under and subject to the supervision and examination of the state banking department 'in the same manner and to the same extent as corporations organized and existing under the laws of this state.'

"A comparison of the foregoing Federal and state acts shows the main points of difference is that the federal statute allows inspection of the books and records of only that part of the assets of national banks as are received in a fiduciary capacity, and requires them to segregate all assets held in a fiduciary capacity, and prohibits commingling them with other assets in its business, unless it shall first set aside in the trust department United States bonds or other securities approved by the Federal Reserve Board; while, on the other hand, the state acts authorize supervision by the banking department of all the assets of the corporation and forbids substitution of securities for the funds, but requires the companies, in all cases, to keep trust funds separate from its other assets and to indicate all investments made as fiduciaries, so that the trust to which the investment belongs shall be clearly known. It is argued this difference in the two provisions produces a conflict, making the Federal Reserve Act in direct violation of the state law by permitting unlnvested funds to be mingled with the general assets and removing such funds from inspection or supervision of state authorities. The Corn Exchange National Bank has complied with every provision of the states rules, regulations, and laws by consenting to the examination of all its assets by the state bank examiners and agreeing to keep trust securities on deposit in a separate bank. This voluntary compliance with state rules would, in itself, seem to render unnecessary a further discussion of the question raised. Appellant contends, however, that the national bank cannot validly agree to be bound by state law or by local rule of court, which is contrary or inconsistent with the federal law, and that consequently the question remains whether it was not beyond the power of the bank to agree to comply with state regulations where they are in conflict with federal practice.

"The answer to this contention is that, in so far as the state law is inconsistent with the federal act, the former must yield to the latter, even though the result may be to place upon federal banks a benefit or burden not received or assumed by the state banks and trust companies."

7. The last paragraph of Section 4 of the Banking Act 1923 is omitted. In view of the changes made in this draft, it seems to serve no useful purpose.

8. This clause is new. It seems necessary clearly to indicate that the Department of Banking has no supervision over such phases of the business of a corporation as are subject to the supervision of the Insurance Department.

Section 202.[1] General Scope of Supervision; Exercise of Discretion.—A. In addition to the powers and duties provided for in this act, the Department shall exercise any power and fulfill any duty imposed upon it by any other law of this Commonwealth. Except where otherwise specifically provided, the Department[2] shall enforce and administer all laws of this Commonwealth which relate to any institution, and shall exercise such general supervision over institutions as will afford the greatest possible safety to depositors, other creditors, and shareholders thereof.[3]

B. Whenever under this act, discretion is vested in the Department as to whether, or the manner in which, to exercise a power or fulfill a duty, the Department shall, after such examination or investigation as it shall seem appropriate under the circumstances, take such action as it deems to the best interests of the depositors, other creditors, and shareholders of such institution.[4]

Comments:

1. Section 6 of the Banking Act 1923 is omitted in this draft. It provides for the transfer to the Secretary of the rights, privileges, and duties granted to, or imposed upon, the Auditor General or the Secretary of the Commonwealth, with regard to institutions. Such a provision seems unnecessary in this draft, if the proposed Banking Code and the proposed Building and Loan Code are passed by the Legislature. The transfer of duties from the Commissioner of Banking to the Secretary is accomplished by Section 1601 of The Administrative Code.

Section 7 of the Banking Act of 1923 is likewise omitted in this draft. It provides that certain papers theretofore transferred to the Secretary by the Auditor General or the Commissioner of Banking shall remain in the Secretary's charge and custody. There seems to be no reason for reenacting this provision in this draft.

2. The provision of the Banking Act 1923 expressly continuing the Department is omitted, since the executive departments of government are created or continued by The Administrative Code. However, the other provisions of the section are reenacted since they are substantive in nature and properly belong in the Department of Banking Code.

In addition, the first sentence of this proposed section is introduced. It seems necessary since numerous duties of the Department are not included in this draft. To include them would be a useless repetition of the Banking Code, for example provisions concerning the incorporation of banks, and banks and trust companies.

3. The general supervisory power of the Department provided by the Banking Act 1923 is continued in this draft. An example of the need for and the application of the general power to safeguard the interests of depositors and others interested in institutions may be seen in the Formal Opinion of Attorney General Baldridge rendered to the Secretary under date of September 17, 1927.

4. This provision is new. Throughout the Banking Act 1923, it is frequently provided that the Department shall perform an act in the manner it deems to the best interest of the depositors, other creditors, or shareholders. In other sections, this duty seems to be implied. It seems desirable to include in this draft the above general provision to this effect and to eliminate such statements in individual sections.

Section 203.[1] Appropriations for Expenses of Department; Receipts.—A. All moneys collected or received by the Department, arising from fees, assessments, charges, and penalties; from the sale by the Department of Property and Supplies of unserviceable property originally paid for out of the Banking Department Fund;[2] and from similar sources[3] are hereby specifically appropriated to the Department of Banking to be used to pay its expenses, including the following:[4]

(1) Salaries of the Secretary, the deputies, the examiners, the other employes of the Department, and such deputy attorneys general, special deputy attorneys general, assistant deputy attorneys general, and other counsel as may be assigned by the Department of Justice, to the Department or to the handling of any legal business pertaining to its work;

(2) Rental and other expenses for offices, rooms, garage space,[5] and other accommodations outside of the Capitol Buildings, either in or outside of the capitol city,[6] occupied by the Department;

(3) Premiums for Workmen's Compensation Insurance covering the officers and employes of the Department;

(4) Premiums for surety bonds for such officers or employes of the Department as may be required by law to furnish such bonds;

(5) Purchase and operating costs of motor vehicles required by the Department for full-time use, including premiums for liability insurance covering such motor vehicles and the Department officers and employes operating them; also the amount payable to the Department of Property and Supplies for the use of automobiles supplied by it for temporary use by the Department of Banking;[7]

(6) Furniture, stationery, materials, supplies, and all other overhead expenses of the Department.

All such purchases and leases shall be made, and all such contracts of insurance and surety bonds shall be placed, through the Department of Property and Supplies, as agent.[8]

B. Estimates of the amounts to be expended under this act by the Department of Banking, either itself or through the Department of Property and Supplies as purchasing agent, shall be submitted to the Governor from time to time for his approval or disapproval, as in the case of other appropriations made to administrative departments, boards, and commissions; and it shall be unlawful for the Auditor General to honor any requisition for the expenditure of any moneys out of this appropriation by the Department of Banking or by the Department of Property and Supplies as its agent, in excess of the estimates approved by the Governor. Subject to this provision, the Auditor General shall, from time to time, draw warrants upon the State Treasury for the amounts specified in such requisitions, not exceeding, however, the amount in the Banking Department Fund at the time of the making of any such requisition.

Comments:

1. Section 8 of the Banking Act 1923 has been omitted; it provides for the assignment to the Secretary of suitable rooms at the "capital of the State." In Informal Opinion No. 142, under date of July 19, 1932, Attorney General Schnader advised the Secretary of Property and Supplies that this Section had been superseded by the provisions of The Administrative Code. The assignment of rooms in the Capitol Buildings being merely a procedural matter, it seems to belong in The Administrative Code rather than in the Department of Banking Code.

2. The provision concerning unserviceable property does not appear in the Banking Act 1923 or any of its amendments. However, it is mentioned in The Fiscal Code, and for purposes of completeness, is included here.

3. The words "fees, assessments, charges and penalties," together with the clause of unserviceable property, seem to include all the sources of revenue of the Department. However, the words "or any similar sources' 'have been added as a safeguard.

4. The Banking Act 1923 contains a provision that all moneys received by the Department "shall be paid by the Secretary, through the Department of Revenue, into the State Treasury for safe-keeping, and shall be placed in a separate fund, to be available for the use of the Department upon requisition of the Secretary. The provision is entirely a procedural one. It is properly within the province of The Administrative Code and The Fiscal Code and is adequately covered there. It is therefore omitted in this draft.

5. It is clear that the cost of garage space outside of the Capitol Buildings, should, like the rent for other quarters, be paid out of the Banking Department Fund. Therefore, a provision concerning garage space has been included in this draft.

6. In Informal Opinion No. 142, dated July 19, 1932, Attorney General Schnader advised the Secretary of Property and Supplies that the rental costs for offices of the Department of Banking in the Claster Building are payable out of the Banking Department Fund.

This proposed section attempts to preclude any doubt on this score by specifically providing that the cost of offices "outside the Capitol Building, either in or outside of the capital city" shall be paid out of the Banking Department Fund.

7. The 1929 amendment to the Banking Act 1923 describes the method to be followed in determining the cost to be charged by the Department of Property and Supplies for the temporary use of automobiles. However, this is adequately covered in The Administrative Code of 1929 and since the question is a procedural one, it is omitted in this draft. The only provision which seems necessary and which has therefore been included, is the substantive one providing for the payment out of the Banking Department Fund of this charge, to be computed by whatever method is provided by law.

8. This provision is new. It corresponds to the provisions for such leases, purchases, and other contracts in The Administrative Code. In an appropriation act, however, which this this section in effect, it seems clearly desirable, if not actually necessary, to repeat these provisions.

Throughout Subsection B, references is likewise made to the Department of Property and Supplies.

Section 204. Assessment of Expenses of Department upon Institutions.—A. All the expenses of the Department, including those enumerated in this act or otherwise authorized by law, shall be charged to and paid by all institutions[1] in such equitable amounts, at such times, and in such manner as the Department shall by general rule or regulation prescribe. The expenses incurred by the Department in connection with any examination or investigation, whether regular or special, including a proportionate part of the salary of any examiner or other employe of the Department engaged in such examination or investigation, and all counsel assigned by the Department of Justice at the request of the Department of Banking to an examination or investigation, may be assessed by the Department of Banking upon the particular institution examined or investigated.[2]

B. The Department shall give written notice to each institution of the amount lawfully charged against it under the provisions of this act. The institution shall pay the amount of such assessment to the Department within thirty days after such notice. If payment is not made by any institution within such thirty-day period, the Department, through the Department of Justice, may institute an appropriate action at law for the amount lawfully assessed against such institution, together with any additional costs incurred by the Department of Banking or the Department of Justice by virtue of such failure to pay.

Comments:

1. The Banking Act of 1923 provides that building and loan associations are not required to pay any part of the overhead expenses of the Department, but that the share properly apportionable to them is to be paid out of general appropriations for that purpose by the Legislature. The appropriation for the overhead expenses of the Department apportionable to building and loan associations, made by the 1931 Session of the Legislature on the basis of the 1929-30 figures, is $121,000.00 for the biennium, i. e. $60,500.00 per year. The total assets of building and loan associations in Pennsylvania at that time were $1,371,223,429.00. Thus, with these figures as a basis, the average apportionment to each building and a loan association for overhead expenses would be $0.044 per $1,000.00 of assets.

Building and loan associations are private corporations organized for profit and the costs of supervising them should be paid by them and not by the taxpayers, just as in the case of banks, trust companies, and savings banks. The average annual cost of $0.044 per $1,000.00 of assets can hardly be asserted to be a prohibitive burden.

2. The Banking Act of 1923 draws a distinction between regular examinations and special examinations, providing only in the case of the latter that the actual cost shall be paid by the particular institution. The practice of the Department is to assess the actual cost of all examinations and investigations, whether regular or special, upon the particular institution. This proposed section enacts this practise into law.

3. Section 9 (b) of the Banking Act of 1923 contains two other provisos:

(1) providing for examination of building and loan associations at least once a year. This is irrelevant at this point and will be included in this draft as part of the article on examinations by the Department, and

(2) providing that the Secretary may, upon the request of any building and loan association, appoint a certified public accountant instead of an examiner of the Department to make the annual examination. The Department has sanctioned this method only once. The provision serves no purpose, suggests an undesirable practise, and is consequently omitted in this draft.

ARTICLE III

RESTRICTIONS UPON DEPARTMENT AND EMPLOYES THEREOF

Section 301. Relationships of Employes of Department with Institutions; Penalty.—A. Neither the Secretary, nor any deputy, examiner, clerk, or other employe of the Department shall be an officer, director, trustee, manager, employe, or shareholder of, or directly or indirectly have any pecuniary interest in, any institution; nor shall he,[1] after becoming Secretary, deputy, examiner, clerk, or other employe of the Department,[2] directly or indirectly receive from any institution or from any officer, director, or employe thereof, any sum of money or other property, whether as a gift, credit, loan, or otherwise. However, the Secretary, or any deputy, examiner, clerk, or other employe of the Department may secure from any institution, a mortgage loan upon his own home, upon the same terms and in the same manner as are provided by law for mortgage loans by such institutions upon real property and as are customarily imposed and followed by the institution making such loan.[3]

This section shall not be construed to prohibit the Secreary, deputy, examiner, clerk, or other employe from becoming a depositor in any institution.[4]

B. A violation, by the Secretary, deputy, examiner, clerk, or other employe, of the prohibitions of this section shall constitute sufficient ground for his removal from office. In addition, the Secretary, deputy, examiner, clerk, or other employe committing such violation shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, upon conviction thereof, be subject to imprisonment for a period not exceeding six months, or a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both; he shall also be subject to a further fine of a sum equal to the amount of the gift, credit, loan, or other sum of money which he has directly or indirectly received in violation of this section.[5]

Banking Act 1923, Section 5 (b); Banking Law (New York) Article II, Section 15; 12 USCA Title 12, Section 593.

COMMENTS:

1. This provision is new. Under the Banking Act 1923, only examiners are prohibited from borrowing from institutions. However, it seems desirable to extend this prohibition to all employes equally.

2. Whenever any person becomes a member or employe of the Department, it seems clear that he should drop any pecuniary interest he may have in any institution. However, there seems less reason to require him to pay off loans not yet due. Therefor, the words "after becoming Secretary, deputy, clerk, or other employe of the Department," are added, in the case of loans, gifts, or credits.

3. The New York law, which is one of the very few as strict in its provisions as this proposed section, makes this exception also. It seems desirable, and the addition of a criminal provision renders it less liable to violation.

4. Although it has always been assumed, under the present law that an employe could be a depositor in a bank or trust company subject to the supervision of the Department, the proviso that he may be is added in this draft for purposes of accuracy, since literally, a depositor is "pecuniarily interested" in the institution in which he is a depositor.

5. The criminal portions of this proposed section are based upon the provisions of federal law. The seriousness of the consequences which may result from the acceptance of loans or gratuities by employes of the Department is so great that to render such acts criminal offenses seems justified. The federal act goes even further, permitting a maximum imprisonment of one year rather than six months, and a maximum fine of $5,000.00 rather than $1,000.00.

Section 302. Disclosure of Information Forbidden; Penalty; Exceptions.—A. Neither the Secretary, nor any deputy, examiner, clerk, or other employe of the Department shall publish or divulge to anyone other than the Governor, the Department of Justice, the Department of Revenue, or the Department of the Auditor General,' any information contained in or ascertained from any examination or investigation made by the Deuartment, or any letter, report, or statement sent to the Department, or any other paper or document in the custoday of the Department, except when the publication or divulgement of such information is made by the Department pursuant to the provisions of this act[2] or of any other law of this Commonwealth,[3] or when the production of such information is required by subpoena or other legal process of a court of competent jurisdiction,[4] or when it is used in prosecutions or other court actions instituted by the Department.

B. A violation of the provisions of this section by the Secretary, or by any deputy, examiner, clerk, or other employe shall be sufficient ground for his removal from office. In addition, the Secretary, deputy, examiner, or other employe committing such violation shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, upon conviction thereof, be subject to imprisonment for a period not exceeding thirty days,[5] or a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or both.

Comments:

1. It seems clear that disclosure to the governmental departments enumerated should be permitted. Each, under The Administrative Code, has the power of subpoena anyway and could therefore procure the information. In addition, it seems that these departments could today, even in the absence of statute procure this information.

2. Section 404D of this draft contains as instance in which the Department is required to disclose such information, and Section 405 contains instances in which it is permitted to do so.

3. The Banking Act 1923 provides for disclosure only in cases for which provision is made "by this Act." The words "or by any law of this Commonwealth" have been substituted in this draft in order to include disclosures permitted by any act of the Legislature.

4. Even in the absence of a permissive statute it seems that a bank examiner complying with a subpoena duces tecum is not amenable to a prosecution for disclosure in violation of law, see the opinion of the Attorney General in In re Schaeffer, 19 Dist. 647 (1910).

5. The Banking Act 1923 provides removal from office as the only consequence of disclosure in violation of this section. The possible consequences of such disclosure seem to justify the addition of an imprisonment of thirty days, or a fine of $1,000.00 or both, as the possible punishment for violation of this proposed section.

ARTICLE IV

EXAMINATIONS BY AND REPORTS TO THE DEPARTMENT

Section 401. Examinations of Institutions.—A. The Department shall examine all[1] institutions thoroughly at least once each year, and more frequently if it deems such action necessary or advisable to safeguard the interests of depositors, other creditors, or shareholders of such institutions.[2] This examination shall include a complete review of the property, assets, and resources of the institution; the loans and discounts made by it and the collateral deposited with it as security for such loans; the mode of conducting its affairs; the investment of its funds; the interest taken in its affairs by its officers, directors, and employes if a corporation, or its employes and the partners or individuals owning it if a person; its compliance with the law, and with the terms of its charter or license if it has either; and any other matters, bearing any relation to its condition, which the Department shall prescribe.

The Department may also make special examinations or investigations of any institution at any time the Secretary deems such action necessary or advisable to protect depositors, other creditors, or shareholders thereof.

B. The Department, when requested in writing by a person subject to its supervision, or by the board of directors or the holders of a majority of the shares of capital stock of a corporation subject to its supervision, shall examine or investigate the affairs and condition of such institution. However, this provision shall not be construed to mean that such person, directors, or shareholders shall have any greater right to require the Department to disclose to them the results of any such examination or investigation, than they have in the case of any regular examination or investigation.[3]

C. The Department, upon the receipt of notice from the Insurance Commissioner, that he has become receiver of a corporation or person, any branch of the business of which is subject to the supervision of the Department of Banking, shall examine or investigate the affairs and condition of such institution, in order to determine whether any action should be taken by the Department of Banking, pursuant to the provisions of this act.[4]

D. Examinations or investigations shall be made by the Secretary, or by qualified examiners or other qualified employes designated for that purpose by the Secretary or by his duly authorized deputy, and empowered, in writing, by the Department to make examinations or investigations of institutions.

E. In connection with any examination or investigation, the Department shall have the power to issue subpoenas requiring the attendance of, or the production of pertinent books and papers by the officers, directors, agents, employes, or members respectively of any corporation or person which the Department is authorized under the provisions of this act, to examine. The Department shall also have the power to question such witness under oath or affirmation, and to examine such books and papers.

Any witness who refuses to obey a subpoena issued under this section, or who refuses to be sworn or affirmed, or to testify, or who is guilty of any contempt after summons to appear, may be punished as for contempt of court, for this purpose, an application may be made to any court of common pleas within whose territorial jurisdiction the offense was committed, for which purpose such court is hereby given jurisdiction.[5]

Banking Act of 1923, Section 13; Banking Act 1923, Section 14, amended by Act of May 5, 1927, P. L. 762, Section 5.

Comments:

1. The Act of May 20, 1889, P. L. 246, Section 24 provides that the Auditor General (Secretary of Banking) and the court of common pleas of the county in which the institution is carrying on business shall cause every savings institution incorporated under that act to be examined once in two years. That act is probably superseded by Section 14 (a) of the Banking Act 1923 providing for annual examinations of all institutions under the supervision of the Department.

In any event, there seems to be no reason why savings institutions should not be examined by the Department at least once in each year. They are examined by the Department at least once in each year at the present time and the continuance of this practice is provided for in this draft.

2. A number of jurisdictions require a minimum of two examinations each year, for example the following: Federal Government, 12 U. S. C. A. Section 481, Kansas, L. 1897, ch. 47, Section 23 as amended by L. 1927, ch. 88, Section 4; Maryland, Laws of 1910 Ch. 219, Section 7, Laws of 1912, Ch. 194, Section 7, Laws of 1918, Ch. 33, Section 7, Laws of 1920, Ch. 268, Section 7; Michigan, Act 66 P. A. 1929, Section 42; New York, Banking Law, Article II, Section 39; Ohio, Banking Act of 1919, Sections 710-19; Oregon, L. 1925, ch. 207, Section 18, p. 307; Texas, 1st C. S. 1929 H. B. No. 94, Section 6.

Some states do not specify any minimum number of examinations but allow absolute discretion to the Department to examine whenever it deems examination necessary, for example see New Jersey, Laws of 1891, Chapter 6, Section 23 and Laws of 1899, Chapter 174, Section 21.

However, it seems advisable to retain substantially the same provision a sis contained in the Banking Act 1923 under which the Department is required to examine institutions thoroughly at least once a year and as much more frequently as the Department deems necessary. Whatever its condition, every institution ought to be examined at least once a year. In addition there should be wide discretion to examine more frequently in particular instances.

The specific provision that the Department has dicretion to make thorough examinations more than once a year has been added to make the existence of this power perfectly clear. However, this act cannot be said to accord to the Department a new power, since it has never been disputed that the Department, under the Banking Act 1923 may make "regular" examinations more than once a year. Accordingly, the Department at the present time bases the frequency of its "regular" examinations on the general condition of the institution, some institutions being examined regularly once in each nine-month period, some even twice in each year. This plan gives adequate protection where it is needed, without imposing useless expense on institutions for which one examination a year suffices.

Many states have provisions which, like this draft, require the Department to examine at least once a year, it being implied that it may do so more frequently in its discretion, for example the following: Connecticut, Gen. Stat. Section 3868, amended P. A. 1931, Section 506 (a); Illinois, Act of June, 23, 1919, amended by Act of June 28, 1923 and Act of June 4, 1929, Section 8; Massachusetts, Gen. Laws, Chap. 167, Section 2; Michigan, (Trust Companies), Act 143, P. A. 1899, Section 18; North Carolina, Chap. 34, Art. 1, R. S. 1929, Code of 1931, Chap. 5, Art, 8, Section 223 (f); Wisconsin Laws, Chap. 220, Section 220.04 (1).

3. The provision for examinations upon request by the Board of Directors or of the holders of a majority of the shares of a corporation, or upon request of a person, subject to the supervision of the Department, is new. The Banking Law of Wisconsin, Chapter 220, Section 220.04, provides for such examination upon request of the Board of Directors of a bank. The Banking Act of Oregon, Chapter 1, Section 22-408, provides for such examination upon request of the Board of Directors or the holders of a majority of the shares of a corporation, provided that the superintendent of banks deems such examination desirable. This draft, like the Wisconsin law, makes such examination mandatory. It seems desirable to provide that where a majority of the Board of Directors or of the shareholders of a corporation, or where a person, subject to the supervision of the Department, deems an examination necessary, the Depart should be placed under a duty to make it.

The rules governing the disclosure of such examinations or investigations should be no different from those controlling the disclosure of the results of any examination or investigation made by the Department. It is to preclude the interpretation that this clause is introduced in order that the shareholders of the corporation, could obtain the results of the examination or investigation that this proviso has been added. The sole benefit to the shareholders requesting the examination or investigation should be the assurance that the Department is fully acquainted with the condition of the institution.

4. This provision is new. As stated in footnote 3 to Section 201 of this draft, it is planned in the proposed Insurance Department Code to place the power of supervision over the businesses of insuring titles, guaranteeing mortgages, etc., in the Insurance Department. Consequently, it is conceivable that the Insurance Commissioner will become receiver of such branches of the business of an institution which also does a banking or trust business. The proposed Insurance Department Code will provide for the giving of notice of such fact to the Department of Banking. This proposed provision states the duty of the Department upon receipt of such notice.

5. Section 520 of The Administrative Code of 1929 contains substantially the same provisions as this proposed paragraph. However, there is considerable doubt as to the constitutionality of the provisions of The Administrative Code as applied to the situations contemplated by this proposed section. Therefore, it is expressly included here.

Section 402. Examination of Corporations or Persons Affiliated with Institutions.—For the purpose of determining the condition of, and obtaining full information about, an institution, the Department may examine and investigate the property, assets, books, papers and affairs of any corporation or person affiliated with such institution. A corporation or person shall be deemed to be affiliated with an institution for the purposes of this section, if

(1) It is owned, directly or indirectly, by such institution:

(2) It owns, directly or indirectly, such institution; or

(3) It is owned, directly or indirectly, by the same person or corporation which owns directly or indirectly, such institution; or

(4) The election of a majority of its board of directors is controlled, directly or indirectly, by any instrumentality, agency or arrangement that controls, directly, or indirectly, the election of a majority of the board of directors of such institution; or

(5) A majority of its directors or a majority of the members of the executive commitete of its board of directors are also directors of such institution; or

(⅙6) Members of its board of directors constitute a majority of the board of directors or a majority of the executive committee of the board of directors of such institution; or

(7) Substantially all of its principal executive officers constitute a majority of the board of directors of any institution, or comprise all or substantially all of the executive officers of any institution; or

(8) Its board of directors is composed of executive officers of any such institution; or

(9) It dominates or controls, in whole or in part, the business or policy of such institution, either by contract or otherwise; or

(10) Its business or policy is dominated or controlled, in whole or in part, either by contract or otherwise, by such institution:

Provided, however, that the Department shall not have power to examine any corporation or person as an affiliated corporation or person under this section, unless (1) it either directly or indirectly owns an institution, or (2) within the preceding two-year period business transactions or relations existed between such corporations or person and the institution, or (3) the institution within the preceding two-year period had outstanding loans secured in whole or in part by shares of stock or securities of such corporation or person, or by any property in which such corporation or person was in any way or to any extent interested.

For the purposes of this section, the ownership of more than fifty per centum of the total number of shares voted upon at the last meeting of the shareholders of a corporation for the election of its directors shall be deemed to be ownership of such corporation.

Shares of stock held in the name of a nominee of any corporation for the benefit of such corporation shall be deemed to be shares owned or controlled by the corporation.

Comments:

1. This section is new in Pennsylvania. Although very considerably shortened, it has substantially the same provisions as those contained in the New York law. The experience of the Department has been that where corporations or persons are as closely affiliated with institutions as those described in this proposed section, the examination of such corporations or persons is frequently absolutely essential to arriving at an accurate determination of the condition of the institution with which they are affiliated.

The laws of many states permit the Department to examine affiliated corporations or persons. However, only the New York law carefully defines just what shall constitute such affiliated corporations or persons. This seems desirable and also seems to meet more clearly the requirements of "due process of law". The power to examine affiliated corporations or persons is carefully restricted by the language of the proviso in this proposed section.

Section 403. Examination of Corporations or Persons Having Business Relations with an Institution.—Whenever it shall appear to the Department that the examination of the books, papers, and affairs of a corporation or person, which it has no power by law to examine and which has business transactions or relations with an institution, would materially aid the Department in determining the condition of such institution, it shall have the power after giving notice to such corporation or person to petition the court to issue an order to such corporation or person to permit its books, papers, and affairs to be examined by the Department. After allowing the corporation or person at least five days in which to show cause why the petition should not be granted, and upon satisfactory proof by the Department that the circumstances set forth in this section and justifying such an order are present, the court shall have the power to issue the order petitioned for.

Comments:

1. This section is new in Pennsylvania.

Frequently the financial condition of an institution is based very largely upon the condition of some corporation or person with whom it does business, for example, its principal debtor. No examination of such institution would be very significant without an examination of such corporation or person. This proposed section, therefore, introduces a provision which permits such corporation or person to be examined. The Banking Law of New York contains a similar provision. However, sufficient safeguards have been included in this proposed section to prevent and arbitrary abuse of power of the Department.

Section 404. Reports to Department; Publication; Penalties.—A. Every institution, except building and loan associations, shall send to the Department at least twice each year, and more frequently if the Department shall so order,[1] a complete report of its condition, exhibiting in detail under appropriate headings the resources and liabilities of the institution. Every building and loan association shall send such a report to the Department once each year, unless the Department orders more frequent reports.

The Department may also require special reports on the condition or, or any particular facts concerning, any institution at any time the Secretary deems it necessary or advisable for the protection of the depositors, other creditors, or shareholders thereof.

B. The form of all reports, the information to be contained in them, and the date on which they shall be due[2] shall be prescribed by the Department. The reports shall be verified by the oath or affirmation of the president, cashier, secretary, treasurer, or other managing officer of a corporation, or by one of the firm in the case of a partnership or other unincorporated association, or by the banker if an individual. In the case of a corporation, the report shall also be attested as correct by the signatures of at least three of its directors or trustees.

C. Every institution except building and loan associations, shall publish during each year, in a newspaper or newspapers in the manner provided by this act, abstract summaries of any two of its reports designated for this purpose by the Department and shall send proof of such publication to the Department. Such publication shall be required only once in a newspaper of general circulation, and, in first and second class counties, once in a legal newspaper. Building and loan associations shall not be required to publish any abstract summaries of reports.

D. The Department shall[3] furnish to anyone requesting it, upon payment of a reasonable fee to be fixed by the Department, an abstract summary of any report then in its possession, of any building and loan association subject to its supervision, showing the assets, liabilities, receipts, and disbursements of such building and loan association.

E. Any institution which fails to make or publish any report, or to furnish any proof of publication, in accordance with the provisions of this section, shall pay to the Department a penalty of one hundred dollars for each day after the time fixed by the Department for filing such report, making such publication, or furnishing such proof of publication, but the Department may, in its discretion, relieve any institution from the payment of such penalty, in whole or in part, if good cause be shown to it for the failure of such institution to file or publish the report or to furnish proof of publication thereof. If an institution fails to pay a penalty from which it has not been relieved, the Department may, through the Department of Justice, maintain an action at law to recover it.

Comments:

1. The Banking Act 1923 provides that institutions "shall make and render to the Secretary not less than two or more than five reports" each year. It places no limitation on the number of "special reports" which the Department may require. This draft provides that the Department shall require at least two reports each year, and as many more as it deems necessary or advisable. There is no reason why there should be a limitation on the number of reports the Department may demand any more than on the number of examinations it may make.

2. The Banking Act 1923 provides that the report "shall be transmitted to him [the Secretary] within five days or such further time as he may, in his discretion, allow, after the receipt of a request or requisition thereof from him." This seems rather a matter for departmental rule and regulation. In addition the length of time will vary depending on the type of report called for. Therefore no specific time is mentioned in this draft.

3. The Act of May 12, 1931, P. L. 112, authorizes the Department to supply summaries of the reports of building and loan associations at a nominal price. That amendment says: "The Department of Banking.....may furnish.....the.....statement of any building and loan association in its possession." This seems to limit the authority of the Department to the supplying of building and loan statements only in the case of associations of which the Secretary has taken possession. Probably, however, the words "in its possession" were intended to refer to the statement in the possession of the Department. In any event, the Department today supplies the statement of the condition of any building and loan association under its supervision to anyone requesting it, at the price of $1.00 per copy. This proposed section has been framed in a manner not only to enact into law the present practice of the Department, but to require such disclosure when requested.

Since summaries of building and loan reports are not required to be published in a newspaper, and particularly since the Department's handbook on building and loan associations is not published every year, it seems that there should be some mandatory provision compelling the Department to supply such information. Accordingly such a provision has been included in this draft.

The Act of May 12, 1931, permits only the supplying of "the most recently filed" report. There seems to be no reason why the Department should not supply any report in its possession.

Section 405. Disclosure of Information.—A. The Department may divulge to an institution, or to any officer, director, or shareholder thereof, any information contained in or ascertained from an examination or investigation of such institution made by the Department, or a report sent to its by such institution.[1]

B. The Department on the written request or consent of any institution, authorized in the case of corporations by resolution of its board of directors, may discuss with an advisory committee selected by the Department, or selected by such institution and approved by the Department, any matters relating to the financial condition of such institution.

C. The Department, on the written request or consent of any institution, authorized in the case of corporations by resolution of its board of directors, may furnish to the Federal Reserve Board, or to the Federal Reserve Bank of the district in which the place of business of any institution is located, any information in its possession relating to such institution.

D. The Department may, from time to time, with the approval of the Governor, cause to be published a summary of the condition of institutions under its supervision, with such information in relation to such institutions as in his judgment is desirable.

E. This section shall not be construed to require the Department to publish or divulge any such information, when in the opinion of the Department such publication or divulgement is undesirable.[2]

Banking Act 1923, Section 12, amended by Act of May 5, 1927, P. L. 762, and Act of May 12, 1931, P. L. 112.

Comments:

1. It seems apparent that the Department should have authority ot divulge to the institution itself, or to its directors or other members thereof, information concerning such institution. Yet no provision is made by the Banking Act 1923 for such disclosure. This draft specifically authorizes the divulgement of information to the particular institution concerned.

There are occasions upon which the results of an examination should be divulged to particular shareholders. For example, it may be desirable to disclose such information to certain shareholders who may be willing to pledge securities to ensure repairment of the impaired capital or surplus of such institution.

2. Subsection E is introduced to preclude any interpretation that any publication or divulgement authorized by this section is compulsory.

In a sense, Subsection E is unnecessary, since the use of the word "may" indicates that the provisions of this section are permissive and not mandatory. However, the consequences of a different interpretation, for example in the case of shareholders of an institution or in the case of the confidential portion of an examiner's report, are so great that the inclusion of this subsection seems desirable.

ARTICLE V.

ACTION BY DEPARTMENT AFTER OFFENSES BY, OR CHANGES IN CONDITION OF, INSTITUTIONS.

Section 501. [1]Orders by Department.—A. Whenever it shall appear to the Department that any institution is violating any provision of its charter, or of this act, or of any other law regarding the business of such institution, or that such institution is conducting business in an unsafe or unsound manner, the Department may issue a written order, under the seal of the Department, directing such institution to discontinue, within such period as shall be specified in the order,[2] such violation of law or such unsafe or unsound practice.

B. Whenever it shall apear to the Department that the capital of a corporation under its supervision has been impaired or reduced below the minimum required by law or below the amount required by its article of incorporation,[3] the Department may issue a written order, under the seal of the Department, directing such corporation to make good the deficiency within such period as shall be specified in the order, but not exceeding sixty days from the date of the issuance of such order.

C. Whenever it shall appear to the Department that the bond or the securities of a person under its supervision, which are required by law to be deposited with the Department, have depreciated in value so that their present value is below the minimum amount required by law, the Department may issue a written order under the seal of the Department directing such person to make good the deficiency within such period as shall be specified in the order, but not exceeding sixty days from date of issuance of the order.[4]

D. Whenever it shall appear to the Department that any institution is not keepin gits books and accounts in such manner as to enable the Department, with reasonable facility, to ascertain the true condition of the institution, the Department may issue a written order, under the seal of the Department, requiring such institution, within such period as shall be specified in the order, to open and keep such books as the Department may, in its discretion, reasonably determine are essential for the purpose of keeping accurate and convenient records of the transactions and accounts of such institution.[5]

E. Whenever any institution shall refuse to submit its records and affairs to a legally conducted examination or investigation by the Department, the Department may issue a written order, under its seal, requiring such institution to permit the Secretary, or other duly authorized examiner, to make such examination or investigation, within such period as shall be specified in the order.[6]

Comments:

1. Section 16 of the Banking Act 1923 provides that "the Secretary shall report to the Governor as provided by law." This section has been omitted in this draft. Section 504 of The Administrative Code 1929, provides for annual reports by the head of each department concerning the condition, management, and financial transactions, of the department, ..." It also provides as follows: "Except as otherwise in this act specifically provided, the reports required by this section shall be in lieu of all other reports heretofore required by law to be made by the several administrative departments,———either to the Governor or to the General Assembly." There seems to be no reason for the inclusion in this draft of a section corresponding to Section 16 of the Banking Act 1923.

2. The provision that the institution be required to cease the illegal or unsound practice within a specified period has been added in this draft, so that the institution may know the exact period of time permitted it to meet the requirements of the order. However, it was not deemed advisable to stipulate, in this proposed act, a maximum period, as is done in this case of impairment of capital or securities, since the time to be permitted to obey an order to cease an illegal or unsound practice will depend largely on the nature of the practice. This had best be left to the discretion of the Department.

3. The Act of 1923 speaks only of "impairment of capital." Although the term "impairment" has come to have a definite meaning in the law it seems desirable to define it briefly. Accordingly this has been done in this draft.

4. The Banking Act 1923 makes no specific provision for the powers of the Department in the event of a depreciation in value of the bonds or securities required to be deposited with the Department by certain private bankers, under the provisions of the Act of June 19, 1911, P. L. 1060, Section 1, as amended by Act of April 15, 1927, P. L. 106, and Act of April 26, 1929, P. L. 813. Under this act the Department, by implication, apparently has the authority to order the private banker to make good the deficiency. It is planned to retain this provision in the proposed Banking Code. It seems necessary, therefore, specifically to give the Department authority to issue such an order.

5. This subdivision is based upon the Banking Law of New York, Article II, Section 56.

Under existing law, the Department has no specific power, in the case of violations such as those provided for in Subsections D and E, except to take possession of the institution. Yet, as a practical matter, the offense is not usually sufficiently serious to justify such drastic action. These subsections are introduced to fill this gap.

6. See footnote 5 supra.

Section 502. Enforcement of Department's Order by Court.—Whenever an institution shall not comply with the terms of an order of the Department which has been lawfully issued, the Department, upon notice to the institution ,may, through the Department of Justice, petition the court for an order directing the institution to obey the order of the Department within such period as shall be fixed by the court.[1] Upon the filing of such petition, the court shall allow a rule to show cause why it should not be granted. Whenever, after a hearing upon the merits, it shall appear that the order of the Department was lawfully issued, the court shall grant the petition of the Department.[2]

Comments:

1. The Banking Act 1923 provides for the issuance of orders by the Department, but contains no provision for their enforcement, except the taking of possession by the Department. Frequently, however, the order disobeyed does not involve an infringement serious enough to justify such drastic action. For such situations, this proposed section authorizes the Secretary to petition the court for an order directing the institution to obey the order of the Department.

2. Section 10 of this proposed draft gives both the Department and the institution the right to appeal from an adverse decision

Section 503. Quo Warranto or Injunction Proceedings.—A. When any corporation subject to the supervision of the Department (1) has not paid in the capital and surplus required by law; or (2) has not in any manner exercised at least one of the powers conferred upon it by its articles of incorporation, within two years after the issuance of its certificate of incorporation[1] by the Department of State; or (3) has formerly exercised any of its corporate powers, but for a period of two years has not exercised at least one of them, the Department shall notify the Department of Justice of these facts, and the Department of Justice shall[2] then proceed by quo warranto against such corporation, in the manner provided by law, to oust it from its corporate powers and privileges.

B. When any institution violates any provision of its articles of incorporation, and refuses to obey a lawfully issued order of the Department that it cease such violation, the Department may[3] notify the Department of Justice of these facts, and the Department of Justice may then institute quo warranto proceedings against such corporation, in the manner provided by law.

C. When any person subject to the supervision of the Department has not, for a period of two years, done any act in pursuance of its banking powers, the Department shall notify the Department of Justice of these facts, and the Department of Justice shall then proceed against such person by the method provided by law to enjoin it permamently from doing a banking business in this Commonwealth.[4]

D. Quo warranto or injunction proceedings brought pursuant to the provisions of this section may be instituted either in the court of common pleas of the county in which the institution has its place of business or in the Court of Common Pleas of Dauphin County.[5]

Comments:

1. In the proposed Banking Code, the terms "articles of incorporation" and "certificate of incorporation" will be used in place of the terms "application for charter," "charter," and "letters patent" commonly used today. Therefore, the terms "articles of incorporation" and "certificate of incorporation" are used in this draft.

2. The provisions for quo warranto proceedings in the case of a corporation not paying in its capital and surplus or not exercising its powers for a period of two years, and for injunction proceedings in the case of a person not exercising any banking powers for two years, are mandatory, while the provisions for quo warranto proceedings in the case of a corporation which violates its articles of incorporation are permissive. The reason for making quo warranto proceedings permissive in the case of violations of articles of incorporation is that Section 503 provides the alternative remedy of proceeding at law or in equity to enforce an order of the Department.

3. See footnote 2.

4. The provisions of the Banking Act 1923 concern only corporations. Clearly the same rule with regard to failure to exercise their powers should apply to private bankers. However, the privilege of a private banker to do a banking business has not in general been regarded as the type of franchise which can be ousted by quo warranto proceedings. A permanent injunction seems to be the proper action.

It is planned to provide, in the proposed Banking Code, that the only unincorporated institutions permitted to do a banking business shall be those already in existence or their successors. Therefore, permanently enjoining any private banker who has not done any banking business for a period of two years does not impose the hardship which may at first appear.

5. The omission in this draft of Section 19 of the Banking Act 1923 necessitates this subsection. See Section 504, footnote 1 of this draft.

Section 504. Taking of Possession by Department.—A. The Department may take possession of the business and property of any institution subject to its supervision whenever it shall appear to it that such institution

(1) Is violating its articles of incorporation, any lawfully issued order of the Department, or any other law of the Commonwealth regulating its business;[1]

(2) Is conducting its business in an unauthorized or unsafe manner;

(3) Is in an unsafe or unsound condition to transact its business;

(4) In the case of a corporation, has an impairment of its capital or surplus below the minimum required by law or by its articles of incorporation; and in the case of a person, has not made good a depreciation in the value of the bonds or securities deposited with the Department, below the minimum required by law;

(5) Has suspended payment of its obligation,[2] and in the case of a building and loan association, has not, for a period of one year after due demand or notice by a shareholder, paid any matured share or any withdrawal;[4]

(6) Has refused to submit its records and affairs, or its officers or directors have refused to be examined upon oath or affirmation concerning its affairs, by the Secretary, or any other duly authorized examiner, in connection with any lawful examination or investigation;

(7) Requests the Department to take possession for the benefit of depositors and other creditors;[5]

B. Before taking possession, the Department shall conduct a hearing before the Department and the Department of Justice, which may be attended only by, and notice of which shall be given to, the officers and directors of the corporation, or the officers and individual owners of the person. After such hearing the Department may, if it first procures the consent of the Department of Justice, take possession:

Provided, however, that whenever immediate action shall be necessary in order to protect the interests of the depositors, other creditors, or shareholders of an institution, it may take possession without conducting a hearing, and without the approval of the Department of Justice.[6]

C. In addition, whenever the Secretary in his official capacity is appointed receiver by any court of equity, as provided by law, the Department shall take possession of the business and property, and the Secretary shall act as receiver, of the institution in the same way and with the same rights and limitation as when the Department takes possession in the customary manner provided by this act.[7]

Comments:

1. The Banking Act 1923, in setting forth the action which may be taken by the Deartment, disconnectedly provides in different sections for orders by the Department, proceedings by quo warranto, actions in law or equity, and taking of possession. In the listing of the grounds for taking possession, the language sometimes requires that the violation be in the face of a lawfully issued order and sometimes makes no mention at all of an order. Furthermore with regard to one ground for taking possession, the language sometimes requires that the viola-hearing and without the consent of the Department of Justice, while with regard to all the other grounds, it seems to be an absolute requirement that the hearing be held and the approval of the Attorney General obtained. An attempt has been made in this section, and in the preceding sections on orders and quo warranto, to classify the remedies and to set them forth clearly.

2. The reason for the inclusion of this provision is the same as that given under the section on orders.

3. It has been seriously considered whether insolvency should be included as a separate ground for taking possession.

The banking laws of approximately twenty states have been carefully studied. Some include insolvency as a ground; some do not. But only one or two define the word "insolvency"; none defines it satisfactorily.

It would seem that there is nothing to be gained from including insolvency as a ground. The ground: "It is an unsafe or unsound condition to transact its business" would permit the Secretary to take possession whenever what is commonly understood to be an insolvent condition exists. The ground: "Has suspended payment of its obligations" would clearly cover the situation where the bank actually is not meeting its current obligations.

These two elements are the ones mentioned whenever it is attempted to define insolvency. There are, it is true, certain advantageous provisions of the Insolvency Act of 1901 which do not under existing law apply. However, we are expressly including these provisions in this draft.

4. Under existing statutes and court decisions, there are certain conditions under which a building and loan association is not under obligation to pay a matured share or a withdrawal even after due demand or notice. Frequently the conditions justifying a failure to pay such matured share or withdrawal are temporary. A taking of possession by the Department under such conditions would certainly not be desirable. The affairs of an association may be temporarily frozen in such manner that within a few months it can meet its demands. It seems, however, that where such a condition has existed for a period of one year, the Department should have the power to step in and take possession if after a hearing attended by representatives of the institution, of the Department of Justice, and of the Department of Banking, it appears that the interests of creditors and shareholders will best be served by such action. This provision is, of course, permissive and not mandatory.

It seems necessary to make special mention of the withdrawal by a shadeholder since under Stone v. New Schiller Building and Loan Association, 302 Pa. 544 (1931), a withdrawing shareholder of a building and loan association is not a creditor.

5. This provision is new. See discussion under footnote 7.

6. The Banking Act 1923 permits the Secretary to proceed without a hearing and without the consent of the Attorney General only "when the institution is in an unsafe or unsound condition to continue business", provided that, in his opinion the protection of depositors and the public requires such peremptory action.

It seems clearly more logical to permit the Department to take possession on any ground without a hearing and without the consent of the Attorney General whenever an exigency requires immediate action. This is more logical and clear and yet seems to give no radically new power to the Department, since the Department can always, in such a situation, use the ground that "an unsafe or unsound condition" is present.

7. The Banking Act 1923 gives as a ground for the taking of possession by the Department that the institution is in the hands of a receiver appointed by any court or in any bankruptcy proceedings or of any assignee or trustee for creditors appointed by such corporation or person. With regard to the statement concerning the assignment by the institution to an assignee or trustee for creditors, it is provided later in this proposed Code and also in the proposed Banking Code that an innstitution cannot assign its property for the benefit of creditors. In lieu of this right, such institution is accorded the right to ask the Department to take possession of its property. Accordingly the seventh ground on which the Department may take possession, as stated in the above proposed section, is a request by the institution that the Department take possession.

With regard to bankruptcy proceedings, this of course could apply only to the business of private bankers. It appears certain that the United States bankruptcy laws supersede the State laws in this respect whether the Department takes possession before or after the adjudication of bankrupcty. The reference to bankruptcy is therefore omitted in this draft.

With regard to the provision as to the superseding of a receiver, it is later provided in this draft (Section 606) that no court can appoint anyone but the Secretary as receiver of an institution. In order to make the situation where this occurs uniform with all other situations in which the Secretary acts as receiver, it is provided in the above purposed section that whenever the Secretary is appointed receiver, the Department shall take possession and the Secretary shall act as receiver exactly the same as when the Department takes possession for any of the reasons outlined in this section.

Section 505. Suits by Department; Jurisdiction of Courts.—This act shall not be construed to limit the right of the Department in the course of its supervision of institutions to bring any suit in courts of law or equity, in pursuance of any remedy permitted by the laws of this Commonwealth, or by those of any other state in which the Department brings suit.[1]

Comments:

1. This clause is not in the Banking Act of 1923 or its amendments. It is introduced in this draft to preclude the interpretation that the inclusion of provisions for the issuance of orders, the institution of quo warranto proceedings, and the taking of possession of the business and property of institutions excludes the ordinary remedies provided by general law, for example injunction and specific performance.

However, the second paragraph of Section 18 of the Banking Act 1923 is omitted in this draft. It empowers the court before which the proceedings are instituted to grant or modify or revoke orders, to render judgment in accordance with the evidence, etc. This merely states the usual powers of courts and its inclusion in this draft would serve no purpose.

Section 19 is omitted in this draft. It conflicts with the definition in "court" in the general section on definitions, both in the Banking Act 1923 and in this draft. Where it is intended permit action to be brought in the Dauphin County Court, as well as in the court of the county in which the place of business of the institution is located, this has been provided for specifically.

ARTICLE VI.

TAKING OF POSSESSION BY SECRETARY AS RECEIVER AND SURRENDER THEREOF.

Section 601.[1] Taking Over Possession by Secretary as Receiver.—Whenever the Department takes possession of the business and property of an institution, the Secretary shall, by operation of law, simultaneously take over such possession from the Department and become receiver of such institution, subject to the provisions of this act. His official title, when thus in possession of the business and property of an institution, shall be receiver[1] of such institution.[2]

Comments:

1. This section is new. It seems necessary under the general terms of drafting of legislation now in force in this Commonwealth, under which powers and duties are respectively granted to and imposed upon departments rather than upon the officers in charge of such departments. Consequently the power to take possession is vested in the Department. However, it is difficult to conceive of the Department as a receiver. It is therefore provided that when the Departmnt takes possession, the Secretary shall, by operation of law, simultaneously take over possession and become receiver. Thereafter the rights and duties are granted to and imposed upon the Secretary as the receiver and not upon the Department.

2. The present title of the Secretary in possession of an institution is "William D. Gordon, Secretary of Banking of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in possession of the business and property of the X Bank and Trust Company." The title of the deputy appointed by him to take charge is "William D. Jones, Special Deputy as Agent." These titles probably grew out of a misconception of the legislative intent in the Banking Act 1923 and the acts which it supplanted. When the Banking Act 1923 uses the words "appoint one or more special deputies as agent or agents to assist him in continuing or liquidating," it was not intended that the words "special deputy as agent" should become the title of the person appointed.

The Secretary in fact acts as a receiver, and the deputy appointed by the Secretary to take charge of a particular institution, as a deputy receiver. These are the terms used in the case of liquidators of national banks and of the liquidating official of the banks of many other states. They are adopted in this draft.

Section 602. Posting of Notice of Possession.—The Secretary, upon taking possession of the business and property of an institution, as receiver, shall post notice of such fact on the front door of the institution.

Comments:

This section merely enacts into law a practice which is invariably followed at the present time. The inclusion of the requirement that a notice be posted seems desirable in order to render less questionable the constitutionality of the provisions later in this act that the status of all parties shall become fixed on the late of the taking of possession of the institution and that no liens or charges against its assets can thereafter be acquired. This notice, together with the other provisions for notice of various kinds, seems to make the provisions regarding liens meet the requirements of due process of law.

The laws of Maryland (Volumne 1, Article II, Section 2) likewise specifically require the posting of notice on the door of the institution.

Section 603. Notice to Insurance Commissioner.—Whenever the Secretary shall become receiver of an institution which engages in the business of insuring titles or guaranteeing bonds secured by mortgages, or which transacts any other business which is subject to the supervision of the Insurance Department, he shall inform the Insurance Department that he has taken possession of the business and property of such institution.

Comments:

This proposed section is new.

As stated in footnote 3 to Section 201 of this draft, it is planned in the proposed Insurance Code to place the power of supervision over the business of insuring titles, guaranteeing mortgages, etc., in the Insurance Department. Consequently, the Secretary as receiver would not take possession of such branches of an institution's business. It seems necessary, therefore, to provide for notice by the Secretary to the Insurance Department immediately on taking possession of an institution. The action to be taken by the Insurance Department, upon receiving such notice, will of course be provided in the proposed Insurance Department Code.

Section 604. Certificates of Possession; Filing.—A. The Secretary, upon taking possession of the business and property of an institution as receiver, shall fortwith, under the seal of the Department, prepare in duplicate a certificate, to be known as the certificate of possession, setting forth that he has become receiver of the institution. It shall state the name of the deputy receiver whom the Secretary, pursuant to the provisions of this act, appoints to take charge of the affairs of the institution, and shall set forth in detail the duties which he delegates to such deputy receiver.[1] If the Secretary does not appoint a deputy receiver prior to the date of the filing of the certificate of possession, or if he appoints a new deputy receiver or an additional one, or if he adds to the duties of the deputy receiver, he shall prepare, in duplicate, and file a supplement[2] to the certificate of possession.

B. The Secretary shall file the original certificates of possession and the original of any supplement thereto in his office in Harrisburg, and the duplicate certificate of possession and the duplicate of any supplement thereto in the office of the prohtonotary. The certificate of possession filed in the prothonotary's office, and any supplement thereto, shall be listed in the judgment index in the same of the institution as defendant and of the Secretary as plaintiff.

C. In addition the Secretary shall, as soon as possible, file a certified copy of the certificate of possession, and of any supplement thereto, in the office of the recorder of deeds in each county in the Commonwealth, or with the proper official in any other state or country in which any real property shall be situated, which belongs to the institution or title to which is in its name. Such copy shall be recorded in the current deed book, and shall be indexed in the grantors' index in the name of the institution and in the grantees' index in the name of the Secretary, or it shall be filed, indexed, or registered by whatever other method is provided by the law of the particular county, state, or country in which such real property is located.

Comments:

1. The provisions requiring a detailed statement of the duties, etc., of the deputy receiver are new. The deputy receiver is frequently empowered to execute deeds, satisfactions of mortgages, and other instruments dealing with real estate. The certificate should therefore state in detail the duties of the deputy receiver, in order that title insurance companies or others interested in checking his power to execute such instruments may do so by the records.

2. Section 24 of the Banking Act 1923 provides that "The Secretary may, by the certificate of taking possession . . . ., or by a subsequent certificate in like manner made and filed, appoint one or more special deputies as agent or agents." Because of the words "in like manner made and filed" the practice in appointing succeeding agents is to file a new certificate identical with the original one, except for the name of the new deputy. Consequently, the language has been changed in this proposed section to permit the filing of supplemental certificates. In addition, this proposed section enables the Secretary to file any change in the powers of the deputy receiver.

Section 605. In junction to Restrain Secretary.—Any institution of whose business or property the Secretary has taken possession as receiver, may, at any time within ten days after the Secretary has become receiver, apply to the court for an order requiring the Secretary to show cause why he should not be enjoined from continuing as receiver. Service may be made in such action by serving the Secretary personally, or by leaving a copy with the deputy in charge of his office in the Department, or by serving the deputy receiver appointed by the Secretary to manage the affairs of such institution. The court shall, after a hearing upon the merits, either dismiss the application or order the Secretary to surrender to the institution possession of its business and property,[1] but no such injunction shall issue where the Secretary has been appointed receiver by action of a court of competent jurisdiction, or by action of the institution itself, in accordance with the provisions of this act.[2]

Banking Act 1923, Section 23, as amended by Act of May 5, 1923, P. L. 762, Section 8.

Comments:

1. Section 23 of the Banking Act 1923 provides in detail that the reports on the basis of which the Secretary takes possession shall be prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated and that the prima facie effect of such reports must be overcome by proper proof before an injunction can be granted. This seems unnecessary. Article I, Section 9 of this draft, provides for the prima facie effect of such reports. A statement that such prima facie must be overcome by proper proof is merely a statement of hornbook law. Therefore these provisions are omitted in this draft.

2. This proviso is necessitated by the Sections 606 and 607 of this draft, which respectively prohibit the appointment by a court of anyone but the Secretary as receiver of an institution, and forbid any such institution from assigning its assets for the benefit of creditors to anyone but the Secretary. It seems clear that if the court legally appoints the Secretary receiver, or if he becomes receiver at the request of the institution, the institution cannot later seek an injunction.

Section 606. Power of Courts to Appoint Receivers.—No court shall appoint anyone but the Secretary as receiver of an institution. Whenever any court, at the instance of a depositor, shareholder, or other person entitled by law to institute such proceedings, shall determine that a receiver should be appointed, for any reason whatsoever, it shall appoint the Secretary as such receiver.[1]

When thus appointed receiver by a court, the Secretary shall serve in the same manner and with the same limitations, and he shall have the same rights, powers and duties as when he becomes receiver by operation of law and without appointment by any court. No court shall impose upon the Secretary as receiver any duties or restrictions which are in conflict with the procisions of this act.[2]

Comments:

1. Section 22 of the Banking Act 1923 provides that the Secretary shall supersede any receiver of an institution, appointed by any court. The section provides for the filing of the account of the superseded receiver and for the taking of possession by the Secretary. This section is omitted in this draft. There seems to be no justification for the circuity of precedure required by the Banking Act 1923. Under this draft the court will not have the power to appoint anyone but the Secretary as receiver. The Secretary will then serve as receiver under the same conditions and subject to the same limitations as those under which he serves as receiver when taking over possession from the Department.

2. This provision is introduced to preclude the interpretation that the court can, when it appoints the receiver, limit his powers as in the case of any other receiver it appoints.

Section 607. Taking of Possession upon Request of Institution.—No institution shall make a general assignment of its business and property for the benefit of its creditors, by the appointment of an assignee or trustee, or otherwise. In lieu of the power to make an assignment for the benefit of creditors, an institution may request the Department to take possession in the regular manner provided by law. In such cases the Department shall take possession and the Secretary shall take over such possession and become receiver in the same manner and subject to the same provisions of this act as when the Department takes possession of the business and property of an institution without the request of such institution.[1]

Comments:

1. This proposed section is new.

Section 22 of the Banking Act 1923 provides that the Secretary shall supersede any assignee or trustee for creditors appointed by an institution. In addition it stipulates the procedure which the Secretary shall pursue in supplanting such assignee or trustee. Here again it would seem to facilitate matters considerably to have the Secretary designated originally as the assignee or trustee, whereupon he shall serve as receiver, just as in the case of any other institution. This is the ultimate effect of the provisions of the Banking Act 1923, but the result is reached by a much more circuitous, and frequently more expensive, route.

Section 608. Surrender of Possession; Special Liquidations and Reorganizations.[1]—A. The Secretary may, upon conditions approved by him, surrender possession of an institution of which he has taken possession as receiver, at any time prior to final liquidation and distribution, under the following circumstances:

(1) He may surrender possession to the institution itself when he finds it to be in a safe and sound condition to resume its business;

(2) He may surrender possession to the institution itself when he is without funds to liquidate its business and property. In such case, the Secretary shall first accord to the shareholders, and the depositors or other creditors of the institution, a period of not less than two weeks in which to advance sufficient funds for the Secretary to liquidate the business. Where such funds are advanced, they shall be considered an expense of administration and shall be given the same preference in the distribution of assets as any other expenses of administration.[2] Where possession has been surrendered to an institution under such circumstances, the institution may not conduct any busines sexcept the liquidation of the assets. In the distribution of any moneys realized by the institution on its assets, it shall follow the same order and preference as is established by this act for distribution by the Secretary of of the assets of an institution of which he is in possession, as receiver.[3] Upon the approval of his account by the court, and upon the filing of the supplement to the certificate of possession, pursuant to the provisions of this section, the secretary shall be relieved of all duties with reference to such institution.[4] However, if the Department shall deem it advisable to resume possession of the institution at any time, it may do so in the same manner as is provided for the taking possession of any institution, in which case the Secretary shall again take over possession and become receiver, with all rights, powers, and duties granted to, or imposed upon the Secretary, as receiver by this act.[5]

(3) He may surrender to the institution itself or to any other corporation or person,[6] possession of all or part of the business, property, moneys, credits, or other assets of the institution of which he is in possession as receiver, to permit to be carried into effect a special plan of liquidation, reorganization, or rehabilitation which has been approved by the court and by (a) depositors and other creditors of the institution, to whom is due ninety per cent in amount, regardless of the number, of the claims stated in writing by the Secretary to be due to depositors and other creditors of such institution, and (b) the holders of a majority of the shares of stock of such institution, if a corporation, except that in the case of a building and loan association, the approval of the holders of eighty per cent of the shares of stock of such corporation shall be required.

However, the Secretary shall not authorize any decrease of capital by a corporation effected by the provisions of this section, except upon compliance by such corporation with the provisions of law as to such decrease.

B. Whenever the Secretary shall surrender possession under the provisions of this section, he shall forthwith, under the seal of the Department, prepare in duplicate a supplement to the certificate of possession setting forth in detail all the conditions and purposes of such surrender. He shall file the original of such supplement in his office in Harrisburg and the duplicate in the office of the prothonotary, where it shall be indexed in a manner which will, in so far as necessary, satisfy the prior record of the certificate of possession. He shall also file a certified copy of such supplement in the office of the recorder of deeds in each county in the Commonwealth, or with the proper official in any other state or country, in which any real property shall be situated, which still belongs to the institution or title to which is in its name or in the name of the Secretary as receiver of such institution.[8]

C. Whenever the Secretary shall, under the provisions of this section, surrender possession of the entire business and property of an institution of which he is in possession as receiver, he shall file in the court an account, which shall correspond to any other final account which he is required by this act to file. Such account shall be subject to exceptions by shareholders, or depositors, or other creditors, and to confirmation by the court, in the same manner as is provided by this act for any account filed by the Secretary as receiver.[9]

Comments:

1. The amendment of 1931, with great particularity, describes what really is one specific plan couched in terms generally enough to render the statute a general and not a special act. The amendment was apparently introduced to validate a special plan of reorganization contemplated for a particular institution. The plan, however, was never consummated. There seems to be no reason for reenacting all the details of this amendment. Consequently, most of them are omitted from this draft. No comment concerning such ommissions is made in these footnotes except where the reasons for such omission do not seem obvious.

The Act of June 14, 1923, P. L. 778, providing for reorganizations of building and loan associations was enacted to validate a special plan of reorganization contemplated for a partciular institution. That plan, too, was never consummated. The same procedure has been followed in this draft and in these footnotes with regard to this act as has been done in the case of the amendment of 1931, that is, only changes the reasons for which are not obvious are specifically mentioned in these footnotes.

2. This provision is new. Section 28 of the Banking Act 1923, as amended, provides only that the Secretary may surrender possession if there are not sufficient assets to meet expenses of liquidation. It seems that before surrendering such possession, the Secretary should accord to the interested parties the right to advance funds in order that the Secretary may continue liquidation. Then if they do not do so, there is only one course open to the Secretary. It seems clearly logical and equitable to accord to funds advanced in this manner the preferred status of expenses of administration.

3. This provision is new. It does not seem desirable to permit a surrender of possession for this reason and then to impose no restrictions on the institution, should it realize any cash on the assets. This proposed section, therefore, forbids a continuation of the business, permits liquidation of the assets, and requires that the institution shall distribute any moneys realized in the same order as provided by law, that is maintaining priorities, et cetera.

It does not seem desirable to provide for the enforcement of this provision any more than in voluntary liquidation. Any depositor or other creditor still has access to the courts for his remedy.

4. This provision is new. It seems clear that on surrendering possession on the ground of insufficient assets, the Secretary should be relieved of all duties with regard to such institution, just as in the case of voluntary liquidation.

5. This provision is new. It is merely permissive and is introduced so that, in the unusual event that the assets become worth something and the institution is not liquidating its affairs properly, the Department may take possession. It is a provision introduced for completeness to take care of a very unusual but nevertheless possible situation.

6. There is considerable doubt, under clauses (b) and (d) of the amendment of 1931, as to whether the Secretary may surrender possession only to the institution itself or whether he may transfer possession to some other corporation or person. This fact is, therefore, specifically stated, in each case, in the above proposed section.

7. There is considerable doubt, under the amendment of 1931, whether a special plan of liquidation, rehabilitation, or reorganization must be approved by the shareholders of a corporation. Clause (b) requires that the plan be one "submitted by such corporation or person". This may include shareholders, but it has been interpreted to mean that action by the directors alone is sufficient. In any event, these words are omitted, since it seems of no importance, whatsoever, who "submits" the plan.

In the case of building and loan associations, it seems perfectly clear that assent of the shareholders should be required. The amendment of 1931 requires the assent of 51% of the shareholders of a building and loan association. It seems that, in the case of building and loan associations, any plan in order to be successful, should have the assent of more than a majority of the shareholders. The Act of June 14, 1923, P. L. 778, requires the assent of 70% of the shareholders. This was because in the case of the particular institution for which the particular plan was devised, the consent of 70% of the shareholders had been obtained. This draft provides for the assent of 80%.

This act provides for the assent of a majority of the shareholders of any other institution, that is, a bank, bank and trust company, or trust company. It seems desirable, in many cases, to give the shareholders some voice in any plan of liquidation or reorganization. Frequently, they have a contingent double liability, the exact amount of which may be dependent on whether or not the proposed plan is accepted; in other cases, at least the question of whether they ultimately realize anything at all on their shares may be involved. In many types of reorganization, it is conceivable that their constitutional rights may be infringed, unless they are given some voice.

8. This provision is substantially new. It seems clear that the Secretary should prepare and file such supplements to the certificate of possession. The Banking Act 1923 makes no provision for any record in the office of the recorder of deeds. Such record should be made so that the power to convey, or to perform any other acts with regard to, real property in the county is always perfectly clear on the face of the record.

9. Section 31, of the Banking Act 1923, as amended by Act of May 28, 1931, P. L. 193, Section 2, provides that once the Secretary takes possession of an institution as receiver, he shall continue such possession until one of several enumerated contingencies occur. These contingencies are all considered in other sections of that act. The section therefore seems superfluous.

ARTICLE VII.

RIGHTS, POWERS, AND DUTIES OF SECRETARY AS RECEIVER.

Section 701. Status of Secretary as Receiver.—The Secretary, when he has taken possession of the business and property of an institution, shall be an equity receiver, and, except as otherwise provided in this act, shall be responsible to the court in which the certificate of possession is filed.[1] His rights, power, and duties shall be those of a general[2] receiver appointed by any court of equity in this Commonwealth, except as such rights, powers, and duties are increased or limited by the provisions of this act. He shall be vested, in his official capacity, with all the rights, powers, and duties of such institution; with the title or the right to possession of all property to which the institution has title or the right to possession of all property to which the institution has title or the right to possession, including debts due, and liens and other security therefor; and with the institution's rights of action or redemption. This shall be so whether such property and debts due, such liens or other security therefor, or such rights of action or redemption, are held in the name of such institution, or in the name of some other corporation or person.

The Secretary shall be the representative of the creditors of the institution and shall be entitled, as such, to have vacated and set aside, for the benefit of the creditors, any judgment, execution, attachment, sequestration, payment, pledge, assignment, transfer, conveyance, or encumbrance, which could have been avoided by any of the creditors, or by which one creditor is given an unlawful preference over another.[3]

Comments:

1. It seems desirable to include in this draft a specific provision that the Secretary is an equity receiver, and that, except as otherwise provided in this Code, he is responsible to the court in which the certificate of possession is filed. It has always been assumed that such is the case, see Steel City Banking Company, 75 Pitts. 361 (1927). However, in General Baking Company v. Gordon, United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, as of September Term 1931, No. 6783, not yet reported, Judge Kirkpatrick, in taking jurisdiction of a bill against the Secretary of Banking, said:

"As to the jurisdictional question raised, I am satisfied that this court has jurisdiction. The Secretary of Banking is an administrative officer. His office exists by statute. He is appointed by the Governor and not by the court. He is not an equity receiver, and the mere fact that the statute provides that he shall have the rights, powers and duties of an equity receiver does not make him one, nor does the fact that the Common Pleas Courts of the state are given jurisdiction to make certain orders and decrees relating to the conduct of the liquidation and rights in the funds does not mean that the fund is in the custody of the court. That depends entirely upon the nature of the office of the liquidating officer and the power from which he derives his authority."

2. The words "general receiver" are used, since frequently equity receivers are appointed for limited purposes, for example for the foreclosure of a corporate mortgage, or for the custody of moneys pendente lite.

3. Section 29 also provides for the transfer of burdensome assets. This subject is considered in Section 714 of this draft.

Section 702. Appointment of Deputy Receivers, Counsel, and Other Assistants.—The Secretary may appoint one or more official agents to be known as deputy receivers, to assist him in the management, reorganization, consolidation, liquidation, or distribution of the assets and affairs of any institution of which he has taken possession as receiver. The Secretary may delegate to such deputy receiver any duty imposed upon, or any right or power granted to, him as receiver.[1] The Secretary may also employ such other assistants as he deems necessary, including such deputy attorneys general, special deputy attorneys general, assistant deputy attorneys general, or other attorneys as may be appointed by the Department of Justice and assigned to the Secretary for the handling of any legal business pertaining to the affairs or property of such institution.[2] The Secretary may also retain to assist him in the management, reorganization, consolidation, liquidation, or distribution, any officer or other employe of the institution of which he has taken possession.[3]

Reference:

Banking Act 1923, Section 24.

Comments:

1. The inclusion of this specific power to delegate seems necessary since certain of the duties of the Secretary as receiver require a great amount of discretion and might consequently, unless specifically provided to the contrary, be held by some courts to be non-delegable.

2. The Banking Act 1923 provides that the Secretary may employ such legal counsel as he deems proper. However, under The Administrative Code the appointment of all legal counsel must be made by the Department of Justice. An amendment of 1931 to the Banking Act 1923 specifically provides for such procedure in the case of open banks.

3. The provision as to the employment of officers or employes of the institution seems superfluous. It is included in this draft, however, since it is in the Banking Act 1923 and its omission in the proposed act might be regarded by the courts as being significant.

Section 703. Exercise of Discretion by Secretary.—A. Whenever, under this act, discretion as to whether, or the manner in which, to exercise a power or fulfill a duty is vested in the Secretary in possession of an institution as receiver, he shall, after such examination or investigation as shall seem appropriate under the circumstances, take such action as he deems to the best interests of the depositors or other creditors, and, in the case of building and loan associations, also of the shareholders of such institution.[1]

B. The word "the best interest of the estate," whenever used in this act, shall be construed to refer to the best interests of the depositors or other creditors, and in the case of building and loan associations, also of the shareholders of such institution.[2]

COMMENTS:

1. This provision is new. Throughout the Banking Act 1923, it is frequently provided that the Secretary, in possession of an institution, shall perform an act in the manner he deems to the best interests of depositors or other creditors. In other sections, it seems to be implied that this is the case. It seems desirable to include in this draft the above general provisions to this effect and to eliminate such statements in individual sections.

2. This provision is introduced so that the words "to the best interests of the estate" can be substituted for the more cumbersome "to the best interests of the depositors or other creditors, and in the case of building and loan associations, also of the shareholders of such institution."

Section 704. Suspension or Continuation of Business.—The Secretary is authorized, upon taking possession of the business and property of an institution, as receiver, to continue or to suspend the business for such period as he may deem necessary to enable him to determine whether to surrender such possession to the institution, to authorize a merger or consolidation, to liquidate the affairs of such institution, or to take such other action as is authorized by law. During such period, he shall[1] take any action he deems necessary to conserve the assets and business, or to protect the best interests of the estate.

Reference:

Banking Act 1923, Section 27.

Comments:

1. The scope of this section has been somewhat broadened. In addition, the word "may" in the Banking Act 1923 has been changed to "shall" in this draft. It seems that the action of the Secretary should here be mandatory and not permissive.

Section 705. Determination to Liquidate; Filing of Supplemental Certificates.[1]—The Secretary shall, within six months after the date on which he takes possession of any institution as receiver,[2] determine whether or not to liquidate the business and property and distribute the assets of the institution. If he shall determine to liquidate, he shall forthwith, under the seal of the Department, prepare in duplicate a supplement to the certificate of possession, setting forth this fact. He shall file the original supplement in his office in Harrisburg and the duplicate in the office of the prothonotary.[3] He shall then proceed to liquidate the affairs of the institution with as much dispatch as shall appear to be expedient under the circumstances.[4]

Comments:

1. This proposed section is entirely new. The Banking Act 1923 provides for certain acts the Secreary may or shall do prior to the determination to liquidate, and certain acts which he may or shall do after such determination. There is no provision, however, dealing specifically with such determination.

2. Under existing law, there is no limitation on the time within which the Secretary must determine to liquidate. It seems clear that some limitation should be imposed. Six months seems a reasonable period within which to compel the Secretary to make such a determination.

It should be noted that Section 608 provides that even after such determination, the Secretary may, at any time before final liquidation and distribution, surrender possession pursuant to a special plan of liquidation, reorganization, or rehabilitation, properly approved.

3. To keep the records in his office and in the court complete, it seems clear that the Secretary should formally note his determination to liquidate and should file record of it. No provision is included for such filing in the offices of the recorder of deeds of counties in which the institution has real property, since Section 706, in effect, provides that the Secretary's powers with regard to such real property, shall be the same both before and after such determination to liquidate. Consequently, there seems to be no reason for adding the burden and expense of such filing.

4. Under present law, there is no specific mandatory provision requiring the Secretary to liquidate. This probably can be implied. It seems desirable, however, expressly to place such a duty upon him, allowing him discretion, for example, as to the expediency of liquidating certain assets at a given time.

Section 706. Powers and Duties before and after Determination to Liquidate.—Except where otherwise specifically provided, all powers and duties granted by this act to the Secretary in possession of the business and property of an institution as receiver, may be exercised by him both before and after his formal determination, pursuant to the provisions of this act, to liquidate the affairs of such institution.

Comments:

The Banking Act 1923 grants the Secretary, in possession, many powers, the carrying out of which really constitute partial liquidations; for example, the power to sell real estate and other property of the institution. The probable intention of the Legislature was that such powers be exercised both before and after the determination to liquidate, but title insurance companies have taken varying stands on the question. A specific provision, therefore, seems necessary.

Section 707. Inventory and Appraisement.—A. When the Secretary has taken possession of the business and property of an institution, as receiver, he shall forthwith prepare in duplicate[1] a complete and detailed inventory of the assets of such institution. The inventory shall be verified by oath or affirmation of the Secretary or other person making it.

B. As soon as expedient after taking possession,[2] the Secretary shall cause a complete appraisement of the assets of the institution to be made in duplicate, under oath or affirmation, but not less than two nor more than three[3] disinterested appraisers selected by him. The value of the assets shall be computed in such appraisement as of the date on which the Secretary took possession.[4]

C. The original and duplicate of both the inventory and the appraisement shall be filed in the office of the Secretary in Harrisburg. However, if the Secretary shall determine, in accordance with the provisions of this act, to liquidate the affairs of the institution, he shall, immediately after such determination to liquidate, file the duplicate inventory and the duplicate appraisement in the office of the prothonotary.[5]

Banking Act 1923, Section 26; Banking Act 1923, Section 38, as amended by Act of May 5, 1927, P. L. 762, Section 17.

Comments:

1. The Banking Act 1923 requires only one copy of the inventory and provides that this copy shall be filed in the office of the Secretary.

The great majority of banking laws of other states which have been examined require two copies, one in the office of the Secretary and one to be filed with the prothonotary or other public official. For examples, see California, Article 5, Section 136; Louisiana, Act 300 of 1910, Section 3; Massachusetts, General Laws, Chapter 167, Section 27; New York, Article II, Section 66; Ohio, Section 710-93; Wisconsin, Chapter 220, Section 220.08, clause 6.

2. Section 38 of the Banking Act 1923, as amended, provides for no appraisement until after the Secretary has determined to liquidate. This draft provides for an appraisement as soon after the taking of possession as is expedient.

Frequently, the Secretary has to make what practically amounts to an appraisement in order to determine whether or not it is desirable to liquidate. Then, if he determines to liquidate, he must, in order to meet the requirements of the Banking Act 1923 compile and complete another appraisement. This exact procedure had to be followed in the case of the Mountain City Trust Company.

The appraisement should be made as soon as possible, in order that the Secretary may be in possession of all the information available, before he determines what to do with the business and property of the institution.

3. Section 38 of the Banking Act of 1923, as amended, provides for two appraisers. The provision permitting an extra appraiser has been introduced in this draft in order to expedite the appraisement in the case of very large institutions.

4. This provision is new. Heretofore the law has set no particular time as of which the value shall be determined. Since the status of all parties and their rights are determined as of the date of taking possession, this seems the logical date to use as the standard in making the appraisement.

5. However, it seems undesirable to provide that either the inventory or the appraisement shall become a matter of record before the Secretary has decided to liquidate, since there is then frequently a possibility that the institution will resume business. Such a possibility might be seriously endangered by premature publicity.

Section 708. Issuance of Subpoenas; Questioning of Witnesses.—A. In order to enable the Secretary to secure a complete inventory and appraisement, or to carry out any other right, power, or duty, granted to or imposed upon him, as receiver by this act, the Secretary shall have the power to issue subpoenas requiring the attendance of, or the production of pertinent books and papers by, any officer, director, agent, employe, or member respectively of the corporation or person of which he has taken possession or any other individual whom the Secretary believes to have information of importance regarding the affairs of the institution. He shall also have the power to question such witnesses under oath or affirmation, and to examine such books and papers.

The Secretary may delegate to the appraisers appointed by him, or to any other duly authorized agent, the power granted to him as receiver under this section.

Any witness, who refuses to obey a subpoena issued under this section, or who refuses to be sworn or affirmed, or to testify, or who is guilty of any contempt after summons to appear, may be punished as for contempt of court, by the court in which the certificate of possession of the institution, concerning the affairs of which the witness was subpoenaed, is filed.

B. Every witness called by the Secretary or his duly authorized agent, in connection with the affairs of an institution in possession, shall be entitled to the fees and mileage customarily paid to witnesses in the courts of the county in which the institution has its place of business.

Comments:

As pointed out in footnote 5 to Section 401, there is some doubt as to the constitutionality of the sections of The Administrative Code of 1929 on subpoenas, administering of oaths or affirmations, etc., by departmental employes when applied to the situations arising under this act.

This proposed section is, however particularly necessary since it may be argued that the Secretary, as receiver, is not administrative official and therefore not even covered by The Administrative Code of 1929. The sections in The Administrative Code of 1929 which deal with subpoenas and questioning of witness under oath concern only "every administrative department, every administrative board and commission, every departmental administrative board and commission, every advisory board and commission, and the several workmen's compensation referees."

Section 709. Power of Court to Make and Enforce Orders.—The court in which the certificate of possession is filed shall sit as a court of equity.[1] It shall have the power, upon petition of the Secretary, to make and enforce any appropriate order to enable him, with the utmost dispatch, to discharge his duties in connection with the business and property of any institution of which he has taken possession, as receiver, pursuant to the provisions of this act

The court shall grant to the party against whom the order is sought, the right to appear within ten days after notice is given, to show cause why the order should not be made. The court shall have the power, at the end of the ten-day period, ex parte if the other party does not appear to show cause, or upon the merits, if the party does appear, to issue the aforementioned order.

Banking Act 1923, Section 30, as amended by Act of May 5, 1927, P. L. 762, Section 12.

Comments:

1. This provision is new. It seems clear that the court, just as in the case of any other receivership, sits as a court of equity. Nevertheless, the question has been raised and it is therefore specifically answered in this provision.

2. The provision as to the right of the defendant to appear to show cause is new. It seems necessary in order to assure due process of law to the party against whom the order is sought.

Section 710. Notice to Holders of Assets; Power of Court to Order Transfer.—A. Upon becoming receiver of any institution, the Secretary shall forthwith give notice in writing of such fact to all corporations and persons having custody or possession of any assets or other property which the institution of which he is receiver owns or to which it has the right to possession or custody for any purpose whatsoever.[1]

B. The court shall have the power, upon petition of the Secretary, to order any corporation or person which has custody or possession of assets or other property which belongs to the institution of which the Secretary is receiver or to which such institution shall have the right of custody or possession for any reason whatsoever, to transfer or convey such property to the Secretary and to execute and deliver any instrument necessary to accomplish that purpose.

The court shall grant to such corporation or person the right to appear within ten days after notice is given, to show cause why the order should not be made.[2] The court shall have the power, at the end of the ten-day period, to issue the aforementioned order, ex parte if the corporation or person does not appear to show cause, or upon the merits, if the corporation or person does appear.

Banking Act 1923, Section 25; Banking Act 1923, Section 30, as amended by Act of May 5, 1927, P. L. 762, Section 12.

Comments:

1. The provision for notice not only where the assets belong to the institution but also where the institution has the right to possession or custody for any purpose whatsoever, is new. (See next note for reasons for its inclusion.)

2. The provisions (a) as to orders concerning property to which the institution has not title but has the right to custody or possession, and (b) as to the right of the holder of the property to show cause why the order should not issue, are new.

(a) The amendment of 1927 to Section 30 of the Banking Act 1923 provides for orders concerning assets or property "belonging to the corporation or person in possession." However, it may be just as necessary for the Secretary to get possession of property to which the institution of which he is receiver has the right to possession for the purpose, for example, of selling it if its owner does not meet his obligation to the institution.

(b) There is some question whether an order issued by the court to a corporation or person holding assets of the institution in possession, under a claim of right, would be constitutional. For this reason, the provisions concerning the ten-day period are introduced. It is desirable to facilitate such orders, but this ten-day period imposes no very great hardship.

Section 711. Sale of Assets Repledged by Institution; Repledge After Possession.—A. Where assets, belonging to others, shall be pledged or given as collateral by an institution of which the Secretary subsequently takes possession as receiver, and the pledgee has actual knowledge at the time of the pledge that the assets are not assets of the institution, such pledgee shall not forfeit or sell any such collateral or pledged assets after the Secretary has taken possession, without the written permission of the Secretary, any provision in any collateral note or agreement to the contrary notwithstanding; but if the Secretary refuses such permission, the pledgee may, after notice to the Secretary, petition the[1] court for leave to sell such assets. The court may, after giving the pledgee and the Secretary an opportunity to be heard, grant such leave, or it may make such other order as it deems to the best interests of all parties concerned.

However, if the assets so pledged by any such institution are accompanied by the obligation of the corporation or person owning them, the pledgee shall have the power to exercise all the rights, powers, and privileges contained in such obligation held by such pledgee, including the sale of the assets.

B. The Secretary shall not repledge any assets held by an institution of which he is in possession, in pledge or as collateral, but belonging to other corporations or persons, unless such repledge is accompanied by the obligation of the original borrower from the institution and is not for an amount exceeding the amount of the original obligation due at the time the collateral is repledged.[2]

Banking Act 1923, Section 36, amended by Act of May 5, 1927, P. L. 762 Section 9, amended by Act of June 12, 1931, P. L. 563.

Comments:

1. The amendment of 1931 provides that the pledgee may petition any court for leave to sell. The words "the court" are substituted in this draft, in order to restrict all such proceedings to the court in which the certificate of possession is filed.

2. This provision is new. However, it is proposed to prohibit any institution from repledging assets, except under certain conditions, and it seems that the power of the Secretary in possession of an institution should be similarly limited.

The amendment of 1931 likewise adds a provision making any violation of this section criminal and prescribing punishment for violations. This was apparently intended to apply primarily to the repledging of assets by going institutions. It is therefore omitted in this draft and will be included in the proposed Banking Code.

Section 712. Liens, Judgments, and Executions; Assignments of Claims.—A. The status of all parties shall become fixed on the date the Secretary takes possession of the business and property of the institution, as receiver. No corporation or person shall thereafter acquire any lien or charge against any of the assets of the institution of which the Secretary is receiver, including mechanics' liens for charges, payments, advances or clearances thereafter made or thereafter incurred, or liens by reason of the entry of any judgment against such institution after the Secretary has taken possession.[1]

B. Assignments of claims of depositors or other creditors of the institution, which are made before the Secretary takes possession but notice of which is not received by the institution before such taking of possession, shall be regarded as, and shall have all the legal incidents of, assignments made after the Secretary takes possession.[2]

C. No execution or attachment, pending or otherwise, shall respectively issue or be proceeded with, against any property, moneys, or assets, owned by, or legally in the custody or possession of, an institution of which the Secretary is in possession as receiver, except that an execution may be permitted by special leave of the court. In lieu of the right to issue an attachment against money or property belonging to others, which is legally in the custody or possession of such institution, a plaintiff may proceed as follows: He may give written notice of his claim to the Secretary, or to the deputy receiver of such institution, and he shall thereafter present proof in the regular manner provided by this act for the proof of the claim, which he is attempting to attach. After the filing of the regular account of the Secretary, the court shall adjudicate the matter as in the case of other disputed claims. Where two or more plaintiffs attempt to attach the same claim in this manner, the order in which they shall take, as among themselves, shall be determined by the order in which written notice of their claims was received by the Secretary.[3]

Comments:

1. Section 25 of the Banking Act 1923 seems to contain inconsistent provisions. It provides that the status of all parties shall become fixed upon the date of the filing of the certificate of possession. The same section provides that no one having written notice (from the Secretary) or actual knowledge that the Secretary has taken possession shall have a lien or charge against the assets for any charge, payment, advance, or clearance thereafter made or liability thereafter incurred.

The better view seems to be that the status of all parties should become fixed at the time the Secretary takes possession, whether or not they get written notice or have actual knowledge. This is the logical and administratively convenient rule. It is also the law in Maryland (Laws, Volume 1, Article II, Section 9).

Sufficient notice to render this provision constitutional is present as a result of the requirements that notice of the taking of possession be posted on the door of the institution and that the certificate of possession be filed with the prothonotary. In addition, Section 710 requires the Secretary to give notice to all parties holding assets.

It will be noted also that the provisions of Section 36 of the Banking Act of 1923 have been combined with those of Section 25, into the above proposed section. It seems logical to treat all the provisions concerning liens, charges, executions, and attachments, which arise or are issued subsequent to the taking of possession, in one section.

2. This proposed provision is new. The special deputy in charge of a closed institution today is beset with all types of assignments, asserted to have been made before the institution closed, the purpose of which frequently is to give the assignee-debtor of the institution a right of setoff. The rule established by this proposed provision facilitates administration of the estate and prevents such fraudulent transfers.

3. Section 36 of the Banking Act of 1923 treats only of executions or attachments against "assets of" the institution. This draft adds property and moneys of which the institution is legally in possession or has custody. It seems that the Secretary should not be harrassed by attachment executions of any kind. All claimants should present their claims at the accounting. Attachment execution against the Secretary, in the event of a judgment against him, would involve an immediate classification of the claim, whereas this is a matter which properly should arise on the accounting.

Under Section 36 of the Banking Act 1923, considerable doubt exists as to the power of attachment. In any event, such power clearly exists by special leave of court. An instance of the exercise of such discretion may be seen in Clouser v. Bauer, Common Pleas Court of Blair County, October Term 1931, No. 406, not yet reported.

This proposed subsection is entirely new. It provides a simple procedure, whereby the rights of all parties may be fully protected and yet the orderly administration of the estate will not be hindered. It is logical to permit such plaintiffs to prove their claims in the same manner as is provided for the proof of the claim which they are attempting to attach. Once the Secretary receives the notice provided for in this subsection he will, under Section 1001 of this draft, be under the duty in turn to give such plaintiff notice of the last day for the proof of claims.

As to executions, they may under this proposed subsection still be permitted by special leave of court.

Section 713. Actions and Suits by and against Secretary.—A. For the purpose of executing any of the powers and performing any of the duties respectively conferred or imposed upon him, as receiver, by this act, the Secretary may, in his name as receiver of such institution, prosecute any action at law or in equity in any court of this Commonwealth or of any other state[1] whether or not such action is pending on behalf of the institution at the time he takes possession. He may likewise similarly defend any action at law or in equity pending against the institution at the time he takes possession.[2]

The Secretary may, in his name as receiver of a corporation, institute and maintain against any officer, director, trustee, manager, or other employe of such corporation any action at law or in equity which such corporation, or any shareholder or creditor thereof, could have instituted or maintained; and he may likewise, in the case of a person of which he is receiver, maintain any similar action against the individuals owning the business or against any employe thereof, which a depositor or other creditor of the person could have instituted or maintained.

B. All claims against the institution, suit upon which has not been commenced prior to the time the Secretary took possession, shall be presented in the regular manner provided by this act for the presentation of claims.[3] No depositor or other creditor of the institution may maintain any action at law or in equity upon such claim, except by the regular method provided by this act for exceptions to the accounting of the Secretary as receiver. However, an action for the return of specific property which could have been recovered from the institution of which he is receiver may be maintained against the Secretary in his name as receiver of the institution.

C. Any action at law or in equity, based upon a cause of action against the institution of which the Secretary is receiver, which may be brought against the Secretary as receiver, shall be instituted only in the court in which the certificate of possession is filed.

Comments:

1. The provision that the Secretary may prosecute suits in other states is introduced to make clear this power which has always been assumed to exist. The local law of most of the states is that a statutory receiver of another state may have access to the courts of their state provided that he is given this power by the state of appointment.

2. Section 35 of the Banking Act of 1923 sepcifically grants the Secretary power to institute action for a bill of recovery and to sue for any assets, debts, or damages, which the institution could sue for, or which any of the creditors could make available for the payment of their claims. There seems to be no reason for including such a provision here.

3. This provision is new. It seems clear that all claims against the estate should be presented in the regular manner provided in this act, in order to be included in the accounting.

This subsection specifically requires such procedure. The right of appeal from the account, adequately protects all parties. See the statement of the court in Cameron v. Carnegie Trust Co., 292 Pa. 114, 117 (1928), as follows:

"At bar, counsel for the respective parties asked us to decide the case on its merits, irrespective of the procedural points which had been suggested by them, viz.: (1) Whether or not the only time to raise the issue was on the settlement of the accounts of the secretary * * * it may be well to state that the proper procedure * * * affecting a distribution of the funds collected by the secretary, is to present a claim when his account has been filed and is before the court, at which time all the distributees can be heard, and from the decree which follows they alone have the right to appeal * * *".

Section 714. Power of Secretary to Borrow from Government Agencies.—The Secretary may, without leave of court, borrow money from any agency or instrumentality of the United States government,[1] except national banks,[2] or of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, for the purpose of expediting the liquidation of the assets of the institution of which he is receiver, and the distribution of the proceeds thereof to the depositors, the other creditors, or the shareholders thereof.

Comments:

1. The amendment of 1932 mentions "the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and any other agency of the United States Government or Commonwealth of Pennsylvania." The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is a temporary body and the mention of it by name seem inappropriate in the Department of Banking Code. It seems clear from a reading of the act establishing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and from opinions of the United States Supreme Court, concerning similar corporations, that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is an agency or instrumentality of the United States Government. It seems, therefore, that the words "Reconstruction Finance Corporation" should, and can without affecting the Secretary's right to borrow from this corporation, be omitted.

2. The amendment of 1931 does not except national banks, but it seems that such an exception should be made.

Section 715. Surrender or Transfer of Burdensome Assets.—The Secretary may, with leave of court, surrender to the institution of which he is receiver, any assets, including choses in action whether the subject of pending proceedings or not, which appear to be burdensome and of no advantage to the estate. He may likewise, with leave of court, convey title to a holder of a mortgage or a lien against property to which the institution has title, where it shall appear that to continue to hold such property is burdensome and of no advantage to the estate.[1]

The Secretary shall give notice to the depositors or other creditors of the institution, and in the case of building and loan associations, to the shareholders, of the filing of the petition for leave to transfer or convey such property pursuant to the provisions of this section. Such notice shall be given at the addresses which appear for such depositors, other creditors, and shareholders upon the books or other records of the institution, or if none appear there, then at their last known addresses. However the court may, if it shall appear to the best interests of the estate, order the Secretary to substitute a single advertisement in a newspaper or newspapers, for the individual notice to the depositors and other creditors, and, in the case of a building and loan association, the shareholders. The court shall grant at least ten days for the filing of objections by the depositors or other creditors of the institution, and in the case of a building and loan association, the shareholders of such institution.[2]

Comments:

1. The provisions for surrending possession to the holder of a lien or mortgage is new. Frequently, real property which the institution has had to take over, for example on a mortgage, turns out not to be worth the cost of interest and taxes. In such a situation, it seems clear that the Secretary should have the power, with leave of court, to surrender the property to the holder of a prior mortgage or lien.

2. Where assets are being transferred for no monetary consideration, it seems that greater safeguards than in ordinary sales are necessary. Thus notice and an opportunity to be heard in court are provided for. However, in order to reduce expenses in clear cases the court is specifically given authority to permit the insertion of a single advertisement to be substituted for individual notice.

Section 716. Compromise of Claims; Extension of Mortgages.—A. The Secretary may, with leave of court, compound or compromise any debt, claim, or judgment due to the institution of which he is in possession, as receiver, and discontinue any action or other proceeding pending therefor.

B. The Secretary may without leave of court, enter into an agreement in writing, upon such terms as seem reasonable to him, with any mortgagor to extend for a period not to exceed three years, the time within which the payment of the loan secured by the mortgage on real property is due to the institution of which he is in possession as receiver.[1]

Comments:

1. The last paragraph of Section 34 is not considered in this proposed section. It is fully discussed in footnote 1 to Section 717 in this draft.

Section 717. Payment of Mortgages and Liens; Protection of an Equity.—The Secretary may, with leave of court, pay off all mortgages, contracts of conditional sale, pledges, and liens of or upon any real or personal property which belongs to the institution.[1] He may, without leave of court, purchase at a judicial sale or at any sale authorized by an order of a court of competent jurisdiction any real or personal property, in order to protect any equity which such institution has in such real or personal property.[2]

Comments:

1. Section 34 of the Banking Act 1923, as amended provides that "the Secretary may * * * require all mortgages, conditional contracts, pledges, and liens of or upon any real or personal property of such corporation or person, to be satisfied, cancelled, or assigned to him, as he may deem best, or he may sell the property subject thereto."

This provision seems inequitable, and, in its application to most cases, unconstitution. To take a hypothetical case: X takes a first mortgage on the real property of Y. Y then procures a second mortgage on the same property from the Z Bank and Trust Company. Y defaults in interest payments and the Z Bank and Trust Company forecloses and takes over the real property which is mortgaged. The Secretary takes over possession of the business and property of the Z Bank and Trust Company. X's mortgage still has two years to run. It is assumed, although this is not clear from the act, that the intendment of the Banking Act 1923 is that the Secretary pay the mortgagee the full value of the mortgage. But how can it be provided at all that the Secretary can force X to "satisfy, cancel or assign to him, as he deems best" the mortgage?

It seems that the furthest the act should go is to permit the Secretary, with leave of court, to pay off such indebtedness and clear the property of lien, provided that the rights of the mortgagee or holder of the lien are not infringed.

The provision that he may sell such property subject to such liens seems unnecessary. It seems adequately covered by Section 719 of this draft.

2. This provision is new. It seems clear, however, that the Secretary should have this right to protect an equity at a judicial sale or other sale authorized by order of court. It seems equally clear that such power should be exercisable without leave of court. Otherwise, other interested parties would bid the price up to the amount authorized. The fact that such sales are judicial sales and are usually public adequately protects the estate. This power is specifically granted to receivers of national banks, see 12 USCA, Sections 198 and 199.

Section 718. Sales of Property; Real Property outside the County.[1]—A. The Secretary may, with leave of, and upon the terms and conditions prescribed by, the court, sell any real or personal property of the institution of which he is in possession as receiver. The order of the court authorizing such sale shall state whether the sale shall be entirely for cash or partly for cash and partly for evidences of indebtedness, whether it shall be public or private, whether notice shall be given to depositors, other creditors, and shareholders, or to any of these groups, and whether advertisement shall be made.[2] Unless the court in any case, deems advertisement or notice necessary or desirable to protect the interests of the estate, such advertisement or notice shall not be required.[3]

Where the order of the court provides for advertisement, it shall in no case require that there be more than a single insertion in one newspaper of general circulation in the county, and, in first and second class counties, in one legal newspaper. Where the real property is situated in a county other than the one in which the institution is located, the court may also authorize a single insertion in a newspaper of general circulation in such other county and, in first and second class counties, in one legal newspaper.

Every such sale of real property shall be confirmed by the court, if all the terms and conditions of its order authorizing such sale have complied with.[4]

B. When any real property of an institution of which the Secretary is in possession as receiver, is situated in a county other than the one in which the institution is located, the Secretary shall proceed in the same manner as is provided by this section for the sale of real property within the county. In addition, he shall petition the court of common pleas of the county in which the real property is located, and it shall be the duty of such court, to issue an order authorizing the sale upon the terms or conditions prescribed by the order of the court having jurisdiction of the receivership. The Secretary shall file a return of the sale in the court of common pleas in the county in which the real estate is located, which court, if all the terms and conditions of the order of the court, in which the certificate of possession is filed, have been met, shall confirm the sale and shall give the Secretary a certified copy of the return of the sale and a certified copy of the confirmation thereof. Such certified copies shall be filed with the prothonotary of the court in which the certificate of possession is filed.

Banking Act 1923, Section 32 (b), as amended by Act of May 5, 1927, P. L. 762, Section 13; Banking Act 1923, Section 32 (c).

Comments:

1. Section 32 (a) provides for the recording of the certificate of possession in counties in which the institution has real estate and for the recording of notice of a surrender of possession. These provisions are covered by Sections 604 and 608 in this draft.

2. Section 32 (b) of the Banking Act 1923 provided for public sales without any order of court and for private sales with leave of court after ten days' notice to all shareholders and creditors known to the Secretary and after advertisement. The amendment of 1927 retained the provision as to public sales, but shortened the notice required to five days in private sales. The amendment of 1931 retains the provisions as to public sales and provides, concerning private sales, that (1) the Secretary may with leave of court sell property upon such terms and under such conditions as the court may direct, and (2) the Secretary may without leave of court sell property, "under such terms as to him may appear reasonable and proper, provided that the net consideration realized from such sale shall be not less than the appraised value of the asset so sold, as set up and established in the inventory and appraisement filed in the court having jurisdiction over the estate of such corporation or person. Sales under this section may be either all for cash or partly for cash and partly for evidences of indebtedness approved by the court."

In receivership proceedings generally, and in the great majority of other states, the sales of property are in every case under the supervision of the court, for example in the following: California, Bank Act, Article 5, Section 136; Federal, 12 USCA 192; Illinois, Act of June 23, 1919, Section 11, as last amended by Act of June 4, 1929; Kansas, Act of 1897, Section 9-130, as amended; Louisiana, Act 300 of 1910, Section 1; Massachusetts, General Laws, Chapter 167, Section 24; Mississippi, Code of 1930, Chapter 85, Section 3817; New Jersey, Laws of 1899, Chapter 173, Section 23, as finally amended by Laws of 1931, Chapter 256; and Wisconsin, Laws, Chapter 220, Section 220.08 (4).

It seems desirable to require that the authorization for, and the terms and conditions of, all sales of property be by the court upon petition of the Secretary. The Secretary, in conjunction with the court, could then determine (1) whether a sale should be made, (2) whether it should be private or public, (3) whether there should be advertisement and notice, and (4) whether it should be for cash or for cash and evidences of indebtedness. This permits a system which is flexible and which still affords adequate protection to the estate.

3. In most instances, the court and the Secretary can adequately protect the interests of the estate. In such cases, it seems that the delay and expense of advertisement and notice ought to be eliminated. The above proposed provision, which is new, is intended to take care of such a situation.

4. This provision is introduced to guard against clouds on title. Under it, every sale would be confirmed by the court. A title insurance company could check by the records the legality of any sale of real property.

Section 719. Effect of Sale Upon Liens.—The sale by the Secretary of any real property of an institution of which he is in possession as receiver, shall not affect any lien thereon, except that, in the case of a lien which would under the laws of the Commonwealth ordinarily be discharged by a judicial sale, the court in its order authorizing the sale, may prescribe that such lien shall be discharged by the sale.[1] Whenever such liens are to be discharged by a sale, the Secretary shall give notice of the sale to all creditors who appear, by the books of the institution or by the records of the county, or otherwise, to have or to claim to have liens upon such property. The proceeds of the sale shall then take the place of the property sold and shall be distributed in the order prescribed by, and to the parties entitled to take under the laws of the Commonwealth which relate to the discharge of liens by a judicial sale.

B. If real property is situated in a county other than that in which the institution is located, the court in which the certificate of possession is filed shall be the one empowered to issue the original order prescribing the discharge of liens. The procedure shall be the same as in the case of any other terms or conditions prescribed in its order for the sale of real property situated in another county.[2]

Banking Act 1923, Section 32 (e).

Comments:

1. Section 32 (e) of the Banking Act 1923 is not very clear as to just what liens may be discharged by a sale by the Secretary. This proposed section, in conjunction with Section 717 of this draft attempts to clarify the entire subject of the payment and discharge of liens.

2. Section 32 (e) of the Banking Act 1923 prescribes separately and in detail the provisions concerning orders for the discharge of liens upon real property in a county other than the one in which the institution is situated. These details have been omitted in this draft.

Section 720. Leases For Property.—The Secretary may, without order of court, enter into leases for real or personal[1] property belonging to the institution of which he is in possession as receiver, for a period not to exceed one year.[2] He may, with leave of court, enter into such leases for a period not to exceed ten years, upon the terms and under the conditions prescribed by the order of the court.

The court shall not require advertisement or notice of leases entered into upon its order, except where special circumstances shall appear to require such action in order to protect the interests of the estate.

Comments:

1. The Banking Act 1923, as amended, provides only for the leasing of real property. It seems clear that the law should provide also for the leasing of personal property, for example, the armored cars of the institution.

2. The amendment of 1931 provides that the Secretary may enter into leases for a period not to exceed three years, without order of court. Most of the leases made by the Secretary today are leases of short duration, chiefly month-to-month, six-month, and yearly leases. When a lease exceeds a year, it seems desirable to require court order and this draft so provides. The provision authorizing the making of any leases at all without order of court is contrary to the laws of most jurisdictions, but it seems desirable. Such transactions are comparatively minor ones and it facilitates liquidation to permit their being entered into without leave of court.

Section 721. Sale or Exchange of Listed and Unlisted Securities.—A. The Secretary may, without leave of court, sell on any stock exchange or otherwise, at a price not below that prevailing on any of the stock exchanges[1] listed securities which belong to the institution of which he is in possession as receiver, or which such institution has the power to sell.[2]

B. The Secretary may, with leave of court, sell unlisted securities, or sell listed securities at a price below the prevailing prices on any of the stock exchanges, upon such terms and under such conditions as the court shall prescribe.

C. The Secretary may, with leave of court, exchange listed or unlisted securities for other obligations of the corporation issuing the securities, upon such terms and under such conditions as the court shall prescribe.[3]

Comments:

1. This subsection is new. The Secretary will not, of course, ordinarily sell listed securities at a price below the prevailing prices. Where special circumstances seem to justify such action, the law should require the Secretary to secure the approval of the court.

2. This proposed section adds the words "or which such institution has the power to sell." These words are added, to cover the situation where the institution has power, upon default of the debtor, to sell collateral deposited with it as security for the debt. The Secretary should have the same power to sell, even though the property being sold does not "belong" to the institution.

3. This subsection is new. In Formal Opinion No. 65, rendered September 22, 1932, Deputy Attorney General Harold D. Saylor advised Secretary of Banking, William D. Gordon, that under Section 32 (d) of the Banking Act 1923, as amended the Secretary has the power to exchange "securities for the obligations of the same debtor where the transaction does not entail a loss because of a reduction of the principal debt, the rate of interest, the date of maturity, or a concession in the priority of the obligation." In the same opinion, Mr. Saylor advises the Secretary that, under Section 34 of the Banking Act 1923, as amended, he has the power, with leave of court, to exchange securities where such exchange would give the Secretary "an obligation subordinated in position to that exchanged or paying interest at a lesser rate."

This draft expressly permits the Secretary to effect either of these types of exchanges, provided that he has leave of court. Such exchanges are transactions out of the ordinary course of business. They should, in every case, require at least an order of the court.

Section 722. Deposit of Moneys by Secretary.—All moneys received by the Secretary as receiver of an institution shall be deposited by him with one or more corporations or persons authorized by law to receive deposits and subject to the supervision either of Federal or State banking authorities. He shall require of such depository, security therefor in such amount and of such nature as the Secretary shall deem adequate.

Comments:

This section enacts into law and thereby makes mandatory the present practice of the Secretary of Banking.

Section 723. Enforcement of Shareholders' Liability.—A. If at any time after he takes possession of a corporation as receiver, it shall appear to the Secretary that the assets of such corporation will be insufficient to pay in full its debts to depositors and other creditors, he shall, as soon as expedient, estimate the amount which shall be assessed against all shareholders who are, under these circumstances, personally liable for any part of the debts of such corporation, by reason of their ownership of such shares.[1] He shall assess against such shareholders the amount which he then deems necessary for the payment of such debts, not however exceeding the maximum liability of such shareholders, as provided by law. The Secretary shall send to every shareholder by registered mail to the address which appears on the records of the corporation, and if none appears there, then to his last known address, a demand that the amount assessed against him be paid. Such demand shall state the total amount assessed by the Secretary against all the shareholders, and the specific amount to be paid by the particular shareholder. It shall also designate a period within which such assessment shall be paid, such period to be not less than thirty days after the date of the sending of the notice. If any shareholders shall not pay the amount assessed against them, the Secretary may institute actions at law or in equity against them, either severally or jointly, for the amount of such assessment, together with interest from the date designated in the notice from the Secretary, for the payment of such assessment. In such action, the written statement of the Secretary, signed by him in his official capacity as receiver and bearing the seal of the Department, asserting that the assets of the corporation appear insufficient to meet its liabilities to depositors and other creditors, that consequently he has made an assessment against the shareholder or shareholders being sued, that the period designated for the payment of the assessment has expired,and that the value of the assets of the corporation and the liabilities of such corporations are as set forth, shall be prmia facie evidence of the facts therein stated.

B. The Secretary may make as many partial assessments as shall appear expedient, until the total liability of the shareholders, or the total amount necessary to pay in full the depositors and other creditors of the corporation, has been assessed.[2]

Banking Act 1923, Section 37.

Comments:

1. Section 37 of the Banking Act 1923 provides that the liability discussed in that section is in addition to the liability of shareholders for unpaid subscriptions. This proposed section is limited in its provisions to "all shareholders who, under these circumstances, are personally liable for any part of the debts of such corporation by reason of their ownership of such shares," and therefore no mention need be made of unpaid subscriptions.

2. This proposed section, both at this point and in Subsection B, specifically permits the Secretary to make more than one assessment. There is considerable doubt as to whether, under existing law, the Secretary is empowered to do so. Yet such a power seems necessary. The Secretary should not be compelled to wait, before making an assessment, until he can estimate the total amount which it may be necessary for him to assess. He should be permitted, as soon as it becomes apparent that at least a certain amount will have to be assessed, to do so. Otherwise, the interests of depositors and creditors will be seriously affected.

On the other hand it seems unjust to the shareholders to assess against them an amount beyond that which may ultimately be found to be due.

Section 724. Property in Safe Deposit Vault or Held for Safe-Keeping.—The Secretary may, any time after taking possession of an institution as receiver, give written notice to anyone claiming or appearing on the books of such institution to be the owner, or to be entitled to the possession,[1] of any personal property left with such institution as bailee for safe-keeping or depository for hire, and to anyone appearing on the books of the institution to be the lessee of any safe, vault, or safe deposit box, notifying such bailor or lessee respectively, to remove all such personal property within the period fixed by the notice, provided that such period shall in no case be less than sixty days after the date of the notice.

At the expiration of such period, if the lessee of a safe, vault or safe deposit box has not removed the contents thereof, the Secretary may cause such safe, vault, or safe deposit box to be opened either in his presence or in the presence of the deputy receiver of the institution, and in the presence of a notary public not an officer or employe of the institution or of the Department. The contents, if any, of such safe, vault, or safe deposit box shall then be sealed and marked by such notary with the name and address of the lessee in whose name such safe, vault, or safe deposit box appeared on the books of the institution and with a list and description[2] of the property therein. Such package so sealed and addressed shall either be removed by the Secretary to his office in Harrisburg, or it shall be deposited by him in one of the bank safes or safe deposit boxes of the institution, to be removed from such safe or safe deposit box when the Secretary surrenders possession of, or finally liquidates, the institution, or when he sells, leases, or otherwise disposes of the building.[3] The Secretary shall retain such property until it is delivered to the owner or is otherwise disposed of in accordance with law.[4]

The Secretary shall follow the same procedure and have the same powers with regard to the property left with the institution as bailee for safe-keeping or depository for hire and not called for within the period specified by the notice.

The contract of bailment or lease, if any, shall be considered at an end upon the date designated by the Secretary, for the removal of the property therein. The amount of unearned rent or charges, if any, paid by the bailor or lessee, shall become a debt of the institution.[5]

Banking Act 1923, Section 39.

Comments.

1. The Banking Act 1923 provides that property held by the institution at bailee shall be returned to anyone claiming or appearing on the books to be the owner thereof. The words "or.....entitled to the possession" thereof have been added, since the property may have been bailed by one neither claiming nor appearing to be the owner, for example a pledge of the property.

2. The word "description" has been added in this draft since it seems to add a safeguard against the fraudulent substitution of property by an employe of the Department or of the institution.

3. The Banking Act 1923 provides only that at this point the Secretary shall remove the unclaimed property to his office. This draft gives him the alternative of doing this or of depositing the property in one of the general safes or safe deposit boxes of the institution. As long as the Secretary is in possession of the institution, there seems no reason why, with the majority of its safes and safe deposit boxes unoccupied, the Secretary should be required to have all the property transferred to his office.

4. It is provided in this draft, as in the Banking Act 1923, that the property shall be retained by the Secretary until delivered to the owner or "otherwise disposed of in accordance with law." This in effect enacts into this proposed act the applicable provisions of the Escheat Laws of the Commonwealth.

5. The Banking Act 1923 provides that "all contracts of bailment or lease, such as aforesaid, made after the date of the approval of this act shall be subject to the provisions of this section." This provision seems superfluous since it merely states a principal of law that would be applicable without it.

ARTICLE VIII

SECRETARY IN POSSESSION OF TRUST DEPARTMENT

Section 801. Institution as Fiduciary.—References in this act to funds, property, or investments held in a fiduciary capacity by an institution of which the secretary has taken possession, shall have no application to funds, property, or investments of which such institution became trustee involuntrally and by operation of law.

Comments:

The wording of several of the sections of the Banking Act 1923 which deal with the management of estates of which the institution was fiduciary could apply equally to situations in which an institution became trustee ex maleficio, trustee de son tort, etc. Yet it seems clear that this was not the intention of the Legislature in the Banking Act 1923, and it is undesirable today. Therefore, this proposed section is introduced. In such cases, where the dispute is usually as to whether or not the funds have the status of trust funds, the regular procedure for the proof and allowance of claims should be followed. The court having jurisdiction of the liquidation proceedings is best qualified to decide such disputes.

Section 802. Secretary in Possession of Trust Department.—A. The Secretary, upon taking possession of an institution as receiver, shall keep all the funds, property, and investments, if any which are held by such institution in a fiduciary capacity, separate from the assets of the institution itself.

B. The Secretary when in possession of an institution as receiver, shall have all the rights, powers and duties which such institution had in its fiduciary capacity. He shall have title to all the assets, including debts due, liens and other security therefor, and all rights of action or redemption, of all estates of which the institution, either alone or jointly with someone else, was trustee, executor, administrator, guardian, assignee, or other similar fiduciary, and shall have the power to administer such estates. In pursuance of this power, the Secretary may institute any action at law or in equity, or execute and sign any written instruments, which the institution itself could have instituted, executed, or signed.[1]

The Secretary shall not, however, have the power to invest funds or property of any such estate, except where it shall appear necessary to purchase any real or personal property, or any interest therein, in order to protect an equity which such estate has in such property. Such purchase by the Secretary shall not, however, be made without the approval of any corporation or person whose approval would have been necessary to such purchase by the institution prior to the taking of possession by the Secretary, and of the court which has exercised jurisdiction over such estate. If no court has yet exercised jurisdiction over the estate, then the approval either of the court of common pleas or of the orphans' court of the county in which the place of business of the institution is situated shall be procured.[2]

Except where otherwise specifically provided, references in this act to the court which has exercised jurisdiction over an estate of which an institution in possession of the Secretary was fiduciary, shall be construed to refer[1] in cases in which the institution was executor or administrator, to the orphans' court of the county of which the register of wills issued the letters testamentary or letters of administration respectively, and[2] in all other cases, to the court of common pleas or the orphans' court in which an account of the estate has been filed, or which has, in any manner, exercised control or supervision over the administration of such estate by the institution as fiduciary.[3]

Comments:

1. This entire provision is new. The Banking Act of 1923 makes no provision for the rights or duties of the Secretary with reference to trust estates. Consequently, special deputies in charge of closed banks are today encountering all kinds of difficulties in the administration of trust estates. Thus, in the case of transfers by the Secretary of property belonging to a trust estate, prior to a determination to liquidate, title insurance companies have required both the officers of the institution and the Secretary to execute the instrument. This is the position taken by the Real Estate-Land Title and Trust Company of Philadelphia acting under advice of counsel. In the case of transfer after the determination to liquidate, the Real Estate-Land Title and Trust Company holds, under advice of counsel, that neither the officers of the institution nor the Secretary can convey the property. Such power, it maintains, resides only in a substituted fiduciary.

It is, therefore, made clear in this draft that the Secretary shall have all the powers the institution had in its capacity as fiduciary.

2. However, it does not seem desirable to allow the Secretary to make any investment, except where necessary to protect an asset. Therefore, this is expressly included in this draft. Such investments as are allowed, however, should be approved by a court, and by any corporation or person, whose approval would be required for investments by the institution itself.

The court ought, of course, to be the one which has exercised jurisdiction over the trust. If no court has yet done so, then the logical court would seem to be either the court of common pleas, or the orphans' court of the county in which the place of business of the institution is located. Trusts inter vivos could be taken into either court, the Act of June 26, 1931, P. L. 1384, giving jurisdiction over such cases to the orphans' courts. However, certain types of trusts, for example a corporate mortgage, would probably be taken into the common pleas court.

At the present time, the procedure varies in different counties. In certain counties, long delays have been occasioned by the uncertainty as to the powers of the respective courts. This proposed section attempts to eliminate this confusion.

3. The definition of the "court which has exercised jurisdiction over such estate" is included here to eliminate the necessity of repeating all its elements throughout this article.

It is clearly necessary, throughout this article, to differentiate situations in which the institution was executor or administrator from those in which it was guardian or other trustee inter vivos. A great deal of the confusion at present existent is due to the failure of the Banking Act 1923 to follow this procedure. This draft, in each section, attempts clearly to separate one from the other.

Section 803. Disputes as to Identity of Trust Funds.—All disputes as to the identity of the funds, property, or investments of an estate, of which an institution in the possession of the Secretary was fiduciary, arising either because such funds, property or investments have become or are alleged to have become mingled with other funds, property, or investments, or for any other reason, shall be determined by the court in which the certificate of possession is filed. Such court shall have exclusive jurisdiction over such disputes.

Banking Act 1923, Section 40 (d).

Comments:

1. The court in which the certificate of possession is filed is the only one qualified to trace trust funds or take such other action as is covered by this section. The accounts and claims of the institution are filed with it; it has the most intimate knowledge of the affairs of the institution.

Section 804. Appointment of Substituted Fiduciaries.—Upon filing a supplement to the certificate of possession, setting forth his determination to liquidate the affairs of the institution, the Secretary shall forthwith give written notice, in so far as the giving of such notice is practicable, to all parties of whom he has notice, who are interested in any funds, property, or investments held by such institution in a fiduciary capacity. Such notice shall require such parties, within thirty days after the giving of notice, to apply for the appointment of substituted fiduciaries. Such application shall be made as follows: In any case in which the institution was executor or administrator, application shall be made to the register of wills having jurisdiction, to grant new letters in such form as the case shall require; in any other case, application shall be made to any court which has exercised jurisdiction over the estate, or if no court has exercised such jurisdiction, then to the court of common pleas, or the orphans' court, of the county in which the institution has its place of business. However, if the instrument under which the fiduciary relationship was established provides a particular method for the selection of fiduciaries, such method shall be followed.

If the parties to whom such notice has been given do not, within the thirty-day period designated, make such application, or pursue whatever method is prescribed by the instrument under which the fiduciary relationship was established, for the appointment of a substituted fiduciary, or if it is impracticable to give notice to the parties interested in the estate, then the Secretary shall make the application for the appointment of a substituted fiduciary to the court or the register of wills, whichever the case may be, designated above. Such court or register of wills shall appoint a substituted fiduciary upon such petition of the Secretary.[1]

Comments:

1. Section 40 (b) of the Banking Act 1923, does not provide the details for the appointment of substituted fiduciaries. This proposed section attempts to meet most of the ordinary contingencies.

It seems clear that where the instrument creating the trust specifically provides a method for the appointment of substituted fiduciaries, such method should, and must, be followed.

Where the original appointment was made under letters testamentary or letters of administration issued by the Register of Wills, it seems equally clear that, in the absence of special provision in the will, the petition for the appointment of a substituted fiduciary should be made to him. This is in accord with the provisions of the Register of Wills Act, Act of June 7, 1917, P. L. 447, Section 3 (c). The reasons for allowing a choice between the court of common pleas and the orphans' court of the county in which the institution has its place of business are stated in footnote 2 to Section 802 of this draft.

The other changes in this proposed section are introduced solely to clarify the existent procedure for the appointment of substituted fiduciaries. No further substantive changes are made.

Section 805. Transfer of Assets to Substituted Fiduciary without Filing Account.—If a substituted fiduciary has been appointed in accordance with the provisions of this act, and if there is no dispute as to the amount or identity of the funds, property, or investments of the particular estate, and as to the fees, commissions, and expenses due either to the institution before the Secretary took possession or to the Secretary as receiver since the taking of possession,[1] and if all the parties in interest, being sui juris, agree in writing to waive an accounting in court, the Secretary in possession of an institution as receiver, may transfer to such substituted fiduciary all the funds, property, and investments of the particular estate, without filing an account in any court. Upon such transfer, he shall procure from all the parties in interest and from the substituted fiduciary a receipt and release in full, which shall discharge the Secretary and the institution from any further duty or liability with reference to such estate.

Comments:

1. The provision for agreement on the fees, commissions, and expenses is added in this draft. It seems necessary for completeness. In addition, it is required in order to make this proposed section consistent with Section 803 in this draft.

The other changes made in this proposed section are necessitated by the somewhat different procedure for the appointment of substituted fiduciaries prescribed by Section 804 of this draft.

Section 806. Filing of Account; Transfer of Assets to Substituted Fiduciary.—A. Except in cases in which the Secretary is authorized by the provisions of this act to transfer to a substituted fiduciary, without filing an account, the funds, property, or investments of an estate of which the institution was fiduciary,[1] he shall file an account for every estate of which such institution was fiduciary. The Secretary shall file each such account upon the date fixed by the instrument creating the fiduciary relationship,[2] or if there is no such date fixed, then as soon as expedient after the filing of a supplement to the certificate of possession, setting forth his determination to liquidate the affairs of the institution. Such account shall be filed in the court which has exercised jurisdiction over the particular estate,[3] or if no court has yet exercised jurisdiction, then in the court of common pleas, or the orphans' court, of the county in which the place of business of the institution is situated. The Secretary shall then transfer or pay to the substituted fiduciary appointed pursuant to the provisions of this act, any funds, property, or investments in his possession which belong to such estate. Such transfer or payment shall be made in accordance with the order of the court in which the account for such estate is filed. The court, in directing such transfer or payment, may reserve for future determination any question of surcharge.[4]

B. The court which has exercised jurisdiction over a particular estate of which the institution was fiduciary, or if no court has exercised such jurisdiction, then the court of common pleas, or the orphans' court, of the county in which the institution has its place of business, may order the Secretary to transfer the funds, property, or investments of the estate to the substituted fiduciary, even prior to the filing of an account. The court, in such order, may reserve for future determination any question of surcharge, or any other question which may arise upon the audit of the account.[5]

C. This section shall not be construed to give any court, other than the one in which the certificate of possession is filed, jurisdiction over disputes involving the identity of funds, property, or investments of an estate of which the institution was fiduciary.[6]

Banking Act 1923, Section 40 (e).

Comments:

1. See Section 805 of this draft.

2. This clause is new. It seems clear that if the instrument creating the fiduciary relationship designates that the estate shall be settled and the account filed on a given date, that the Secretary should file such account on such date. Such a provision is not only equitable but it seems necessary to make the provision constitutional.

3. See Section 802 of this draft for an expiration of the court referred to by the expression "the court which has exercised jurisdiction of the particular estate." It will be noted that throughout this act an attempt is made to clarify the existing confusion as to the jurisdiction of the various courts in the cases of the appointment of substituted fiduciaries, filing of accounts of trust estates, the transfer of estates to substituted fiduciaries, et certera. Probably the only way in which this can be accomplished is by stating in each section the specific courts having jurisdiction.

Section 40 (e) of the Banking Act of 1923 merely designates "the courts having jurisdiction thereof" as the ones in which accounts should be filed. The indefiniteness of such a provision is obvious.

4. See footnote 5 to this section.

5. Considerable delay is experienced today by the fact that orphans' courts in various counties hold that under existing law they cannot order the transfer of the funds, property, or investments of a trust estate to a substituted fiduciary until an account is filed, audited, and adjudicated. Some courts add that any claims for surcharges must likewise be determined. Such a rule obviously delays liquidation considerably. It also frequently works to the injury of the estate. The rule proposed by this subsection seems necessary to meet these difficulties.

6. This paragraph is new. It is included to preclude the interpretation that this section places in the court in which the account is filed, jurisdiction over disputes involving the identity of funds, property, or investments of an estate of which the institution was fiduciary. Section 803 of this draft places such jurisdiction exclusively in the court in which the certificate of possession is filed.

Section 807. Deficiencies in Assets Held by Institution as Fiduciary.—Whenever the court, in which the Secretary has filed the account of an estate of which an institution in his possession was fiduciary, shall, in the manner provided by law, rule that there is a deficiency in the funds, property, or investments of such estate, or that the institution is liable to surcharge in respect thereto, the amount determined by such court to be due shall constitute a claim[1] against the institution and shall be presented in the same manner as other claims, except that it may be presented at any time within six months after the appointment of a substituted fiduciary of the estate and the adjudication of the account of such estate by the competent court.[2] Such order or decree of such court shall be conclusive as to the amount due, except for the right of appeal provided by law. Any dispute as to the classification or order of payment of such claim, as distinguished from the amount, shall be adjudicated by the court in which the certificate of possession is filed.[3]

If the existence or amount of any such deficiency or surcharge, or the liability of the institution therefor, is in litigation but undetermined at the time dividends for claims having no priority in order of payment over such claims are being distributed, the Secretary shall, upon notice of such fact from the substituted fiduciary, withhold and set apart a sufficient amount to pay the proportionate dividend which will be due upon such undetermined claim if it is finally adjudicated in favor of the estate of which the institution was fiduciary.

Comments:

1. Section 40 (f) has created some doubt as to the exact status of claims for surcharges in the order of distribution of assets. The act says "unpreferred claim." This proposed section merely states that it shall be a claim. Section 1011 in this draft will state its rank in the order of distribution.

2. This clause is new. It provides that claims for deficiencies in a trust estate or for surcharge in respect thereto may be presented within six months after the appointment of a substituted fiduciary and the filing of an account. Sections 1001 and 1003 of this draft provide a period for the regular presentation of claims which may frequently be much shorter than this.

To apply the same limitation in the case of such deficiencies or surcharge would be impracticable and inequitable, since frequently there would be no one even to discover the existence of or to present such claim. The substituted fiduciary must be given a reasonable time in which to do so and this act so provides.

This provision will not unduly hold up or unsettle the distribution of dividends, as it is an unpreferred claim and therefore would not in any event come in for consideration until very late in the proceedings, if at all.

3. This clause is new. The amount due is, of course, to be adjudicated by the court in which the account is filed. The order of distribution should, of course, be determined by the court having jurisdiction of all such matters, that is the court in which the certificate of possession is filed. However, this section seems necessary to clarify this procedure.

Section 808. Compensation Due Institution and Secretary From Estates.—The Secretary in possession of an institution as receiver shall be entitled to collect such reasonable fees and commissions as were earned, both as to income and as to principal, and such reasonable expenses as were incurred, by the institution in its capacity as fiduciary, prior to the date on which possession was taken by the Secretary. He shall also be entitled to reasonable fees and commissions, both as to income and as to principal for any services performed, and all reasonable expenses incurred, by him on behalf of any estate of which the institution was fiduciary. The Secretary shall be entitled to such commissions on principal as shall appear reasonable under all the circumstances, whether or not the trust has terminated at the time of the filing of the account or of the transfer by the Secretary of the funds, property, and investments of the estate in accordance with the provisions of the instrument creating the fiduciary relationship. All sums received by the Secretary under this section shall become assets of the institution of which he is in possession as receiver.

Except in cases where the Secretary, pursuant to the provisions of this Code, transfers funds, property, or investments of the estate without filing an account, the court in which the Secretary shall file the account for the estate of which the institution was fiduciary shall award to the Secretary the fees, commissions, and expenses provided for in this section.

Comments:

This entire section is new. Considerable confusion exists as to whether (1) the Secretary is entitled to any fees, commissions, or expenses for acts performed by him on behalf of trust estates, or (2) he is entitled to recover any fees or commissions on principal, where the trust has not terminated.

As to (1), it seems clear that the Secretary, as receiver, should be entitled to reasonable fees and expenses for services actually performed by him. Since such services are practically always performed by a deputy receiver, and since the salary of such deputy receiver is paid by the institution in possession, it seems logical and just to consider money so recovered as assets of the institution, to be distributed to creditors thereof.

As to (2), the general rule is that a trustee is not entitled to charge commissions on the principal of an estate until the trust has terminated. Numerous exceptions to this rule have grown up, for example where a trustee dies and his account is filed by his personal representatives, commissions will be allowed for a sum commensurate with the services performed, the responsibility incurred, and the length of time during which the responsibility continued. See Wainwright's Estate, 27 D. R. 955; also Makin's Estate, 7 D. R. 126, where the trustee retired by agreement with the cestui que trust. In Murray's Estate, 103 Super. 87, both of these cases are discussed with approval.

In Estate of Jesse Millman, decided April 17, 1932, by the Orphans' Court of Philadelphia County, Judge Gest confirmed an account of the Special Deputy as Agent of the United Security Trust Company, in which he included commissions on principal. Judge Gest in that opinion cites with approval the cases discussed above.

It seems that the rule of this case is sound and it is therefore included in this draft.

Of course, funds due for services should, when collected, become part of the assets of the institution for distribution to the creditors, since they would have become assets of the institution if paid prior to the taking of possession by the Secretary. Funds due to the Secretary as receiver for work performed by him should also, as stated above, become part of the general assets of the institution.

ARTICLE IX

SECRETARY IN POSSESSION OF A MORTGAGE OR SECURITY POOL OR OF AN ASSET IN WHICH UNDIVIDED INTERESTS ARE HELD

Section 901. Mortgage and Security Pools and Participations; Accounts.[1]—Whenever the Secretary shall have filed a supplement to the certificate of possession, setting forth his determination to liquidate the affairs of an institution of which he is in possession as receiver,[2] he shall, as soon as it may be convenient, file, in the court in which the certificate of possession shall have been filed,[3] an account as to any mortgages, securities,[4] or other assets[5] comprising any mortgage or securities pool operated by such institution, or as to any mortgage, security, or other asset in which undivided interests shall have been created by the institution, regardless of whether certificates of participation in such mortgage or securities pool or in such mortgage, security, or other asset shall have been actually issued by the institution,[6] and regardless of whether the relation of the institution to the owners of the undivided interests in such mortgage or securities pool, or in any such mortgage, security, or other asset is technically that of a trustee.[7]

A mortgage or securities pool shall be regarded as having been operated by the institution, regardless of whether any or all of the mortgages, securities, or other assets in such pool shall be held in the name of the institution or in the name of a nominee of the institution. Where undivided interests have been created in any mortgage, security, or other asset by any corporation or person holding such mortgage, security, or other asset as nominee of the institution, such undivided interests shall be regarded as having been created by the institution.[8]

The prothonotary shall not be under any duty to recopy or otherwise record any such account filed by the Secretary. He shall make no charge except the regular fee for filing such or similar papers.[9]

Comments:

1. This entire article is new. It is introduced for the purpose of clarifying the procedure to be followed by the Secretary in connection with mortgage and securities pools operated by an institution of which the Secretary is in possession as receiver and also in connection with any mortgage, security, or other asset in which undivided interests have been created by the institution, as in the common case of a mortgage in which certificates of participation have been issued to different trust estates. At the present time there is a great deal of confusion as to what action should be taken by the Secretary, and as to the manner in which any such action shall be taken. Many liquidations have been delayed months due to wrangling of courts and attorneys as to the proper procedure to be followed, the competent court in which an account should be filed, the rights of participants, the power of the court to permit transfer of assets before right of surcharge is determined, and innumerable other problems. This article attempts, in so far as possible, to clarify the procedure and provide definite answers to the controversial problems. Due to the many and varied types of mortgage or securities pools and participation plans, it is impossible to cover every situation. An attempt has been made to cover, by general terminology as many as possible.

2. It seems clear that the Secretary should not be under compulsion to transfer such assets until he has determined to liquidate the affairs of the institution. Such pools or participations are often a large and lucrative part of an institution's business. The Secretary should not be compelled to dispose of them, unless he has determined to liquidate. Until then, he has not determined whether or not he will allow the institution to resume business.

3. In the case of mortgage and securities pools, and any mortgage, security, or other asset in which undivided interests have been created, it seems desirable to provide that the account of the Secretary be filed in the court in which the certificate of possession is filed. Aside from the facts that these matters are often part of the commercial business of the institution, and that the court in which the certificate of possession is filed will be most intimate with all the facts as to the business of the institution and the liquidation of its affairs, there is one outstanding reason for restricting these accounts to that court. In Section 905 of this draft it is provided that under certain circumstances the court may order the Secretary to advance to a substituted fiduciary for any such mortgage, or securities pool, or any such mortgage, security, or other investment in which undivided interests were created, such amount of cash as may be necessary to protect the owners of the undivided interests therein. This power is within the discretion of the court, and obviously the only court which should exercise such discretion is the court which exercises jurisdiction over the liquidation of the entire business of the institution.

4. The word "securities" is used to cover bond pools and pools of other securities. While mortgage pools are most common, the other types are existent.

5. The term "other assets" is introduced to provide for a case where an institution holds for the account of such a pool, cash or real estate taken by a foreclosure.

6. Frequently, an institution creates undivided interests in pools or individual securities through the medium of simple book entries without issuing actual certificates of participation. This provision is introduced to cover such a situation.

7. This proposed provision applies to cases, for example, in which an institution has issued guaranteed certificates, security by mortgages, or securities in a pool, but without creating a technical trust. It also covers cases of agency. This problem has caused considerable difficulty. This proposed section, therefore, specifically provides that it applies whatever the relationship.

8. The reason for this paragraph is obvious. Banks sometimes operate such plans, but hold some of the component mortgages or other securities in the name of a nominee.

9. The Act of April 25, 1850, P. L. 569, Section 19, provides that it shall be the duty of the prothonotary to record, in a book to be procured for that purpose, "all accounts of assignees, trustees, sequestrators and committees and all audits thereon * * *." There seems to be no reason for this requirement in the case of a mortgage or securities pool, or of a mortgage, security, or other asset in which undivided interests have been created.

Section 902.[1] Transfer of Pools and Participations without Filing an Account.—If all the corporations or persons who are the owners of all the undivided interests in any mortgage or securities pool, or in any mortgage, security, or other asset in which the institution shall have created undivided interests, are sui juris, and if they shall agree to the amount asserted by the Secretary to be due him as receiver for services rendered by the institution or by him, and for expenses incurred by either,[2] and if they shall authorize the Secretary to transfer any such mortgage or securities pool, or any such mortgage, security, or other asset to them, or to a substituted fiduciary or any other corporation or person agreed upon by them, and if they shall execute proper instruments releasing the Secretary and the institution from any further liability to them, the Secretary may transfer to such substituted fiduciary or to such corporation or person without filing an account, all the mortgages, securities, or other assets comprising such mortgage or securities pool or the mortgage, security, or other asset in which undivided interests have been created.[3] In any case where the institution, as fiduciary of an estate, is the owner on behalf of such estate of any individed interest in any such mortgage or securities pool, or in any such mortgage, security, or other investment, and no substituted fiduciary has been appointed for such estate, the Secretary shall not transfer such mortgage or securities pool, or such mortgage, security, or other asset in which undivided interests were created by the institution, unless he shall also be authorized to make such transfer by all corporations or persons having an interest in the estate of which the institution was fiduciary, except that where substituted fiduciaries have not been appointed for unborn beneficiaries of the estate or for other beneficiaries who are not sui juris, the Secretary shall not be required to obtain such authority from anyone in behalf of such unborn beneficiaries or other persons who are not sui juris.[4]

Comments:

1. This section is entirely new.
2. See Section 906 in this draft.
3. It seems clear that where there is complete agreement, all the parties in interest should have the power to authorize the Secretary to transfer the assets to them without filing an account. This corresponds to the similar power which the Secretary has in the case of any estate of which the institution was fiduciary, see Section 805 in this draft.
4. The trust department of an institution frequently invests trust funds in participation certificates. Very often all the interests in a mortgage or securities pool, or in a mortgage, security, or other asset in which undivided interests have been created, are held by trust estates. If the institution is the holder or creator of the whole pool or participation and its trust department is trustees, executor, or administrator for the beneficial holders of any of the interests, it seems desirable to require the assent of the beneficiaries of the estates for the benefit of which the institution holds such interests.

The provision as to persons not sui juris, for whom no substituted fiduciary, is introduced to facilitate the liquidation of a pool or participation. Today it is held up by the necessity of appointing guardians ad litem, committees ad litem, etc. The Secretary is a public officer and presumably protecting the interests of all parties. An alternative to this proposed provision would be to apply to the court to appoint him fiduciary ad litem for all such beneficiaries. This seems to be useless circuity.

Section 903. Notice of Filing Account.—A. Upon filing an account as to any mortgages, securities, or other assets comprising any mortgage or securities pool operated by an institution of which he is in possession as receiver, or as to any mortgage, security, or other asset in which the institution shall have created undivided interests, the Secretary shall give notice thereof, in so far as it may be practicable, to all corporations or persons who are the owners of the undivided interests in any such mortgage or securities pool, or in any such mortgage, security, or other asset, and, in any case where the institution as fiduciary of an estate, is the owner on behalf of such estate of any such undivided interest, then to all corporations or persons having an interest in such estate, except that no such notice need be given to anyone on behalf of unborn beneficiaries of such estate or other beneficiaries who are not sui juris, where no substituted fiduciary has been appointed for such beneficiaries. Such notice shall be given to the corporations or persons entitled thereto under this section, at their addresses as they appear on the books or other records of the institution, or, if the address of any such corporation or person does not appear thereon, then at the last known address of such corporation or person.

B. Such notice shall state the time and place of the audit of such account, and, except where an application for a substituted fiduciary shall have been made by any other method authorized by this act, it shall also state the intention of the Secretary to apply for a substituted fiduciary for such mortgage or securities pool, or for such mortgage, security, or other asset in which undivided interests were created by the institution, and the time and place of any hearing upon such application which may be fixed by the court.

Comments:

This section is entirely new. Its purpose is obvious. It is based somewhat upon Section 804 in this draft.

Section 904. Appointment of Substituted Fiduciary; Transfer of Pools or Participations upon Order of Court.—A. After the filing by the Secretary of a supplement to the certificate of possession, setting forth his determination to liquidate the business and property of an institution, but either before or after the filing of an account by him as to any mortgages, securities, or other assets comprising any mortgage or securities pool operated by such institution, or as to any mortgage, security, or other asset in which the institution shall have created undivided interests, the owner of any undivided interest in such mortgage or securities pool or in such mortgage, security, or other asset, may file in the court in which the certificate of possession is filed a petition for the appointment of a substituted fiduciary for such mortgage or securities pool, or for such mortgage, security, or other asset in which undivided interests were created.[1]

If such petition shall not have been filed by the owner of any such undivided interest within thirty days after the notice by the Secretary of the filing of an account as to such mortgage or security pool or as to such mortgage, security, or other asset, the Secretary shall file in the court in which the certificate of possession is filed a petition for the appointment of a substituted fiduciary for such mortgage or securities pool, or for any such mortgage, security, or other asset in which undivided interests were created by the institution.

Upon the filing of such a petition by the owner of any such undivided interest, or by the Secretary for such mortgage or security pool or for such mortgage, security, or other asset in which undivided interests were created by the institution, the court shall, upon a day fixed by it, conduct a hearing upon such application, after which it shall appoint a substituted fiduciary.

B. The Secretary shall transfer to the substituted fiduciary appointed by the court all such mortgages, securities, or other assets comprising any such mortgage or securities pool, or any such mortgage, security, or other asset in which undivided interests were created, which are in his possession as receiver, and as to which he shall have filed an account. The substituted fiduciary shall take such mortgages, securities, or other assets without liability for the nature or value of the mortgages, securities or other assets as investments.[2] Such transfer shall be made in accordance with the order of the court, and, in directing such transfer, the court may reserve for future determination any question of surcharge against the institution or the Secretary.[3]

The court may, after petition filed pursuant to the provisions of this section, order the Secretary to make such transfer even prior to filing an account, in which case it may also reserve for future determination any question which may arise upon the audit of the account.[4]

Comments:

1. This entire section is new.

The owner of an undivided interest in any mortgage or securities pool or in specific mortgages or securities probably has the right to ask for a substituted fiduciary at any time. It seems desirable to clarify this right, and consequently it has has been provided specifically that he shall have the right to file such petition either before or after the filing of the account by the Secretary.

2. It seems clear that the substituted fiduciary should not be held responsible for any investments made by the institution in mortgages, securities, or other assets comprising the pool or for the nature or value, as an investment, of the specific mortgage or security in which the institution created undivided interests. Yet courts have questioned their power to issue such an order. This provision, therefore, seems necessary to avoid any such controversy in the future.

3. This provision is inserted for the purpose of facilitating distribution to the substituted fiduciaries. Some doubt has arisen under the present laws as to whether such distribution could be made until all questions of surcharge had been disposed of. There seems to be no good reason why questions of surcharge cannot be reserved.

4. Likewise, considerable delay is experienced today by the doubt which exists concerning the power of a court to order a transfer without an account. This provision makes clear not only this power but also the power to reserve for future determination any questions which may arise upon such account.

Section 905. Advances by Secretary to Substituted Fiduciary.—Whenever the Secretary shall have filed an account as to any such mortgage or securities pool, or as to any mortgage, security or other asset in which the institution shall have created undivided interests, and it shall appear to the court that any sum of cash will be needed by the substituted fiduciary for the protection of the owners of undivided interests in such mortgage or securities pools or in any such mortgage, security or other asset, as to which such account shall have been filed, and if it shall appear from the account that the Secretary does not have any cash held by him in connection with such mortgage or securities pool or in connection with any such mortgage, security, or other asset, or if the account discloses that the cash in his hands for that purpose is insufficient for the protection of the owners of the undivided interests in such mortgage or securities pool, or any such mortgage or security, or other asset, or where no account is filed, if the Secretary shall demonstrate these facts to the satisfaction of the court, the court may, upon petition of the Secretary, and in the exercise of its discretion, order the Secretary to advance to the substituted fiduciary out of the general assets of the institution, such cash as may be necessary for the protection of the owners of such undivided interest. Such order shall provide that the amount of cash so advanced by the Secretary shall be repaid by the substituted fiduciary out of the first moneys realized by such substituted fiduciary on the mortgages, securities, and other assets transferred to him.

Comments:

This entire section is new. Any profit which has been made by such pools or participations has accrued to the benefit of the institution, becoming part of its assets. It seems equitable, therefore, when the assets comprising such pool or participation are temporarily frozen, to provide that temporary advances shall be made from the assets of the institution.

In addition, it seems necessary to add this provision, since otherwise no substituted fiduciary would be willing to take over the management of the pool or participation.

The provision that such advances shall be repaid out of the first cash realized on such assets seems to afford the greatest possible protection to the depositors and other creditors of the institutio n.

Section 906. Compensation and Expenses.—The court, in its adjudication of any account filed by the Secretary as to any mortgage or securities pool operated by an institution of which the Secretary is in possession as receiver, or as to any mortgage, security, or other asset in which the institution shall have created undivided interests, shall award to the Secretary such compensation for services rendered and expenses properly incurred by the institution, or by the Secretary, as the court shall deem reasonable and proper under all the circumstances. The order of the court making any such award to the Secretary shall provide for the payment of such compensation or expenses out of any cash included in the account, or if there be no cash in the account, or if the amount of cash included therein is insufficient to pay the amount awarded to the Secretary, the order shall provide for the payment of such compensation or expenses out of the first moneys realized by the substituted fiduciary on the mortgages, securities or other assets so transferred to such substituted fiduciary. All sums received by the Secretary under this section shall become assets of the institution of which he is in possession as receiver.[1]

When the court shall, pursuant to the provisions of this act, order the Secretary to transfer such morgages, securities, or other assets, prior to the filing of an account, it shall similarly make provision for the payment of the compensation earned, or the expenses incurred, by the institution, or by the Secretary.[2]

Comments:

1. This entitre section is new.

It seems entirely reasonable to provide that the Secretary shall be entitled to have the court award compensation for services rendered and expenses incurred by an institution or by the Secretary in the administration of the mortgage or securities pool or the specific mortgages or other securities in which the institution created undivided interests. On the other hand, there will often be no money in the fund out of which such compensation and expenses can be paid. This proposed section provides that in such a case the court shall make a proper order providing for such payment out of the fund upon conditions deemed reasonable by the court.

2. See Section 904 B in this draft.

ARTICLE X

PROOF OF CLAIMS, ACCOUNTING, AND DISTRIBUTION

Section 1001. Notice to Depositors, Shareholders, and Other Creditors.—After filing a supplement to the certificate of possession setting forth his determination to liquidate the affairs of an instituion of which he has taken possession as receiver, the Secretary shall forthwith give notice of such fact to all corporations or persons who appear upon the books of the institution as, or who are otherwise known to the Secretary to be or to claim to be, depositors or other creditors and, in the case of a building and loan association, shareholders, of such institution. He shall likewise give notice to any corporation or person who, pursuant to the provisions of this act, has given the Secretary notice of his claim to the right of execution or attachment against any assets, owned by, or legally in the custody or possession of, the Secretary as receiver of the Institution.[1]

The notice to each depositor, or, in the case of a building and loan association, to each shareholder,[2] shall state the amount which the books or other records of the institution show to be due to such depositor,[3] or shareholder. It shall also state that unless such depositor or shareholder shall within a specified time, present to the Secretary for settlement, his deposit or pass book, or other evidence of his account, showing a different amount to be due, or unless such depositor or shareholder shall, within a specified time from the date of such notice, prove in the manner provided by this act that a different amount is due, the amount shown to be due by the books of the institution will be conclusively presumed to be correct, unless the court, pursuant to the provisions of this act, grants him an extension of time.

The notice to each creditor other than a depositor, or in the case of a building and loan association, other than a shareholder, shall inform such creditor that he must present his claim in the manner provided by this act, within a specified time from the date of such notice, or else be permanently barred from sharing in any distribution of the assets of the institution, unless the court, pursuant to the provisions of this act, grants him an extension of time.[4]

The Secretary shall also advertise in a newspaper or newspapers, as provided in this act,[5] the fact that he has determined to liquidate the affairs of the institution. Such advertisement shall state that all depositors, or in the case of building and loan associations, all shareholders, must prove their claims within a specified period or be bound by books or records of the institution to be due them, and that any corporation or person not appearing upon the books of the institution to be a depositor, or in the case of a building and loan association, a shareholder, and not presenting his pass book, or other evidence of the state of his account, or otherwise presenting his claim, will be permanently barred from sharing in any distribution of the assets of the institution, unless the court, pursuant to the provisions of this act, grants him an extension of time.[6] It shall also state that all creditors other than depositors, or in the case of building and loan associations, other than shareholders, not proving their claims in the manner provided by this act and within a specified period will likewise be permanently barred from sharing in any distribution of the assets of the institution, except where the court, pursuant to the provisions of this act, grants to a creditor an extension of time.

The Secretary shall forthwith file with the court, under oath or affirmation, a list of all corporations or persons to whom notice has been sent, and the proofs of publication of the advertisements whic.. he has inserted pursuant to the provisions of this act.[7]

The Secretary shall specify as the last day upon which depositors, creditors, and in the case of a building and loan association, shareholders, can present their claims, a date not less than one hundred twenty days after the taking of possession of the institution by him as receiver, provided that such date shall be at least thirty days after the date of the sending of such notice.[8] However, claims based upon deficiencies in, or surcharges with respect to funds, property, or investments which such institution held in a fiduciary capacity may be presented at any time within six months after the appointment of a substituted fiduciary of the estate of which such funds, property, or investments were a part and the adjudication of the account of such estate by the competent court.[9]

Banking Act 1923, Section 41, amended by Act of May 28, 1931, P. L. 193, Section 4.

Comments:

1. See Section 712 of this draft.

2. Throughout the Banking Act of 1923 and its amendments, shareholders of building and loan associations are rarely referred to, yet they constitute a class of creditors different from the other creditors of a building and loan association. In this draft, whenever shareholders of building and loan associations are intended to be included, they are specifically mentioned.

The provision regarding notice to, and proof of claims of depositors of banks and trust companies should apply equally to shareholders of building and loan associations. The same reason for not requiring depositors to prove their claims if they are satisfied with the amounts of such claims as they appear on the books or other records of the institution applies likewise to shareholders of building and loan associations in the same situation.

3. Whenever reference is made in the Banking Act 1923 and its amendments to the accounts of depositors as they appear upon the books or records of the institution, the words "subject to any outstanding checks" are included. The reason for these words is not apparent. Checks not presented for payment prior to the taking of possession by the Secretary are not, of course, honored. Therefore, there seems to be no reason for the inclusion of these words.

4. The Banking Act 1923 provides that claims of creditors other than depositors which are not presented within the period specified by the notice of the Secretary shall be barred from coming in upon the fund. This has been interpreted to mean that such creditor is barred only from sharing in the distribution of the assets which is made under the particular account. He can, however, prove his full claim in any subsequent accounting. See County Trust Company Liquidation, 16 D. & C. 486 (1932).

This draft provides that if such creditor does not present his claim within such period he shall be permanently barred from sharing in the assets of the institution. This is analogous, of course, to the provision of the Federal Bankruptcy Law. The appearance of creditors after the second or third account has been a constant source of delay and confusion to special deputies in the liquidation of institutions. This draft provides sufficient notice and a sufficiently long period of time to justify this provision. In addition, it permits the court, on cause shown, to grant to any creditor an extension not beyond the date for the filing of exceptions to the first account (see Sections 1002 and 1003 in this draft).

5. Section 4 of this draft contains the provisions applicable whenever an advertisement in a newspaper is required by this draft.

Section 41 of the Banking Act 1923 requires advertisement of notice to depositors or other creditors once a week for four consecutive weeks. There seems to be no reason to deviate in this section from the general provision that advertisements shall be inserted once a week for three consecutive weeks. In almost every instance the depositor or other creditor, or, in the case of a building and loan association, the shareholder will receive individual notice. For the rare case in which, for some reason, such depositor, creditor, or shareholder does not receive individual notice, newspaper advertisement once a week for three consecutive weeks seems to be adequate.

Besides, it will frequently be impossible for the Secretary to insert an advertisement more than once a week for three weeks. For example, if the Secretary designates thirty days after the date of the mailing of individual notices as the last date for the proof of claims, it would frequently be impossible for him within such thirty-day period, to insert more than three weekly advertisements, as where a weekly legal newspaper is not published until four our five days after the mailing of individual notices to such depositors, other creditors, or shareholders respectively.

6. The Banking Act 1923 and its amendments do not specifically mention the situation of a depositor, or, in the case of a building and loan association, a shareholder, whose name does not appear upon the books of the institution.

By analogy to other creditors who do not prove their claims within the specified period, this draft provides that such depositors shall be permanently barred from sharing in the assets of the estate if they do not present their claims within the designated period, unless the court, pursuant to the provisions of this act, grants him an extension of time. This seems the only practicable provision. It is possible to imagine isolated instances in which depositors, whose names are fraudulently kept off the books or records of the institution by employes thereof, will suffer an injustice. It is very rare, however, that a depostor's name does not appear upon the books. If it does, but for an incorrect amount, he will, of course, get notice.

The notice provided in this section is some protection to such depositors. Their right of action against the individual employe or his bond is another. However, it seems administratively desirable to provide as this proposed section does, that such depositor is barred from sharing in the assets, if he does not prove in time or procure the special leave of court provided in this act.

7. This proposed provision is new. It assures a contemporaneous record in the court of all corporations or persons to whom notice has been given.

8. Section 41 of the Banking Act 1923 provides that the Secretary shall give notice to depositors or other creditors to present their claims within four months from the date of the notice. The amendment of 1931 adds the proviso that the Secretary may prescribe a period less than four months but not less than thirty days.

In the first place the use of both days and months in one statute is confusing. The use of days as a basis seems preferable to months, since the question of construction frequently arises as to whether or not calendar months are intended. This draft, therefore, uses the unit of days.

In the second place, the amendment of 1931 seems undesirable. It is conceivable that the Secretary, within a very few days after taking possession of an institution, might decide to liquidate. He could then allow thirty days for the presentation of all claims. This period seems too short. This draft provides that the Secretary may designate thirty days after the period for the proof of all claims only when such thirty-day period is one hundred twenty days after the taking of possession of the institution. One hundred twenty days seems a sufficient length of time for depositors, other creditors, or shareholders, to learn that possession has been taken of the institution and to determine the state of their accounts. However, discretion is vested in the Secretary to increase the period for the proof of claims whenever this seems desirable.

In any individual case in which hardship would result, the court may, under the provisions of this act, grant special leave to file a claim at a later date, provided that such date is not after the last day for the filing of exceptions to the first account.

9. See Section 807 in this draft.

Section 1002. Proof of Claims of Depositors, or in Building and Loan Associations, Shareholders.—Any depositor, or in the case of a building and loan association, any shareholder, who disagrees with the amount shown by the books or other records of the institution to be due to him, shall present his claims to the Secretary by presenting his deposit or pass books, or other evidence of indebtedness, to the Secretary, within the time and in the manner designated by the Secretary pursuant to the provisions of this act.[1] Any such depositor or shareholder, who shall not have received or shall have lost his deposit or pass book or other evidence of indebtedness, or who shall believe that the amount shown by such deposit or pass book or other evidence of indebtedness be due to him is incorrect, shall, within the time designated by the Secretary, present his claim to the Secretary by whatever method he shall designate.[2]

Any depositor, or in the case of a building and loan association, any shareholder, who shall not present his claim within the designated time and in the manner provided by this section, shall be bound by the amount appearing to be due to him upon the books or records of the institution, or where the name of such depositor or shareholder does not appear at all upon the books or records of the institution, or appears on such books or records but with no balance appearing to be due to him by the institution, shall be permanently barred from sharing in any distribution of the assets of the institution. However, the court may, upon petition and adequate cause shown, permit any depositor, or in the case of a building and loan association, any shareholder, to file his claim upon a later date, but no claim shall in any event be allowed to be filed after the last day for the filing of exceptions to the first account of the Secretary.[3]

This section shall not, however, be construed to deprive such depositor or shareholder of any right of action at law or in equity which he may have against an employe or former employe of the institution, or upon the bond of such employe, or former employe, for any act committed by such employe which resulted in such depositor's or shareholder's not appearing upon the books of the institution, or appearing upon them but being credited with an amount below that actually due.[4]

The Secretary shall prescribe the form for the proof of claim of all depositors, or in the case of building and loan associations, shareholders, and for the affidavit to be included therein. Whenever requested by any such depositor or shareholder, to prepare such proof of claim or to take the affidavit thereto, the Secretary shall do so without any charge to such depositor or shareholder.[5]

Banking Act 1923, Section 43.

Comments:

1. Section 43 of the Banking Act 1923 makes provision for the preparation by the special deputy in charge of the affairs of the institution, of the proofs of claim or affidavits thereto.

In the first place there seems to be no reason for specifically delegating the duty to the special deputy rather than to the Secretary. Section 702 of this draft permits the Secretary to delegate any duty imposed upon, or right or power granted to, him as receiver. Therefore, all rights or duties granted or imposed by this proposed act are granted to, or imposed upon the Secretary, whether or not it is contemplated that he will in most cases, or even in every case, delegate such duty to a deputy receiver.

In the second place, it seems that the Department of Banking code should go as fully into proofs of claim by depositors, or in the case of building and loan associations, shareholders, as Section 42 of the Banking Act 1923 does in the case of proofs of claim by other creditors.

2. The Banking Act 1923 discusses only the situation where a depositor presents his deposit or pass books or other evidence of indebtedness, in order to prove that a different amount is due him from that stated on the books or other records of the institution. It makes no mention of the situation where the name of such depositor or shareholder either does not appear on the books of the institution at all, or if it does appear, does not have any amount credited to it. It seems clear that this situation should be discussed.

In addition, it may be noted in passing that in this section the provisions relating to shareholders of building and loan associations are likewise new. For discussion see footnote 1 to Section 1001.

3. This provision is new. As pointed out in footnote 3 to Section 1001, it may work serious injury to a particular depositor or, in the case of a building and loan association, shareholders, to provide that if he does not present his claim within the time prescribed by the Secretary, pursuant to the provisions of this act, he will be permanently barred. Even under existent law, the court, upon adequate cause shown, grants extensions of time. The need for the exercise of such discretion is increased in this act, and consequently is specifically covered.

4. This provision is new. There seems to be no reason for denying to a depositor whose name, for example, has been fraudulently kept off the books of the institution by an employe, his right of recourse against the employe perpetrating such fraud, or against his bond.

5. As pointed out in the footnotes to Section 1001 it seems desirable to make the provisions of this section applicable to shareholders of building and loan associations.

Section 1003. Proof of Claims of Creditors.—A. Creditors other than depositors, or, in the case of a building and loan association, other than shareholders, shall not share in any distribution of the assets of the institution, unless the creditor, or someone for it, shall, within the time specified by the Secretary, pursuant to the provisions of this act, present to him, a statement of its claim, together with a copy of any book entries pertaining thereto, any note or other instrument received as evidence thereof, and a list of any collateral or agreement of pledge received in connection therewith.[1]

However, the court may, upon petition and adequate cause shown, permit any creditor to file his claim upon a later date, but no claim shall in any event be allowed to be filed after the last day for the filing of exceptions to the first account of the secretary.[2]

The statement of a creditor's claim, required by this section, shall be verified by affidavit in substantially the following form:

"I (name of claimant), do solemnly swear (or affirm) that the above is a true statement of my claim against (name of institution); that there are no credits or allowances against this claim except as therein set forth; that there is no collateral security for this indebtedness or any part thereof held by me or by anyone else other than as above set forth; and that I am not the owner or the obligee, directly or indirectly, of any contract of indemnity or insurance covering this claim, except as set forth above."[3]

If the creditor shall be a corporation such affidavit shall be made by the treasurer or assistant treasurer thereof, and if a partnership, by any member thereof. In either such case the form of the affidavit shall be modify accordingly.

B. The provisions of this section shall not apply to the claims of parties interested in the custody, possession, or control of funds, property or investments held by such institution in a fiduciary capacity.[4] However, except as otherwise provided in this act,[5] the provisions of this section shall apply to disputes concerning the identity of such funds, property, or investments, or to claims based upon deficiencies therein, or the liability of the institution to surcharge thereon.

Comments:

1. The provisions requiring the inclusion of a list of any collateral or agreement of pledge is not in the Banking Act 1923 or any of its amendments. However, it is clearly desirable that the deputy receiver have this information.

2. This provision is new. See footnote 3 to Section 1002 in this draft.

3. Section 42 of the Banking Act 1923, as amended, required in the affidavit a statement that the claimant has not directly or indirectly made or entered into any agreement or other arangement, express or implied, to take or receive, directly or indirectly, any money, property, or other consideration, to or for himself or to or for any other corporation or person, other than his dividend as creditor. This provision, although always included since the statute seems to require it, has never served any purpose in so far as can be determined. It is therefore omitted.

However, the provision concerning any contract of indemnity or insurance has been included in this draft. The Secretary should have this information.

4. The Banking Act 1923, as amended, provides that the section corresponding to this proposed one shall not apply to the claims of "cestuis que trust or others to or against trust funds or property in the custody, possession, or control of a corporation or person." It seems that of necessity this must apply to the claims of all parties interested in property held by the institution as fiduciary. This proposed section attempts to clarify the meaning of this provision and to restrict its scope to this type of claim.

Section 1004. Allowance of Claims.—For the purpose of the accounting provided for in this act,[1] the Secretary shall allow the claims of depositors, or in the case of a building and loan association, shareholders, for the amounts shown to be due to them upon the books or other records of the institution, or for such other amounts as they shall, within the time and in the manner provided by this act, prove to the satisfaction of the Secretary are due to them. He shall likewise allow the claims of all other creditors, when presented within the time and in the manner provided by this act, if he shall be satisfied that the amounts claimed are rightfully due.[2] He shall reject all other claims of depositors, other creditors, and, in the case of building and loan associations, shareholders.

Banking Act 1923, Section 44, amended by Act of May 5, 1927, P. L. 762, Section 19.

Comments:

1. The words "for the purposes of the accounting provided for in this act" are introduced to make clear the reason for allowance of claims.

2. The provisions of this proposed section are considerably more detailed than those of Section 44 of the Banking Act 1923, as amended. The rights of depositors, creditors, or shareholders should be clearly determinable from a study of the Department of Banking Code.

Section 1005. Advance Payments of Dividends to Depositors.[1]—After the expiration of the period fixed by the Secretary pursuant to the provisions of this act, for the presentation of claims, he may petition the court for an order permitting him without filing an account, to make an advance payment of a dividend to all depositors the amounts of whose claims as they appear upon the books or other records of the institution are undisputed.[2] The dividend shall be calculated as if the claims of all other depositors, as they appear upon the books or other records of the institution, and the claims of all creditors who assert priority over, or parity with, depositors in the order of distribution of the assets, are valid and uncontested.[3]

The petition to the court for an order permitting the Secretary to declare such advance payment shall state in detail the cash available for distribution; the names and addresses of, and the amounts due to, the depositors to whom the advance payment of a dividend is to be made; the amounts claimed by other depositors to be due to them; and the amounts due to, or claimed by, other creditors by law given priority over, or parity with, depositors in the order of distribution of the assets of the institution.

The court, if it finds that the provisions of this section have been complied with, shall issue the order petitioned for, upon such terms and conditions as it shall deem expedient.[4] However, the court shall not authorize an advance payment of a dividend to any depositor, until the Secretary shall first have set aside an amount sufficient to pay in full the claims of all creditors asserting or entitled to priority over depositors in the order of distribution, and to pay the proportionate dividend on the amounts claimed by the other depositors, and by any creditors who are entitled to or who claim parity with depositors in the order fo distribution provided for by law.[5]

Comments:

1. This entire section is new.

The rule of the Banking Act 1923 that dividends can be declared and paid by the Secretary only after the filing and approval of an account frequently proves a great hardship upon the depositors of a bank or a trust company of which the Secretary takes possession. During the recent banking crisis, this hardship proved so great that the so-called "Private Banker Plan" was evolved in order to facilitate payments of dividends to depositors. Under this plan, the Secretary, under authority of the Act of May 28, 1931, P. L. 193, transferred assets of the institution (predominantly cash) to a private banker licensed under exemption (6) of Section 8 of the Act of 1911, P. L. 1060. The consideration for this transfer was what amounted to an advance payment of a dividend by such private banker to depositors of the institution in possession of the Secretary.

This rigmarole seems unnecessary. It is burdensome and fraught with easily avoidable dangers. A provision for authorizing the making of advance payments to depositors seems to give all the advantages, and still to avoid most of the dangers, of the "Private Banker Plan."

2. This proposed section limits the payment of advance dividends to depositors whose claims do not differ from their accounts as shown upon the books of the institution. Upon first impression, there seems to be no reason why depositors, whose claims are concurred in by the Secretary, should not be entitled to advance payments, even though such claims differ from the amounts shown to be due upon the books of the institution.

Under the provisions of this proposed section, advance payments would be permitted to an overwhelmingly great majority of deposits. In the case of the comparatively few remaining depositors, it seems desirable not to permit them. If the claim does not agree with the amount shown upon the books of the institution, it seems advisable to give the other depositors and creditors an opportunity to file exceptions.

3. The reason for these provisions seems clear. If an advance dividend is to be paid, it should be computed as if all claims, whether of depositors, or of other creditors who are entitled to come in upon the fund before, or at the same time as depositors, are undisputed. In this way, justice to all claimants is assured.

4. This clause imposes a duty upon the court to issue the order if all the circumstances provided for in this proposed section are present. However, it allows the court discretion to determine the terms and conditions of the order.

5. The reason for the proviso seems clear. The greatest possible justice to the other depositors, and to claimants asserting priority over, or partly with depositors in the order of distribution of assets, can be assured only if the money necessary to pay in full claims preferred over deposits, and to pay a proportionate dividend upon claims on a parity with deposits, is set aside.

Section 1006. Expenses of Administration.—Any reasonable expenditure made by the Secretary as receiver of an institution, including any expense incurred in the management, reorganization, consolidation, liquidation, or distribution of the assets and affairs of the institution, and any compensaton paid to the deputy recever or any other employe retained to assist the Secretary in such management, reorganization, consolidation, liquidation, or distribution, and to any deputy attorney general, special deputy attorney general, assistant deputy attorney general, or other attorney who has been assigned by the Department of Justice to the Secretary to handle for him any legal business pertaining to the affairs or property of such institution, shall be paid out of the assets of the institution, provided it is included in any partial or final account filed by the Secretary pursuant to the provisions of this act and is approved by the court in which such account is filed.

Where such expenses are incurred, or such compensation is paid, for the benefit of the estate of more than one institution in the possession of the Secretary as receiver, an equitable portion of such expenses or compensation shall be paid out of the assets of each institution on whose behalf such expenditures were made.[1]

Banking Act 1923, Section 49.

Comments:

1. This provision is new. The addition of this paragraph, which authorizes the apportionment of expenses among several institutions, is probably not specifically necessary. However, the absence of such a provision in the Banking Act 1923 has in one or two cases been the basis of an exception to an account. Although such exceptions have not been sustained, the inclusion of this paragraph makes clear the legality of the apportionment of expenses by the Secretary.

Section 1007. Partial or Final Account; Objections.—A. At any time after the expiration of the period fixed by the Secretary, pursuant to the provisions of this act, for the presentation of claims, he shall file a partial or final account of his administration of the business and property of the institution, duly verified by him under oath or affirmation.

If the Secretary shall not file his first account within one year after he takes possession of an institution, any depositor, other creditor, or shareholdef of such institution may petition the court to order the Secretary to file an account. The court may, in its discretion, grant or refuse the petition.

The account shall present in detail his administration of the estate, including a statement of all receipts or expenditures by the Secretary as receiver, a list of all claims which have been allowed and a separate list of claims which have been objected to or are disputed, showing as to all depositors, other creditors, and, in the case of a building and loan association, shareholders, their names and addresses, the amounts due or claimed to be due to them, and any priorities in the order of distribution granted to or claimed by them.

B. The Secretary shall forthwith give written or printed notice of such filing of an account to all corporations or persons whom he knows to be, or to claim to be,[1] depositors, other creditors, and in the case of building and loan associations, shareholders, of the institution, at the addresses which respectively appear for them upon the books of the institution, or if none appear there, at their last known respective addresses. Such notice shall also state that unless an exception to the account or to any item therein is filed with the court within thirty days from the date of the filing thereof, it will be confirmed absolutely.

He shall likewise give notice to any corporation or person who, pursuant to the provisions of this act, has given the Secretary notice of his claim to the right of execution or attachment against any assets, owned by, or legally in the custody or possession of, the Secretary as receiver of the institution.[2]

He shall also advertise such notice in a newspaper or newspapers as provided in this act,[3] stating the date upon which he has filed his partial or final account and the fact that all exceptions to the account must be filed within thirty days from the date of the filing of such account.

The Secretary shall forthwith file with the court, under oath or affirmation, a list of the names and addresses of all corporations or persons to whom notice has been sent, and the proofs of publication of the advertisements which he has inserted pursuant to the provisions of this section.[4]

C. The prothonotary shall not be under any duty to recopy or otherwise record such account. He shall make no charge except the regular fee for filing such or similar papers.[5]

Comments:

1. The Banking Act of 1923, provides for such giving of notice only to depositors or other creditors. In accordance with the policy already expressed, shareholders of building and loan associations are specifically added in this proposed section. It seems obvious, however, that notice should also be given to those whom the Secretary knows claim to be in any of these groups. Therefore, provision is also made as to them.

2. This provision is new. See Section 712 in this draft.

3. Section 45 of the Banking Act 1923, as amended, provides for advertisement in two newspapers once a week for four successive weeks.

As to the requirement that the advertisements be inserted once a week for four successive weeks, this, in many instances, imposes an impossible duty; see footnote 5 to Section 1001 in this draft.

As to the requirement that the advertisement be inserted in two newspapers, this seems unnecessary. Virtually all the depositors, other creditors, and in the case of building and loan associations, sharehclders, will be given individual notice. It hardly seems necessary, after both giving individual notice to such depositors, other creditors, and shareholders, to file their claims, and inserting advertisement thereof, and after giving them individual notice of the filing of the account, to require advertisement of such filing in more than one newspaper, and in first and second class counties, one legal newspaper.

Consequently, the provisions of Section 4 of this draft have been incorporated by reference into this proposed section.

4. This provision is new. It has been included in this proposed section, as a protection to depositors, other creditors, and in the case of building and loan associations, shareholders, as a protection to the Secretary against assertions that he did not give notice, and as an element in keeping the records of the court complete with reference to the liquidation proceedings.

The provisions of Section 45 of the Banking Act 1923, as amended, dealing wth exceptions to the account, are omitted in this proposed section as they are fully treated in Section 1008 of this draft.

5. This provision is new.

The Act of April 25, 1850, P. L. 569, Section 19, provides that it shall be the duty of the prothonotary to record, in a book to be procured for that purpose, "all accounts of assignees, trustees, sequestrators and committees and all audits thereof . . . ". It seems clear that this act does not apply to the account filed by the Secretary under this proposed section and Judge Stern, in construing the corresponding section in the Banking Act 1923, has so held, see In re: Jefferson Title and Trust Company, decided October 6, 1932, by Common Pleas Court No. 2 of Philadelphia.

However at least one court (Common Pleas Court of Blair County, opinion not yet filed) reached an opposite conclusion. It seems wise, therefore, to include specifically such a provision.

Query: Will this provision, introduced without reference to the Act of 1850, weaken in any manner the intention that the Act of 1850 does not apply to accounts filed before the effective date of this Act?

Section 1008. Exceptions to Account.—A. Any corporation or person who is or who claims to be a depositor, other creditor, or shareholder of an institution,[1] or who has given to the Secretary notice of his claim to the right of execution or attachment against any assets owned by, or legally in the custody of, the Secretary as receiver of an institution[2] may, within thirty days after the filing of an account by the Secretary, file in the court specific exceptions in writing, under oath or affirmation, to such account or to any item therein.

Notice of any exception to an individual item in an account shall forthwith be personally served upon, or sent by registered mail to, the corporation or person whose claim is thus objected to, or his counsel, and also the Secretary or the deputy receiver managing the affairs of the particular institution, or the counsel of either.[3] Affidavit of the serving or sending of such notice shall forthwith be filed with the court.

B. Whenever an exception is filed to any expenditure made by the Secretary as an expense of administration, the Secretary shall keep an accurate record of the salaries and other expenses exclusive of counsel fees, properly incurred by him in the contesting of such exception. If the exception is overruled and the expenditure is sustained, the court may, in its discretion, assess such expenses and salaries, together with the regular costs provided by law, upon the depositor, other creditor, or shareholder filing such exception.[4]

Comments:

1. The words "or anyone having any interest" which appear in Section 45 of the Banking Act 1923 have been omitted in this proposed section. The words "depositor, other creditor, or shareholder" together with the provision concerning attachment and execution creditors seem to cover everyone entitled to file such exceptions.

2. This provision is new. See Section 712 in this draft.

3. Section 45 of the Banking Act 1923, as amended, provides that notice shall "be served." It is therefore somewhat doubtful whether personal service was intended or whether the provisions of Section 3 (b) of the Banking Act 1923 were meant to apply. It is probable that the latter is the case.

However, there seems to be no reason why, personal service, or at least notice by registered mail should not be required where a creditor's status or claim is being contested. This is the only means whereby he can secure such notice of such contesting since there is no provision here that there be any advertisement. In order not to tie up the accounting unduly, service by registered mail is permitted, if personal service cannot be effected promptly.

4. This provision is new. It is intended to discourage frivolous exceptions to expenditures of the Secretary or his representatives. In order, however, not to discourage sincere and well-advised objectors, discretion is vested in the court to determine whether to assess such additional costs.

The provision in the amendment of 1931 to Section 45 of the Banking Act 1923 is omitted. It provides that "in the case of the liquidation of building and loan associations, wherever in this act, the word 'creditors' is used it shall mean shareholders and/or creditors; and in all other cases the word 'creditors' wherever used in this act shall mean depositors and/or creditors." Literally applied this provision would be illogical, and in many instances would work hardship. As used in the Banking Act 1923, the words depositors, creditors, and shareholders could not possibly, in many sections, have the meanings ascribed to them by the provision above referred to in the amendment to Section 45.

Therefore, this draft specifically designates in each case whether a depositor, a shareholder, or another creditor is intended. This method is somewhat more cumbersome but it seems clearly desirable.

Section 1009. Adjudication of Rejected Claims and Exceptions to Account.—A. If any claim has been rejected by the Secretary or any exception has been filed to the account or to any item thereof, the court shall, as soon as expedient after the expiration of the period for the filing of exceptions to the account, fix a date for hearing in court arguments on all rejected claims and all exceptions to the account or to any item thereof.

The Secretary shall give notice of such hearing to all corporations or persons whose claims have been rejected by the Secretary or objected to in the manner provided by this act. He shall likewise give notice to all corporations or persons who have filed exceptions to the account or to any item thereof. Such notice shall set forth in so far as possible the reasons for the rejection of the claim or the nature of the exception to the item of the account[1] and shall state that all parties whose claims are rejected or objected to must appear in court upon the date fixed by the court to prove their claims, or they will be bound by the ex parte decision of the court.[2]

B. The court in which the account is filed shall itself hear arguments upon any rejected claim or upon any exception to an account or to any item thereof, upon the date fixed by it for this purpose. The court shall itself decide, without delay, all matters in contoversy. If any party does not appear in court on the day fixed, the court shall conduct the hearing ex parte and shall render its decision upon the merits as they appear after such hearing.

Comments:

1. The provision for a statement in the notice of the reasons for the rejection of a claim by the Secretary, or the basis of an exception to a claim by anyone else if stated, seems desirable. It gives the claimant an opportunity to prepare his case.

2. The Banking Act 1923 provides that the notice shall state that if a claimant does not appear to prove his claim on the day fixed by court, he shall "be debarred from coming in upon the fund for distribution." This does not seem to be the proper remedy. Rather the court should adjudicate the matter ex parte.

Section 1010. Confirmation of Account; Distribution of Dividends.—A. If the Secretary has approved all deposits, or in the case of building and loan associations, all shareholders' claims, as presented by them pursuant to the provisions of this act, or if not presented, as they appear upon the books or other records of the institution, and if no exception has been filed to an account or to any item thereof within thirty days after the filing of such account by the Secretary, the court shall confirm the account absolutely.[1] The Secretary shall then declare, and after approval by the court, shall pay a partial or a final dividend, according to the priorities established by law.

If the Secretary has rejected any such deposit or claim, or if any such exception has been filed, the court shall confirm the account as to all other matters and claims. The Secretary may then declare, and after approval by the court, pay a dividend, according to the priorities established by law. The dividend shall be calculated as if all deposits or other claims are valid and approved. The Secretary, before paying any such dividend, shall set apart the proportion of such dividend which would be properly apportionable to any claim which has been rejected by the Secretary, or to which an exception has been filed, if the amount and the priority claimed were sustained by the court. If any such claim shall be determined by the court to be valid, the Secretary shall pay to the corporation or person entitled thereto the dividend which has been set apart in the manner provided by this section. If any such claim shall be determined by the court to be invalid, the dividend which has been set apart in the manner provided by this section shall be distributed in the order of the priorities established by law, to those whose claims have been approved by the court.

B. The confirmation of any account and distribution thereunder, after the adjudication of all claims therein which have been rejected by the Secretary or to which exceptions have been filed, and of all other exceptions to such account, shall be conclusive as to all matters therein. Except as otherwise provided in this act,[2] no claim of any depositor or other creditor shall be valid if not listed and approved in the first account which has been filed.[3]

The confirmation of the final account and distribution thereunder shall discharge the Secretary, the deputy receiver, any other employe, and the legal counsel, as well as the surety for any of them, from all further civil liability for any act done in his official capacity as receiver, deputy receiver, employe, or legal counsel of the institution.

Comments:

1. The Banking Act 1923 provides merely that if "no objections shall have been filed" to an account, the account shall be confirmed absolutely. This proposed section states in full the circumstances under which an account shall be confirmed absolutely.

2. For example, see Section 807 in this draft.

3. Section 47 of the Banking Act 1923, specifically provides that the confirmation of a partial account and distribution thereunder shall be conclusive only as to the fund distributed, and shall not prevent the proof and allowance out of the fund involved in any subsequent account, of claims not presented in time for allowance out of such previous funds. This is consistent with the policy of the Banking Act 1923.

As explained in several preceding sections, this draft, like the Federal bankruptcy act specifies a period after which no claim of any kind can be proved. This seems desirable. It enables the Secretary, after a minimum of one hundred twenty days after he takes possession, to know with a great degree of definiteness the condition of the estate, the chances for a special plan of liquidation, reorganization, or consolidation, etc. Deserving cases may apply to the court, for a limited extension of time. Also, the estate can be liquidated with much greater facility.

Section 1011.[1] Order of Preference in Distribution. A. The following shall be the order followed by the Secretary in the distribution, pursuant to the provisions of this act, of the assets of any institution, with the exception of a building and loan association, which he as receiver is liquidating:

First, Any expenditure made by the Secretary as receiver, which, under the provisions of this act, is to be paid out of the assets of the institution;[2] any fee or other debt owing to the Department for examinations, or other services rendered, or penalties incurred, prior to the taking of possession by the Secretary as receiver;[3] any deposit or other claim of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania;[4] and any other claim which is given a preference by law.[5]

Second, Any deposit and any interest due thereon which has been, or according to the by-laws and regulations of the institution should have been, credited to such deposit, prior to the date of the taking of possession of the institution by the Secretary as receiver, whether subject to withdrawal by check or by any other method not requiring notice, or to withdrawal only after notice or after the expiration of a fixed period, whether or not such notice has been given or such period has expired at the date of distribution;[6] any holder of a certified check drawn on the institution;[7] any holder of a certificate of deposit of the institution, which evidences an actual deposit of moneys in such institution, and any interest which may be due thereon, whether such certificate of deposit is payable upon demand, or is payable only after notice or after the expiration of a fixed period, whether or not such notice has been given or such period has expired at the date of distribution;[8] any holder of a check or draft of the institution, which has been given in exchange for, or in payment of, a check or draft drawn upon such institution by a depositor therein, or which has otherwise been charged to the account of a depositor therein, or which has otherwise been charged to the account of a depositor therein, provided that the amount of such check or draft does not exceed the balance to the credit of such depositor.[9]

Third, Any claim for the amount of any deficiency in the funds, property, or investments of an estate of which the institution was fiduciary, or any surcharge with respect to such estate, which is found to be due by the court in which the account for such estate is filed;[10] and any claim of a creditor of the institution, not listed under any other category in this section.

Fourth, Any part of the amounts paid by shareholders, after an assessment upon them by the Secretary pursuant to the provisions of this act, which has proved unnecessary to pay in full all depositors or other crediors of the institution; such payments are to be made pro rata up to the respective amounts paid by each shareholder. This clause shall not be construed to refer to payments made by shareholders on account of unpaid subscriptions to shares.

Fifth, Any moneys of the institution which still remain in the hands of the Secretary, shall be paid to shareholders, in proportion to the number of shares held by them respectively minus any amounts still owing by them on the assessment made by the Secretary pursuant to the provisions of this act, or on unpaid subscriptions to shares.[11]

Sixth, Any unliquidated assets, to trustees for shareholders appointed pursuant to the provisions of this act.

B. The following shall be the order and preference followed by the Secretary in the distribution, pursuant to the provision of this act, of the assets of any building and loan association the affairs of which he as receiver is liquidating:

First, Any expenditure made by the Secretary as receiver, which, under the provisions of this act, is to be paid out of the assets of the institution; any fee or other debt owing to the Department for examinations, or other services rendered, or penalties incurred, prior to the taking of possession by the Secretary as receiver; any other claim of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; and any other claim which is given a preference by law.[12]

Second, Any claim of a creditor of the association, other than the claim of a shareholder arising from his ownership of shares.

Third, Any claim of a shareholder arising from his ownership of shares, whether such shares be installment, full-paid, prepaid, matured, or any other type. The amount of the claim arising from each share shall be the amount actually paid in on account of such share, less any amount lawfully deductible therefrom by the association, except in the case of a lawfully and properly matured share, in which case the amount of the claim shall be the actual par value of the share less any payment received on account thereof from the association and less any other amount lawfully deductible therefrom by the association.[13]

C. Every claim enumerated above shall have the same rank and priority as every other claim in the same numbered paragraph, regardless of the order in which such claims are enumerated.[14]

D. All claims provided for in this section shall be construed to refer only to claims presented to the Secretary, and approved by the court, in accordance with the provisions of this act.

Comments:

1. The Banking Act 1923 makes no provision for the order of preference in distribution, except that the expenses of liquidation shall be preferred and that the priorities established by law shall be followed.

In each of the acts cited under references above, there is a more or less sketchy statement of priorities, varying considerably in the several acts and complete in none of them.

It seems clear that the liquidation section of this draft is the proper place for a statement of the order of distribution.

2. Section 1006 of this draft enumerates the expenditures by the Secretary as receiver, which are to be paid out of the assets of the institution. Section 49 of the Banking Act 1923 provides not only for the expenditures which shall be paid out of the assets, but also specifically accords to them a preferred status. It seems more logical to state the preference in the section dealing with all preferences and it is therefore included in the above proposed section.

3. This is really a claim of the Commonwealth, but it seems desirable to include it specifically in order to preclude any other interpretation.

It is an established principle of all receiverships that expenses of the receivership are preferred claims.

4. The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has uniformly held, as a matter of common law, that debts due to the Commonwealth shall be preferred claims. Thus Mr. Chief Justice Moschzisker, speaking for a unanimous court, says in South Philadelphia State Bank's Insolvency, 295 Pa. 433 (1929), at page 438:

"By the common law of England, at the time of the American Revolution, the king was entitled to have a debt due the crown paid before that of any of his subjects: Attorney-General v. Andrew, 1 Hardres 22, 145 Eng. Reprint 360. This privilege belonged to the king in the capacity of parens patriae, or universal trustee (Blackstone's Commentaries, Sharswood's ed., vol. I, pp 238, 240), and passed to the State of Pennsylvania in its sovereign capacity: Com. v. Lewis, 6 Binn. 266, 271; Com. v. Baldwin, 1 Watts 54, 55; Booth & Flinn v. Miller, 237 Pa. 297, 307. For an excellent general discussion and citation of cases on this subject, see U. S. Fidelity & Guar. Co. v. Bramwell, 108 Ore. 261, 217 Pac. 332."

This proposed section merely enacts this common law doctrine into the statutory law of Pennsylvania.

5. It seems impracticable to attempt to codify the various preferences established by statutes which have no place either in this draft or in the proposed Banking or Building and Loan Codes and by decisions of the courts. For example, the Bank Collection Act of 1931 (Act of June 12, 1931, P. L. 568) establishes certain preferences. Another example may be seen in the various preferences established by the decisions in the situation in which the institution has become trustee ex maleficio, see Cameron v. Carnegie Trust Co., 292 Pa. 114 (1928).

6. It seems indisputable that the preference given to depositors should be continued. In Cameron's Account, 287 Pa. 560 (1926), Mr. Justice Simpson says, at page 566:

"The preference given to depositors has back of it a substantial reason. For a long series of years, in all common-law countries, certain classes of creditors have been given a preference on distribution. * * * Depositors, in the nature of things, are also in a preferential class. Without them a banking institution would perish from dry rot. "The success of almost all commercial banks depends on their ability to obtain loans from depositors." First National Bank of San Jose v. California, 262 U. S. 366, 370, 43 S. Ct. 602, 603 (67 L. Ed. 1030). Hence the preference to depositors was given in order to induce those having funds to deposit them."

In the absence of legislation preferring depositors over general creditors, no such preference exists, see In re Prudential Trust Company's Assignment, 223 Pa. 409 (1909).

Numerous decisions have discussed the meaning of "depositors" and have settled many of the controversial situations; for examples see Commonwealth v. Tradesmen's Trust Company (No. 3), 250 Pa. 368 (1915); Schwarts's Appeal, 291 Pa. 468 (1928) in which the court says "the word 'deposits' in this section refers to bona fide deposits made in the sense that deposits are ordinarily understood"; also Fisher v. North Penn Bank, 77 Pa. Super. 558 (1921); and Nocera's Appeal, 95 Pa. Super. 199 (1928). It does not seem desirable to attempt to codify the varied holdings of these decisions.

The provisions concerning interest appear nowhere in existent laws. Consequently, there is considerable confusion as to whether interest due on deposits should be given a preference in the following situations:

(a) Where interest is credited upon the records of the institution, but not upon the pass book of the depositor.

(b) Where interest should have been credited, but has not been, either on the records of the institution or upon the pass book of the depositor.

(c) Where possession is taken of the institution between the dates established for the crediting of interest.

This draft provides that claims for interest, which fall into (a) and (b) groups should be given a preference. They may logically be regarded as having become part of the deposit.

However, interest not yet creditable, cannot logically be regarded as having become part of the deposit. It is prospective and is merely a contract debt between the institution and the depositor.

The Act of May 21, 1913, P. L. 294, Section 1 provides as follows:

"Hereafter, whenever any person, firm, or corporation receives, in payment of, or security for, a check upon a bank or trust company, such bank or trust company's check upon another person, firm, or corporation, the person, firm or corporation so receiving such check, shall, until payment thereof, be entitled, in case of liquidation of the bank or trust company drawing such check, to the same preference over other creditors as if the amount of said check had been a deposit in said bank or trust company by a depositor."

Commonwealth v. American Trust Company, 241 Pa. 153 (1912), and other cases have held that in the absence of legislation specifically giving a preference, such holders of checks do not have a standing on a parity with depositors.

Therefore, this section provides that where such a check is issued in exchange for a check drawn on the institution by a corporation or person which has on deposit with the institution at least the amount of such check, it shall be given such a preference. Any other situation contemplated by this statute will entitled the holder of such a check to the status of a general creditor only.

7. In the statutes cited above under the heading of references, no mention is made of certified checks in the distribution of the assets of an incorporated bank, but specific mention is made of such checks in the cases of trust companies and private banks. This proposed section extends such depositor's status to the holders of certified checks drawn on any type of banking institution. However, existing statutes, which provide a preference for certified checks, do so only to bona fide holders for value thereof. This proposed section does not so limit the class. If a corporation or a person is the holder, under the negotiable instruments law, of a certified check, he should be given a depositor's status. There does not seem to be any reason why the Secretary should inquire whether or not he is a holder for value.

8. The comments in footnote 7 above, relating to certified checks, apply equally to the status, both under existing law and under this act, of claims represented by certificates of deposit.

This draft adds the requirement that such certificates of deposit evidence an actual deposit of money in such institution. This is in effect requiring that it be a bona fide certificate of deposit. The practice has apparently grown up in some communities of giving certificates of deposit instead of cash or checks to borrowers from the institution. It seems that such so-called certificates of deposit should not be given a depositor's status, any more than treasurers' or cashiers' checks given as part of a loan by the institution drawing them.

The provision concerning interest upon such certificate of deposit appears nowhere in existing laws. It seems logical and equitable to accord to the holders of certificates of deposit the same preference upon interest as upon the certificates of deposit themselves. It seems desirable to extend the provisions as to interest to "any interest which may be due thereon," as the provisions of by-laws and of rules and regulations as to interest on certificates of deposit vary so greatly in different institutions that any attempt classification would probably be unsatisfactory.

9. The comments in footnotes 7 and 8 above, relating to certified checks and certificates of deposit, apply equally to the statutes, both under existent law and under this act, of claims represented by certificates of deposit.

Like the Act of May 8, 1907, P. L. 192, Section 1, as amended, and the Act of June 19, 1911, P. L. 1060, Section 1, as amended, this clause does not include all the situations contemplated by the Act of May 21, 1913, P. L. 294, Section 1, discussed in footnote 6 above. However, it does include all situations which logically and fairly seem to entitle the holder of a check or draft of the institution to the same status as a depositor.

10. See Section 807 in this draft.

11. Section 50 of the Banking Act of 1923 provides for the transfer by the Secretary to liquidating trustees of any "balance" remaining in the hands of the Secretary after all debts of the association are paid. It seems that, where the Secretary has cash, he should distribute this himself.

The provision for unpaid subscriptions to shares is necessary. Such a situation could not arise under the proposed Banking Code since all capital must be paid in. However, it could arise in many existent institutions and provision must therefore still be made.

12. The reasons for the preferences granted in this paragraph are discussed in footnotes 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 above.

13. Under the law as it now stands, there is a great deal of confusion as to the proper order of distribution in the liquidation of claims arising from the ownership of shares. In Christian's Appeal, 102 Pa. 184, the Supreme Court held that the claims arising from shares which have been withdrawn or concerning which requests for withdrawal have been filed are not preferred over claims arising from shares not so withdrawn.

Sperling v. Euclid Building and Loan Association, decided by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, January term, 1933, No. 252, appears to give the holder of matured shares a preferred position. We know of no decisions which adjudicate the right of a shareholder who has reduced his claim for withdrawal to judgment in a liquidation or which determine the position of a shareholder who dissented or did not assent to a merger of an association where the Secretary subsequently takes possession of such merged association. In view of the mutuality of a building and loan association, it seems equitable to hold that, upon liquidation, all claims arising from shares will be given the same rank in the distribution of the assets. However, in the case of the holder of matured shares, the courts seem to take the position that since the shareholder has entirely completed his obligations under the contract, he should be placed in a different position from a shareholder who requested withdrawal before maturity.

It seems that if the holder of lawfully and properly matured shares is permitted to base his claim upon the par value of the shares, which represents a sum paid in by him on account of shares, plus his portion of the distributed earnings, less any payments on account received by him from the association, he will receive all the preference to which he is equitably entitled. In the average case this would represent about $250.00 out of a total claim of $1,000.00, or an advantage of about 25%. This draft intentionally bases the claim of other shareholders on the amount actually paid in, less any sums properly deductible by the association, in order to break up the practice which has arisen in Philadelphia in some accounting offices, of basing the dividend of a shareholder in a serial-association upon the amount which such shareholder would have paid in had his dues been paid to date. The result of this practice is to wipe out the entire investment of some shareholders who are considerably in arrears. There is no basis for such a practice either legally or equitably. This draft uses the term "lawfully and properly matured shares" in order to enable the Secretary, in liquidating an association, to set aside in accordance with the provisions of law, any maturity which was declared as the result of a mistake of law or fact.

It is planned, in the proposed Building and Loan Code, to cover the rights of the holders of matured shares with respect to payment. It is planned there to provide that where there are not sufficient funds in the treasury to pay all of the matured shares, they must be paid pro rata to all shareholders whose shares have matured upon the same date, unless any such shareholder shall, in writing, waive such right.

14. The rule established by Subsection C would probably be followed by the courts even without the presence of this subsection. However, it is included in this draft in order to preclude any other interpretation.

Section 1012. Liquidation of Balance by Trustees.—Except in the case of a building and loan association,[1] the Secretary shall dispose in the following manner of any unliquidated assets[2] of an institution of which he was receiver, which are still in his possession after the filing and confirmation of his final account, the payment in full of the claims of all depositors and other creditors, which have been approved by the court, the return to shareholders, pro rata, of any amounts paid by them pursuant to an assessment made by the Secretary under the provisions of this act, which have proved unnecessary to pay in full the duly presented and approved claims of depositors and other creditors, and the distribution to shareholders of any cash balance remaining thereafter.[3]

The Secretary shall call a meeting of all the shareholders of the institution by giving them written notice at least thirty days before the day fixed for the meeting. At such meeting, the shareholders shall elect by ballot a trustee[4] who shall complete the liquidation. A majority of the shares present in person or by proxy shall be necessary to elect such trustee. The Secretary shall file one copy of the proceedings of such shareholders' meeting in his office, and one in the office of the prothonotary. Both copies shall be prepared by him under oath or affirmation.

If no trustee is elected in this manner on the day designated, the Secretary shall petition the court in which the certificate of possession is filed for the appointment of a trustee.

The trustee who is thus elected by the shareholders or appointed by the court shall give bond to the Commonwealth, in such amount, with such surety, and under such conditions as the court may direct. The Secretary shall then transfer to such trustee all the assets of the institution which are still in his possession.

After such transfer by the Secretary to a trustee for the benefit of the shareholders, the institution shall have no corporate powers or privileges whatsoever. The trustee shall not succeed to any of its powers or privileges except such as shall be necessary to the liquidation of the remaining assets which have been transferred to such trustee by the Secretary.[5]

Banking Act 1923. Section 50.

Comments:

1. Section 50 of the Banking Act 1923 draws no distinction between building and loan associations and other institutions. Yet the need for such a distinction is clear. It seems impossible that the Legislature ever intended that when all creditors of a building and loan association, except shareholders, have been paid in full, a trustee should be appointed to liquidate the remaining assets. In most building and loan associations, there are either no other, or only a negligible number, of creditors other than shareholders. The shareholders are the class ordinarily to be protected by the taking of possession of the business and property of a building and loan association.

Therefore, this draft specifically excepts building and loan associations from the operation of this proposed section.

2. Section 50 of the Banking Act 1923 provides for the transfer, according to the method prescribed by this section, of any "balance in the hands of the Secretary." It seems desirable that any moneys remaining should be distributed to the shareholders by the Secretary. Therefore, the operation of this proposed section is restricted to "unliquidated assets . . . which are still in [the Secretary's] possession."

3. This clause has been added for the reasons stated in footnote 2. In addition, it is necessitated by a similar clause in Section 1011 of this draft.

4. Section 50 of the Banking Act 1923 provides for the appointment of "a trustee or trustees." This section provides for the appointment of "a trustee." The provision in Section 2 of this draft that "the singular shall be construed to include the plural" seems to obviate the necessity for using the word "trustees."

5. Section 50 of the Banking Act 1923 provides that the Secretary "shall thereupon be discharged from all further liability to such corporation and its creditors." This provision merely confuses the procedure since Section 47, as amended. (Section 1010 in this draft) provides that the confirmation of the final account shall effect a complete discharge of all officers and employes from further civil liability. Therefore no reference is made to this subject in this proposed section.

Section 1013. Unclaimed Dividends.—Whenever, upon the audit or adjudication of the final account of the Secretary in possession of an institution as receiver, there shall be and remain in his possession any dividends not awarded to any claimant, or any dividends which shall have been awarded to any claimant the whereabouts of whom or that of his legal representatives the Secretary has been unable to ascertain, or any dividends which otherwise are by law escheatable to the Commonwealth, he shall file in the court the sworn statement required by law and shall pay the dividends into the State Treasury, through the Department of Revenue, in accordance with the provisions of law, such moneys to be subject to refund to any corporation or person entitled thereto, pursuant to the provisions of law.

This section shall not be construed to relieve the Secretary of any of the duties with respect to such unclaimed or escheatable dividends imposed by law upon any receiver appointed by any court within this Commonwealth.

Comments:

This section is new. The Banking Act 1923 and its amendments are silent upon the question of unclaimed dividends. The laws of most states specifically provide the procedure to be followed by the Secretary as receiver in the case of unclaimed dividends.

The Fiscal Code sets forth in detail the law applicable to unclaimed or escheatable moneys in the hands of a "receiver appointed by any court in this Commonwealth." The Secretary under this act is more clearly a receiver than under the Banking Act 1923, but he may be interpreted not to be a "receiver appointed by any court in this Commonwealth." It seems desirable therefore to include this proposed section in this draft.

Section 1014. Destruction of Records.—The Secretary is authorized to destroy all records of the institution of which he was in possession as receiver and all records of such receivership, at the expiration of six[1] years from the date of the absolute confirmation of his final account, except where any provision of this act expressly or impliedly, provides a different method for the disposition of the records or a longer period for their preservation.[2]

Banking Act 1923, Section 47, amended by Act of May 5, 1927, P. L. 762, Section 21.

Comments:

1. The Banking Act 1923 provides a seven-year period, this draft a six-year period. Six years seems sufficient. This is the maximum period in any of the statutes of limitations for crimes. Therefore this proposed act provides for preservation of the records for a period of more than long enough to ensure their availability for any criminal prosecution of the officers, directors, or employes of the institution, either before or after the liquidation proceedings.

2. This exception is included in order to take care of situations like the following: where the trustees for the benefit of the shareholders have not yet fully liquidated their holdings, or where the Secretary has transferred assets as part of a special plan of liquidation or reorganization.

ARTICLE XI

SPECIAL CRIMINAL PROVISIONS

Section 1101. Criminal Prosecutions.—Upon discovery, by report or otherwise, of any violation of any criminal law of this Commonwealth, which relates to an institution, the Department shall institute criminal proceedings in the manner provided by law.

References:

Act of June 12, 1907, P. L. 525, Section 5; Act of April 23, 1909, P. L. 169, Section 2.

Comments:

This is probably covered by Section 202 in this draft. However, it seems desirable specifically to impose upon the Department the duty to institute the type of prosecution covered by this proposed section.

Section 1102. Perjury.—Anyone who shall wilfully and corruptly make a false statement under any oath or affirmation provided for in this act, or anyone who shall, by any means, procure or suborn any other person to do so, shall be guilty of the crime of perjury, and upon conviction thereof, shall be subject to the same punishment as is or may be provided by law for perjury.

Comments:

This provision is new.

The Banking Act 1923, like this draft, contains many provisions in which statements are required to be made under oath or affirmation. In some of these sections, the provision that "any wilful false swearing" shall be perjury is included; in others it is omitted. Such procedure seems inadvisable. Therefore, in this draft, all mention of perjury is omitted, except in the above proposed general section.

It is probably not absolutely necessary to include any provision as to perjury. The Act of March 31, 1860, P. L. 382, Section 14, the section in the General Criminal Code dealing with perjury, provides that "if any person in taking any . . . oath or affirmation required, or that hereafter may be required by any act of assembly of this Commonwealth, shall be guilty of wilfully and corruptly making a false oath or affirmation," he shall be guilty of perjury. This seems clearly to cover the case of false swearing by an individual in the situations in which statements under oath or affirmation are required by this act, for example in reports of the condition of an institution, or in replies to the questions of an employe of the Department who is examining an institution.

However, there is some slight doubt as to the applicability of the portion quoted above from the Act of 1860, to oaths taken before administrative officers. Considering the importance of insuring good faith in the taking of the oath or affirmation required by this act, for example in the cases of reports of the condition of an institution or replies to the questions of an examiner, it seems advisable specifically to provide for the crime of perjury in this section of the proposed act.

Section 1103. Statute of Limitations For Violations of Act.[1]—Any prosecution for the commission of any criminal offense under the provisions of this act may be commenced at any time within six[2] years after the date upon which the alleged offense shall have been committed. However, if the person against whom such prosecution is brought shall not have been an inhabitant of this Commonwealth, or a usual resident therein, for six years, then such indictment may be commenced and prosecuted at any time within six years after he shall have become an inhabitant of, or usual resident within, this Commonwealth.

Comments:

1. The language of the Act of March 31, 1860, P. L. 427, Section 77, has been followed as far as possible in drafting this section. The law on criminal statutes of limitation is well settled on many points. It seems desirable, therefore, to follow the language in existence for the past sixty-five years or more, in so far as any substantive provisions or technical terms are involved.

2. The period of six years has been selected. Offenses committed under the banking laws are usually most difficult to discover. The longest period which can in fairness be imposed ought to be enacted into the law. Six years seems to meet this requirement.

ARTICLE XII

EFFECTIVE DATE AND REPEALER

Section 1201. Effective Date.—This act shall become effective on the third day of July, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three, and shall apply to all corporations and persons described herein whether in existence on such date or coming into existence at any time thereafter.

Comments:

The provision that this act shall apply to corporations or persons whether in existence upon the effective date of this act or coming into existence thereafter is included since the words "now or hereafter incorporated (or organized)" which occur throughout the Banking Act 1923 are omitted in this draft.

Section 1202. Acts and Parts of Acts Specifically Repealed.—The following acts and parts of acts are hereby specifically repealed:

Section 1203. General Repeal of Acts.—All other acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

PROPOSED BANKING CODE

TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA:

By the 1931 General Appropriation Act, the Legislature directed this department to prepare for presentation at this session, a revision of the banking and building and loan association laws.

We have already presented to you a proposed Department of Banking Code as a part of our compliance with the Legislature's directions.

Herewith we present a proposed Banking Code. This proposed code deals with the organization and powers and duties and particularly the limitations upon the powers of banks and trust companies, including private banks and savings banks. The Department of Banking Code already submitted deals with supervision by the Department of Banking over these institutions and over building and loan associations and with the handling of closed banks by the Secretary of Banking as receiver.

This draft was prepared by Assistant Deputy Attorney General Bernard G. Segal, in consultation with Deputy Attorney General Harold D. Saylor and the Attorney General, and with the valuable assistance of Secretary of Banking William D. Gordon, Special Deputy Secretary of Banking E. J. Sitgreaves, Mr. O. B. Lippman, and the other officers of the Department of Banking. We also acknowledge the helpful suggestions received from the lawyers of this department assigned to assist the Department of Banking in handling closed banks.

Respectfully submitted,

WILLIAM A. SCHNADER,
Attorney General.

An Act relating to the business of banking, and to to the exercise of fiduciary powers by corporations; providing for the organization of banking corporations, with or without fiduciary powers, including the conversion of national banks into state banks, and for the licensing of private bankers; defining the rights, powers, duties, liabilities, and immunities of such corporations, of existent corporations authorized to engage in a banking business, with or without fiduciary powers, of private bankers, and of the officers, directors, trustees, shareholders, attorneys, and other employes of all such corporations or private bankers, or of affiliated corporations, associations, or persons; restricting the exercise of banking powers by any other corporation, association, or person, and of fiduciary powers by any other corporation; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the courts, prothonotaries, recorders of deeds, and certain State departments, commissions, and officers; imposing penalties; and repealing certain acts and parts of acts.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, as follows:

Comments:

It seems more logical to introduce the entire act by the enacting clause rather than to include this clause as part of the section on the short title. The entitre act, and not any single section alone, is being enacted.

This is the procedure followed in "The Third Class City Law," except that there the enacting clause is "Section 1." It seems illogical, however, to have a "Section 1" before an "Article I."

ARTICLE I

SHORT TITLE AND PRELIMINARY PROVISIONS

Section 1. Short Title.—This act shall be known, and may be cited, as the "Banking Code."

Comments:

The title "Banking Code" has been selected for this proposed act. It is planned to term the proposed act which deals with the powers and duties of the Department and the powers and duties of the Secretary in possession of an institution as receiver, the "Department of Banking Code," and to call the proposed act which treats of building and loan associations the "Building and Loan Code."

Section 2. Definitions.—The following terms shall be construed in this act to have the following meanings except in those instances where the context clearly indicates otherwise:

"Articles" includes the original articles of incorporation, any or all amendments thereto, articles of merger, consolidation, or conversion, and also what have heretofore been designated by law as certificates of incorporation or charters.

"Assets" includes all the property and rights of every kind, of an institution as herein defined.

"Authorized capital" means the sum of the par value of the shares authorized to be issued in the articles of incorporation, or in any amendment thereto.

"Bank" includes any bank, which does not have the power to act as trustee, guardian, executor, administrator, or in other fiduciary capacities, incorporated under this act; or under the act approved the thirteenth day of May, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six, (Pamphlet Laws one hundred sixty-one), entitled "An act for the incorporation and regulation of banks of discount and deposit," its amendments and supplements; or under any special act of the General Assembly of this Commonwealth.

"Bank and trust company" includes any bank and trust company incorporated under this act; or any bank incorporated under the act approved the thirteenth day of May, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six (Pamphlet Laws one hundred sixty-one), entitled "An act for the incorporation and regulation of banks of discount and deposit," its amendments and supplements, which has acquired the power to act as fiduciary under the act approved the seventeenth day of July, one thousand nine hundred nineteen (Pamphlet Laws one thousand thirty-two), entitled "An act authorizing banking companies, incorporated and organized under the laws of the Commonwealth and having capital stock at least equal to the capital stock which trust companies are required by law to have, to act in any fiduciary capacity in which trust companies organized under the laws of the Commonwealth are empowered to act, and prescribing the method of acquiring such rights"; or any corporation organized "for insurance of owners of real estate, mortgagees, and others interested in real estate, from loss by reason of defective titles, liens and incumbrances,' under the act approved the twenty-ninth day of April, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four (Pamphlet Laws seventy-three), its amendments and supplements, and which has acquired the power to engage in the business of banking and of acting as fiduciary under the supplement to that act approved the ninth day of May, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine (Pamphlet Laws one hundred fifty-nine); or a corporation organized under any special act of the General Assembly of this Commonwealth, which has the power to engage in a banking business and of acting as fiduciary.

"Banking' 'means discounting and negotiating promissory notes, drafts, bills of exchange, and other evidences of debt; receiving money and commercial paper on deposit or for transmission; lending money on real or personal security; buying and selling gold and silver bullion, foreign exchange, coin, or bills of exchange.

"Capital' 'means the sum of the par value of the shares, issued and outstanding.

"Corporation" means a corporation of a joint stock association, organized under the laws of this Commonwealth, of the United States, or of any other state, territory, foreign country, or dependency.

"Department' 'means the Department of Banking of this Commonwealth.

"Incorporator" means a signer of the original articles of incorporation.

"Incorporated Institution" means any bank bank and trust company, or savings bank.

"Intsitution' 'includes any bank, bank and trust company, savings bank, or private bank.

"Net worth" means the total of all the assets of every kind employed in the business of a private bank, less the total of all the liabilities of every kind, of such business.

"Person" means an individual, or an unincorporated association, including a partnership ,a limited partnership, or any other form of unincorporated enterprise owned by two or more individuals.

"Private Bank" means a banking business, owned and operated in this Commonwealth, by an individual, a partnership, or any other unincorporated association, but this shall not include hotels which receive money from guests for temporary safe-keeping; express, steamship, or telegraph companies which receive money for transmission; and brokers, licensed under the laws of this Commonwealth, holding membership in a lawfully constituted brokerage exchange, who do and have authority to do only such banking as is incidental to their brokerage business.

"Private Banker" means an individual, who, by himself, or as a member of a partnership or other unincorporated association, owns or operates a private bank.

"Savings Bank" includes any savings bank, incorporated under this act; or under the act approved the twentieth day of May, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine (Pamphlet Laws two hundred forty-six), entitled "An act to provide for the incorporation and regulation of savings banks and institutions without capital stock, established for the encouragement of saving money," or under any special act of the General Assembly of this Commonwealth.

"Shares" means the units into which the shareholders rights to participate in the control of an incorporated institution, in its undivided profits, or in the distribution of its assets, are divided.

"Shareholder" means a registered owner of shares in an incorporated institution.

"Share Certificate" means a written instrument signed by the proper corporate officers as required by this act, and evidencing the fact that the corporation or person therein named is the registered owner of the shares therein described; it also includes the term "certificates of stock" as used in existing laws.

"Trustee' 'includes any individual who is a member of the board of managers, or board of trustees of a savings bank.

"Written' 'includes printed, typewritten, engraved, lithographed, telegraphed, cabled, radiogramed, photographed, photostated, telephotographed or other form of recordation.

Section 3. Applicability of Act; Automatic Acceptance.—A. Except as herein otherwise specifically provided this act shall apply to all incorporated institutions, whether incorporated before or after the effective date of this act and wheher by general or special law. It shall likewise apply to all private banks, regardless of when they commenced business.[1]

B. If the application of the provisions of this act to any incorporated institution organized under a special act of the General Assembly shall be declared unconstitutional, an acceptance or exercise by such institution of any benefit, right, or power conferred or granted by this act, including a change of its name or of its place of business, an extension of its term of existence, an increase or decrease of its capital, any other amendment to its articles, or a merger or consolidation with another institution or with a national banking association shall constitute an acceptance by such insitution of all the provisions of this act which by their terms are made applicable to it.[2]

Comments:

1. It is obvious that some of the provisions of this act cannot equitably be applied to existent institutions at all, or at best, until after the lapse of a reasonable time. In such cases, specific exception is made. Consequently the application of this proposed section is only "except as herein otherwise specifically provided." However, in general it seems that as developed below, the provisions of this act constitutionally can and logically should be applied to all institutions, heretofore or hereafter doing the type of business covered by this act.

The application to existent private banks of those provisions of this draft from which they are not specifically excluded seems to involve no constitutional point. Logically, of course, these provisions should be applied to such private banks. If the theory is correct that where changes have been made, they tend to sounder banking and therefore greater safety for dpositors and other creditors, then there can be no good reason for not applying them to private banks.

The problem with respect to corporations is very much different. The Act of May 13, 1876, P. L. 161, Section 32, 7 PS Sec. 108, which is the general act under which existent banks are incorporated, provides as follows:

"* * * any corporation now in existence, chartered under any of the laws of this state, making application to come under any of the provisions of this act, shall do so by coming under all the provisions of this act and shall reorganize the said corporation to conform with this act."

Section 3 of the Act of June 11, 1885, P. L. 111, 15 PS Sec. 684, which grants to any corporation authorized to act as a fiduciary, such powers as the power to receive upon deposit for safe-keeping, jewelry and other property and to act as agent for the issuing or consigning of bonds or other obligations, provides as follows:

"Such companies, before exercising any of the powers conferred by this act, shall first accept the provisions of the Constitution of this Commonwealth, adopted December sixteenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three, certificate of such acceptance, in writing, under their duly and shall file with the Secretary of the Commonwealth a authenticated seal."

These two examples will serve to illustrate the general policy which has been followed in the statutes in the past, that is to subject existent corporations to the provisions of the act by providing that, in order to enjoy any of the benefits of such act, such corporations must accept all its provisions.

It is obvious, of course, that except in particular instances for which special provision is made throughout this act, the desirable procedure, and the administratively practical one would be to apply the provisions of this act to all incorporated institutions, whether created by general or special act, and whether coming into existence before or after the effective date of this act. The real question is the constitutionality of such a procedure.

It is probable that the constitutionality of the changes in existing laws effected by this draft can be upheld, even in their application to special charter companies, which constitute of course, the most difficult problem and even without any express constitutional or statutory power to alter, amend, or annul such charters, under the police power of the State. The public interest which justifies the careful supervision by the Department of the affairs of such institutions is of necessity based upon the existence of such police power. However, as developed below, the constitutionality of this proposed section can be justified on other grounds as well.

Article I, Section 25 of the Constitution of 1838, provides as follows:

" * * * and every such charter (that is for any corporation to have banking or discounting privileges) shall contain a clause reserving to the legislature the power to alter, revoke, or annul the same, whenever in their opinion it may be injurious to the citizens of the commonwealth, in such manner, however, that no injustice shall be done to the corporators * * * "

The amendment of 1857 to the Constitution of 1838, appearing as Section 26 therein, extended this provision to all corporations, as follows:

"The legislature shall have the power to alter, revoke, or annual any charter of incorporation hereafter conferred by or under any special or general law whenever in their opinion it may be injurious to the citizens of the commonwealth, in such manner, however, that no injustice shall be done to the corporators."

Article XVI, Section 10 of the Constitution of 1874, contains a provision almost identical with the amendment of 1857.

The Act of May 3, 1855, P. L. 423, Section 1, 15 PS Sec. 381, expressly reserves to the Legislature with respect to every corporation the power granted by the constitutional provisions just discussed. The Act of April 29, 1874, P. L. 73, Section 4, which is the general incorporation act under which trust companies are incorporated, contains such a provision, as does also the Act of May 13, 1876, P. L. 161, Section 31, 7 PS Sec. 8, the general banking act under which existent banks are incorporated.

These, then, are the applicable constitutional and statutory provisions.

It is unquestionably under these provisions that the Legislature has the power to alter, revoke, or amend the charters of every existent incorporated institution, created under general act of assembly. The discussion therefore must necessarily turn to the constitutionality of this proposed section as applied to special charter companies.

Since corporations organized under special act of Legislature, and therefore of necessity prior to the Constitution of 1874, present the most serious question, the remaining discussion in this footnote will be restricted to them.

First, with regard to banks formed under special act of the Legislature: there are in existence at the present time fifteen such so-called special charter banks. All of these were incorporated between May 1, 1866 and March 27, 1873. Therefore, they all come under the provisions of Section 25 of the Constitution of 1838, and Section 26 of that Constitution, that is the amendment of 1857. There can be no doubt, therefore, that this proposed section is as constitutional as to all such special charter banks as in the case of banks incorporated under general act, after the amendment of 1857 to the Constitution of 1838.

With respect to trust companies formed under special act of the Legislature: there are existent at the present time six such special charter trust companies. Four of these were incorporated after the amendment of 1857. The remaining two contain specific provisions that the Legislature reserves the right to alter, revoke, or annul. It seems clear, therefore, that with regard to trust companies the above proposed section is as constitutional as in the case of any bank and trust company, or so-called trust company organized after the amendment of 1857 to the Constitution of 1838.

With respect to savings banks organized under special act of the Legislature: there are existent at the present time seven such special charter savings banks. Of these, two have had their charters renewed, under Act of June 30, 1885, P. L. 201, amended by Act of May 10, 1889, P. L. 185, 7 PS Sec. 107, which contains a proviso that any institution so renewing its charter "shall thereafter hold its charter subject to the provisions of the constitution of the State." Three others contain the specific reservation that the Legislature may revoke or annul any provision of such charter. One of these was created after the amendment of 1857 to the Constitution of 1838. With regard to these six, then, there can be no doubt that this proposed section is as constitutional as in the case of any savings bank organized after the amendment of 1857 to the Constitution of 1838. The remaining bank was orgaized after the Constitution of 1838 and, therefore, probably its charter may be altered, revoked, or annulled under the Constitution of 1838, as well as under the general police power of the State. Question may arise, however, as to whether it is doing a "banking or discount business." However, this question is not of as great importance with respect to savings banks as it is in the case of the other incorporated institutions, as this draft makes no radical changes in the laws governing existing savings banks which would not seem clearly to fall within the police power of the Legislature.

The laws of Illinois (Banks and Banking Act, Section 12), New Jersey (Banks and Banking Law, Section 35 and Trust Company Law, Section 30), and of Wisconsin (Banking Law, Section 221.48) all specifically apply their provisions to existent corporations organized under a general or special law prior to the effective date of the respective acts.

However, Section 4 of this draft, as a safeguard, provides that if any provision of this act shall be declared unconstitutional as applied to any special charter corporation, any acceptance by such corporation of any benefit whatsoever under this act shall constitute a complete acceptance of all the provisions of this act.

2. This subsection is added for the possible contingency which would be created if the courts should hold that the application of the provisions of this act to a particular special charter institution is unconstitutional. As pointed out in footnote 1 to this proposed section, acts frequently provide that a corporation shall not be entitled to any of the rights, powers, or benefits conferred or granted by such act until it first accepts the entire act and the Constitution of the Commonwealth. It seems unnecessary to establish a procedure for such acceptance. It seems sufficient to provide that an exercise or acceptance of such rights, powers, or benefits shall constitute an acceptance of all the provisions of the act, except such provisions as specifically except such corporations. The acceptance of each of the benefits enumerated in this subsection requires action of the directors or the trustees, and, in the case of an institution with shareholders, of the shareholders. Therefore, the action is a voluntary action of the members of the institution which, it seems, may constitutionally be given the force of an acceptance.

Section 4. Saving Clause.—A. The provisions of this act, in so far as they are the same as those of existing acts, shall be construed as a continuation of such acts, and not as new enactments. The repeal by this act of any existing act or of any part thereof shall not be construed to revive any act or part of any act heretofore repealed or superseded.

B. The provisions of this act shall not affect any act done, liability incurred, or right accrued, nor affect any suit or prosecution pending or to be instituted to enforce any right or penalty or to punish any offense under the authority of any act repealed or superseded by this act.

C. The repeal of any act by this act shall not affect the corporate existence of any bank, bank and trust company, or savings bank heretofore created under any law of this Commonwealth, or the existence of any private banker heretofore authorized to do a banking business in this Commonwealth.

D. Any person holding office under any act repealed by this act shall continue to hold such office until the expiration of his term, subject to the conditions attached to such office prior to the passage of this act.

E. All resolutions, regulations, and rules made pursuant to any act repealed by this act shall, unless inconsistent with any provision of this act, continue with the same force as if such act had not been repealed.

Comments:

These provisions are formal ones. They are necessary to cover the many phases of transition between existing laws and this draft.

Section 5. Constitutional Construction.—It is hereby declared to be the legislative intent that if this act cannot take effect in its entirety because of the decision of any court holding unconstitutional any part hereof, the remaining provisions of the act shall be given full force and effect as completely as if the part held unconstitutional had not been included herein.

Section 6. Construction of References.—A. Any reference in this act to any act by title or otherwise shall be construed to apply to and include any codification wherein the provisions of the act referred to are substantially reenacted.[1]

B. Any reference in this act to the provisions of law on any subject shall apply to statutes and decisions becoming effective after the effective date of this act, as well as those then in existence.[2]

Comments:

1. This is merely a formal provision. However, it seems useful to take care, in general, of the codifications of any laws which are referred to in this draft.

2. This is also merely a formal provision. Frequently, in this act, the words "as provided by law" are used. They refer to statutes and decisions enacted or handed down after as well as before the effective date of this act.

This would seem to be a normal interpretation even without this subsection, and perhaps therefore Subsection B is unnecessary. However, it precludes any different interpretation.

Section 7. Jurisdiction of Courts.—Except where otherwise specifically provided, the provisions of this act shall not be deemed to curtail in any manner whatsoever the equity jurisdiction and powers of the courts of this Commonwealth.

Comments:

The Act of June 16, 1836, P. L. 784, Section 13, 17 PS Sec. 281, provides:

" * * * the several courts of Common Pleas, shall have the jurisdiction and powers of a court of Chancery, so far as relates to—

* * * * * * * * * *

"V. The supervision and control of all corporations other than those of a municipal character, * * *"

While the equity powers conferred by the Act of 1836 are circumscribed within certain limits as to individuals, they are general and unlimited over corporations. In the exercise of their equity jurisdiction over corporations, such courts possess all the powers and jurisdiction of a court of chancery by bill, injunction, or otherwise, as the equity of the case may require. Sanford v. Railroad Company, 24 Pa. 378 (1855); Titusville Oil Exchange's Dissolution, 2 Pa. Super. 508 (1896); Sarver and Others' Appeal, 81* Pa. 183 (1874); Central Printing and Publishing House v. Gross, 38 Pa. C. C. 21 (1910); McDougall, et al., Appellants v. Huntingdon and Broad Top R. and C. Company, 294 Pa. 108 (1928); Schwab, Appellant v. Miller, et ux., 302 Pa. 507 (1931); First Regular Baptist Church v. Allison, 304 Pa. 1 (1931).

Also, the courts have held that the Act of April 9, 1856, P. L. 293, 15 PS Sec. 501, which provides the procedure for the voluntary dissolution of corporations, must be understood as referring to the equity jurisdiction given to the courts of common pleas by the Act of June 16, 1836, P. L. 784, Titusville Oil Exchange's Disolution, 2 Pa. Super. 508 (1896); Commonwealth v. Exchange Operators, Inc., 32 Dau. 59 (1928).

The proposed Department of Banking Code likewise gives to the courts certain powers over corporations and persons under its supervision. It is intended that the provisions of this act shall not affect these powers. This draft includes persons, as well as corporations, but this does not render undesirable the inclusion of this proposed section.

This proposed section corresponds to Section 6 E of the proposed Business Corporation Law.

Section 8. Notices to Corporations and Persons.—Unless expressly provided otherwise, all written notices required by this act to be given to any corporation or person shall be (1) served in the manner now or hereafter established by law for the service of writs of summons, except that such service need not be made by the sheriff, or (2) mailed or sent by telegram, charges prepaid[1] (a) in the case of an individual, to his last known residence or place of business, (b) in the case of an unincorporated association, or a corporation organized under the laws of this Commonwealth, to its principal office, and (c) in the case of a corporation incorporated under the laws of some other state, to its registered office in Pennsylvania, or, if it has no registered office in Pennsylvania, to its home office in the state of incorporation or in any other state.[2]

If a notice is sent by mail, or by telegraph, such notice shall be deemed to have been given to the corporation or person addressed, when it is deposited in the United States mail or with a telegraph office for transmission to such corporation or person.[3]

Act of June 15, 1923, P. L. 809, Section 3 (b), amended by Act of May 5, 1927, P. L. 762, Section 2, 7 PS Sec. 3 (b).

Comments:

1. The provision for the giving of notice by telegram is new. However, it seems clearly desirable.
2. The provisions for the mailing of notices outside the Commonwealth is new. Notice to foreign corporations is provided for throughout this act. It is apparent, therefore, that provision should be made for the manner in which such notices should be given.
3. This paragraph is new. Considerable confusion exists under existing law as to the time intended, for example, by a provision that the last day for the performance of a particular act is a designated number of days after the "giving" or "serving" of notice. This proposed paragraph is intended to eliminate this confusion.

Section 9. Advertisement or Notice in Newspapers.—A. Unless expressly provided otherwise, any advertisement or notice in a newspaper of general circulation, required by this act, shall be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the county, as defined by the Newspaper Advertising Act, approved the sixteenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (Pamphlet Laws, one thousand seven hundred eighty-four), it supplements and amendments, in which the principal place of business of the institution is, or in the case of a proposed institution will be, located, and which is published in the city, borough, or township in which such place of business is or will be located.

If there is no newspaper of general circulation published in the city, borough, or township, then the advertisement or notice shall be inserted in a newspaper of general circulation in the county, published at the county seat. If no newspaper of general circulation in the county is published at the county seat, then such advertisement or notice shall be inserted in the newspaper of general circulation published nearest to the city, borough, or township in which the principal place of business of such institution is located and within the county. If there is no newspaper of general circulation published within the county, then the advertisement or notice shall be inserted in the newspaper of general circulation published nearest to such city, borough, or township in an adjoining county.

B. Unless expressly provided otherwise, any advertisement or notice in a legal newspaper, required by this act, shall be published in the legal newspaper published within the county, as defined by the Newspaper Advertising Act, in which the principal place of business of the institution is, or in the case of a proposed institution will be, located.

C. Unless expressly provided otherwise, if this act requires advertisement or notice to be made both in a newspaper of general circulation and in a legal newspaper, and if there is no legal newspaper published within the county in which the principal place of business of the institution is, or in the case of a proposed institution will be, located, the advertisement shall be made in two newspapers of general circulation in the county, except that if two newspapers of general circulation are not published in the county, then such advertisement or notice shall be made in only one newspaper of general circulation, published in the county, or if none is published there, then in one newspaper published in an adjoining county, as provided by this section in any case in which a newspaper of general circulation is not published in the county.

D. Any proof of publication required by this act shall be in accordance with the requirements set forth in the definition of proof of publication contained in the Newspaper Advertising Act.

E. Any notice or advertisement in a newspaper, required by this act, shall be construed to refer to a newspaper published in the English language.[3]

Comments:

1. This is a general section, included in the preliminary provisions to this draft, in order to preclude the necessity of repeating them in each section in which advertising is required. It is based upon Act of June 15, 1923, P. L. 809, Section 3 (a), amended by Act of June 22, 1931, P. L. 876, Section 1, 7 PS Sec. 3 (a), but is of course changed to meet the requirements of this proposed act. The statement of what constitutes a legal newspaper, and the definition and requirements of the proof of advetrisement are omitted, since they are set forth in detail in the Newspaper Advertising Act to which reference is made. To include any of its provisions in this draft would seem to necessitate the inclusion of all.

The number of advertisements to be inserted is omitted in this proposed section. It will vary in each case, and will, therefore, be stated in the particular sections which provide for the advertisement.

2. It seems clear that the type of notice or advertisement required by this draft to be published in a newspaper is such that it should be published in a newspaper in the English language. In several opinions, starting with In re Chartiers Ferry Company (Op. Atty. Gen.), 2 Chester 91 (1875), the Department of Justice has ruled that, even without a specific requirement, advertisement in an English newspaper was intended, and, therefore that advertisement in a German newspaper did not fulfill the requirements of the act. However, the above proposed subsection makes it clear that all advertisements required by this draft must be inserted in newspapers published in the English language.

Section 10. Waiver of Notice.—Any notice required by this act, or by the articles or by-laws of any corporation governed by the provisions of this act, to be given to any corporation or person, may be waived by such corporation or person, either before or after the day prescribed for the giving of such notice. Such waiver shall be in writing and signed by such corporation or person.

Comments:

This section corresponds substantially to Section 8 of the proposed Business Corporation Law, which is based upon the business corporation laws of Illinois (Section 144), Indiana (Section 8), and New Jersey (Section 16).

It seems clear that where notice is required for the protection of certain corporations or persons, waiver of such notice by such corporations or persons should be permitted.

It is a general principle that where notice is required for the benefit of shareholders of a corporation, they may waive such notice, see 5 Fletcher, Cyclopedia Corporations (Permanent Edition), Section 2011, and cases there cited.

Article XVI, Section 7 of the Constitution of Pennsylvania provides, inter alia: " * * * The stock and indebtedness of corporations shall not be increased except in pursuance of general law, nor without the consent of persons holding the larger amount in value of the stock, first obtained at a meeting to be held after sixty days notice given in pursuance of law." In 1883, the Department of Justice advised that the sixty days' notice required by the Constitution and by the enabling act might be waived by consent of all the shareholders, see In re Bellefonte and Buffalo Run Railroad Company, 2 Chester 128 (1883).

The same has been held true of the provisions of the constitution and statutes of Missouri, requiring sixty days' notice of a meeting called for the purpose of voting on the issuance of bonds or the increase of capital, State v. Cook, 178 Mo. 189, 77 S. W. 559; Reisterer v. Horton Land and Lumber Company, 160 Mo. 141, 61 S. W. 238.

Accordingly this draft permits the waiver of notice.

Section 11. Effect of Filing or Recording Papers Required to be Filed by Incorporated Institutions.—The filing or recording of the articles or amendments thereto, or of any other papers or documents, by an incorporated institution, pursuant to the provisions of this act, is required for the purpose of affording the public the opportunity of acquiring knowledge of the contents thereof, but no corporation or person dealing with the incorporated institution shall be charged with constructive notice of the contents of any such articles or papers by reason of such filing or recording.

Comments:

This section supplements Section 313 and 315 as an attempt to improve the state of law with regard to ultra vires transactions. These sections, dealing with the doctrine of constructive notice and the doctrine of limited capacity, would remove two of the causes of greatest confusion in ultra vires cases,—the chief obstacles to uniform decisions. These obstacles spring from an interpretation of legislative intention, and can be removed only by legislation. This proposed section corresponds to Section 9 of the proposed Business Corporation Law.

Section 12. Fees.—Except as otherwise specifically provided,[1] any prothonotary or recorder of deeds, and any State department, board, commission, or officer, shall be entitled to receive for services performed as required by this act, such fees as it lawfully charges for such or similar services.

Comments:

1. See Section 1312 in this draft.
2. Numerous acts establish the charges to be made by prothonotaries, recorders of deeds, the Secretary of the Commonwealth, or similar officials for the filing or recording of documents with them. This draft does not reenact these fees specifically but merely declares the existing fees acts to be applicable.

Section 13. Certificates and Certified Copies of Certain Documents to be Received in Evidence.—A. All certificates issued by the Department of State in accordance with the provisions of this act, and all copies of documents filed with the Department of State in accordance with the provisions of this act, when certified by the Secretary of the Commonwealth, shall be taken and received by all courts, public offices, and official bodies, as prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated. A certificate by the Department of State under the seal of the Commonwealth, as to the existence or non-existence of the facts relating to corporations which would not appear from a certified copy of any of the foregoing documents or certificates, shall be taken and received by all courts, public offices, and official bodies as prima facie evidence of the existence or non-existence of the facts therein stated.

Comments:

This proposed section corresponds to Section 11 of the proposed Business Corporation Law. Instead of providing in the different sections of this draft relating to the filing of certificates or documents with the Department of State, that certified copies of them may be received in evidence, this act combines these provisions into one section.

Provision is not made in this draft for the admissibility into evidence of copies of papers, or the evidential value of the information filed with the Department of Banking, since this is covered by Sections 9 and 10 of the proposed Department of Banking Code.

ARTICLE II

NAMES AND PLACES OF BUSINESS OF INSTITUTIONS

Section 201. Institution Name; Change of Name.—A. The name of an institution may be in any language, but it shall be expressed in English letters or characters.[1] In the case of a bank it shall contain in English the word "bank," in the case of a bank and trust company the words "bank and trust company," in the case of a savings bank the words "mutual savings bank," and in the case of a private bank the words "private bank" or "unincorporated bank."[2] The name of a bank or private bank shall not contain the words "trust," or "savings," and the name of a savings bank shall not contain the word "trust." The name of an institution shall not contain any word which may deceptively lead to the conclusion that it is authorized to perform any act or conduct any business which is forbidden to it by law, by its charter, or otherwise. The name of an institution shall not contain the words "Pennsylvania," "Commonwealth," "State," "Government," "Official," "Federal," "National," "United States."

The name of an institution shall not be deceptively similar to that of any other corporation authorized to transact business in this Commonwealth, or the name of any unincorporated body whatsoever, registered with the Department of State under any act, unless such other corporation or unincorporated body is about to change its name or to cease doing business, or is being wound up, or, in the case of a foreign corporation, is about to withdraw from doing business in this Commonwealth, and the written consent of such other corporation or unincorporated body to the adoption of its name or a deceptively similar name has been given and is filed with the Department of State and with the Department of Banking.[3]

B. The provisions of this section shall not apply to any name which is in existence upon the effective date of this act. However, if the institution bearing such name shall desire to change it in any manner whatsoever, pursuant to the provisions of this act, the new name shall comply in every detail with the requirements of this section. A change in name shall be effected, in the case of an incorporated institution, in the regular manner provided by this act for amending its articles, and in the case of a private bank, in the manner provided by law for a change in the registered name of an individual trading alone, or of an unincorporated association, except that the assent of the Department of Banking shall be required.[4]

C. This section shall not be construed to abrogate or limit the law as to unfair competition or unfair practices, nor derogate from the common law, the principles of equity, or the statutes of this Commonwealth with respect to the right to acquire and protect trade names.[5]

D. The assumption of a name in violation of this section shall not vitiate or otherwise affect the corporate existence, but the court of common pleas of Dauphin County may, upon the application of the Attorney General acting on his own motion or at the instance of any administrative department, board, or commission of the Commonwealth, and the court of common pleas of any county may, upon the application of any corporation or person adversely affected, enjoin the corporation from using or continuing to use a name assumed in violation of this section.[6]

References:

The references in this draft will be cited under five headings: General Banks, Bank and Trust Companies, Savings Banks, and Private Banks. Under General will be cited all references which relate to all corporations of the second class. Most frequently this will apply specifically to bank and trust companies incorporated under the general Act of 1874 as title insurance companies. A number of the sections in this draft correspond to those in the proposed Business Corporation Law. Where this is the case, the references upon which the proposed Business Corporation Law is based will be cited; in such cases the name of another state followed by a section number will refer to the corporation law of such state. A reference to Uniform Act will refer to the Uniform Business Corporation Act drafted by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform tSate Laws. Under the other headings will be cited the acts specifically applicable to them.

Comments:

1. In Deutsch-Amerikanischer Volkfest-Verein, 200 Pa. 143 (1901), it was held that the corporate name may be expressed in a foreign language. This proposed section requires the name to be expressed in English characters or letters, and, in this respect follows Section 202 of the Business Corporation Law, which follows the Uniform Act, supra.

2. This proposed section requires that the title of all future institutions shall be uniform in one respect, that every institution of the same type shall have in its name a key word, that is, a word which clearly indicates the exact type of institution bearing the name, that is "bank" for banks, "bank and trust company" for bank and trust companies, etc. At least this word is required to be in English. The Act of 1909, as amended, supra, defines the use of the word trust to bank and trust companies. It seems clearly desirable that each institution should bear a name descriptive of it, and that such name should be forbidden to all other types of corporations or persons.

3. This provision, with minor changes follows Section 202 of the proposed Business Corporation Law which is based in part upon the Uniform Act, supra. There is no similar statutory provision in Pennsylvania. The Act of 1917, supra, prohibits the assumption by any corporation not for profit of a name similar to the name of any agency of the Commonwealth; the Act of 1923, supra, provides for the registration and protection of names of unincorporated bodies and corporations of the first class. This provision was drafted to extend the provisions of these acts to names of institutions.

In practice the Department of State as well as the Department of Banking, will not permit an institution to adopt a name deceptively similar to the name of any other corporation or unincorporated association. As pointed out in the note to the Uniform Act, thirty-eight jurisdictions in their general corporation laws, prohibit the assumption of a name similar to that of an existing domestic corporation. Twenty-two American jurisdictions have the further provision that the name shall not be similar to that of any foreign corporation authorized to do business in the state. This rule would apply with very much more force to the case of institutions.

4. Of course, it is obvious that this draft should not require any existing institution to change its name.

As to a voluntary change of name, prior to the Act of 1903, supra, the name of a corporation of the second class was changed by an amendment to its charter under the general provisions of the Act of June 13, 1883, P. L. 122, Section 1, 15 PS Sec. 401, see Fort Pitt Building and Loan Association, 159 Pa. 308 (1893). Now, however, under the Act of 1903, the corporate name is changed by filing a certificate of the change of name with the Secretary of the Commonwealth, after a two-thirds vote of the share-holders has been obtained. The Secretary of the Commonwealth, in turn issues a certificate authorizing the use of the new name upon the filing of the certificate in the office of the recorder of deeds of the proper county.

As the Uniform Act and the laws of most states, including Delaware, New Jersey and New York require a business corporation to amend its articles in order to change its name, for the sake of uniformity, this draft restores the former practice in Pennsylvania of changing the name of any business corporation and therefore of incorporated institutions, by an amendment to its articles. See Article VIII of this draft for the amendment procedure.

In the case of a private bank, there is no reason for this draft to make any change in the existing law governing names of individuals using trade names or of unincorporated associations, except that in the case of private banks such change should be approved by the Department of Banking. The good-will which attaches to a name is too valuable to enable this draft, with justice, to require that a change be made.

5. This provision follows Section 202 of the proposed Business Coroporation Law which is based on Section 4 of the Uniform Act, supra. As pointed out in the note to the Uniform Act, this provision seems desirable to prevent the provision of this draft from being construed as excluding rights and limitations under existing law.

6. This provision is the same as Section 202 of the proposed Business Corporation Law which is taken from the Uniform Act, Section 4 (VIII). In the absence of a statutory provision, an individual or corporation may obtain injunctive relief against the use of his or its name, both because of the injury to his or its property right in the name, and because of the possible deception of the public by the use of the name; but the mere identity or similarity of names does not furnish ground for relief. There must be either (a) probable deception of the public, or (b) an appropriation of a property right in a name. As both the possible deception of the public and the plaintiff's property right in an assumed name are dependent upon such use of that name as causes it to be associated with the plaintiff and his business, the common law affords no protection except in a territory where the name has been used for a length of time. Thus, one who has used a name in one state only cannot prevent its use in another state. American Clay Manufacturing Company v. American Clay Manufacturing Company, 198 Pa. 189 (1901); Erie Printing Company v. Erie Lithographing and Printing Company, 31 Pa. C. C. 1, (1905); The New Method Steam Laundry Company v. Tomlinson, et at., 17 D. R. 362 (1908); Savidge on Pa. Corps., Volume 1, Section 893, Page 709. See also, Fletcher Cyclopedia Corporations (Permanent Edition), Volume 6, Sections 2422 and 2423.

By the inclusion of this provision, the remedy of injunction is extended to that group of cases not governed by common law principles. Furthermore, the object of this provision is to revent the unlawful assumption of a corporate name from being considered as a defect in incorporation. The remedy is to enjoin a validly incorporated company from the use of an improper name. The statutes of Massachusetts and Vermont and the English Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, have similar provisions as to the use of the injunction.

Section 202. Reservation of Institution Name.—The exclusive right to the use of a name may be reserved[1] (1) by any person intending to organize an institution, or (2) any institution intending to change its name. Such reservation shall be made by filing with the Department of State, duplicate originals of an application to reserve a specified name, executed by the applicant. If the Department of State shall find that such name is available, it shall send one duplicate original of such application to the Department of Banking. If the Department of Banking advises that such name is satisfactory to it,[2] it shall forthwith give its written assent to the Department of State. The Department of State shall then reserve the name for the exclusive use of such applicant for a period of sixty days. The right to the exclusive use of a specified name so reserved may be transferred to any corporation or person, who, except for such prior reservation, would be entitled under the provisions of this act to reserve such name. Such transfer may be made by filing with the Department of State, duplicate originals of a notice of such transfer, which notice shall be executed by the applicant for whom such name was reserved and shall specify the name and address of the transferee. The Department of State shall send one such duplicate original to the Department of Banking.

Comments:

1. While the present laws of Pennsylvania do not provide for the reservation of a name either by a corporation, or an association, whether for the business of banking or otherwise, it seems desirable to permit such reservation. The recent Indiana, Illinois, and California general corporation acts have recognized the desirability of such a provision and have provided by statute for reservation of a corporate name. The Indiana and California acts permit such reservation for a period of thirty days and the Illinois act for a period of sixty days. In Delaware, the Secretary of State without statutory authority but as an administrative matter, will reserve a corporate name on application. This draft, like Section 203 of the proposed Business Corporation Law, permits the reservation of a corporate name for a period of sixty days, as this period will be ample in any case but still will not permit any corporation or person to obtain an option on a corporate name for an undue length of time.

2. Just as in the incorporation procedure, provided for in Article III of this draft, the principle is followed that the Department of State is to remain the clearing house for all incorporations, so it should continue to serve in this capacity in the case of all registered names. This proposed section, therefore, provides that the reservation of the name shall be granted by, and shall go through, the Department of State, but requires the assent of the Department of Banking.

Section 203. Place of Business; Change of Place of Business.—A. An institution shall not transact any banking or trust business, except, in the case of an incorporated institution, at the place or places designated in its articles, and in the case of a private bank, at the place or places the address or addresses of which are filed with the Department of Banking.[1]

B. An institution shall not do business or be located in the same room or rooms as are occupied by any other institution or any national banking association. Rooms so connected and arranged as to be to all intents and purposes the same room shall, for the purposes of this section, be considered the same room. However, any institution which, prior to the effective date of this act, occupies a room or rooms in the manner prohibited by this section, may continue such occupancy until required by the Department to discontinue it. The Department shall have the absolute discretion to determine whether or not, and when, to require such institution to cease such occupancy.[2]

C. An incorporated institution may change its place of business, within the limitations imposed by this act, in the regular manner provided by this act for an amendment to its articles, except that the approval of two-thirds of all the directors or trustees, as the case may be, and in the case of a bank and trust company, the approval of two-thirds of all the shareholders shall be required. Any private bank may likewise remove its place of business, within the limitations of this act, if it shall first obtain the written approval of the Department. Such removal by an institution shall not in any case be to a place outside the city, borough, or township in which it has its place of business at the time it applies for authority to make such change, and shall not violate the provisions of this act relating to the establishment of branches, agencies, sub-offices, or sub-agencies.[3]

Comments:

1. This provision takes the place of that contained in Section 6 of the Bank Act of 1876, supra, which provides that the usual business of the bank shall be transacted at an office or banking house in the place specified in its articles. This draft extends this provision in greater length to all institutions.

2. The reason for the provision as to the occupancy of a single room or place of business by two or more institutions seems obvious. However, the provision granting power to the Department to permit institutions now occupying the same room to continue seems necessary in order to prevent any undue hardship which might result from making an arbitrary requirement that a change of location be immediately effected by either one institution or the other.

3. This proposed clause follows in general the procedure provided for change of name. However, in the case of incorporated institutions, it seems desirable to require a two-thirds vote rather than a simple majority as in the case of a change of name. A change of place of business of an institution is a very important matter, affecting the convenience of large numbers of depositors and therefore seems an important enough matter to deviate from the general policy of requiring only a majority vote for the adoption of amendments to the articles. The Act of 1893, supra, likewise required a two-thirds vote for a change in location of the principal place of business of any corporation.

Section 204.[1] Branch Offices and Sub-agencies.—A. An institution,[2] shall not establish, maintain, or operate, either directly or indirectly, any branch bank, branch office, agency, sub-office, sub-agency, or branch place of business within this Commonwealth, for the transaction of any part of its business, but all of the business of such institution shall be carried on solely and exclusively at its principal place of business.

B. This section shall not apply to branches, sub-offices, and sub-agencies established, or those for which locations had been purchased or leased by deed recorded or leases actually delivered, prior to the first day of March, one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven, or to branches, sub-offices, and sub-agencies which resulted from mergers[3] or consolidations, of institutions, effective prior to the first day of April, one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven; and such institutions shall have the right to relocate the same within the corporate limits of the city, borough, or township in which the principal place of business is located at the time of such relocation, provided that such relocation is made with the approval of the Department in the manner provided by this act for any removal of the place of business of an institution.

C. This section shall not apply to any institution which has its principal place of business in a city, borough, or township within this Commonwealth, in which one or more national banking associations, incorporated under the laws of the United States was, on the first day of March, one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven, operating one or more branch banks, branch offices, agencies, sub-offices, sub-agencies, or branch places of business for the transaction of any part of its business; and any such institution may hereafter establish, subject to the approval of the Department, and thereafter maintain and operate branch banks, branch offices, agencies, sub-offices, sug-agencies, and branch places of business for the transaction of any part of its business, but only within the corporate limits of the city, borough, or township in which its principal office is located and in which such national banking association was, on the first day of March, one thousand nine hnudred twenty-seven, operating one or more branch banks, branch offices, agencies, sub-offices, sub-agencies or branch places of business. The right to establish and maintain branch banks, branch offices, agencies, sub-offices, sub-agencies, or branch places of business under the provisions of this subsection, shall be limited to the territory included within the corporate limits on the first day of March, one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven, of the respective cities, boroughs, or townships in which such national banking associations were on that date operating one or more branch banks, branch offices, agencies, sub-offices, sub-agencies, or branch places of business; and such right shall not extend to additional territory which may, after the first day of March, one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven, be added to such cities, boroughs, or townships, by annexation, consolidation with one or more municipal corporations, or otherwise, nor shall it extend to other portions or divisions of municipal corporations to which such cities, boroughs, or townships may be annexed, or with which they may be consolidated after that date; the intention being to limit to the respective corporate limits such cities, boroughs, or townships as they existed on the first day of March, one thousand nine hundred twenty-seven, the right to establish and maintain the branch banks, branch offices, agencies, sub-offices, sub-agencies, and branch places of business authorized in this section.[4]

Comments:

1. Branch banking is perhaps one of the most controversial banking questions in this country today. The arguments on both sides of the question have been discussed widely in newspapers, in banking circles, and in legislatures, within the past five years. The General Assembly of this Commonwealth, in 1927, passed the Act of 1927, supra. Since then numerous attempts to amend the provisions of this act have been unsuccessful. In view of these facts it has been deemed inadvisable to include in this proposed act any substantive change in the Act of 1927, supra. The changes which have been made are solely changes in expression, or changes in the terminology, necessitated in order to make this section consistent with the remainder of the draft.

2. The term institution has been used since this includes all corporations or persons authorized to have a place of business within this Commonwealth for the transaction of a banking or a trust business. Reference to national banks is illogical since the state has no authority to control national banks. References to foreign bank corporations are unnecessary since they are not permitted in this Commonwealth.

3. The word "merger" seems to be necessitated by the specific meaning given to "merger" and "consolidation" in Section 1401 of this draft.

4. The cities, boroughs, or townships, to which the exception stated in Subsection C applies are the following: Altoona, Chester, Johnstown, McKees Rocks, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and Reading.

ARTICLE III

Formation, Organization, and General Corporate Powers of Incorporated Institutions

Section 301. Incorporators.—A. A bank or a bank and trust company may be formed, pursuant to the provisions of this act, by three[1] or more incorporators, and a savings bank by fifteen[2] or more incorporators.

B. Such incorporators shall be natural persons[3] of full age[4] and of either sex, married or single.[5] At least two-thirds of them shall be citizens of the United States or of its territories or possessions;[6] at least two-thirds shall be residents of this Commonwealth;[7] and at least one-third in the case of a bank or a bank and trust company, and at least two-thirds in the case of a savings bank shall be residents of the county in which the proposed bank, bank and trust company, or savings bank respectively, is to be situated.[8]

C. In the case of a bank or a bank and trust company, each incorporator shall subscribe to shares of a par value of at least one thousand dollars.[9]

Savings Banks

Act of May 20, 1889, P. L. 246, Section 1, 7 PS Sec. 511.

Comments:

1. In its original form, the Corporation Act of 1874 required at least five incorporators to form any corporation of the second class, including bank and trust companies formed as title insurance companies. This number was reduced to three by the supplementary Act of 1901, as amended, supra. The Uniform Act also requires at least three incorporators.

The Bank Act of 1876, supra, likewise requires three incorporators.

2. The Act of 1889, supra, required at least thirteen incorporators for a savings bank. Since the incorporators most frequently become the first trustees of a savings bank, and in view also of the permanency of the board of trustees of such an institution, it has been deemed advisable to raise this number to fifteen.

3. Under the provision of the Corporation Act of 1874 that "five or more persons" may form a corporation, the term "person" has been construed to mean only a natural person, In re The Decorative Trades Association of Philadelphia, 18 D. R. 180 (1909); Board of Real Estate Brokers, 21 D. R. 59 (1911). The Act of 1901, supra, which reduced the number of incorporators to three, made no change in this respect. The Uniform Act specifically requires the incorporators to be "natural persons." The Bank Act of 1876 referring to banks and the Act of 1889, supra, referring to savings banks, likewise provides that the incorporators be "persons."

See, however, Section 1401 of this draft, which provides that in the case of consolidation, the constituent corporations may be named as incorporators in the articles of incorporation of the new consolidated corporation.

4. Under our case law, incorporators must be of full age, Lady Foresters of America, 18 D. R. 780 (1909). This qualification is also contained in the Uniform Act.

5. Formerly, a married woman could not be an incorporator,—Potter Gas Company, 15 Pa. C. C. 347 (1883),—but the right of a married woman to act as an incorporator is now expressly given by the Act of 1919, supra.

6. It has been held that a majority at least of the subscribers to a proposed corporation of the first class should be citizens of the United States, Chinese Club, 1 D. R. 84 (1891) and later cases. However, in Mount Sharon Cemetery Company, 3 D. & C. 179 (1922), it was held unnecessary to state that the petitioners were citizens of the United States. Apparently, the same is true in the case of bank and trust companies incorporated as title insurance companies, as the provisions of the Corporation Act of 1874, construed in the above cases, also apply to corporations of the second class. The laws governing the formation of banks and savings banks are likewise silent on the question of the national citizenship of incorporators.

The Uniform Act specifically requires "at least two-thirds" of the incorporators to be citizens of the United States or of its territories or possessions. This draft follows the Uniform Act in this respect. This provision is a part of the proposed Business Corporation Law, and seems particularly desirable in the case of banking institutions.

7. The Act of 1901, supra, as amended, requires that at least one of the incorporators of a corporation of the second class, that is including bank and trust companies incorporated as title insurance companies, be a citizen of this Commonwealth. The Bank Act of 1876, supra, is silent on this point, while the Act of 1889, supra, requires only that two-thirds of the incorporators reside in the county where the proposed savings bank is to be located.

Section 201 of the proposed Business Corporation Law, after quoting from a footnote in the Uniform Act and after citing the 1931 corporation codifications of California, Illinois, and Michigan, follows these recent authorities in failing to include any requirement that incorporators be residents of this Commonwealth. However, the nature of a banking corporation is such that it seems clearly desirable to require that a good proportion of them be residents of the Commonwealth. This is of course at present the requirement with reference to saving banks. This draft extends this requirement to the incorporators of all incorporated institutions.

8. The Bank Act of 1876, supra, which governs the incorporation of banks, and the Corporation Act of 1874, supra, which governs the incorpgoration of bank and trust companies as title insurance companies make no requirement as to the county in which an incorporator shall reside. However, in the case of a bank or bank and trust company, it seems that at least some proportion of the incorporators should be residents of the county in which the proposed bank or bank and trust company is to have its place of business. This draft therefore requires that one-third of such incorporators be resident in such county.

The Act of 1889, supra, which governs the incorporation of savings banks requires that at least two-thirds of the incorporators shall reside in the county where the proposed savings bank is to be situated. This draft continues this requirement.

9. This proposed section adds the requirement that each incorporator be a subscriber to shares of a par value of at least one thousand dollars. It seems, particularly in view of the policy that has always been existent in this Commonwealth against the payment of promoters' fees, that the incorporators should have some substantial interest in the proposed bank or bank and trust company. In most cases the incorporators will be the first directors of the bank or bank and trust company. In such case they would be required to own shares of a par value of at least one thousand dollars as such directors.

Section 302. Prohibition upon Payment of, or Contract for Promoters' Fees.—It shall be unlawful (1) for any fee, commission ,or compensation to be paid to any corporation or person for the promotion or organization of an incorporated institution, or (2) for any part of the money collected or to be collected from subscribers or shareholders to be applied to the payment of promoters' fees for obtaining subscriptions or selling shares or for services in starting such incorporated institution; whether such fee, commission, or compensation is provided for by the contract with the proposed incorporated institution, with the promoters, with the subscribers, or otherwise.

In any case in which there has been a violation of this section, the Department shall have the power to disapprove the articles upon this ground alone.

Comments:

This proposed section corresponds substantially to Section 1 of the Act of 1923, supra.

The determination of whether promoters' fees have been paid in violation of this section has likewise been made a duty of the Department, see Section 306 of this draft.

Section 303. Articles of Incorporation.—Articles[1] shall be signed in triplicate originals[2] by each of the incorporators, and acknowledged by at least two of them before any officer within this Commonwealth authorized to take acknowledgments,[3] except in the case of a savings bank, in which case they shall be signed and acknowledge by at least five of the incorporators.

The articles shall set forth, in the English language:

(1) The name of the proposed incorporated institution.[4]

(2) The exact location of its place or places of business.[5]

(3) A precise and accurate statement of the purpose or purposes for which it is organized, as well as a statement that it is organized under the provisions of this act.

(4) The term for which it is to exist.[6].

(5) In the case of a bank or a bank and trust company, the aggregate number of shares which it shall have authority to issue, the par value of each of the shares, and the amount of the capital, as well as the amount of the surplus and expense fund, with which the bank or bank and trust company will commence business.[7]

(6) In the case of a savings bank, the amount of the expense fund which will be paid-in accordance with this act.[8]

(7) A statement of all expenses connected with the organization of the corporation and the procuring of subscriptions, including a declaration that no fee, commission, or compensation of any kind has been or is to be paid to any corporation or person for the promotion or organization of the incorporated institution, or for the procuring of subscriptions, or the sale of its share.[9]

(8) The name, occupation, citizenship, place of residence, and post office address of each incorporator, and, except in the case of a savings bank, the number of shares to which he has subscribed.[10]

(9) The name, occupation, citizenship, place of residence, post office address, and term of office of each of the first directors, and, in the case of a savings bank, each of the first trustees. In the case of each director, the articles shall state the number of shares to which he has subscribed.[11]

(10) In the case of a bank or a bank and trust company, any provision which the incorporators may choose to insert granting to shareholders the preemptive rights to subscribe to any or all issues of shares of the corporation.[12]

(11) Any provision not inconsistent with law which the incorporators may chose to insert for the regulation of the business and the internal affairs of the incorporated institution, and which the Department shall approve.[13]

1. The various incorporation acts in Pennsylvania, supra, use the terms "certificate," "certificate of incorporation," "charter," and "charter of incorporation" indiscriminately. This draft, like the proposed Business Corporation Law, adopts the title "articles of incorporation" for the statement executed by the incorporators. The articles of incorporation become the charter of the corporation upon being approved by the Department of Banking and the Department of State. The certificate of incorporation hereinafter required by this draft to be issued by the Department of State with the consent of the Department of Banking, constitutes official evidence that the articles of incorporation have been approved by those two departments and that the corporation has come into existence. Therefore when the charter of the corporation is amended, it is the articles of incorporation which are amended. The certificate of incorporation issued by the Department of State is incapable of amendment. The Uniform Act and the laws of most other states use similar terms. However, in any event this draft should for purposes of uniformity correspond in terminology to the proposed Business Corporation Law. This it does.

2. The various incorporation acts cited, supra, require the filing of a single copy of the articles. The proposed Business Corporation Law requires the incorporators to prepare and file duplicate originals of the articles of incorporation. This draft requires triplicate originals. The reason for the addition of one original in this draft, as compared with the proposed Business Corporation Law, is that it is felt that although the Department of State is still retained as the clearing house for all incorporation procedure, the Department of Banking should in order competently to examine institutions, have a copy in its files of the articles of each institution.

Under the procedure prescribed by this draft, one set of the articles will be retained by the Department of State for its records, one set will be retained by the Department of Banking to open its files for the particular institution, and the third set will be returned to the incorporators, who will thus have in their possesison a triplicate original of their charter. It is believed that the practice of filing executed documents in triplicate is decidedly in the interest of accuracy, and is preferable to the present method of copying the contents of the articles in a book kept by the Department of State, particularly as the articles under this draft will be more voluminous than the articles under former incorporation statutes, due to the additional information required by this draft to be set forth in them. As stated, the third triplicate original seems necessary for the files of the Department of Banking.

3. Formerly, a certificate of incorporation of a corporation formed under the Corporation Act of 1874 was required to be acknowledged before the recorder of deeds of the proper county. In the case of banks and savings banks the certificate was required to be acknowledged before a judge or notary public. However, under the Act of April 7, 1925, P. L. 183, 15 PS Sec. 24, such certificates or any amendments thereof may also be acknowledged and sworn to before a notary public or a justice of the peace of the Commonwealth. This proposed section contemplates recorders of deeds, justices of the peace, and notaries public by authorizing the articles to be acknowledged before any officer within the Commonwealth authorized to take acknowledgments.

4. See Section 201 of this draft for provisions regulating the choice of name, and Section 202 for provisions permitting the reservation of a chosen name.

5. See Section 203 of this draft for provisions concerning the place of business of an incorporated institution.

6. The permissible duration of corporate existence is covered by Section 314 of this draft.

7. See Article IV for provisions governing respectively capital, par value of shares, surplus, and expense fund.

8. See Section 415 of this draft for definition and limitations upon the expense fund.

9. See Section 302 in this draft.

10. This is made necessary by the requirement concerning the residence of incorporators and the ownership of shares by them.

11. The reasons for the inclusion of this clause is the same as those for the inclusion of Clause (8) concerning incorporators.

12. This provision is necessary in view of Section 615 of this draft, which provides that shareholders shall have no preemptive rights except to the extent that such rights are provided for in the articles of incorporation.

13. In general this section requires information to be set forth in the articles which is deemed necessary to the commencement of corporate activity. Administrative provisions should be covered by the by-laws, which may be changed without an amendment to the articles.

Section 304. Advertisement of Articles.—The incorporators shall advertise their intention to file articles one time in a newspaper of general circulation and one time in a legal newspaper.[1] Advertisements shall appear at least three days prior to the day the articles are filed with the Department of State, and shall set forth briefly:

(1) The name of the proposed incorporated institution.

(2) A statement that the application is made under the provisions of this act.

(3) The character and purpose or purposes of the proposed incorporated institution, and

(4) The time when application will be made to the Department of State.[7]

Comments:

1. See Section 9 of this draft for the general provisions covering advertisement.

2. The Bank Act of 1876, supra, governing banks, and the Act of 1889, supra, governing savings banks, provide for a much longer period of advertisement than does the Corporation Act of 1874 governing bank and trust companies incorporating as title insurance companies. There seems to be no reason for requiring longer advertisement in either of the two cases than in the case of a bank and trust company.

QUERY: Whether advertisement of intention to apply for a charter of an incorporated institution should be required.

The laws of most of the states, including New York, Delaware, New Jersey, Maryland, California, Michigan, Indiana, and Illinois, and the Uniform Act, do not require advertisement as a prerequisite to the incorporation of any business corporation. There seems to be even less reason for advertisement in the case of banks, bank and trust companies or savings banks. The name is carefully checked by the Department of State and the Department of Banking to determine whether it is deceptively similar to any existent name; the need for such an incorporated institution in the particular locality is carefully studied by the Department of Banking; and in general the examination by such department would uncover any reason for not permitting the incorporation of such an institution.

Section 305. Filing of Articles; Payment of Bonus and Fees or Charges.—A. On the day specified by the incorporators in the advertisement of their intention to file articles of incorporation, they shall deliver, or cause to be delivered, to the Department of State, a proof of publication of such advertisement, and the triplicate originals of the articles required by this act.[1]

B. The Department of State shall examine the proof of publication and the articles to determine whether they contain all the information and are in the form required by this act, and whether the name of the proposed incorporated institution is the same as one already adopted or reserved by any other corporation or person, or is so similar thereto that it is likely to mislead the public.[2]

C. After all the bonus fees and charges established by law have been paid, the Department of State shall, if the proof of publication and the articles contain the information and are in the form required by this act, and if the name of the proposed institution does not violate any provision of this act, forthwith indorse its approval upon each of the triplicate originals of the articles and transmit them to the Department of Banking.[3]

D. If the Department of State shall disapprove the articles, pursuant to the provisions of this act, it shall forthwith give notice thereof to the proposed incorporators, stating in detail its reasons for doing so, and indicating how the incorporators can remedy their nonconformance with the provisions of this act. Upon remedying the defect, the incorporators may in the same manner file the same or amended articles, whichever the particular case may require.[4]

Comments:

1. Under the Corporation Act of 1874, supra, articles are to be filed with the Department of State. Under the Bank Act of 1876, supra, and under the Act of 1889, supra, articles for the formation of a bank or a savings bank, respectively, are to be forwarded to the Attorney General for his inspection and approval, and if approved by him endorsed and transmitted to the Auditor General. By Section 6 of the Act of June 15, 1923, P. L. 809, 7 PS Sec. 6, all powers of the Auditor General or the Secretary of the Commonwealth, in relation to any institution, are transferred to the Department of Banking. Under the Act of 1923, supra, the Commissioner of Banking, now the Secretary of Banking, is authorized upon certain grounds to approve or disapprove articles, but the implication from Section 2 of that act is that they are to be filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

This draft follows the general policy of The Administrative Code of making the Department of State the clearing house for all incorporations. Therefore all papers relating to incorporations are required to pass through the Department of State.

2. In accordance with the general policy stated in the preceding footnote, the duties of the Department of State with respect to incorporated institutions are merely formal ones.

3. This proposed subsection, like Subsection B, imposes upon the Department of State the formal duties with respect to incorporation. All fees and charges are to be paid through the Department of State, since it has the machinery for determining and collecting such charges. In accordance with the general policy adopted in the incorporation procedure under this draft, the Department of State, if it approves all the formal incorporation requirements, then transmits the articles to the Department of Banking.

4. Since the only grounds upon which the Department of State is authorized to disapprove the articles in the case of an incorporated institution are formal ones, provision is made for the incorporators to file corrected articles, or to file the same articles if the defect is outside of such articles.

Section 306. Approval of Articles by Department of Banking.—A. The Department of Banking shall, immediately upon the receipt of the articles from the Department of State, conduct such investigation as it may deem necessary to ascertain from the best sources of information at its command:

(1) Whether the name of the proposed incorporated institutionis likely to mislead the public as to its character or purpose.

(2) Whether the convenience and advantage of the public will be served by the proposed incorporation and whether the density of the population in the neighborhood designated for the place of business of such proposed incorporated institution and in the surrounding country affords reasonable promise of adequate support for the enterprise.

(3) Whether the responsibility, character, and general fitness for the business, of the incorporators and directors named in the articles are such as to command the confidence of the community and to warrant the belief that the business of the proposed incorporated institution will be honestly and efficiently conducted in accordance with the intent and purpose of this act.

(4) Whether any fee, commission, or compensation has been paid to any corporation or person for the promotion or organization of such incorporated institution or whether any part of the money collected or to be collected from subscribers or shareholders has been or is to be applied to the payment of promoters' fees for obtaining subscriptions or selling shares or for services in starting such incorporated institution, whether such fee, commission, or compensation is provided for by contract with the proposed incorporated institution or by contract with the subscribers to the shares.[1]

B. Within thirty days after the receipt of the articles from the Department of State, the Department of Banking shall, upon the basis of the facts disclosed by the investigation provided for by this section, either approve or disapprove the articles. It shall immediately notify the Department of State in writing of its action. If it shall approve the articles, it shall sign its approval upon the triplicate originals. It shall retain one of the triplicate originals and return the other two to the Department of State.

C. If the Department of Banking disapproves the articles, it shall return them to the Department of State, stating in detail its reasons for doing so. The Department of State shall immediately give notice to the proposed incorporators, of the action of the Department of Banking and of the reasons therefor as stated to it by that Department. The proposed incorporators may, within thirty days after the Department of State gives them notice of the disapproval of their articles, appeal from such disapproval to the Governor, who shall hear such appeal promptly, and, within thirty days thereafter, decide the matter and certify his decision to the Department of Banking. The decision of the Governor shall be conclusive and not subject to any review. The Department of Banking shall act in accordance therewith.[2]

Comments:

1. Under the Corporation Act of 1874, the Department of Banking is given no authority to approve or disapprove the incorporation of bank and trust companies, formed as title insurance companies. However, under the Act of 1923, supra, the Secretary of Banking is authorized to disapprove the formation of a bank or a bank and trust company if it shall appear to him that promoters' fees have been paid. Under the Act of 1889, supra, the Auditor General has the power to conduct an investigation and to approve or disapprove the granting of a charter to a savings bank upon grounds very similar to those established by this proposed section. Under Section 6 of the Act of June 15, 1923, P. L. 809, 7 PS Sec. 6, this power has been transferred to the Secretary of Banking.

It seems unquestionable that the Department of Banking should have complete charge of determining whether or not a new institution should be permitted to be incorporated in this Commonwealth. The Commonwealth, on behalf of its citizens, has a very definite interest in the formation of banking institutions. The standards established by this proposed section for guiding the Department in determining whether or not to approve the formation of a new incorporated institution are those generally accepted as controlling the desirability of permitting the starting of a new banking institution. They are the tests established by the laws of numerous other states as a guide to their banking officials in determining whether to permit the formation of new banking institutions, for example, New York, New Jersey, Wisconsin, Texas, and Michigan. The provision as to promoters' fees corresponds with that contained in the Act of 1923, supra. Such payment is made illegal by Section 302 of this draft.

2. While the Department is best qualified, upon the basis of the standards established by this proposed section, to determine whether or not the articles should be approved, it seems desirable to provide for an appeal to the Governor.

Section 307. Issuance of Certificate of Incorporation.—Immediately upon receipt of the two signed triplicate originals of the articles of a proposed institution from the Department of Banking, the Department of State shall file and record one of the triplicate originals and shall issue a certificate of incorporation. The remaining triplicate original of the articles and the certificate of incorporation shall be sent by the Department of State to the incorporators or their representative, who shall then have them recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county in which the principal place of business of the proposed incorporated institution is or will be situated. The triplicate original of the articles, upon being recorded by the recorder of deeds, shall be retured to the incorporators, or their representative, and shall constitute the charter of the corporation.

Comments:

This proposed section makes a radical change in the method of procuring charters. Under the Corporation Act of 1874, supra, under the Bank Act of 1876, supra, and under the Act of 1889, supra, all charters are required to be approved by the Governor. If he approves them, he is required to issue letters patent.

This draft follows the change instituted in Section 206 of the proposed Business Corporation Law and eliminates the requirement that the Governor approve the articles or issue letters patent. Pennsylvania appears to be the only state which requires articles for the incorporation of a business corporation to be presented to and approved by the Governor. In practice, the articles are also approved and signed by the Secretary of the Commonwealth or the Secretary of Banking, as the case may be. The Pennsylvania practice not only places an undue burden upon the Governor, but because of the number of signatures and approvals required, more particularly it is true in the case of general business corporations than of incorporated institutions, results in delay.

The Uniform Act and the incorporation laws of the other states uniformly require the articles for the incorporation of a business corporation to be presented to and approved by the administrative official in charge of the department corresponding to our Department of State, or of the head of the Banking Department, and authorizes that officer to issue a certificate of incorporation. The procedure instituted by this proposed section will make the law of Pennsylvania uniform with the laws of the other states.

The certificate of incorporation provided for by this draft stands in lieu of the letters patent which are now issued by the Governor, and constitutes official evidence that the articles have been filed by the Department of State, and that the corporation has come into existence.

Section 308. Effect of Issuance of Certificate of Incorporation.—Upon the issuance of the certificate of incorporation of any institution by the Department of State, the corporate existence shall begin.[1] The certificate of incorporation shall be conclusive evidence of the fact that the institution has been incorporated but proceedings may be instituted by the Commonwealth to dissolve, wipe out, and terminate an institution which should not have been formed under this act, or which has been formed without a substantial compliance with the conditions prescribed by this act as precedent to the provisions of this act.

Pennsylvania

Corporation Act of 1874, Section 3 (d), 15 PS Sec. 21.

Comments:

1. The Corporation Act of 1874, supra, makes the recording of articles, "in the office for the recording of deeds, in and for the county where the chief operations are to be carried on," a condition precedent to corporate existence. Upon the recording of the articles, corporate existence begins, Guckert v. Hacke, et al., 159 Pa. 303 (1893); Tonge v. Item Publishing Company, Appellant, 244 Pa. 417 (1914); Deniston's Estate, 70 Pitts. L. J. 59 (1921). This draft follows Section 207 of the proposed Business Corporation Law and changes the Pennsylvania law in this respect, in that corporate existence begins upon the issuance of the certificate of incorporation by the Department of State. The commissioners on uniform laws strongly recommend that corporate existence begin on the issuance of the certificate of incorporation, and the laws of most states contain such a provision. Section 310 of this draft, however, prohibits the corporation from accepting any deposits, incurring any indebtedness, or beginning the transaction of any business, except after the issuance and filing of a certificate of authorization. In other words, the certificate of authorization and the filing thereof is not a condition precedent to the corporate existence, but a condition precedent to the right to do business.

2. The object of this section, taken from Section 207 of the proposed Business Corporation Law, is to solve the de facto problem. According to a note contained under this section in the Uniform Act, it is believed that the section, as worded, does not alter the present case law as to the right of the state. According to present law, the state may intervene: (a) when the corporation is one that should not have been incorporated under the act; and (b) when there has been a failure substantially to comply with such conditions precedent to incorporation as are considered mandatory. If, however, the conditions not complied with are found to be directory rather than mandatory, the default on the part of the incorporators is held to be unassailable even by the state. If, also, there has been substantial compliance with mandatory provisions, the state is not permitted to object that there has not been literal compliance. The proposed section treats all conditions prescribed by this act as precedent to incorporation as mandatory provisions, but declares substantial compliance to be sufficient. The line of distinction between mandatory and directory provisions is not defined with exactness, but it is believed that in most cases the distinction between mandatory and directory provisions is in a large part one between conditions precedent to incorporation and conditions precedent to the right to do business.

The present section goes further than the case law in defining collateral attack upon the legality of incorporation. To deny collateral attack, the cases hold that (a) there must have been a real attempt to incorporate, and (b) the corporation must have been one that was formable under the statute. The present section would make the certificate of incorporation conclusive in all cases.

Section 309. Fees for Investigation by Department of Banking.—In addition to any bonus fee and charge provided by law in the case of any corporation, the incorporators of an incorporated institution shall pay to the Department of State at the time they file their articles such reasonable fees, as shall be established by rule and regulation by the Department of Banking, for the investigation made by the Department of Banking pursuant to the provisions of this act, to determine whether the articles should be approved. Such fees shall be paid by the Department of State, through the Department of Revenue, into the Banking Department Fund.

Comments:

This provision seems necessary in view of the additional duties imposed upon the Department of Banking to conduct an examination in the case of every incorporated institution proposed to be formed. It seems desirable, too, to provide for payment upon the filing of the articles since, if the articles are not approved, it will frequently be very difficult to recover the expenses of the investigation from the incorporators. The cost would then have to come out of the Department of Banking Fund and consequently be assessed against existent institutions. This would clearly be unjust.

Section 310. Conditions Precedent to Beginning Business; Certificate of Authorization; Penalty For Violation.—A. An incorporated institution formed under this act shall not accept any deposits, incur any indebtedness, or begin the transaction of any business except such as shall be incident to its organization or to the obtaining of subscriptions to, or payment for, its shares until it shall receive from the Department of Banking[1] and file in the manner required by this section, a certificate of authorization, which shall not however be issued until:[2]

(1) A duplicate original of its articles has been recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds, pursuant to the provisions of this act;

(2) In the case of a bank or a bank and trust company, its capital, its surplus, and its expense fund, to the amount stated in the articles, have been fully paid in, such capital, surplus, and expense fund being equal at least to the mimimum required by this act for such an institution;

(3) In the case of a saving bank, the amount of the expense fund, as stated in the articles, has been fully paid in, provided that such amount equals at least the minimum expense fund required by this act;

(4) Every director or trustee has taken the oath or affirmation required of directors or trustees by this act;

(5) The incorporated institution is organized and ready to begin business;

(6) The by-laws of the incorporated institution have been filed with the Department of Banking and have not been disapproved by it.

When all the acts set forth in this section have been completed, an affidavit signed by either the cashier or the treasurer of the incorporated institution and by at least a majority of the board of directors in the case of a bank or a bank and trust company or a majority of the trustees in the case of a savings bank shall be prepared in triplicate originals and filed with the Department of Banking. If it shall appear to the Department that the provisions of this section have been complied with, it shall retain and file one of the triplicate originals and shall issue a certificate of authorization. It shall then send one of the triplicate originals to the Department of State and it shall return the others, together with the certificate of authorization to the incorporated institution.[3] The incorporated institution shall file the certificate of authorization with the recorder of deeds of the county in which it has its principal place of business, and upon doing so, shall be authorized to commence and transact its business.

B. If an incorporated institution shall transact any business in violation of this section, the officers who participated therein and the directors, or, in the case of a savings banks, the trustees, except those directors or trustees who dissented therefrom and caused their dissent to be filed at the time in the Department of Banking, or who, being absent, so filed their dissent upon learning of the action, shall be severally liable for the debts and liabilities of the incorporated institution arising therefrom.[3]

Comments:

1. As pointed out in footnote 1 to Section 308 of this draft, corporate existence begins under this draft upon the issuance of the certificate of incorporation by the Department of State. Under this draft, the filing of a certificate of authorization in the office of the recorder of deeds is made a condition precedent to the beginning of business by the corporation.

2. The duty of issuing the certificate of authorization is placed upon the Department of Banking rather than the Department of State, since this is not properly a part of the incorporation procedure but is rather a part of the substantive determination of whether the incorporated institution can commence business, for example, Section 208 of the proposed Business Corporation Law does not require a certificate of authorization but provides merely that an affidavit similar to that provided for in this draft, be filed with the recorder of deeds, and with the Department of State. This proposed section provides for such filing of the certificate of authorization, and thus keeps the records of the Department of State substantially the same as in the case of other corporations without imposing upon it any different duties.

3. This penalty is also imposed by Section 208 of the Business Corporation Law and is taken from Section 8 of the Uniform Act. Under the Corporation Act of 1874, it makes the recording of the articles a condition precedent to corporate existence. It has been held that failure to record the articles will render the incorporators personally liable to the persons who deal with them without knowledge of the corporation. Guckert v. Hacke, et al., 159 Pa. 303 (1893). Since under this draft corporate existence begins upon the filing of the certificate of authorization and not upon the recording of the articles, this penalty is necessary. Under this draft, there will be an incorporated institution, but the right of the creditor against the officers and directors who are responsible for a violation of the section is not conditioned upon the creditor's ability to prove that he was deceived.

Section 311. Organization Meetings.—A. After the issuance of the certificate of incorporation of a bank or a bank and trust company, the first meeting of the shareholders shall be held within this Commonwealth at the call of the incorporators, or a majority of them, for the purpose of adopting by-laws, if the articles of incorporation provide for the adoption thereof by the shareholders, and for such other purposes as shall be stated in the notice of the meeting. The incorporators so calling the meeting shall give at least ten days' notice thereof, by mail, to each shareholder, which notice shall state the time, place, and purpose or purposes of the meeting.

B. After the issuance of the certificate of incorporation of an incorporated institution, an organization meeting of the board of directors or the board of trustees named in the articles shall be held within this Commonwealth at the call of a majority of the directors or trustees, for the purpose of adopting by-laws, if the articles authorize the directors or trustees to adopt by-laws, for the purpose of electing officers, and for the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting. The directors or trustees calling the meeting shall give at least five days' notice, by mail, of the time and place of the meeting to each director named in the articles.

Comments:

This proposed section is based primarily upon Section 210 of the proposed Business Corporation Law. There is no statutory provision in Pennsylvania regulating organization meetings of the shareholders or directors. This proposed section of the draft sets forth the usual practice in Pennsylvania. The general provision relating to waivers, contained in Section 11 of this draft, premits the holding of either of the organization meetings on waiver of notice. In practice, these meetings are generally held on waiver of notice.

The provision of the proposed Business Corporation Law permitting the meeting of the directors to be held outside the Commonwealth does not seem desirable in the case of an incorporated institution.

Article XVI, Section 10 of the Pennsylvania Constitution provides:

"The General Assembly shall have the power to alter, revoke or annul any charter of incorporation now existing and revokable at the adoption of this Constitution, or any that may hereafter be created, whenever in their opinion it may be injurious to the citizens of this Commonwealth, in such manner, however, that no injustice shall be done to the corporation. No law hereafter enacted shall create, renew or extend the charter of more than one corporation."

Section 313. Corporate Capacity and Authority.—An incorporated institution formed under this act shall have the capacity to act possessed by natural persons, but shall have authority to perform only such acts as are necessary or proper to accomplish its purpose or purposes, and which are not repugnant to law.

Comments:

This section is supplementary to Section 11 of this draft. Section 11 abolishes the doctrine of constructive notice of the contents of the charter of an incorporated institution.

This proposed section abolishes another prop of the ultra vires structure, namely the doctrine that a corporation has a limited capacity measured by its statutory powers. This section, in effect, restores the common law rule that a corporation has the capacity of natural persons; that is, the capacity to do an unauthorized or even an illegal act. This proposed section, as well as Section 11 and Section 315 of this draft, follow almost verbatim Sections 9, 301, and 303 of the proposed Business Corporation Law.

A note to Section 11 of the Uniform Act points out:

"The fundamental conflict in the authorities may be represented by the statement of Justice Gray in Central Transportation Co. v. Pullman Car Co., 139 U. S. 24, 59, that 'The objection to the contract is, not merely that the corporation ought not to have made it, but that it could not make it. The contract cannot be ratified by either party, because it could not have been authorized by either. No performance on either side can give the unlawful contract any validity, or be the foundation of any right of action upon it,' as opposed to the statement of Comstock, J., in Bissell v. R. R., 22 N. Y. 258, 264, that 'To say that a corporation has no right to do unauthorized acts, is only to put forth a very plain truism; but to say that such bodies have no power or capacity to err, is to impute to them an excellence which does not belong to any created existence with which we are acquainted. The distinction between power and right is no more to be lost sight of in respect to artificial than in respect to natural persons. * * * When we speak of the powers of a corporation, the term only expresses the privileges and franchises which are bestowed in the charter; and when we say it cannot exercise other powers, the just meaning of the language is, that as the attempt to do so is without authority of law, the performance of unauthorized acts is a usurpation which may be a wrong to the state, or, perhaps, to the shareholders. But the usurpation is possible. In the same sense natural persons are under restraint of law, but they may transgress the law, and when they do they are responsible for their acts.' The first view may be said to prevail in the federal courts and a minority of the state courts, while the second view probably obtains in the courts of all but eight of the states.

"The first view is based upon the conception of limited corporate capacity; the conception that a corporation cannot do what it has not been given authority to do. * * * This doctrine of limited capacity, like the doctrine of constructive notice, is the result of a judicial interpretation of legislative intention. * * * At common law, a corporation had the capacity of natural persons, i. e., the capacity to do an unauthorized or even an illegal act. * * *

* * * * *

"Section 10 and 11 of this draft, by abolishing the doctrine of constructive notice and the doctrine of limited capacity, would remove two of the sources of greatest confusion in the ultra vires cases, the chief obstacles to uniformity in decisions. As suggested, these obstacles, springing from an interpretation of legislative intention, can be removed only by legislation. Further legislation than this in connection with the ultra vires problem seems to be unnecessary. * * *"

Query: Is it desirable to abolish the ultra vires doctrine to as great an extent as does this draft in the case of incorporated institutions?

Section 314. General Powers.—Subject to the limitations and restrictions contained in this act or in its articles, every incorporated institution shall have authority:

(1) To continue as an incorporated institution for the time limited in its articles or, if a time limit is not specified therein, then perpetually, subject to the power of the General Assembly, under the Consttution of this Commonwealth;[1]

(2) To sue and be sued, complain and defend in its corporate name;

(3) To have a corporate seal which may be altered at pleasure, and to use the same by causing it or a facsimile of it to be impressed or affixed, or in any manner reproduced;

(4) To make, alter, amend, and repeal by-laws not inconsistent with its articles or with law, for the administration and regulation of the affairs of the incorporated institution;

(5) To elect or appoint and remove officers and agents of the incorporated institution, and to define their duties and fix their compensation;

(6) To have and exercise all of the powers and means necessary to effect the purpose of purposes for which the incorporated institution is formed.

The powers herein enumerated shall not be construed as limiting or enlarging any grant of authority specifically granted elsewhere in this act, or as limiting the purpose or purposes for which an incorporated institution may be organized, as set forth in its articles. It shall not be necessary to set forth in the articles of an incorporated institution any of the powers enumerated in its articles. Except as otherwise provided in this act or in the by-laws of a particular incorporated institution, the powers herein enumerated shall be exercised by the board of directors or the board of trustees of the incorporated institution, as the case may be.

1. The Corporation Act of 1874, supra, provides that a corporation shall have power: "To have succession by its corporate name for the period limited by its charter, and when no period is limted thereby, or by this act, perpetually, subject to the power of the general assembly, under the constitution of this commonwealth."

The Bank Act of 1876 provided that banks organized thereunder should have "succession for the term of twenty years from the date of the letters patent unless sooner dissolved under its artciles of association or this act".

The Act of 1889 applying to savings banks, provides for existence "perpetually from the date of the letters patent unless sooner dissolved under the provisions of the articles of association, or by the provisions of any act of Assembly".

The Act of 1885, supra, provides for the renewal and existence of the charter of all "provident institutions, savings institutions and savings banks, banks of discount and savings banks and trust companies, not being banks of issue, chartered under the laws of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania".

This draft permits perpetual succession but of course authorizes an incorporated institution to provide for a shorter term of existence in its articles.

The remaining powers are supplementary and are adaptions in so far as applicable, of Sectian 302 of the proposed Business Corporation Law.

Section 315. Defense of Ultra Vires.[1]—A. No limitation upon the business, purpose or purposes, or powers of an incorporated institution, expressed or implied in its articles or implied by law, shall be asserted in order to defend any action at law or in equity between the incorporated institution and a third person, or between a shareholder and a third person, involving any contract to which the incoporated institution is a party or any right of property or any alleged liability of whatsoever nature; but such limitation may be asserted:

(1) In an action by a shareholder against the incorporated institution, to enjoin the doing of unauthorized acts or the transaction or continuation of unauthorized business. If the unauthorized acts or the business sought to be enjoined are being transacted pursuant to any contract to which the incorporated institution is a party, the court may, if all the parties to the contract are parties to the suit, and if it deems the same to be equitable, set aside and enjoin the performance of such contract, and in so doing shall allow to the incorporated institution, or the other parties, as the case may be, compensation for the loss or damage sustained by either of them, which may result from the action of the court in setting aside and enjoining the performance of such contract, but anticipated profits to be derived from the performance of the contract shall not be awarded by the court as a loss or damage sustained.

(2) In an action at law or equity by the incorporated institution, whether acting through a receiver, trustees, or other legal representative, or through shareholders in a representative suit, against the officers, directors, or trustees of the incorporated institution for exceeding their authority.

(3) In any proceeding in which the Department is defending any action taken by it against the incorporated institution, or is seeking to enforce an order against such institution, or to enjoin it from the transaction of unauthorized or unlawful business.[2]

B. No conveyance or transfer by or to an institution of property, real or personal, of any kind or description, shall be invalid or fail because in making such conveyance or transfer, or in acquiring the property, real or personal, the board of directors or in the case of a savings bank, the board of trustees, or any of the officers of the institution, acting within the scope of the actual or apparent authority given to them by the board of directors, or in the case of a savings bank, the board of trustees have in so doing exceeded any of its objects, purposes or powers.

Comments:

1. Like Section 11 and Section 313 of this draft, this proposed section follows in general Sections 9, 301, and 303 of the proposed Business Corporation Law. Again the questions arises whether it is desirable to apply these provisions to incorporated institutions.

Fletcher Cyclopedia Corporations (Permanent Edition) Volume 7, Section 3439 (1931), at page 589, states of the ultra vires doctrine, as applicable to any corporation.

"Until a few years ago, there were no statutes in this country relating to ultra vires as a defense. However, the conflict and confusion in the decisions as to the effect of ultra vires, and the desire of many to abolish the doctrine as between the parties to the ultra vires act, have resulted in the past few years in numerous proposed codifications and restatements of the ultra vires doctrine and also in the enactment of statutes in several states either limting or abolishing the doctrine of ultra vires as between the parties to the alleged ultra vires transaction. These statutes may be classified as (1) those adopting wholly or in substance the Uniform Business Corporation Act, and (2) statutes not in states adopting this act. This first class of statutes does not go so far, and is not as comprehensive, as the later class of statutes."

The Uniform Act merely attempts to make uniform the decisions relating to the defense of ultra vires by abolishing two doctrines which give rise to most of the confusion in such decisions, namely: (1) the doctrine of constructive notice of the contents of the charter, and (2) the doctrine of limited corporate capacity. If these two doctrines are abolished, the effect will be to bring the few states in this country which follow the Federal rule in line with the majority of the states, which do not follow the Federal rule in the field of ultra vires. This draft, in Section 11 and 313, follows the suggestion of the Uniform Act.

It is submitted, however, that the elimination of the doctrine of constructive notice and limited corporate capacity will make little change in the present Pennsylvania law. In Pennsylvania an unexecuted corporate act or agreement which is ultra vires can ordinarily be repudiated by the corporation,—Pittsburgh and Steubenville Railroad Company v. Allegheny County, 79 Pa. 210 (1875); Twelfth Street Market Company v. Jackson, 102 Pa. 269 (1883),—but a corporation may not avail itself of ultra vires as a defense where a contract has been entered into and executed in good faith by the other party and the corporation has received the benefit of the performance. This rule is founded upon the doctrine of estoppel rather than the ratification, and relates to all contracts except those absolutely void on the ground of public policy,—Boyd v. The American Carbon Black Company, 182 Pa. 206 (1897); Presbyterian Board v. Gilbee, 212 Pa. 310 (1905); Lemmon v. The East Palestine Rubber Company, 260 Pa. 28 (1918); Doylestown and Danborough Turnpike Railroad Company v. Philadelphia and Easton Electric Railway Company, 49 Pa. Super. 381 (1912). If an ultra vires contract is partly exectory, a corporation may, if the contract is easily divisible, avoid the executory portions, because of their ultra vires nature,—Thomas, et al., v. West Jersey Railroad Company, 101 U. S. 71 (1800); Gloninger v. Pittsburg and C. R. Company, 139 Pa. 13 (1891); Bosshardt v. Crescent Oil Company, Ltd., 171 Pa. 109 (1895),—otherwise the doctrine of equitable estoppel is applicable to the partly executory contract,—Leslie and Company, Ltd., v. Baird Manufacturing Company, 66 Pitts. 753 (1918). Also, in Pennsylvania this doctrine may be set up by stockholders, the State, or by creditors, but not by a stranger to the transaction,—Hazlewood Brewing Company v. Siebert, 256 Pa. 9 (1917). Generally speaking, the defense of ultra vires is not looked upon favorably by the courts of this Commonwealth. As is stated in Wright, et al., v. The Pipe Line Company, 101 Pa. 204 (1882), "The law never sustains a defense of this nature out of regard for a defendant; it does so only where an imperative rule of public policy requires it."

On the other hand, in very recent years, Vermont, Ohio, California, Illinois and Michigan have abolished the defense of ultra vires between the corporation and a third party or a stockholder and a third party. Ohio, however, expressly retains the ultra vires doctrine as against a person having actual knowledge of the want of authority of the corporation. These states, however, permit such defense to be set up between the corporation and the stockholders. None of the statutes enacted by these states changes the law as to the power of the State to forfeit or oust because of ultra vires, or the power of the corporation or its stockholders to prevent ultra vires transactions, or obtain redress therefor as against corporate officers. This draft follows the proposal Business Corporation Law and goes further than the Uniform Act and abolishes the doctrine of ultra vires between the corporation and third parties or shareholders of the corporation and third parties. The provisions of this section are taken from the Illinois and California acts, which were adopted in 1931.

The proposed Business Corporation Law queries whether Pennsylvania should follow the Ohio act and permit the corporate body to use the defense of ultra vires against a third party which dealt with the corporate agents knowing that the transaction was ultra vires and that the agents had no authority from the corporation to engage in this trasaction.

2. Clause (3) is completely different from the proposed Business Corporation Law but seems necessary by virtue of the special powers given to the Department of Banking over all incorporated institutions, which are much broader than those given to the Department of State over general business corporations.

Section 316. By-Laws; Adoption, Amendment, or Repeal; Approval by Department.—A. Except as herein otherwise provided, the shareholders shall have the power to make, alter, amend, and repeal the by-laws of a bank or a bank and trust company. The authority to make by-laws may be expressly vested by the articles in the board of directors, subject to the power of the shareholders to change or repeal such by-laws but the board of directors shall not make or alter any by-laws fixing their qualifications, classification, term of office, or compensation. Unless the article or by-laws otherwise provide, the by-laws may be adopted, altered, amended, and repealed by a majority vote of the board of directors, or of the shareholders, as the case may be, at any regular or special meeting duly convened after notice to shareholders or directors of that purpose.[1]

B. Except as otherwise provided in this act or in the articles, or by-laws of a savings bank, the trustees shall have the power to make, alter, amend, and repeal the by-laws of a savings bank. Unless the articles or by-laws otherwise provide, the by-laws may be adopted, altered, amended, and repealed by a majority vote of the trustees, at any regular or special meeting of the trustees duly convened after notice of that purpose has been given to them.[2]

This provision shall not affect any other plan for the making of by-laws, contained in any special act of the General Assembly creating a savings bank, its amendments and supplements.[3]

C. The by-laws of an incorporated institution may contain any provision for the regulation and management of the affairs of such incorporated institution not inconsistent with law or the articles, and may provide penalties for the breach thereof not exceeding twenty dollars.

D. Immediately upon the adoption of the by-laws or of any addition thereto or any alteration, amendment, or repeal thereof, notice of such fact and a copy of such by-law or such alteration, amendment, or repeal shall forthwith be sent to the Department of Banking. The Department of Banking shall have the power to disapprove any such by-law or any such alteration, amendment, or repeal thereof, but such by-law, alteration, amendment, or repeal shall be effective until the Department actually disapproves it and gives notice thereof to the incorporated institution.[4]

Corporation Act of 1874, Section 5, amended by Act of May 14, 1891, P. L. 61, 15 PS Sec. 41.

Comments:

1. Subsections A and C of this proposed section correspond to Section 304 of the proposed Business Corporation Law. Section 5 of the Corporation Act of 1874, supra, as amended, provides that the by-laws "shall be made by the stockholders or members of the corporation at a general meeting called for that purpose unless the charter prescribes another body of a different body." While the recent general corporation acts of Illinois and Indiana and a few other states vest the power to make by-laws primarily in the board of directors, unless the articles provide otherwise, this draft in accordance with the Uniform Act and the Pennsylvania Act, vests this power primarily in the shareholders. The general rule is now, as it was under the common law, that the power to adopt by-laws resides inherently and primarily in the shareholders— Fletcher Cyclopedia Corporations (Permanent Edition) Volume 8, Section 4172,—and there seems to be no reason for shifting this inherent power from the shareholders to the board of directors.

2. It seems clear that the making of by-laws in the case of a savings bank should be by the trustees, unless some other plan is contained in the articles or by-laws.

3. However, in at least one case the special act creating a saving bank contains a special plan for the making of by-laws. In such case there seems to be no reason for this draft to impose this plan upon such savings bank.

4. This draft requires the articles of any incorporated institution, as well as any amendments thereto, to be approved by the Department.

Under existing law there is no requirement that the by-laws of an incorporated institution be approved by the Department. It seems clear that the Department should have the power to exercise some supervision over the contents of the by-laws of an incorporated institution. However, to require that the Department approve them, or any amendments to them, before they become effective would serve as a hardship upon the incorporated institution. Therefore, this draft provides that the by-laws shall remain effective until actually disapproved by the Department. 1

Section 317. Parties Bound by By-laws; Execution of Instruments.—The by-laws of an incorporated institution shall operate merely as regulations among the members of the incorporated institution, and shall not affect contracts or other dealings with other corporations or persons, unless such corporations or persons have actual knowledge of such by-laws, or unless the incorporated institution has given to such corporations or persons a copy of such by-laws.

Any form of execution provided in the by-laws to the contrary notwithstanding, any note, mortgage, eivdence of indebtedness, contract, of other instrument of writing, or any assignment or endorsement thereof, executed or entered into between an incorporated institution and any other corporation or person, when signed by the president or vice-president and by the cashier or treasurer of such incorporated institution, shall be held to have been properly exeucted for and in behalf of the incorporated institution.

Comments:

The Act of 1925 overruled the cases (1) which held that a person dealing with a corporation is charged with notice of the by-laws, and (2) which held that parties acting under agreements with a corporation are bound by the form of execution provided for in the by-laws or resolutions authorizing the specific contracts.

ARTICLE IV

Capital, Surplus, and Expense Fund of Banks or Bank and Trust Companies

Section 401. Minimum Capital of Banks and Bank and Trust Companies Incorporated Under This Act.—A. A bank shall not be incorporated under this act, unless it has a minimum capital, as follows:

(1) Fifty thousand dollars if its place of business is to be in a borough or a township, the population of which does not exceed six thousand.

(2) One hundred thousand dollars if its place of business is to be in a city, borough, or township, the population of which exceeds six thousand but does not exceed fifty thousand.

(3) Two hundred thousand dollars if its place of business is to be in a city, borough, or township, the population of which exceeds fifty thousand.

B. A bank and trust company shall not be incorporated under this act, and a bank shall not become a bank and trust company under this act, unless it has a minimum capital, as follows:

(1) One hundred fifty thousand dollars if its place of business is, or is to be, in a borough or township, the population of which does not exceed six thousand.

(2) Two hundred thousand dollars if its place of business is, or is to be, in a city, borough, or township, the population of which exceeds six thousand but does not exceed fifty thousand.

(3) Three hundred thousand dollars if its place of business is, or is to be, in a city, borough, or township, the population of which exceeds fifty thousand.

C. For the purposes of this section the population of a city, borough, or township shall be taken to be that stated in the United States census last preceding the date of the filing of the articles of incorporation, or, in the case of a bank which is about to become a bank and trust company, when its articles of amendment are filed.

Comments:

Under existing law, the minimum capital requirements for banks are as follows:

(1) Twenty-five thousand dollars—"town or city of less than five thousand inhabitants."

(2) Fifty thousand dollars—"town or city of more than five thousand inhabitants."

The minimum capital requirements for bank and trust companies is one hundred twenty-five thousand dollars, regardless of the population of the city, borough, or township, in which the bank and trust company has its place of business.

Under the general corporation law applicable to all business corporations, bank and trust companies are prohibited from having a capital of more than one million dollars.

In the first place the present act does not limit the maximum capital of either banks or bank and trust companies. There seems to be no reason for such a limitation and it is therefore omitted.
